 much money for them, were forsed to lacke the fruicion therof the tood of their ioules, one of the greatest commodities, whych they possesse & in, or vnder God and your graces permission here in earth. For what other are the base people, nay rather al your graces subiectes, boyde of the knowledge of Gods word, and ignoraunt in the same, then brutish, sauage, destitute of al humanitie, replete with grosse errors, euer to learne, and neuer learning theyr dutye to God, theyr allegiaunce to your Maiestie, the loue to theyr neyghbours, the vse of theyr wordli substance, & al other benefites receiued of the aboundant munificence & large liberalitie of god. The premisses therfore, most noble Prince, diligently considered, & with mature deliberacion wel & aduisedwyth al reuerence exhibite and dedicate to your royal Maiestie, as to the moost worthy defendour, & principal patrone, next vnder God in earth, thereof. To what other person

Therefore to dedicate Gods boke, to any other then onely to kynges, hygh Maand vsurpe the patronage of Gods boke, onles he be an Emperour, a kyng, a Monarch or a gouernoure. For suche do not vsurpe, but rather vse it as theyr princely patrimony and most lawfulllest inheritaunce. Theyr interest and title herein, dependeth not onely vpon prescription of time or stablished by politique statutes, lawes, and ordinaunces of reth euidently in the xvii. of Deutono. where the institution of a kyng is byscribed, and immediatly vpon his institution these Godly wordes ensuyng, are inferred.

When the kyng is set vpon the seate of hys kyngdome, he shal write him forth this second law, in a boke taking a coppe of the priestes and the Leuites, & it shal be wyth hym, & he shal read therein al the dayes of hys

First the holpe tryppnges of the Byble teach vs, that ther is one God almyghty, that hath nether begynnyng nor endyng: whiche of hys owne goodnes dyd create al thynges: of whom al thyngs procede, and wthoute whom ther is nothyng: whiche is rightuous and merciful, and which worketh al thyngs in al after his wyl: of whom it may not be demanded wherfore he doth this or that.

Then that thys very God dyd create Adam the first man after hys owne pmage and symilitude, and dyd ordeine and appoint hym Lorde of al the creatures in the earth. Which Adam by the enuy of the deuyl, dyfobeyng the commaundment of hys maker, and dyd syn, and brought synne into thys world, such and so greare, that we whiche be spronge of hym after the fleshe, are subdued vnto synne, deathe, and damnacion, brought vnder the poeke and tyranye of the deuyl.

And further that Christ Iesus hys sonne was promysed of God the father, to be a saulout to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid and the other fathers: whiche shoulde deliuer them from theyr synnes and tyranye of the deuyl, that wth a quicke and luyng saythe woulde beleue hys promes, and trust to thys Jesus Christe, hoppyng to haue thys deliue-rance of and by hym. And truly this promes is very oft rehearsed, in the bookes of the Olde Testament is thys promes: as it is called the Newe, whiche teacheth that this promes is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season while the fathers looke for saluacion and deli-uerance promysed, because mans nature is such that he not onely can not, but also wyl not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specially such a synner that hath neede of the sauyng healte promysed, the lawe was geuen where throughte men myghte knowe synne, and that they are synners: when they se that they do none of the thin-ges that the lawe commaundeth, wth so glad and wyllyng myndes as God requireth: but rather agaynst theyr wyls, without affection, and as though they wer con-strayned wth the feare of that hel whiche the lawe threatneth, sayinge: Cursed be he that maynteyneth not all the woordes of thys lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was geuen, to the entente that synne and the malice of mens best beynge thereby the better knowne, men shoulde the more fer-uently expect the commyng of Christ, which shoulde redeme them from theyr synnes:

As it was figured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonies, hostes & sacrifices: whiche wer ordeined of God, not to reuintente to take away synnes, but to shewe and declare: that they shuld be put away by faith the saluacion promysed thorow Christ: and which now are put away by the commyng of that Christ, which is the very boi of the father that taketh away al synne.

Last of al by the bookes of þ Newe Testamente, we are taught, that Christe whiche was promysed and shadowed in the old Testament, is sent of the father, at such tyme as he had determined wth himselfe, at such tyme (I say) as al myghenes flooyshed. And that he was sent not for any mans good works (for they al wer sinners) but to the intente that he wold truly shewe the aboundaunt riches of his grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the new Testament therefore it is moste euidently declared: that Iesus Christe the true lambe and host, is come to the intent to reconcile vs to the father papung on the crosse the punishment due vnto our synnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuyl (vnto whom we ser-ued throught synne) & to make vs þ sonnes of God, for he hath geuen us the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer doo feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put away by the faith, confidence and assurance that the father geueth vs, drawinge vs vnto hys sonne. For the sayth is the gift of god, whereby we beleue that Christ is come into thys worlde to saue synners: whiche is of so great pryncthat they which haue it, desyre to performe al the duties of loue to al men, after the example of Christ. For forthe ones receiued God geueth hys holy Ghost, wherewith he tokeneth and marketh al þ beleuer: whiche is the pledge and earnest that we shal surely possesse euerlasting life, and that geueth wytnes vnto our spyt, and grafeth this sayth in vs, that we be the sonnes of God: pouyng therewith the loue into our herts whiche shal describe and seeterh oute to the Corinthians. By the faith and confidence in Christ whiche by loue is myghty in operation, and that sheweth it selfe thorow the workes of loue, stryng men thereto, by that (I say) we are fulfilled: that is by þ sayth, Christes father (whiche is become oures also thorow that Christe our brother) counreth vs for ryghtuous, & for hys sonnes: imputinge not our synnes vnto vs, thorow hys grace.

To conclude, he came to the intente we beynge clesed from our synnes, and sanctified vnto God the father: that is, halotwed vnto the vse of the father to exercise good workes reuyng and forsakynge the workes of the fleshe, shoulde truly serue hym in ryghteousnes and holynes al oure lyfe long: thorow good workes whiche God hath ordeined to the intente that we shuld walke in them, declaring out selues there c. llii. by that he hath not faith in Christ.

instructe and teach us: for he is our map-per meke and humble of heart: he is our example of whom we must learne the rule of good living: further, he is our priest, his bishop, and onely mediator: whiche now sitteth on the right hande of God the father, is our advocate, and prayeth ever for us: which wyl undoubtedly obteyne what so ever we desire, eyther of him, or of his father in his name: if we beleue that he wil doe it when we requyre it: for so hath he promised. Let vs therefore not doubt (although we sometime spynne) with a confidence to come unto hym, and with a ly-ving and undouting faith, that we shall obteyne mercy. For therefore came he, to the intent to save synners: neyther requyreth he any thing more of us, then to come unto hym without feare.

This is that Christ Jesus whiche after he hath kylled the man of sinne with the breath of his mouth, shal sit in his majesty and iudge all men, geving unto every one the workes of his body, accordyng to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad: And that he shal save unto them that shal be on his right hand. Come ye blessed chylidren of my father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you fro the beginning of the worlde: And unto them that shal be on his left hand: Depart from me ye cursed, into everlastyng fyre: which is prepared for the devyl and his angels. The shal the ende come and he shal delivre us by the kingedome to God the father.

To the intent that we shuld knowe this, by the goodnes of God, workinge by his holy spirit, are the holy wrytynges of the Byble geve us: That we shuld knowe his name and beleue that there is one God, and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent: and that in beleuyng, we shoulde have everla-styng lyfe thowgh his name.

Another foundation then this can no man save. And saynre shoulde desireth that he be bolden a curst whiche made the seconde daie.

And God sayd: * let the waters bring forth creatures that moue and haue life, & fowles for to flye ouer the earth vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created greate whales, and all maner of creatures that lue & moue, whiche the waters brought forth in their kindes, and all maner of feathered fowles in theiꝝ kindes. And God sawe that it was good, and * blessed them, saying: Increase and multiplie, and fyll the waters of the seas, & let the fowles multiplie vpon the earth. And the euening and morning was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the earth bring forth and wormes, and beastes of the earth in their kindes, and so it was. And God made the beastes of the earth in their kindes, and cattell in their kindes, and all manner wormes of the earth in their kindes: and God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde * let vs make man too let hym haue rule ouer the fische of the sea, and ouer the fowles of the ayre, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all wormes that creepe on the earth. And God created manne after hys likenes, after the lykenes of God created he hym: male and female, created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayd: Grow and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it, and have dominion over the fishes of the sea, and fowles of the ayre, and over all the beastes that moue on the earth.

And God sayd: Se, I haue geuen you al beastes of the earth, and vnto al foules of so it was done. And* God behelde al that he hadde made, and lo, they were exceeding good: and the eueninge and moorning was made the sixte daye.

conceiued and bare Capne, & sayde: Thyue obteyned a man of the Lord.
And she proceeded forth, and bare his brother Abel: And Abel became a sheepeheard, and Capne a plowman.

And it fortuneth in proceste of time, that Capne broughte of the fruite of the earth an offeringe vnto the Lorde. Abel brought also of the fyrrer boone of hys shepe, and of the fatte of them. And the Lorde looked vnto Abel and his offeringe but vnto Capne and his offeringe looked he not. And Capne was wroth he exceedingly, and lowred. And the Lord said to hym: wher art þ angry, and why lowrest thou. Wotest thou not if thou doest wel thou shalt receiue it? But if thou doest euill, forthwith thy sinne hath open in the doore. Notwithstanding let it be subduked with Abel his brother.

And as sone as they were in the fieldes, Cain sleiþ vpon Abel his brother, and slew hym. And the Lorde sayde vnto Capne: Where is Abel thy brother? And he sayde: I knowe not tell am I my brothers keeper? and he sayde: What hast thou done? The vpon Capne that no man that found hym shuld kyll hym. And Cain wēt out from the face of the Lorde, and dwelte in the lande Eden, on the east syde of Eden.

And Capne laye with his wyfe, whiche conceiued and bare Enoch. And builded a ctyte, and called the name of it after the name of his sonne, Enoch. And Enoch begat Irad. And Irad begatte Mathusael.
And Mathusael begat Mathusael. And Mathusael begate Lamech. And Lamech toke hym two wyues: the one called Ada, and the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jaball, of whome came they that dwelt in tentes, and hadde cattell. And his brothers name was Juball, of hym came all that exercise them selues on the harpe, and on the Organs. And Zilla also bare Tubalcain a worker in metall, and father of all that graue in brasle and Iron. And Tubalcaines Sister was called Noema.

Then sayde Lamech vnto hys wyues Ada and Zilla, heate my voyce per wyues of

I haue slayn a man and wounded my selfe, and haue slayne a ponge man, and got my

The. vi. Chapter.

The cause of the flood. The malice of mannes herte. The preparing of the arke.

And it came to passe when men began to multiply vpon the earth, and had begot them daughters, the sonnes of God sawe the daughters of manne that they were fayre, and tooke vnto them wyues whiche they bestelyked amonge them. And the Lorde sayde: My spirit shall not alwaye stue with man, for he is flesh. Neuerthelesse I wil geue them yet space an hundred and .xx. yeres. There be grauntes in the world in those dayes. For after that the chyldren of God had lpen with the daughters of men, and had begotten them chyldren, the same chyldrene were the myghtiest of the world and meane of renowne. And when the Lorde sawe that the malice of manne was encreased vpon the earth, and that all the ymaginacion and thoughtes of hys hert was onely euill continuallye, he repented that he hadde made manne vpon the earth and sorowed in hys herte. And said: I will destroye mankinde whiche I haue made oute of the earth: bothe man beaste, wyrm & foule of the ayre, for it repeth me that I made the. But Noe foude grace in the syghte of the Lorde.

* These are the generations of Noe.

Noe was a ryghteous man and perfyte in hys tyme, and walked wpth God. And Noe begate thre sonnes, Sem, Cham, and Japheth. And the earth was corrupte in the syght of God, and was ful of mischefe. And God looked vpon the earth, & lo it was corrupte: for all fleshe hadde corrupte his waye vpon the earth. Then sayde God to Noe: the ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earth is full of theyr inychefe. And lo, I wil destroye them with the earth. Make the an arke of pryncetree, and make chambers in the arke, and pitch it within & withoute with pitch. And of this facion shalte thou make it.

The lengthe of the arke shal be thre hundred cubytes, and the bredthe of it .l. cubytes, and the hepth of it .xxx. cubytes. And wpyndowe shalt thou make about in the arke, and within a cubite compasse shalt thou spynne it. And the doore of the arke shalt thou set in the syde of it: & thou shalt make it with thre lottes, one aboue an other. For beholde, I wil bypnyge in a flud of water vpon the earth to destroye al flesch vnder heauen, wherin byeth of life is: & all that is in the earth shal perishe. But I wil make my league with the, that bothe thou shalt come into the arke and thy sonnes, thy wife and thy sonnes wyues with the.

And of al that liueth whatsoeuer flesch it be, shalt thou bring into the arke of euery thyng a payre, to kepe them alpyue with the. And male and female se that they be, of byrdes in theyr kynde, and of beastes in theyr kynde, and of al maner of wyrmes of the earth in theyr kynde: a payre of euery thing shal come vnto the to kepe the alpyue. And take vnto the of al maner of meate that maye be eaten, and laye it vppe in store by the, that it maye be meate both for the and for them: And Noe did accordyng to all that God commaunded hym.

The. vii. Chapter.

The entryng of Noe and such as were with him into the arke. The entryng of the flud wherewith al thyngs did perishe.

And the Lorde saide vnto Noe: Soe into the arke bothe thou and all thy householde. For the haue I seene a ryghteous before me in thy generacion. Of all cleue beastes take vnto the .vii. of euery kynde, the male and female, and of vncleue beastes a payre, the male and female lykewyse of the byrdes of the ayre .vii. of euery kynde. male and female too saue seed vpon al the earth. And the waters preuailed aboue measure vpon the earth, so that all the hye hylles whiche are vnder all the partes of heauen were couered: xv. cubytes hye preuailed the waters, so that þe hyls wer couered.

And all fleshe that moued on the earth, both birdes, catell and beastes perished, wth all that moued on the earth, and all men: so that all that had the breath of lyfe throughoute all that was on drye land, dyed. Thus was destroyed all that was vpon the earth, both man, beastes, wormes and foules of the ayre, so that they were destroyed from the earth: only Noe was rescued and they that were wth hym in the arke.
And the waters preuailed vpon the earth an hundred and fiftene dayes.

After the sendynge forth of the rauen and the doue, Noe went forth of the arke. He offreth sacrifice. &c. The making of mas here.

And God remembered Noe and all the beastes, and all the catell that were wth hym in the arke. Then God broughte a winde vpon the earth, and the waters ceased: and the fountaynes of the depe and the windowes of heuē were stoppt, and the raine of heuē was stoppt den, and the waters returned from the earth, and abated after the ende of an hundred and .l. dayes. And the arke rested vpon the mountaynes of Ararat the xvi. daye of the vii. moneth. And the waters were awake, and decreased tyll the x. moneth.

And the fiftene daye of the x. moneth, the topps of the mountaynes appeared.

And after the ende of .xl. dayes Noe opened the window of þe arke which he had made and sent forth a rauen, which went out, & cunct gopnge and comynge againe, til the waters were dried vpon the earth. He sent forth also a doue from hym, to wytte whether the waters were fallen from the earth. And when the doue coulde fynde no restynge place for her fore, she returned to hym againe vnto the arke, for the waters were vpon all the earth. And he put oute hys hande, and toke her, and pulled her to him into the arke.

Some read

And he abode yet .vii. dayes more, and sent out a doue againe out of the arke, and the doue came to hym againe aboute euening, and behold, there was in her mouthe a leafe of an olyue tree, whiche she had plucked: wherby Noe perceyued that the waters wer abated vnto the earth. And he sent yet .vii. other dayes, & sent forth þe doue, whiche sheweth that there came no more againe to hym. And it came to passe, the fyrst daye of the first moneth, that the waters wer dried vp vpon the earth. And Noe toke of the hatches of the arke, and looked: and behold, the face of the earth was drye. So by the xxv. daye of the seconde moneth the earth was drye.

And God spake vnto Noe, saying: Come oute of the arke, both thou and thy wyfe and thy sonnes and thy sonnes wyues wth the. And all the beastes that are wth the, whatsoever fleshe it be, both foule and ca-tell, and all maner wormes that creepe on the earth, bringe oute wth the, and lette them moue, & growe and multiplye vpon the earth: And Noe came out, and his sons and hys wyfe, and hys sonnes wyues wth hym. And all beastes, and all the wormes, & all the foules, and all that moued vpon the earth, came also oute of the arke, all of one kynde together.

And Noe made an auter vnto the lorde and toke of all maner of cleane beastes, and all maner of cleane foules, and offered sacrifice vpon the auter. And the Lorde smelled a swete sauoure, and sayd in hys herte: I wyll henceforth no more curse the earth for mannes sake, for the ymaginacyon of mannes herte is euyl, euen from the verye yowth of hym. Wherfore I wyll not destroye henceforth all that lyueth as

¶ And God *blesteth Noe and his sonnes feare also and drede of you be vpon all beastes of the earth and vpon all foules of the ayer, and vpon all that creper my testamente whiche I haue made be-twene me and you, and all that lyueth forth there shall be no more waters to make The bowe shall be in the cloudes, and I will loke vpon it, to remember the euerlastynge testamente betwene God and all that lyueth vpon the earth, what soeuer is the sygne of þe testamente whiche I haue made betwene me and all fleshe that is The sonnes of Noe that came out of the Cham is the father of Canaan. These are the world ouerspydedde.

Cham the father of Canaan sawe hys fathers priuities, and tolde hys two brethren that were wythout. And Sem and Japhet toke a mantle: and put it on both their shoulders and went backward and couered the fathers secretes, and the faces were backwarde, so that they sawe not the fathers nakednes. As soone as Noe was awaked from his wyne, and wist what his yongest sonne hadde done vnto hym, he sayde: * Cursed be Canaan, and a seruaunt of al seruauntes be he to hys brethren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Loyde God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt God increase Japhet that he may dwell

These were the chyldren of Cham in theyr kynteddes, tonges, landes and nactons. And Sem the father of al the chyldren of Eber, and the eldeste brother of Japheth begate chyldren also.

D And bys sonnes were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud and Aram. And the chyl-sonnes of Sem in their kindredes, lan-was their mortar. And they sayed : Come on, let vs build vs a city and a towre, that the topp e may reach vnto heauen. And let vs make vnto vs a name afore we be scatcame downe to se the cyrie and the towre whiche the children of Adam had builded.

And the Lord sayde: See, the people is one and haue one tongue among them al, And thys haue they begon to do, and wyll not leauē from all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs descende, and myngle scattered them from thence vpon all the the Lord from thence scattered them a-

And when Terah was 100 years old, he begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

And these are the generations of * Terah, Terah begat Abram, Nahor and Haran. And Haran begat Lot. And Haran died before Terah his father in the land where he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea. And Abram and Nahor took them wives. Abrahams wife was called Sarai. And Nahors wife Milca the daughter of Be- au, which was sister to Esau and to Hesea. But * Sarai was barren and hadde no childe.

Then tok Zerah Abiam his sonne and Lot his sonne, Harans sonne, and Sarai his daughter in lawe, his sonne Abiams wife. And they wente wth hym frome Urin Chaldea, to go into the land of Chanaan. And they came to Harā and dwelled ther. And when Zerah was two hundred yere olde and fyue, he dyed in Haran.

Gen. xii. d. Then the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said: unto thy seed wil I giue this land. And he builded an altier ther vnto florde where he appeared to hym. Then departed he thence vnto a mountayne that lieth on the eastside of Bethele, and pitched his tente: Bethell beruge on the westside, and Ay on the eastside, and he builded there an altier vnto the Lord, and called on the name of the Lorde. After this there came a dearth in the land. And Abram went downe into Egypt, to sojourn there, for the dearth was sore in the lande. As soon as he came into Egypt, the Egyptians saw the woman that she was very faire. And Pharaos lordes saw her also, and praised her vnto Pharaos: So that she was taken into Pharaos house, wherch entreated her well for her sake, so that he hadde sheepe, oren and he asses, menne seruauntes, maide seruauntes, she asses, and camelles.

But God plagued Pharaoh, and his house was thy sister and causest me to take her to my wife? But now lo, there is thy wife, take her and get thee hence. Pharaoh also gave a charge unto his men over Abram, to

And Abiam sayde mozeouer: Se, some hath thou giuen no seede: lo a lad borne in my house shal be myne heire. And beholde, the word of the Lord spake vnto Abiam sayinge: He shall not be thine heire, but one that shal come out of thine owne bodye shal be thine heire. And he sayd vnto hym: Take a cohe of thre yere olde, and a she goate of thre yere olde, and a thre yere olde ram, a turtill doue and a yonge pidgeon. Sarat giveth Abram leave to take Agar her mayde to wyfe. Agar despyled her

The aungell metynge her, commaundeth her to turne agayne and doth promise her

Sarat Abrahams wyfe bare hym no child: But she had an handmayde an Egyptish, whose name was Agar. Wherefore she said vnto Abraham: Beholde, the Lord hath shut me vp that I can not beare. I pray the go in vnto my mayde, peradventure I shall be multiplied by meanes of her.
And Abram hearde the voyce of Sarat.

Then Sarat Abrahams wyfe toke Agar her mayde the Egypcean (after Abram had dwelled .x. yere in the lande of Canaan) &

And he met in vnto Agar, & he conceiued.

And when she sawe that she had conceiued

Then sayd Sarat vnto Abram: Thou dost conceiued I am despyled in her sayd Abrahā to Sarat: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do wth her as it pleaseth thee.

And because Sarat faced foule with her she fled from her. And the aungell of the Lord foude her besyde a fountayne of water in the wyldernes: even by a well in the waye whence comest thou, & whither wylt thou ed vnto her: returne to thy maistres again and submit thy selfe vnder her handes.

And the angelle of the Lorde sayde vnto her: I wyl so encrease thy seede, that it shal not be numbred for multitude. And the Lordes aungell sayd further vnto her: se, shalt thou no more be called Abrahā, but

The. xliii. Chapter.

G There appeared thye men vnto Abraham.
Isaac is prompted to hym agayne, at whiche Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomytes is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

A And the Lord appeared vnto hym in the oke groue of Mamre, as he sate in hys tent dore in the (a) heat of the dape. And he lift vp his eyes and looked: and lo. the men stode not farre from him. And when he sawe them, he ranne to mete them from the tent dore, and fell to the grounde and sayd: Lorde if I haue founde fauoure in thy sight: passe not by thy seruauant.

Lette a litle water be set and washe your fete, and restepoure selues vnder the tree:
And I will sette a * morcel of (b) bread to comfort your hertes wpthall. And then go your wayes, for euentheretofore are ye come to poure seruauant.

And they answered: do as thou hast sayd. And Abraham wente apace into hys tent vnto Sara and sayd: Make redye at once thre pecks of spynne mele, knede it and make cakes. And Abraham ranne vnto hys beastes and set a calfe that was tentye and good, and gaue it vnto a yong man, whiche made it readye at once. And he toke butter and mylke & the calfe whiche he had prepared, and sette it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree: and * they eat.

And they sayd vnto him: where is Sara thy wife? He sayd: in the tent. And he said: I will come agayne vnto the as sone as the fruite can lue. And lo, Sara thy wyfe Hall haue a sonne. That hearde Sara out of the tent dore, which was behind his backe. Abraham and Sara were both olde and well cryken in age, and it ceased to be with Sara after the maner as it is with wyues. And Sara laughed in hys selfe, sayinge: Howe when I am waxed olde, Hall I gyue my selfe to * lust, and my lord olde also? Then sayd the Lorde vnto Abraham: wherfore doth Sara laugh, sayinge: Hal I of a surety beare a chyldre nowe when I am olde? is the thing to hard for the lord to do? In the tyme * appointed will I retorne vnto the, as sone as the fruite can haue lyfe, and Sara Hall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, sayinge: I laughed not, for I was afraid. But he sayd: yest thou diddest laugh.
Then the menne stode by from thence and looked toward Sodome. And Abraham went with them to bryng them on the way. And the Lord sayd: Can I hide from Abraham that thing which I am about to do, seynge that Abraham Hall be a * great and a myghty people, and all the nations of the earth Hall be blessed in hym? For I knowe hym that he will commaunde his children and his housholde after him, that they kepe the wape of the lorde, to doo after ryghte and conscience, that the Lorde maye blyssage vpon Abraham, that he hath promysed hym.

And the Lorde sayd: The ctye of So-dome and Gomorre is greute, and they spynne is exceedynge greuous. I will goo downe and see whether they haue done all together accordynge to that ctye whiche is come vnto me or not, that I maye knowe.
And the menne departed thence and went towards Sodome. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and drewe nere and sayd: Wylt thou destroye the rightuous with the wycked?

If ther be spytte rightuous wpythyn the cptye, wilt thou destroye it, and not spare the place for the sake of spytte rightuous that are therein? What be farre from the,
and thou shouldest do after thys maner, to slepe the righteous with the wycked, and that the rightuous shoulde be as the wycked, that be farre from the. Should not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to right? And the Lorde sayd: If I fynde in Sodome spytte rightuous wpythyn the cptye, I wyl spare all the place for the sakes.

And Abraham answered and sayd: be-holde, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, and yet am but * duste and ashes. What thoughte there lacke spue of spytte rightuous, wylt thou destroye all

The. xix. Chapter.

Lot receyued two aungels into his house. The eplehye lustes of the Sodomytes. Lot is helpuered and helpeth to dwell in the cy- ty zoar. Lottes wyfe is turned in to a pylle of salte Sodome is destroyed. Lot is dyon- hen, and lyeth with his daughters, whiche conceived chyldren by hym.

AND there came two angelles to So- dome at euen. And Lotte satte at the gate of the cytie. And Lotte sawe them, and rose vp to meete them, and he bowed him selfe to the grounde wyth hys face. And he said: See lordes, turne in I praye pou in to your seruants house, and tarpe all nighte and washe your fete, and rise vp early and goo on your wapes. And they said: naye, but wee will abide in the streets all nighte. And he compelled them exceedingly. And they turned in vnto hym and entred into his house, and he made the a feaste, and dydde bake swete cakes, and they ate. But before they wente to rest, the men of the cytie of Sodome compassed the house rounde aboute, bothe olde and yong, all the people from all quarters. And they called vnto Lotte and said vnto him: where are the menne which came into thy house to (a) nighte: bunge them oute vnto vs, that we may do our lust with them.

And Lotte wente oute at the doore vnto them, and shut the doore after him and said: naye for Goddes sake brethren, do not so wickedly Beholde I haue two daughters whiche haue knowen no man, them will I bunge oute vnto you: doo with them as it semeth you good: Only vnto these men do nothing, for therfore came they vnder the shadowe of my rofe. And they said: come hither. And they said: Camest thou not hither to sojourne, and wilt thou be now a iudge? we will surely deale worse with the than with them.

And as they pleased sore vpon Lot, and beganne to breake vp the doore, the menne put forth their handes, and pulled Lot in to the house to them, and put to the doore. And they smote the menne that wer at the doore of the house with blindness bothe smal and great: so that they could not find the doore. And the men said moreouer vnto

Lotte: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters, or whatsoever thou haste in the cytye, bunge oute of this place, bicause the cytye of them is great & before the Lorde, which hath sente vs to destroye it.

Ge. xviii. c.

And Lot went oute and spake vnto hys sonnes in lawe, whiche should haue maryed his daughters, and said: stande vp and get you out of this place, for the Lorde wil destroye the cytie. But he semed as though he hadde mocked vnto his sonnes in lawe. And as the morninge arose, the aungelles caused Lot to speke him, sayinge: Stande vp, take thy wife and thy two daughters, and that that is at hande, lest thou perishe in the (b) sinne of the cytie. And as he prolonged the time, the men caught both him, hys wyfe, & his two daughters by the handes, bicause the Lorde was mercifull vnto him, and they brought him forth, and sette him withoute the cytye. When they hadde broughte them oute, they sayed: Saue thy lyfe, and loke not behinde the, neither take thou in anye place of the countrey, but saue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe. Then said Lot vnto them: Oh naye my Lorde: beholde, forasmuch as thy seruant hath founde grace in thy sight, now make thy mercy great, which thou shewest vnto me, in sauing my life. For I can not saue my selfe in the mountaynes, lest some misfortune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a cytye by to flic vnto, and it is a litle one, let me saue my selfe therein: is it not a litle one, that my soule may lyue? And he said to hym: see, I haue receyued thy request, concernyng this thyng, I wil not ouerthrowe this cytie for whiche thou haste spoken. Haste the, and saue thy selfe there, for I can do nothinge, till thou become thyther. And therefore the name of the cytye is called zoar. And the summe was vpon the earth when Lotte was entred in to zoar.

(b) The syn is taken for the sinner, as malice is for synners and prynces for rightuous. As Paul to Titus. i. c.

Then the Lorde rayned vpon Sodome and Gomorra, burnstone and fyre from the Lorde out of heauen, and ouerthrew those cytyes and all the region, and al that dwel- led in the cyties, and that that grewe vpon the earth. And Lottes wyfe looked behynde hym, and was touned into a pylle of salte. Abraham rose vp early, and got hym to the place, where he stode before the Lorde, and looked towarde Sodome and Gomorre, and towarde all the land of that countrey. And as he looked: beholde the smoke of the countrey arose, as it had ben the smoke of a fornaice. But yet when God destroyed the cytyes of the region, he thoughte vpon Abraham and sent Lot out fro the daun- ger of the ouerthrowinge, when he ouer- threw the cyties where Lot dwelled.

Gen. xix. d. Zere. i. f. Esch. xvi. f.

And Lotte departed oute of zoar and dwelled in the mountaynes, and hys two daughters with him, for he feared to tarpe in zoar: he dwelled therfore in a cave, both he and he and his two daughters also.

When said the elder vnto the younger: our father is olde, and there are no more men in the earth to come in vnto vs after the manner of all the worlde. Come therefore let vs giue our father wine to drinke, and let vs lye wth hym, that wee maye saue seede of oure father. And they gaue their father wyne to drinke that same night. And the elder daughter wente and laye wth hir father. And he perceiued it not, neither when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp.

And on the morowe the elder sayed vnto the younger: Behold, yesternight lay I wth my father. Let vs giue him wine to drinke this nyght also, and go thou and lye wth him, and lette vs saue seede of oure father. And they gaue their father wine to drinke that night also. And the younger arose and laye wth hym. And he perceiued it not: neither when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot wth childe by their father.

And the elder bare a sonne, and called him Moab, whiche is the father of the Moabites vnto this daye. And the younger bare a sonne, and called him Ben Ammi, whiche is the father of the childe of Ammon vnto this daye.

The xx. Chapter.

When Abraham went as a stranger into the land of Gerar. The king of Gerar taketh away his wyfe.

AND Abraham departed thence toward the south countrey and dwelled betwene Cadis and Sur, and sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayed of Sara his wyfe, that she was his sister. Then Abimelech king of Gerar sente and fet Sara awaye.

Gen. xii. c. and. xxi. b

Abimelech is threate: ned for Sara sake.

And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame, and sayed to him: See, thou arte but a dead man for the womans sake, whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mannes wife. But Abimelech had not yet come nigh hir, and therefore said: Lorde, wilt thou slepe ryghteous people? sayed not he vnto me, that she was his sister? yea, and said not she hit selfe, that he was her brother? wth a pure herte and innocent handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto him in a dreame. I wote it well, that thou dydest it in the purenesse of thy herte. And therefore I kepte the, that thou shouldest not synne agaynst me, neither suffered I the to come nigh hir. Now therefore deliuer to the man his wyfe agayne, for he is a prophete. And lette hym praye for thee that thou mayest lye. But if thou deliuer hym not agayne, bee sure that thou shalt dye the death, wth all that thou hast.

Gen. ii. c

When Abimelech rose vp by tymes in the mornynge, and called all his seruantes, and tolde all these thynges in their eares, and the menne were sore astrapde. And Abimelech called Abraham, and sayd vnto hym: what haste thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the, that thou shouldest bypunge on me and on my kynge-dome so great a synne? thou haste done be- des vnto me, that oughte not to be done. And Abimelech sayed moreouer vnto Abra- ham: what sawest thou that moued the to do this thinge?

And Abraham answered: I thought that peradventure the feare of God was not in this place, and that they shoulde slepe me for my wifes sake: yet in verpe deede he is my sister, the daughter of my father, but not of my mother: and became my wyfe. And after god caused me to wandre oute of my fathers house, I sayed vnto my kynnes: halt thou shewe vnto me in all places where wee come, that thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, menne seruantes, and womenne seruantes, and gaue them vnto Abraham, and deliuered hym Sara his wyfe again. And Abimelech sayed: beholde the lande lyeth before the, dwelle where it pleaseth the beste. And vnto Sara he sayed: See, I haue gyven thy brother a thousande peces of syluer, beholde this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, and vnto all that are wth the, and vnto all menne an excuse.

* The fear of God among the heathen is principally taken for the honor and praise of God, & that with such a loue as the childe hath to his father.

* Couerynge & excuse to all ones.

And so Abraham prayed vnto God, and God healed Abimelech and his wyfe and his maidens, so that they bare childe. For the Lorde had closed to all the matrones of the house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wife.

The xxi. Chapter.

When Isaac is borne Agar is cast out wth her poynt sonne Ima. The angell comforteth Agar. The couenent betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

THE Lorde visited Sara as he hadde sayed, and dyd vnto hir as accordynge as he hadde promysed. And Sara was wth childe, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euen the same season whiche the Lorde had appointed.

And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne vnto him, whiche Sara bare him Isaac, and Abraham circumcised Isaac his sonne when he was eght dayes olde, as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde, when his son Isaac was borne vnto him. And Sara sayed: God hath made me a laughing stock: for all that hear, wil laugh at me. She sayed also: who woulde haue sayed vnto Abraham, that Sara shoulde haue gyven childe to lye, or that I shuld haue borne him a sonne in his olde age? The childe grewe, and was weaned, and Abraham made a grete feast the same day that Isaac was weaned. Sara sawe the sonne of Agar the Egypcian, whiche she had borne vnto Abraham a mocking.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Abraham: lette it not be greuous vnto the, because of the chyldre and of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayd vnto the, heare hys voyce, for in Isaac shall thy seide be called. Moreover of the sonne of the bondwomanne will I make a nacpon, because he is thy seide.

Gen. xxi. 10.

And Abraham rose vp early in the morning, and toke breade and a bottell wth water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, putting it on hys chylders wth the chyldre also, and sente hys away. And he departed and wandred by and doune in the wilderness of Berseba. When the water was spent that was in the bottell, he caste the chyldre vnder a bushe, and went and satte hys out of sighte a great waie, as it were a bowshot of: for he sayd: I wyl not se the chyldre dye. And he satte doune out of sighte, and lyfte vp hys voyce and wepte.

And God heard the voyce of the chyldre. And the angell of God called Hagar from aboue, and sayd vnto hir: what ayleth the Hagar? Feare not, for God hath heard the voyce of the chyldre where he lyeth. Arise and lifte vp the chyldre, and take him in thy hande, for I will make of hym a great people. And God opened hys eyes, and he sawe a well of water. And he wente and fylled the bottell wth water, and gaue the boye dryncke. And God was with the ladde, and he grew and dwelte in the wilderness, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wilderness of Sharan. And his mother gotte him a wife out of the lande of Egypte.

Gen. xxi. 11.

And it chaunced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe captayne spake vnto Abraham, sayinge: * God is with thee in all that thou doest. Now therefore sweare vnto me even here by God, that thou wilt not hurte me nor my chyldren, nor my chyldrens chyldren. But that thou shalt deale with mee, and the countre where thou arte a straunger, accordinge vnto the kyndenesse that I haue shewed the. Then sayd Abraham: I wyl sweare.

Gen. xxi. 12.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whiche Abimelechs seruauntes hadde taken away. And Abimelech answered, I wylle not who dydde it: also thou toldest me not, neyther hearde I of it afore this daye. And Abraham toke theye and open, and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made of them a bonde together. And Abraham set seven lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abraham: what meane these seven lambes, whiche thou hast sette by them selues. And he answered: seven lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that it maye be a witness vnto me, that I haue dygged theye well: Wherefore the place is called Berseba, because they sware both of them.

Thus made they a bond together at Berseba. Then Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe captayne rose vp and turned againe vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a woode in Berseba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerlasting God: and dwelt in the Philistines lande a longe season.

The xxii. Chapter.

The sayeth of Abraham is proued in offsprynge hys sonne Isaac. The generacon of Nachor, Abrahams brother.

After these dedes, God byddeth proue Abraham and sayd vnto hym: Abraham. And he answered: here am I. And he sayd: take thy onely (a) sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and gette the vnto the lande Moza, and sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountaynes whiche I wyl shewe the. Then Abraham rose vp early in the morning and saddled hys asse, and toke two of hys meyn wth him, and Isaac hys sonne: and cloued wood for the sacrifice, and rose vp and got hym to the place whiche God hadde appointed him.

And Abraham tooke the woode of the sacrifice, and laid it vpon Isaac hys sonne, and toke fire in his hande and a knyfe. And they wente both of them together.

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham his father and sayd: My father? And he answered, here I am my sonne. And he sayd: See here is fire and wodde, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? And Abraham said: my sonne, God wyl prouide hym a shepe for sacrifice. So went they both together.

And when they came vnto the place, whiche God shewed hym, Abraham made an altare there, and dressed the woode, and bounde Isaac hys sonne, and layd hym on the altare, aboue vpon the woode.

 rode vp, and went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cite of Nahor. And made hys camels to lye downe without the cite by a welles come to drawe water, and he sayde.

B Lord God of my maister Abraham, send me good speede thys dape, and shewe mercy vnto my maister Abraham. Lo I stand here by the well, and the daughters of the men of thys cite wpll come out to draw water:

 passe: for euer he had left speakynge, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, & her ppycher vpon her shoulder. The damsell was very fayre to loken she went downe to the well, and fylled hys ppycher, and came vp agayne. Then the seruant ran vnto her and sayde: let me sup a litle water of thy ppycher. And she sayde: dryncke þy.

C And she halted and late downe hys ppycher vpon hys arme, and gaue him dryncke. And when she had geuen hym dryncke, she sayde: I wpll drawe water for thy camels also, vntill they haue dronke inough. And she poured out hys ppycher into the trough halfe-ly, and canne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: and drewe for all hys camelles. And the felowe wounded at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the lord had made hys iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had left drynkyng, he toke a golden (b)earing of half a spyle weight, & two bracelets for hys hands, of x speles weight of gold, and said vnto hys: Whose daughter art thou? tell me: is ther roume in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she said vnto him: I am the daughter of Bethuel þ sonne of Milca, whiche she bare vnto Nahor: and sayd moreouer vnto him: we haue litter and prouender inough, & also roume to lodge in.

D And the man bowed hym selfe, and worshipped the Lord, & sayd: blessed be the Lord God of my maister Abraham, which ceaseth not to deale mercifully and truly with my maister, and hath brought me the to geue thys wyfe to my maisters brothers house. And he the damsell ran and tolde vnto them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as sone as he had sene the earringes and the braceletes vpon hys sisters handes, and hearde the wordes of Rebecca hys sister, sayinge: thus sayed the man vnto me, then he wente oute vnto the man.
 And lo, he rode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde, come in thou blessed of the Lord. Wherfore standest thou without? I haue dressed by the house, and made rowme for the camels. And then the man came into the house, and he vnbry-ded the camels: and broughte litter and prouender for the camels, & water to wash hys fete, & the fete that were with him, & there was meate set before hym to eate.

But he sayde: I will not eate, till I haue sayd my message. And he sayd: Lay on. And he said: I am Abrahams seruant, and the Lord hath (d) blessed my maister out of me-sure, so that he is become greate, and hath geuen him shepe, oxen, sylet and gold, mē seruantes, mayde seruantes, camels and asses. And Sara my maisters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when she was olde: to whom he hath giuen al that he hath. And my master made me swear, sayinge: thou shalt not seke a wyfe to my son, amonge the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose lande I dwell. But shalt goo to my fathers house & to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my maister: what if the wyfe will not folowe me? And he sayd vnto me: The Lord before whom I walke, wpll sende his angel with the, and prospere thy iourney, that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou comme vnto my kynred) they wpll not geue the one, then shalt thou beate no petell of myne othe.

And I came thys dape vnto the well, and said: O Lord, the God of my maister Abra-ha, if it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: behold I stand by thys well of water, and when a byrgin cometh forth to drawe water, and I sape to hys: geue me a litle water of thy ppycher to dryncke, and she sape agayne to me: dryncke thou, and I wpll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whiche the lord hath prepared for my maisters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakyng in myne harte: behold Rebecca came forth, and hys ppycher on hys shulder, & she went downe to the well and drewe. And I sayde vnto hys: geue me dryncke. And she made haste, and toke down hys ppycher fro hys shulders, and sayd: dryncke, and I wpll geue thy camels dryncke also. And I drake, and she gaue my camels dryncke also. And I asked hys sayinge: whose daughter arte

And hys son Isaac and Ismaell burped hpm in the double caue in the felde of Ephron sonne of zoar the Hethite befoze Mamre, whiche felde Abraham bought of the sonnes of Heth: There was Abraham burped and Sara hys wyfe. The xxvi. Chapter.

The sojourn of Isaac toward Abimelech.
The promise made to Isaac and hys sede. Isaac is rebuked of Abimelech for callunge hys wyfe syster. The chyldinge of the shepe-hardes for the welles. Isaac is comforted.
The leage betwene Abimelech and Isaac.

And ther fell a deth in the land, pas-sunge the firste deth that fell in the dayes of Abraham. Wherefore Isaac went to Abimelech kyng of the Philistines vnto Gerar. Then the Lorde appeared vnto him, and sayd: do not doune into Egypt, but abide in the land which I bid the:
for I will be with the, and wil blesse the: for to thy sede I wil geue all these countreies. And I wil pers-forme the othe which I made to Abraham thy father, and will multiplie thy sede as the starrs of heauen, and will geue to thy sede all these countreies. And thou wilt sede. And thou wilt see that Abraham harkened vnto my voice, and kepte myne ordynan-ces, commaundementes, statutes & lawes.

And Isaac dwelled in Gerar. And the men of the place asked him of his wyfe, and he said that she was hys syster: for he feared to call her his wyfe, lest the men of the place should haue kyled him for hys sake, because she was beautifull to the eye. And it happened after he had bene there longe tyme, that Abimelech kyng of the Philistines looked out of a windowe, and saw Isaac sportyng with Rebecca his wyfe. And Abimelech sente for Isaac and said: se, she is of a surety thy wyfe, & why saydest thou, that she was thy syster? And Isaac said vnto him: I thought that I might peraduenture haue died for her sake. Then said Abimelech: Why hast thou done this vnto vs? one of the people mighte lightyng haue spen by thy wyfe, and so wouldest thou haue broughte sinne vpon vs. Then Abimelech charged all his people, saying: he that toucheth thys mannes wyfe, shall vndoubtedly be dye for it.

And Isaac sowed in that lande, & founde in that same yeare an. C. folde as much: for the Lorde blessed him, and the man waxed myghty, and went forth and grewe tyll he was exceldyng great, that he had possession of sheepe, of oxen, and a myghty house-holde, so that the Philistines had sppte at hym: in so much that they stopped and spy-led by wpthe earth all the welles whiche his fathers seruauntes dygged in hys fathers Abrahams tyme. Then said Abimelech vnto Isaac: gette thee from me, for thou arte myghty: then we a great deale. Then Isaac departed thence, & pitched hys tente in the valey Gerar, and dwelte there. And Isaac dygged agayne the welles of water whiche they digged in the dayes of Abraham his father, which the Philistines had stopped after the death of Abraham, and gaue them the same names whiche hys father gaue them. As Isaacs seruauntes digged in the valey, they founde a well of lyfynge water. And the herdmen of Gerar did strue with Isaacs herdmen, saying: the water is ours. Then called he the well Essek, because they stroue with him.

Then they dygged another well, & they stroue for that also. Therefore called he it Sirena. And then he departed thence, and dygged another wel, for which they stroue not: therefore called he it Rehoboth, sayinge: the Lorde hath nowe made vs roume, and we are a creased vpon the earthe.
Afterwarde departed he thence, and came to Berseba. And the Lorde appeared vnto hym the same nyghte, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not, for I am with the, and wil blesse the, and multiplie thy sede for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. And then he bulded an aultare there, and called vpon the name of the Lorde, and there pitched his tente. And there Isaacs seruauntes dygged a well.

Then came Abimelech to him from Gerar and Ahusath his frend, and Philcol his chefe captayne. And Isaac sayd vnto the:
wherefore come ye to me, sayng ye hate me, and haue putte me awape from you? Then sayde they: we sawe that the Lorde was with the, and therefore we sayed, that there shoulde be an oth betwene vs and the, and that we would make a bond with the, that thou shouldest do vs no hurte, as we haue not touched the, & haue done vnto the no-

And it came to passe that Isaac was was gone to the felde to hunt venyson, and too brynge it, she spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayinge: Beholde I haue herde good kyddes, and I will make meate of them for thyp father, such as he loueth.

And thou shalt brynge it to thyp father, and Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde Esau my brother is roughie, & I am smoth. My father shall parauenture fele me, & I shall seme vnto hym as though I wente aboute to beggelye hym, and so shal he brynge a curse vpon me, for a blessing: and his mother sayde vnto hym: vpon me

(b) be the curse my sonne, ouerpe heare my voyce, and go and fetch me them. And Jacob wente and fet them, and broughte the to hys mother. And his mother made meate of them, accordynge as hys father loued.
And she wente and sette goodly raimente that was her eldest son Esaus, whiche she had in the house wpth her, & put them vpon Jacob her yongest son, & she put the skyn-nes vpon hys handes & vpon the smoth of his necke. And she put the meate and bread whych she hadde made, in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he wente in to hys father, sayinge: my father. And he answered: here am I. who art thou my son? And Jacob sayd vnto hys father: I am Esau thyp eldest son, I haue done as thou hadde me: arse, sit vp & eate of my venyson, that thyp soule maye blesse me. But Isaac sayd vnto his sonne: how cometh it that thou hast found it so quyckly, my son? He answered: The Lord thyp God brought it to my hand. Then said Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere, & let me fele the, my son, whether thou be my son Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac hys father, & he felt him and sayd: the voice is Jacobs voice, but the hands are þ hands of Essau. And he knewe him not, because his hades were roughie as hys brother Esaus hades: and so he blessed hym.

And he asked him: art thou my son Esau?
And he sayd: I am. Then sayde he: brynge forth, & let me eat of my sons venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he broughte him, and he eat. He brought him wine also, and he dracke. And his father Isaac said vnto him: come nere & kisse me my son. And he went vnto him & kissed him. And he smelled the sauour of his raiment, & blessed him, and sayde: Be, the smel of my son is as the smel of a felde which the Lord hath blessed.
God geue the of the (c) dewe of heauē, and of the fatnesse of the earth, and plenty of (d) come & wine. People be thyp seruauntes, & nations bowe vnto the. Be the Lord ou-er thyp brethren, and thyp mothers children coupe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, and blessed be he that blesseth the.

As soone as Isaac had made an ende of blessing, Jacob was scarce gon out fro the presence of Isaac his father, but Esau his brother was come from huntynge, and had made also meate, and brought it vnto hys father, & sayde vnto hym: Arse my father and eate of thyp sonnes venyson, that thyp soule may blesse me. When hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who arte thou? he answered: I am thyp eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was astonied out of measure, & said: Where is he then that hath hunted venyson and broughte it me, and I haue eaten of al before thou camest, and haue blessed hym, & he shal be blessed still. When Esau herd the words of hys father, he cryed out great ly and bytterlye aboue measure, and sayde to hys father: blesse me also my father.

And he sayde: thyp brother came wpth substytie and hath taken awaye thyp blessing.
Then sayde he: He may well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermynd me nowe two tymes, first he toke awaye my heritage & se nowe hath he taken away my blessing also. And he sayde: hast thou kepte neuer a blessynge for me?

And Esau hated Jacob, because of the blessing wth whiche hys father blessed hym, and layed in hys herte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, for I wll slep my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her elder sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sente and called Jacob her pongest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threateneth to kyll the, now therefore my son heare my voyce, make the redye, and dee to Laban my brother at Haran, and tarp wth hym a while till thy brothers fearenesse be alwaged, and till thy brothers wrath tourne awaye from the, and he forget that whiche thou hast done to hym. When wll I sende and fet the awaye from thence. Why shouldest thou pou boeth in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isaac: I am werpe of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Beth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the daughters of Beth such one as these are, or of þ daughters of the land, what luste shouldest thou haue to lyue?

The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob is sente into Mesopotamia, to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marieth an Ismaelite. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Chyke is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe.

Then Isaac called Jacob hys sonne, and blessed hym, and charged hym, saying, se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan, but aryse and gette the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy vncle. And god almighty bless the, increase the, and multiplye the that thou mayst be a noble of people, & geue the the blessing of Abraham: boeth to the and to thy seede wth the, that thou mayst possesse the land (wherein thou arte a straunger, whiche God gaue vnto Abraham. Jacob departed from Berseba, and wente toward Haran, and came vnto a place, and tarped there all nyght, because the sonne was downe And take a stone of the place, and put it vnder hys heade, and layd hym downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde there stood a ladder vpon the pearth, and the top of it reached vp to heauen And see, the aungels of God wente vp and downe vpon it, & the Lord stood vpon it, and sayd.

I am the Lord God of Abraham, thy father, and the God of Isaac: The lande on whiche thou sleepest wll I geue the and thy seede. And thy seede shall be as the dust of the earth: and thou shalt spreade abrode: weste, east, north, and south. And thow vethe and thy seide, shall all the kyngdomes of the earth be blessed. And see I am wth the, and wll be thy keeper in all places whither thou goest, and wll brynge the agayne into thys lande: neither wll I leaue the till I haue performed all that I haue promysed the.

And he was afrayde and sayd: howe fearefull is this place: it is none other but euē the house of god, and the gate of heauē And Jacob arose vncarly in the morning and toke the stone that he had layd vnder hys head, and pitched it vp an ende, & poued oyle on the top of it And he called the name of the place Bethel, for the name of the cite was called Lus, before tyme. And Jacob bowed a bowe, saying: If god wll be wth me, and wll kepe me in this iorney which I go, and wil geue me bread to eat, and clothes to put on, so that I come agayne vnto my fathers house in safte: then shall the lord be my God, and thys stone, whiche I haue sette vp an ende, shall be Goddes house, and of all that thou shalt geue me, wll I geue the tithes vnto the.

Then Jacob lyfte vp hys feete, and wente toward the Ea countrei. And as he looked aboute, beholde ther was a well in the felde, and thre flockes of shepe laye there by (for at that well were þ flockes watered) and ther lay a great stone at the well mouth. And the manner was to bring the flockes thither, and coule the stone from the welles mouth, and to water the shepe, and to put the stone agayn vpon the welles mouth vnto his place. And Jacob said vnto them: Wherfore whence be ye? And they said, of Haran are we. And he said vnto them: know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said: we knowe him.

And he said vnto them: is he in good helth?
And they said: he is in good helth, and be-holde, his daughter Rachel cometh with the shepe. And he said: lo, it is yet a greete while to nighte, neither is it tyme that the cattell should be gathered together, water the shepe, and go and fede them. And they saped: we maye not, till all the flockes be broughte together, and the stone be rolled from the welles mouth, and so wee water our shepe.

Rachel her peth her fathers shepe

While he yet talked with them, Rachel came with her fathers shepe, for she kepte the. And as soon as Jacob sawe Rachel the daughter of Laban his vncle, & his vncles shepe, he went and couled the stone for the welles mouth, & watered the shepe of Laban his mothers brother. And Jacob kissed Rachel, and liſte vpon his voice and wepte: & tolde her also that he was his fathers brother, and Rebekas son. Then Rachel ran and tolde her father.

When Laban hearde tell of Jacob his sisters son, he ran to meete him, and abraced him, and kissed him, and broughte him to his house. And then Jacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban said: well, thou art my bone and my fleſh. Abide with me the space of a moneth. And afterwarde Laban said vnto Jacob: Wherfore thou be my kynsman, shouldest thou therefore leaue me for nought? tel me what thy wages be? And Laban had two daughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rachel.
Lea was sore eyed, but Rachel was beautiful and well fauoured. And Jacob loued her well, and saped: I will serue the seven yeare for Rachel thy yongest daughter.
And Laban answered: it is better that I give her to the, then to another man: abide therefore with me.

And Jacob serued seven yeares for Ra-daies, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob said vnto Laban: giue me my wyfe, that I maye lye with her, for the tyme appoy-nted is come.

Then Laban bade all men of that coun-tre, and made me a feast. And when even was come, he toke Lea his daughter, and broughte her to him: & he laye with her. And Laban gaue to his daughter Lea, Silpha his maide, to be his seruante. And when the mornig was come, behold it was Lea. She said he to Laban: wherfore hast thou plaied thus with me? dyd not I serue thee for Rachel, wherfore then hast thou begiled me?
Laban answered, it is not the manner of this countrey, to marie the yongest before the eldest. I sette oute this weke, and then shall this also be given thee for the scrupce, which thou shalt serue me yet seven yeares more. And Jacob did eue so, & married out the weke, & she he gaue him Rachel his dought-ter to wife also. And Laban gaue to Rachel his daughter, Bilha his handmaid to be his seruante. So laye he by Rachel after, and loued Rachel more then Lea, and serued him yet seven yeares more.

When the lord sawe that Lea was despy-barren. And Lea conceived and bare a son, and called his name Ruben, for she sap-ed: the lord hath looked vpon my tribulacion.

And now my husband wil loue me. And she conceived againe and bare a sonne, & sap-ed: the lord hath hearde that I am despysed, & hath therefore geuen me this son also, and she called him Simeon. And she concepted yet and bare a sonne, and sap-ed: now these ones will my husbande keepe me com-panie, because I haue borne him these son-

And she conceived yet againe and bare a sonne, sayinge: now will I praise the lord,

Rachel and Lea, being both barren, gave they maides vnto their husband, and they bare him children. Jacob disceperth Laban in the conceyving of the shepe and kyds. Jacobs re-warde for his scrupce.

When Rachel sawe that she bare Jacob no children, she envied her sister, and said vnto Jacob: Giue me children, or els I am but deade. Then was Jacob wroth wth Rachel, sayinge: Am I in Gods steede, which kepeth from the fruit of thy wombe? Then she said: here is my maide Bilha: lye with her, that she maye beare vpon my lap, that I maye be encrea-sed by her. And he gaue her Bilha his handmaide to wyfe. And Jacob laye with her: and Bilha conceived and bare Jacob a son.
Then said Rachel: God hath geuen sentence on my spide, and hath also heard my voyce, and hath giuen me a sonne. Wherefore called she hym Dan. And Bilha, Ra-chels maide conceived agayne, and bare Jacob another sonne. And Rachel sap-ed: God is touned, & I haue made a chaunge wth my spide, and haue gotten the upper hande. And she called his name Nephtali.

When Lea sawe that she had left bea-ryng, she toke Silpha her maide, and gaue her to Jacob to wyfe. And Silpha Leas maide bare Jacob a sonne. Then said Lea: good lucke: and called his name Gad. And Silpha Leas maide bare Jacob another son.
Then said Lea: happy am I, for the dought-

Lu. xxi. d

And God remembered Rachel, heard hir, and made her fruitefull: so that she conceiued and bare a sonne, and said: God hath taken away my rebuke. And she called hys name Joseph, saying: The Lorde geue me yet another son. Asone as Rachel hadde borne Joseph, Jacob saied to his father in lawe. Send me away, that I may go vnto my owne place and countrey, geue me my wives and my chyldren, for whom I haue serued the. and let me go, for thou knowest what service I haue done the. Then said Laban vnto him. If I haue found fauour in thy sight (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoint what thy reward shall be, and I will geue it the.
Then he sayd vnto him, thou knowest what service I haue done the, and in what case thy cattell haue bene vnder me: for it was but litle that thou haddest before I came, and now it is encreased into a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake.
But now when shal I make provision for mine owne house also? And he saied, what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, so thou wilt do this one thinge for mee, and then will I turne again and fede thy shepe and kepe them.

So thou aboute all thy shepe this daie, and seperate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of dyuers coloures, and all blacke shepe among the lambes. And then take, all that shall be party coloured, black and spotted, as well amongs the shepe as the kyddes, the same shall be my reward. So shall my *ryghteousnes aun: were for me, when the time cometh, that I shall receiue my rewarde of the. For I am what socuer is not speckled, and party amonge the goates, and black among the lambes, lette that be theste with me. Then said Laban:

Lo I am content, that it be accordyng as thou hast said. And he sorted out that same day the goates that were party & of dyuers colours, & all the kyddes that were spotted & party coloured, & all that had white in the,
and all the blacke among the lambes, and put them in the keeping of his sonnes, and sette the daies iourney betwene him selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kept the reile of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke rodde of grene popul, hase, & of chestnot trees, and piled white strea-kes in them, and made the white appeare in the staves: And he laid the staves whiche he had piled before the shepe in the gutters & watering troughes, when the shepe came to duncke: that they should conceiue when they came to duncke. And the shepe conceiued before the staves, and broughte forth speckled, spotted, and party coloured.
Then Jacob diuided the flocke, and putte the rodde in the troughes before the eyes of the wethers and all whyte and all blacke were Labans, but the respyue were Jacobs, and he seuered the flockes one from another. And alwaye in the firste buckinge tyme of the shepe, Jacob put the staves before the shepe in the gutturs, that they might conceiue before the staves: But in the latter buckinge tyme, he put them not there: so the laste broode was Labans, and the first Jacobs. And the man became excedyng ryche, and had many shepe, maide seruauntes, menne seruauntes, camelles and asses.

The. xxxi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of God, Jacob departed from Laban, & toke hys goodes wpyth hym. Rachel stealeth hys fathers ymagis.
Laban followeth Jacob. The covenant be-twene Laban and Jacob.

And Jacob heard the wordes of La-bans sonnes howe they sayd: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was oure fathers, and of our fathers goods hath he gotten all this honoure. And Jacob beheld the countenaunce of Laban, that it was not toward him as it was in tymes past.
And the lord said vnto Jacob: turne again into the land of thy fathers, and to thy kin-red, and I will be wpyth the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to & felde vnto hys shepe, and said vnto them: I see your fathers countenaunce, that it is not toward me as in tymes past.

Whereouer the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued your father with all my might.
And your father hath disceiued me, and chaunged my wages ten tymes: but God su Fred him not to hurte me. When he said, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe bare spotted. If he said, the speckled shall be thy reward, then bare all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers cattell, and giuen them me.
For in bucking tyme I lyfted up mine eyes and

and sawe in a dreame, and behoude, the rammes that bucked the sheepe were straked, spotted, and partye. And the aungell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayinge: Jacob? And I answered: here am I.
And he sayde, lyfte vp thyn eyes and see, howe all the rammes that scape vpon the sheepe are straked, spotted, and partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the,
I am the God of Bethel where thou annoyntedst the stone, and where thou bow-edst a bow vnto me. Now arise and get the *oute of this cuntry, and retorne vnto the lande where thou were borne.

Then answered Rachel and Lea, and sayde vnto hym: we haue no parte nor en-heritaunce in oure fathers house, he coun-seth vs as strangers, for he hath sold vs and hath eat vp the price of vs. Moreover all the riches which God hath taken from oure father, that is oures and our chyldrens, Now therefore whatsoeuer God hath said set his sonnes and wiues vp, vpon camels, and carped away all his cattell and all his substaunce whiche he hadde gotten in the topotamia, for to goo to Isaac his father vnto the land of Canaan. Laban was gonher fathers images. And Jacob stole away pyquely from Laban the Spuen, and told him not that he wold departe. So fled he all that he had, and made himself redy, and passed ouer the riuers, and went straight to warde the mounte Gilead.

Upon the thyrde daye after, was it told Laban that Jacob fled. Then he tooke his brethren wth hym, and pursued hym. vii.

mounte Gilead. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nighte, and said vnto hym: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ouer sharply. And Laban ouertooke Jacob: & Jacob had pitched his tente in the mounte. And Laban wth his brethren, pitched their tente also vpon the mount Gilead. Then sayde Laban too Jacob: whye haste thou thys done to steale awaye from me, and carpe awaye my doughters as though they had bene taken captyue wth the swerde? Wherefore wentest thou awaye secretlye vnkowne to me, and dydeste not tell me, that I might haue broughte the on the waye wth much spynge, tymbralles, and harpes, and and haste not suffred me to kysse my chyldre and my doughters? Thou wert a *fole to do it, for I am hable too do pou euill.
But the God of your father spake vnto me yesterday, saying: take hede þ thou speake lovest after thy fathers house, yett wherefore hast thou stolen my goddes?

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban: I departed pyquely, because I was afraid,

And thoughte that thou wouldest haue take awaye thy doughters from me. But where as thou dost challenge me for theste, wth whome so euer thou findest thy goddes, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Seeke that thynne is wth hym, and take it to the:
for Jacob myste not that Rachel had stollen them. Then went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and into the ii. maydens tentes: but founde them not.
Then wente he oute of Leas tente, and entered into Rachels tente. And Rachel toke the images and putte them in the camels strawe, and sat down vpon them. And Laban searched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde she too her father, Spye, be not angry that I can not rise vp before the for the disease of women is come vpon me.
So searched he, but founde them not.

Jacob was wrothe, and chode wth La-

Thou hast searched all my stuffe, and what hast thou founde of all thy houshoulde

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob, and iudge betwene me and the, when wee are departed one from another: that thou shalt not bre my daughters, neither shalt take other wives vnto them. Here is no man with vs: Behold, God is witnesse betwene the and me. And Laban sayde more ouer to Jacob: behold, this heape and this marke whiche I haue sette here, betwene me and the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke, that I will not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape and this marke, to do anye harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, and the God of thepse fathers, bee iudge betwene vs.

And Jacob sware by him that his father Isaac feared. Then Jacob did sacrifice vpon the mounte, and called his brethren to eate breade. And thei ate breade and taryed all nyght in the hyll. And early in the morning Laban rose vp and kissed his children and his Daughters, and blessed them and departed and wente vnto his place againe: but Jacob went forth on his iourne, and the aungels of God came & met him. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayde: this is goddes hoste, and called the name of that same place, Mahanaim.

Jos. xii. a Iacob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vnto the Lande of Seir, and the fielde of Edom. And he commaunded them, sayinge: Se that ye speake after this maner to my Lord Esau: thy seruante Jacob sayeth thus, I haue sojourned and bene a stranger with Laban vnto this time, and haue gotten Oxen, Asses and Shepe, men seruantes and womenne seruantes, and nowe I sende inuassage too the my Lord, that I maye fynde grace in thy sight. And the messengers came againe to Jacob, sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh against the end. iiii. hundred men with him. When was Jacob greatly afraid and wist not which way to turne him self, and deuised the people that was with him, and the Shepe, Oxen, and camels into ii. companies, and sayde: If Esau come to the one parte, and smite it the other maye saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lord whiche saydest vnto me: returne vnto thy cuntrye and to thy kynredde, and I will do all wel with the, I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies and truthe whiche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruant, For with my staffe came I ouer this Forde, and now haue I gotten two droues. And he commaunded the foremost, sayinge.

When Esau thy brother meeteth the and asketh the, sayinge: whose seruante arte thou, and whether goest thou, and whose are these that go before the? thou shalt say, they be thy seruant Jacobs, and are a presente sente vnto my Lord Esau, and behold, he him selfe cometh after, vs. And so commaunded he the second and euen so the thirde, and lykewyse all that folowed the droues, sayinge: of this manner se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye meete hym and sayde moreouer. Behold thy seruant Jacob cometh after vs, for he sayd I will please thy wrath wpth the presente that goeth before me, and afterwarde I will se him my self, so peraduenture he will receiue me to grace. So wente the presente before hym, and he tarped all that nyghte in the tentye, and rose vpp the same nyghte, and tooke his two wiues and his ii. maydens, and his leuen sonnes, and wente ouer the forde Jacob. And he toke them and sente them all ouer the ryuer, and tarped behind hym selfe alone.

And ther was a manne wpth hym vnto the breakynge of the dape. And when he sawe that he could not preuaile against hym, he smote hym vnder the thyghe, and the fenewe of Jacobes thighe branke as he wrestled with him. And he sayde: let me goo, for the dape breaketh. And he sayde: I will not lette the goo, except thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: What is thy name? He aunswere: Jacob. And he sayde: thou shalt be called Jacob no more, but Israel. For thou hast wrestled with God, and hast preuailed.

And Jacob asked him, sayinge: tell me thy name. And he sayde, wherefore dooest thou aske after my name. & he blessed hym ther. And Jacob called the name of that place whenel for I haue sene God face to face, & yet is my life reserved. And as he wist ouer whenel, the sunne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thyghe, wherefore the chylde of Israell eate not of the fenewe of the thyghe vnto this dape, because that he smote Jacob vnder the thyghe in the season that he branke.

The rauishing of Dina Jacobs daughter

Dina the doughter of Lea whiche she bore vnto Jacob, wente oute too see chem the sonne of Demoz the Heuite Lord of the countrey, sawe her, and toke her and lape wpyth her, and forced her: and his hert lape vnto Dina the doughter of Jacob.

And he loued the damsell and spake kyndlye vnto her, and spake vnto his father De-moz, sayinge: gette me thys mayden to my wife. And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dina his doughter, but his sons wer with the catell in the fiede, and therfore he held hys peace till they were come. Then De-moz the father of Sichem wente oute vn-sonnes of Jacob came oute of the fiede as sone as they hearde it, for it greued the, and they wer not a lytle wroth, because he had wroughte folpe in Israel, in that he hadde lyen with Jacobs doughter, whiche thing oughte not to be done. And Demoz commi-ned with them, sayinge: The soule of my sonne Sichem longeth for your doughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: geue your doughters vnto vs, and take oure doughters vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shalbe at your pleavnto her father and her brethrene: lette me fynde grace in your eyes, and what soeuer ye appoynte me, that wyl I geue. After re of me both the dowry and gifts, & I wil geue accordyng as ye say vnto me, and geue

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Demoz his father disceitfully because he had despyled Dina theyr syster.
And they saide vnto them, we can not do

Then came the Sonnes of Jacob vpon the dead, and spoyled the city, because they had defyled theyr sister, and tooke theyr shepe, oxen, asses and whatsoeuer was in the cypre and also in the felds. And all theyr goodes, all theyr chyldren and theyr wies toke theyr captiue and made hauocke of al that was in the houses. And Jacob sayde to Simeon and Leuie: ye haue troubled me and made me synke vnto y inhabitants of the Lande, bothe too the Canaanites and also to the phereptes. And I am few in numbze. Wherfore they shal gather them selves together against me and slep me, & so shal my house be destroyed. And they answered, shoulde they deale wthout syn as with an hooke?

brethren sayynge: the lab is not ponde, and where shall I go? And they toke Josephes coate and kyled a goote, and dypped the cote in the bloude. And they sente the gaye cote and caused it to be brought vnto their father, and sayde: Thy sonne haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes cote, or no.
And he knewe it sayynge: it is my sonnes cote, a wicked boaste hath he * deuoured him and Joseph is rente in peaces. And Jacob rente hys clothes, and put sacke clothe about hys lopnes and sorowed for hys son a longe season. Then came all hys sonnes and all hys daughters to comforte hym.

Gen. xlii. f

And he wolde not be comforted but sayde, I wyl goo downe into the graue vnto my son, mournyng. And thus hys father wept for hym. And the Maadianites * solde hym in Egypte vnto Putiphet a Lorde of phartaos: and his chiefe marshall.

came there vpon. Juda lay with his daughter Thamar. The byrth of Pharez and Zarah.

das wente from hys brethren, and of a man called * Sua, a Canaanite: And he toke her, and laye wpth her. And she concepued, and bare a son, and called his name Er. And she conceived agayne, and bare a sonne, and called him Onan. And she concepued the thyrde tyme and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela, and he was at the tith when she bare him.

haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sua, Judas wyfe, dyed. Then Judas whē he had leste mournynge, wente vnto hys wepe herers to Thymnah, with his friend Bira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, of the same place, sayinge: Where is the they sayd: ther was no whore here. And he came to Judas agayne, sayinge: I cannot fynnd her, and also the men of the place sayd that ther was no whore ther. And Judas said: let her take it to her, lest we be ashamed: for I sente the kydde, and thou couldeste not fynde her.

And it came to passe that after thre monethes, one tolde Judas, sayinge: Thamar and with playnge the whore is become greare with chylde. And Judas said: bring her forth, and let her be hieure. And when they broughte her forth, she sent to her fa-

The .xxxix. Chapter.

God prospereth Joseph hys maistres tye-rith him he is accused and caste in prison.
God hath mercy vpon hym.

Joseph was broughte vnto Egypte, and Putiphar a Lorde of Pharao, and his chefe marshall an Egyptean boughte hym of the Ismaelytes, whiche broughte hym thither. And the Lorde was with Joseph, and he prospered and conynued in house of hys master the Egyptean. And his master sawe that the Lord was with him, and that the Lord made all that he dydde prosper in hys hande: Wherefore he foundede grace in hys masters syght, and ser-ued hym. And hys master made hym ruler of hys house, and put all that he had in hys hand. And as soone as he had made hym ruler ouer his house, and ouer all that he had the Lorde blessed thys Egyptean house for Josephs sake, and the blessinge of the Lorde was vpon all that he hadde: bothe in the house, and also in the feyldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Josephs hande, and looked vpon no thyng that was with hym, saue onely on the bread whych he ate. And Joseph was a goodly person, and a well fauoured. And it fortuned after thys, that his masters wyfe caste her eyes vpon Joseph, and sayd: come lye with me.
But he denyed and sayd to her: Behold, my master wotech not what beheth in þ house with me, but hath committed all that he hath to my hand. He hym selfe is not greter in the house then I, and hath kepte no thyng from me, but onely the because thou art his wyfe. How then can I do this greet

And after this maner spake he to Joseph dare by day: but he hekened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her companye.

Thys Hebrewes seruant which thou hast broughte into vs came into me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyft up my voyce and cryed, he left his garmente wth me and fled out. When his mayster herde the wordes of hys wyfe whych she tolde hym, sayinge: after thys maner dyd thy seruante to me, he wared wrothe.

And he toke Joseph and put hym in^u pryson euen in the place wher the kynge's prysoners lay bounde. And ther continued he in pryson, but the Lord was wth Joseph, and shewed hym mercy, and got hym fauoure in the syghte of the keeper of the pryson, whych committed to Josephs hande all the prysoners that were in the pryson house. And whatsoever was doner ther, that dyd he. And the keeper of the pryson looked vnto nothyng that was vnder hys hande, because the Lord was wth hym, and because that whatsoever he dyd, the Lord made it come luckely to passe.

The.ii. Chapter.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prysoners.

And it chaunced after this, that the chiefe butler of the kynge of Egypte and hys chiefe baker had offended theyr lord the king of Egypt. And pharao was angry wth them and put them in ward in his chiefe marshalles house: euen in the pryson wher Joseph was bounde. And the chiefe marshalle gaue Joseph charge wth them, and he serued the. And they continued a season in ward.

And they dreamed eche of them in one nyght: both the butler and the baker of the kynge of Egypte whiche were bounde in the prysen house, eche of them his dreame: and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the morning, and looked vpon them: Beholde, they were sadde. And he asked them sayinge, wherfore loke ye so sadlye to day? They answered hym, we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to god, but tel me yet. And the chiefe butler tolde hys dreame to Joseph, and sayed vnto hym. In my dreame me thoughte there stode a vyne before me, and in the vyne were thre bryanches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossomes shotte forth: and the grapes thereof wared ripe. And I had pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes & wroge them into pharaos cuppe, and deliuered pharaos cuppe into hys hande. And Joseph sayed vnto hym, thys is the interpretation of it. The thre bryanches are thre dayes: for wthyn thre daies shal pharao lyft up thine head, and restore y^e vnto thyne office agayne, and thou shalt deliuer pharaos cuppe into his hand, after the old maner, euen as thou dydest when thou wast hys butler. But thinke on me when thou art in good case, and shew mercy vnto me. And make mencyon of me to pharao, and helpe to bringe me out of this house, for I was stolen out of the land of the Hebrewes, and here also haue I done nothyng at all wherfore they shoulde haue put me into this dongeon. When the chiefe baker saw that he had well expounded it, he sayde vnto Joseph: See thougt' alcorn my dreame, that I had. iii. wyker baskets on my head. And in the vppermost basket, of all maner bake meates for pharao. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my heade.

Joseph answered and sayde: thys is the interpretation thereof. The.iii. baskets are thre daies, for this day. iii. daies shal pharao take thy head from the, and shal hang the on a tree, and the byrdes shal eat thy flesh it is the. And it came to passe the thirde day whych was pharaos *byrthe daye, that he made a feast vnto all hys seruantes. And he lyfted up the head of the chiefe butler and of the chiefe baker amonge hys seruantes.

And restored the chiefe butler vnto his butlershipp agayne, and he reached the cup into pharaos hande: and hanged the chiefe baker, euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Notwithstanding the chiefe butler remembred not Joseph, but forgate hym.

The.iii. Chapter.

Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. The death beginneth in Egypt.

And it fortuned at two peres end that pharao dreamed, and thoughte that pharao be stode by a ryuers syde, and that ther came out of the riuer, vii. goodly kine, and fatte fleshed, and fed in the medowe, and him thoughte that, vii. other kine came vp after them out of the riuer euyl sauored and leane fleshed, and stode by the other vpon the bryncke of the ryuer. And the euyl sauored and leane fleshed kyne, eat vp the vii. wel sauored and fatte kyne, and he awoke ther wth. And he slepte agayne and dreamed the second tyme, that, vii. eares of coine growe vpon one stalk a goodly. And that, vii. thynne eares blasted wth the wynd, sprange vp after them, and that the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven ranke and full eares.

And then pharao awaked, and see, here is his dreame. When the morninge came, his spirit was troubled. And he sent and called for the soothsayers of Egypt, and all the wyse men thereof, and tolde them hys dreame: but there was none of them that coude interpretate it vnto pharao. Then spake the chiefe butler vnto pharao sayinge. I do remembre my fault this day. pharao was angry wth his seruantes, and

and put in warde in the chiefe marshalles house, both me and þe cheif baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche mans dreame of a sondrye interpretation.

And there was with vs a pounge man an Hebrue bozne, seruaunte vnto the cheife marshall. And we tolde hym, and he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to epyther of our dreames. And as he declared the vnto vs, so it came to passe. I was restored to myne offyce agayne and he was hanged.

E Then Pharaos sent and called Joseph. And they brought him forth out of prison. And he shaued hym selfe and chaunged his raiment, and went in to Pharaos. And Pharaosayed vnto Joseph, I haue dreamed a dreame and no man can interpretate it, but I haue hearde tell of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou dost declare it. And Joseph answered Pharaos, sayinge: God shall gyue Pharaos a prosperous answer. Pharaos sayd vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuer side, and there came out of the ryuer vii. fat fished and well fauoured kyne, and fed in the meadow. And then, vii. other kyne came by after them, poore and very euill fauoured and leane fished: so that I neuer sawe theyr lyke in all the lande of Egypt in euill fauourednes. And the, vii. leane and euill fauoured kyne ate vp the fyfte vii. fat kyne. And whā they had eaten them vp, a man could not perceiue that they had eaten them: for they were still as euill fauoured as they were at the begynnyng. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame, vii. eares sprynge out of one stalk full and good, & vii. other eares withered, & thyn & blasted with wynde, sprynge up after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the, vii. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the fourdayers, but no man can tel me what it meaneth. Then Joseph sayed vnto Pharaos, bothe Pharaos dreames are one. And god doth shewe Pharaos what he is about to do. The, vii. good kyne are, vii. yeres, and the, vii. good eares are seven yeres also, and it is but one dreame. The thynne, vii. thyn and euill fauoured kyne that came out after them, are seven yeres, and the seven emperre and blasted eares shall be seven yeres of hunger. Thys is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharaos, that God doth shewe Pharaos what he is about to do. Beholde there shall come, vii. yeres of great plenteousnes throughout all the land of Egypt. And ther shall aryse after them, vii. yeres of hunger: so that all the plenteousnes shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt. And the hunger shall consume the land, so that the plenteousnes shall not be ones perceyued in the land by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shall be exceedinge greete. And whete as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharaos the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thyng is certaynely prepared of God and that God wil shortly bring it to passe.

Now therefore let Pharaos proude for a man of vnderstandynge and wisdom, and set him ouer the land of Egypt. And let Pharaos make officers ouer þe land & take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypt in the seven plenteous yeres, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come and laye vp corne vnder the power of Pharaos that there may be foode in the cypres, and there let them kepe it that there maye be foode in store for the land against the seven yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the land perishe not throughe hunger.

And the sayinge pleased Pharaos and all his seruantes. Then sayde Pharaos vnto his seruantes: where shal we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spirit of God in hym? wherfore Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: forasmuch as god hath shewed the al thys, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wisdom lyke vnto the. Thou therefore shalte be ouer my house, & according to thy word shall all my people obey: only in the kyngs seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayde to Joseph, behold, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypt. And he toke of his rying from his rynger, & put it vpon Josephes rynger, and araye hym in raiment of silke, and dong a golden chaine aboute his necke, and sette hym vpon the beste charet that he had saue one. And proclamation was made, that euery person shuld bowe his kne before hym, as to hym whiche Pharaos had set ouer all the land of Egypt. And Pharaosayed vnto Joseph, I am Pharaos, to yeboute thy wyll shall no man lyfe by epyther bys hand or sore in all the land of Egypt. And he called Josephs name zaphnath Paena. And he gaue hym to wyfe Asnath the daughter of Putyphar pnyeste of On. Then went Joseph abroad in the lande of Egypt. And he was thryty yere olde when he stode before Pharaos kyng of Egypt. And then Joseph departed from Pharaos and wente throughout all the lande of Egypt.

And in the seven plenteusfull yeres they made sheues, and gathered vp all the increase of the seven plenteous yeres which were in the lande of Egypt, and put it in to the cypres. And he put the foode of the fyeldes that grew rounde aboute euery cypre, euen in the same. And Joseph layed up corne in store, lyke to the lande of the sea in multitude aboute measure, vntyll he leste numbryng: for it was withoute nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes before the yeres of hunger came, whiche Asnath the daughter of Putyphar pnyeste of On bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyfte sonne Manasse, for God (sayde he) hath made me forget all my labour, and all my fathers household. The second called he Ephraim, for God (said he) hath caused me to growe growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seven plentifull yeres that were in the lande of Egypte were ended, then came the seven yeres of * dearth accordynge as Joseph had sayed.

And the dearth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet fode. When now all the land of Egypt began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharaos for bread. And Pharaos sayd unto all Egypt: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayeth to you, that do. And when the dearth was throughout all the lande, Joseph opened all that was in the egyptes and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypte to Joseph for to buye corne: by cause that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Josephs brethren come into Egypte to buye corne, he knoweth and teryth them. By meane to put in prison, the other returne to the father to fetche Ben Jamin. Hys father lothe to let hym go, at laste granted.

When Jacob sawe that he was come to be solde in Egypte, he sayde to hys sonnes: Why are ye neglygent? Why holde I haue hearde that ther is corne to be solde in Egypte. * Yet you thither & buye corne from thence, that we maye lyue and not dye. So went Josephs ten brethren home to buye corne in Egypte, for Jacob woulde not sende Ben Jamin wyth hys other brethren: for he said, some misfortune myghte happen him. And the sonnes of Israel came to buye corne amonge other that came, for there was dearth also in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouernour in the lande, and solde corne to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came and fel flat on the grounde before hym, when Joseph saw hys brethren, he knewe them, but made strange vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them, saying: whence come ye? and they sayde: oure of the lande of Canaan, to buye vntayle. Joseph knewe hys brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Joseph remembered hys * dreames whiche he dreamed of them, and sayd vnto the, ye are spies, and ye come to se where the lande is weake. And they sayde vnto hym: naye my lord, but to buye vntayle thy seruantes are come. We are all one mans sonnes, and we meane trulpe, and thy seruantes are no spyes. He sayd vnto them:

Nay verily, but euen to se where the lande is weake is your commynge. And they sayed: we thy seruantes are. xii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the land of Canaan. The pōge is yet with our father, but one no man wateth wher he is. Joseph sayd to the, that is it that I sayd vnto you that ye are fursly spyes. Hereby ye shalbe proued. For by the life of Pharaos ye shal not go hence till your pōge brother be brought hyther. Send therfore one of you to fetch your bro ther ye shalbe in prison in the meane season. And thereby shal your words be proued whether ye be true, or els by the life of Pharaos, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warder thre dayes.

Then Joseph, sayd vnto them, the third day. Thus do, and ye shal lyue, for I feare god. If ye meane trulpe, let one of your brethren be bound in prison, and go ye & buye necessary fode to your households, & bringe wyth you your pōge brother vnto me: that your words may be beleued, and that ye dye not. And they dōd so.

Then they sayd one to another: we haue verily spyned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the anguyshe of his soule, when he besought vs, and wold not heare hym: therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them, saying. Sayed I not vnto you that ye shoulde not synne agaynst the chyld? but ye woulde not heare. And now verily ye se, hys bloud is requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstode them, for he spake vnto the by an interpreter. And he turned from them and wepte, and then turned to them agayne and talked with them and toke out Simcon from the, & bound hym before their eyes, and commaunded to sell theyr sackes wyth corne, and to putte euery mannes money in his sacke, & to gyue them vntayle to spend by that way: And so it was done to them. And they laded theyr asses wyth the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sacke for to gyue hys alle prouender in the inne, he spyed hys money in hys sackes mouth. And he sayd vnto hys brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is in my sackes mouth. Then they verily sayled them, & they were astonied, and sayd one to other, how cometh it that God dealerth thus wyth vs? And they came to Jacob their father vnto the lande of Canaan and told hym all that had happened them, saying: The Lord of the land spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies to serche the cōstrey. And we sayd vnto hym: we meane trulpe and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father, one is away, and the pōge is now with our father in the land of Canaan. Then the Lord of the countrey sayd to vs: by this shal I know if ye meane trulpe: leaue one of your brethren here with me, & take fode necessary for your households, and get you away, and bring your pōge brother vnto me. And hereby shal I knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane trulpe: So wyl I help you your brother agayne, and ye shal occupie in the lande.

And as they emptyed theyr sackes, beholde euery mannes boundell of money was in hys sacke. And when both they and their father sawe the bundels of money, they were afrayed.

And Jacob their father said vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my chyldrenne: Joseph

And the deth wared sore in the land. And when they had eatte up the corne whiche they broughte out of the land of Egypt their father saide unto them: go a gayne and bye vs a litle fode. Then sayed Juda unto hym: the man dyd tell me vnto vs, sayinge: loke ye se not my face, unless your brother come wth you. Therefore if thou wilt sende our brother wth vs, we will go, and bye the fode. If thou wilt not sende hym, we will not go: For the man sayd vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, except your brother be wth you. And Israel sayed: wherfore belte ye so cruellie wth me, to tell the manne ye had yet another brother? They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred, sayinge: Is your father yet alive? have ye not another brother? And we tolde hym accordinge to these wordes: How coude we knowe that he woulde bid vs bringe out brother downe wth vs? Then said Juda vnto Israel his father: Send the lad wth me, & we will rise and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: dothe we, thou and also our chyldren. Gen. xlii. g.

Then they father Israel saide to them: If it must nedes be so now, then doo thus, take of the beste frutes of the land in your vessels, and carry the man a present, a quentyne of batyme and a porcion of honye, luyces, and myrre, dates and almondes. And take as muche money more wth you. And the money that was broughte agayne in your sakes, take it agayne wth you, peradventure it was some oversighte.

Take also your brother wth you, and arise and go agayne to the man. And God all myghte grue merere in the sighte of the man, and sende you your other brother and also Ben Jampn, and I will be as a man robbed of his chyldren.

Thus toke they the presente and theyse so muche more money wth them, and Ben Jamin. And rose up, went downe to Egypt and presented themselves to Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jampn wth them, he sayd to the ruler of his house, bring these men home, and slepe, and make ready: for they shall dyne wth me at noone. And the man did as Joseph bad, and broughte them into Josephs house.

When they were broughte to Josephs house, they were asyde and said, because of the money that came in our sakes mouethes at the first tyme, are we broughte, that they myghte paye a quartell wth vs, and laye some thing to our charge, to bringe vs in bondage and oure asses also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake wth hym at the doore and sayed.

Syr, we came hither at the first tyme to bye fode, and as we came to an June, and opened our sakes: beholde every mans money was in his sacke wth full weight: But we have brought it agayne wth vs, and other money have we brought also in our handes, to bye fode, but we can not tell who put our money in our sakes. And he sayde: be of good chere, feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers barke putte that treasure in your sakes, for I hadde your money. And he brought Simeon out to them, and led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to wash theyr fete, and gaue theyr asses prouender. And they made ready theyr presente, as agayne Joseph came at noone, for they heard saye that they shoulde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they broughte the presente into the house to hym. whiche they had in theyr handes, and set it on the grounde before hym. And he welcommed them courteouslye, sayinge: is your father that old man whiche ye told me of in good healt he? and is he yet alive? They answered: thy seruante our father is in good healt, and is yet alive. And they bowed the selues and fell to the grounde.

And he left up his eyes, and behelde his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, & sayde: Is this your yonger brother of whom ye sayde vnto me? And sayde: God be mercifull vnto thy sonne. And Joseph made hast for his berr dronnelse vpon his brother, and soughte wher to wepe, and entered into his chamber, for to wepe ther. And he washed his face and came out and restryned hym selfe, and bade sette breade on the table.

And they prepared for him by hym selfe, and for theym by them selues, and for the Egyptians whiche ate wth him by them selues, because the Egyptians may not eat bred wth the Hebrewes, for that is an abominacion to the Egyptians. And they sat before him: & eldest accordinge vnto his age, & the yongest accordinge vnto his youthe. And the me merueled among the selues. And they broughte rewards vnto the from hym but

AND he commaunded the ruler of his house, sayinge: fill the mens sackes with food, as muche as they can carry, and put euery mans money in his bag mouth, and put my silver cuppe in the sackes mouth of the yongest and his coine money also. And he did as Joseph had said: And in the mornynge as soone as it was light, the men were let go wyth their asses. And when they were out of the cypre and not yet farre passe, Joseph sayd vnto the ruler of his house: Arise and pursue after the men, and ouertake them, and saye vnto them. Wherefore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cup, of whiche my lord dycketh, and doeth he not prophesye therein? ye haue euill done, that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke them and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayeth my lord, suche wordes? God forbid that thy seruantes shulde do so. Beholde, the money whiche we sold in our sacks mouthes, we brought agayne vnto the out of the lande of Canaan: howe then shoulde we steale out of my lordes house, eyther silver or gold? wyth whom soeuer of thy seruantes it be founde let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde: Nowe therefore accordynge vnto your wordes, he wyth whome it is founde, shal be my seruante: but ye shall be harmelesse.

And forthwyth euery man toke doune his sacke to the ground and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched, first the eldest to the yongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. When they rente their clothes, and laded euery man his ass, and went agayne vnto the cypre. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the ground. And Joseph sayd vnto them: what deede is this whiche ye haue done? wythe ye not that suche a manne as I, can prophesye?

Then sayde Juda: what shall we say to my lord, what shal we speake, or what excuse can we make? God barbe sounde oute the wickednesse of thy seruants. Behold both we and he wyth whome the cuppe is founde, are thy seruants. And he answered: God forbid that I shoulde do so, the man wyth whome the cuppe is founde, he shal be my seruante: but goo ye in peace home to your father.

Then Juda went vnto him and sayd: ob my lord, let thy seruante speake a word in my lordes eare, and he not worthe with thy seruante: for thou arte euen as Ishaac. And my lord asked his seruante saying:

haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my lord: we haue a father that is olde, and a younge ladde whiche he begat in his age: and the brother of the sayd lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth him. Then said I my lord vnto his seruantes, bynge him vnto me, that I may set myne eyes vpon hym. And we answered my lord, that the lad could not go from his father, for if he should leue his father, his father were but a dead man. Then saidest thou vnto thy seruants: *onies your yongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

And when we came vnto thy seruante our father, we shewed hym what my lord hadde sayde. And when our father sayde vnto vs, go agayne, and bye vs a lytle tyme: we sayde, that we could not go.

Reuerchelesse your yongest brother go wyth vs, then wyll we go, for we may not se the mannes face excepte our yongest brother come wyth vs. Then sayde thy seruante our father vnto vs: Ye knowe that my wyf bare me two sonnes. And the one went out from me, and it is sayd that he is tozine in peaces of wyld beasts, and I sawe him not sence. If ye shal take this also awaye from me, and some my fortune happen vpon hym, *ye shall bynge my greye head, wyth sorowe vnto the graue.

Nowe therefore when I come to the scrute my father, if the lad be not with me: seeing that his lyfe hangeth by the laddes lyfe, then as soone as he seeth that the ladde is not come, he shall dye. So shall we thy seruantes, bynge the greye heade of thy seruante our father, wyth sorowe vnto the graue. For I thy seruante, became surety for the lad, vnto my father, and sayde: *If I bynge hym not to the agayne, I wyll beare the blame all my lyfe longe. Nowe therefore lette me thy seruante, remayne here for the ladde, and be my lordes bondman: and lette the ladde goo home wyth his brethren. For how can I go vnto my father, and the ladde not wyth me? lest I shoulde se the wretchednes that shal come on my father.

Joseph maketh him selfe knowne vnto his brethren and sendeth for his father.

AND Joseph coulde no longer refraine before al them & rode about him, but commaunded that they shoulde go all out from hym, and that there shoulde be no man wyth hym, whyle he vntered him selfe vnto his brethren. And he wept alowde so that the Egyptians, and the house of Ishaac heard it. And he sayed vnto his brethren: I am Joseph, doeth my father yet lyue? But his brethren coulde not aunswere hym, for they were abashed at his presence. And Joseph sayed vnto his brethren: come neare to me, and they came neare. And he sayed: *I am Joseph your brother, whom ye solde vnto Egypte. And

And now be not greued therewith, neyther let it seme a cruell thing in your eyes, that ye solde me hither. For God byd sende me before you, to saue your lues. * For this is the second yere of berth in the lande, and your mo are behynde, in whych there shall neyther be earpunge nor heruest.

Wherefore God sente me afore to make prouision, that ye mighte continue in the earth, and to saue your lues by a great despuerance. So now, it was not ye that sent me hither, but God: & he hath made me as a father vnto pharaon, and lord ouer all his house, and ruler in all the land of Egypte. Wasse you therefore, and go to my father, and tell him, this sayth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me lord ouer all Egypte. Come downe vnto me and tarpe not. And thou shalt dwell in the land of Gosen, and be by me: both thou, and thy chyldren, and thy chyldrens chyldren: and thy shepe, and beastes, and all that thou hast. There will I make prouision for the: For there remaine yet fyue yeres of berth, least thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, perishe.

Behold, your eyes do se, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that I speake to you by mouth: therefore tel my father of all my honoure, which I haue in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sent, and make haste and brynge my father hither.

And he fell on his brother Ben Jamins neck and wept, & Ben Jamin wept on his necke. Moreover he kissed all his brethren, & wept vpo the. And after that, his brethren talked with him. And when the tidinges were brought to pharaons house, that Josephs brethren were come, it pleased pharaon well, and all his seruauntes.

And pharaon spake vnto Joseph: say vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beastes, & get you hence. And when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take your father, and your households, and come vnto me, and I will geue you the beste of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fat of the lande. And commaunded also. This do ye: take charrettes with you, oute of the lande of Egypte, for your chyldren, and for your wyues: and brynge your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shall be yours.

And the children of Israel byd accordingly. And Joseph gaue them charrettes at the commaundemente of pharaon, and gaue them bytyle also, to spende by the way. And he gaue vnto eche of the, charge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin, he gaue thye hundred peces of syluer, and fyue chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he sent lykewise ten asses laden with good out of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with come, bread and meate: to serue his father by the waye. So sente he his brethren awaye, and they departed. And he sayed vnto to them: see that ye fail not oute by the waye.

And they departed from Egypte, and entered the land of Canaan, and came to Jacob their father, and tolde hym, saying: Joseph is yet alue, and is gouernour ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Jacobs heart was troubled, but he beleued the not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whych he had sayd vnto them. But when he sawe the charrettes whych Joseph had sent to carpe him, then his spirit was reuiued. And Israel sayde: I haue ynough, if Joseph my sonne be yet alue: I will go and se hym, or that I dye.

Deuter. x. d

D And he sent Juda before him unto Joseph, that the way might be shewed hym unto Gosan, and they came into the lande of Gosan. And Joseph made rejoyce his chauncet, and wente to mete Asraell his father, unto Gosan, and presented hymselfe unto him, and fell on his necke, and wepte upon his necke a good while. And Asraell kyssed unto Joseph: Now am I contente to dye, forasmuche as I have sene the, that thou art yet alive.

E And Joseph sayd unto his brethren and unto his fathers house: I will go and shew pharaos, and tell him, that my brethren and my fathers house, whiche were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me, and howe they are shepards (for they were menne of cattell) and they have broughte their shepe and their oren, and all that they haue, with them. If pharaos call you, and aske you what your occupation is, say: thy seruantes haue bene occupied aboute cattell, from our childehode vnto this tyme: both we & our fathers, that we may dwell in the land of Gosan. For the Egyptians abhorre all shepherdes.

The xlvii. Chapter.

D Jacob cometh before pharaos, and vnto hym is geuen the lande of Gosan. He was reioysed hym for his byrgen.

A And Joseph went and tolde pharaos, and sayd: my father and my brethren, their shepe and their beastes, and all that they haue, are come out of the land of Canaan, & are in the lande of Gosan. And Joseph tooke a parte of his brethren, euen sone of them, & presented them vnto pharaos. And pharaos said vnto his brethren: what is your occupation? And they sayd vnto pharaos: Shepherds are thy seruantes, both we & also our fathers. They said more ouer vnto pharaos: for to * serue in þ land are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for their shepe, so loze is þ famishment in the land of Canaan. Now therefore lette thy seruantes dwell in the land of Gosan. And pharaos said vnto Joseph: thy father & thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is open before the: In the best place of the lande, make both thy father and thy brethren dwelle: And euen in the lande of Gosan let them dwell. I knowe if thou knowe anye men of actiuite amonge them, make them rulers ouer my cattell. And Joseph broughte in Jacob his father, and set him before pharaos. And Jacob blessed pharaos. And pharaos asked Jacob, howe old art thou? And Jacob said vnto pharaos: the daies of my (a) pilgrimage, are an hundred and thirtie yeres. If we and euill haue the daies of my life bene, & haue not attened vnto the peaces of the tyme of my fathers, in the daies of their pilgrimage. And Jacob (b) blessed pharaos, and went oute from him. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them possession in the lande of Egypte, in the beste of the land: euen in the lande of Ramesses, as pharaos commaunded. And Joseph made prouision for his father, his brethren and all his fathers householde, as sponges children are fed with breade.

E There was no breade in all the lande, for the dearth was exceeding sore: so þ the land of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were famished, by the reason of the dearth. And Joseph gathered together all the moneye that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the come whiche they boughte: and he layd by the moneye in pharaos house. When moneye failed in the land of Egypte, and of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph, and sayd: geue vs sustenance: wherfore sufferest thou vs to dye before the: for our moneye is spent. He sayd Joseph: bringe your cattell, and I will geue you for your cattell, if ye be without money. And they brought their cattell vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and shepe, and oren and asses: so he fed them with breade, for all their cattell, that yere.

D When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, and sayd vnto hym: we wyl not hyde it from my lord, how that we haue neither money nor cattell, for my lord, there is no more left for my lord but our bodies, and our landes. Wherefore latest thou vs dye before thyne eyes, & the land to go to naughte: dye vs and our landes be bonde to pharaos. Weue vs sode, that we maye lyue, and not dye, & that the lande go not to wast.

And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt

a) That is, at the tyme that he lyued, as Job. xlii. c. and Psal. cxviii. c. (b) In this place to blese, is to praise and geue thanks, as also in the. ci. d. & l. xvi. d.

The Egyptians for pharao. For the Egyptians sold every man his lande, because the dertth was sore vpon them: and so the land became to pharao. And he appointeth the people vnto cities, from one side of Egypt vnto the other: onely the lande of priestes boughte he not. For ther was an ordinance made by pharao for the priestes, that they shoulde eat that which was appointed vnto them: wherof pharao had geuen them, wherfore they solde not their landes.

Then Joseph layd vnto the folke: behold I haue bought you this daye, & poure landes for pharao. Take therefore seede, & goe sow the land. And of the increase ye shall geue the fyfte part vnto pharao, and in thre partes shalbe poure owne for seede to sowe the felde: and for you, and them of your householdes, and for your children, to eat. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynd grace in the sight of my Lord, and let vs be pharaos seruautes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypt vnto this daye: that men muste geue pharao the fyfte part, except the land of priestes onely, which was not bound vnto pharao.

And Israel dwelt in Egypt: euen in the countrey of Gosen. And they hadde their possessions therein, and they grew and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover Jacob liued in the lande of Egypt xlii yeares, so that the hole age of Jacob was, an hundred and thyn yeares.

When the tyme drew naye, that Israell must die, he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto him: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, putt y^e hande vnder my thigh, and deale mercifully and truly wth me, that thou burye my not in Egypt: but let me lye by my fathers, and carry me oute of Egypt, and burye me in their burial. And he answered: I wil do as thou hast said. And he sayd & swate vnto me. And he swate vnto hym: And then Israell worshipped the Lord, and bowed hym vnto the beddes heade.

The xlviii Chapter.
Jacob lyeth speke. He sayeth Ephraim and Manasses for his sonnes, and blessed them.

After these deedes, thynges were brought vnto Joseph, & his father was speke. And he toke with him his two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. The was it said vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto the. And Israell toke his strength vnto him, and layd vpon the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almighty appeared vnto me at Luz, in the lande of Canaan, and blessed me, and said vnto me: beholde, I will make the growe, and will multiply the, and will make a great nombre of people of the, and will geue this land vnto thee, and vnto thy seede after thee, for an euerlasting possession.

Nowe therefore thy two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim, whiche were borne vnto the before I came to the into Egypt, shalbe myne, euen as Ruben and Simeon shal be vnto me. And the children whiche I shal gett after them, shal be thine owne: but shalbe called with the names of thy brethren in their inheritances. And after I came from Mesopotamia, Manasses layd vpon my hande in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when I hadde but a felde bread to go vnto Ephraim. And I buried hym there in the way to Ephraim, which is now called Bethlehem.

And Israel beheld Josephs sonnes, and sayd: what are these? And Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sons, which God hath geuen me here. And he sayd: bring the to me, and let me blesse them. And the eyes of Israell were dimme for age, so that he coulde not well see. And he broughte them to him, and he kissed them, and embraced the. And Israel said vnto Joseph: I would not haue thought, that I should haue sene thy face, and yet lo: God hath shewed it me, and also thy seede. And Joseph toke the awaye from his lappe, and they fell on the ground before hym.

Then toke Joseph them both: Ephraim in his right hande toward Israells left hand, and Manasses in his left hand, toward Israells right hande, and brought them vnto him. And Israell stretched oute his right hande, and layd it vpon Ephraims heade, which was the yonger, and his left hande vpon Manasses heade, crossing his hands: for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph, sayinge: God before whom my fathers Abrahaim and Isaac dyd walke, and the God whiche hath fedde me all my lyfe long vnto this daye. And the angel which hath deliuered me from all euil, blesse these laddes: that they maye be called after my name and after my father Abrahams name, and that they maye growe and multiply vpon the earth.

When Joseph saw that his father layd his right hand vpon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him. And he lift vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims heade vnto Manasses heade, and sayd vnto his father: Not so my father, for this is my eldest son: putt thy right hand vpon his heade. And his father wold not, but sayd: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shall be also a people, and shalbe great. But of a truthe, his yonger brother shalbe greater then he, and his seede shalbe full of people. And he blessed them, sayinge: At the end sample of these, the Israelites shal blesse, and saye: God make the as Ephraim and as Manasses. Thus set he Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayd vnto Joseph: beholde I dye. And God shalbe with you, and bringe you againe vnto the land of your fathers. Moreover I geue vnto thee a portion of lande aboue thy brethren, which I gat out of the hands of the Amorites, with my sword and with my bowe.

whereof I entreated in the end of the obsequy, & beware of subtille allegories. And note euery thyne owne hert and soule.

For as God vnto hym selfe vnto them of the old Testamente: euen so shall he vnto the worldes ende vnto hym selfe vnto vs, whiche haue recey ued his holy scripture, and the testimony of his sonne Iesus. As God doeth all thynges here for them that beleue his promyses, and herken vnto his commaundementes, and with pa tience vnto hym, and walke with hym: e uen so shall he do for vs, if we receyue the w rde of Christ with a stronge faith, and endure patientlye sole wynges his steeple. And on the other syde, as they that fell from the promise of God thowge vnto the, and from his law and ordinaunces thowge vnto the, and from his lustre, were forsaken of God, and so perished: euen so shall we as many as do lyche, and as manie as mocke with the doctrine of a hyple, and make a stoke of it to lyche and to for Note thereto howe God is sounde true at the last, and howe when all is past reme dyng brought into desperation: he the fulfyller his promyses, and that by an abicte and a cast away, a despyd and a refused person, yea, and by a way impossible to beleue.

The cause of all captiuitie of Goddes pro ple is this. The world euer hateth them for their sayeth and trust which they haue in God, but in vayne, till they fall from the sayeth of the promise, and loue of the lawe and ordina nces of God, and put their trust in holie dedes of their owne fyndyng, and lyue altogether of their owne luste, and pleasure without regard of God, & respect of their neyghboure. Thus God forsaketh vs, and sendeth vs into capti uitie, for our dishonourage of his name, and des pysinge of our neyghboure. But the world persecuteth vs for our sayeth, in Christ only (as the people nowe doeth) and not for our wyche lunge. For in his kyngdome thou maist quie tlye and with licence, and vnder a protection, do what forer abominacion thyne herte lusteth: but God persecuteth vs, becau we abuse his holy testament, and becau when we know the truth, we folowe it not.

little, & delivereth not his people in an hour, that both the patience of his electe, and also the worldely wit, and wylle polycie of the wycked, wherewith they do fyghte agaynst God, myghte appeare.

Marke the longe sufferynge and softe patience of Moyses, and howe he toucheth the people and is ever betwene the wrath of God and the, and is readye to lyue and dye with them, and to be put out of the booke that God had wyrtten for theyr sake: as Paule for his brethren, Romans. ix. and howe he taketh his owne wyldeges parentelpe: and neuer auengeth hym selfe. And make not Moyses a figure of Christ with Rochester: but an ensample vnto all Prynces, and to all that are in authoryte, howe to rule vnto Goddes pleasure, and vnto theyr owne profit. For there is not a perfecter lyfe in this world, both to the honoure of God, and profite of his neyghboure, no yet a greater crosse, then to rule chrystenlye. And of Aaron also, see that thou make no figure of Christ, vntill he come vnto his sacrificynge: but an example vnto all preachers of Gods worde, that they adde no thyng vnto Goddes worde, or take oughte thereto.

Note also, howe God sendeth his promysse to the people, and Moyses confirmeth it with myracles, and the people beleue. But when temptation cometh, they fall into vnbelyfe, and seme hyde standynge. When thou seest that all be not Chysten that wyl be so called, and that the crosse reiecth the true from the false, for if the crosse were not, Christe shoulde haue disciples pnowe. Wherefore also thou seest, what an excellent gyfte of God true sayeth is, and impossible to be had withoute the spyrte of God. For it is aboue all naturall power that a manne in tyme of temptation when God scourgeth hym, shoulde beleue then stedfastlye howe that God toucheth him, and careth for hym, and hath prepared all good thynges for hym, and that that scourginge is an earnest that god hath electe and cholen hym.

Note howe oft Moyses styrred them vp to beleue and truste in God, puttynge them in remembrance alwaye in tyme of temptation, of the myracles and wondrous that God hath wroughte befoze tyme in theyr eye sighte. How diligently also forbyddeth he al that might drawe theyr hertes from God: to put oughte to Gods worde, to take oughte from it, commaundyng to do that onely that is right in the sight of the Lord, that they shoulde make no maner ymage, to knyle downe before it: yea, that they shoulde make none aultare of hewed stone, for feare of Images, to see the heathen Idolatries utterly, and to destroye theyr Idoles, and cte downe theyr groues where they worshipped, and that they shoulde not take the Daughters of them vnto theyr sonnes, nor geue theyr daughters to the sonnes of the, and that whosoer moued any of them to worshype false Goddes, howe soeuer nyghe of kynne he were, they muste accuse hym, and byng hym to death, yea, and wheresoeuer they heard of man, woman, or Cite, that worshipped false Goddes, they shoulde see theym, and destroye the Cytie for ever, and not buylde it agayne, and all because they shoulde worshype nothyng but God, nor putte confidence in anye thyng, save in his worde.

Yea, and howe warneth he to beware of wylchecraft, sorcerye, enchaunement, necromancye, and all craftes of the Drugg, and of dyasmers, southsayers, and of miracle doers to de-stroye the woordes, and that they shoulde suffer none such to lue.

Thou wylt haply saye, they tell a man the trueth. What then? God wyl that we care not to knowe what shal come. He wyl haue vs too care onely to kepe his com naundementes, and so commit all chaunces vnto him. He hath promysed to care for vs, and to kepe vs from all yll. All thynges are in his hand, he can remembre al thynges, and wyl for his reuerth sake, if we praye hym. In his promyses onely wyl he haue vs trust, and ther rest and to see no farther.

Howe also doeth he prouoke them to loue, ever rehersyng the benefites of god done to the already, and so goodly promyses he were to come. And howe goodly lawes of loue geueth he, to helpe one on other, and that a man shoulde not hate his neyghboure in his herte, but loue hym as hym selfe. Leviticus. xix. And what a charge geueth he in every place, ouer his poe and nedle, ouer the stranger, frendles and wydowes: And when he belyeth to shewe merce, he reherceth with all, the benefytes of God done to them at there nedre, that they myght be a cause at the least waye in god to shewe merce of vnto loue vnto theyr neyghbours at theyr nedre.

Also there is no lawe so symple in apparraunce thowse out the true booke of Moyses, but that there is a greate reason of the making thereof, if a man searche diligently. As that a manne is forbydde to seeth a Rynde in his mothers mylke, moueth vs vnto compayson, and to be pytfull. As doeth also that a manne shoulde not offe the eye of dame and the ponge boeth in one dape. Leviticus. xix. For it myght seme a cruel thyng, in as muche as his mothers mylke is as it were his bloude, wherefore God wyl not haue hym sodde therein: but wyl haue a man shewe curtesye, vpon the verpe beastes. And in an other place he commaundeth that we moell not the Ore that treadeth out the corne: which maner of thyng is vsed in hote countreys and that because we shoulde muche rather be liberall and kynde vnto menne that do be leturpe. O happye God woulde haue none such wanton meate vsed among the people. For the hope of it selfe is no thyng, and the goodes mylke is restouratyue, and boeth together myght be to ranche, and therfore forbydden, some other lyke cause there was.

Of the ceremonies, sacrifices, and Tabernacle, with all his gloze and pompe, vnderstand that they were not permytted onely, but also commaunded of God, to leade the people in the shadowe of Moyses and nyghte of the olde testament, vntill the light of Christ and dape of the newe testament were come. As children are led in the phantasies of pouth vntill the descrecion of mans age be come vpon them. And all was done to kepe them from Idolatrye.

The tabernacle was ordeyned to the entent they myght haue a place appoynted them to do theyr sacrifices openly in the sighte of the people, and namelpe the Pryetes whiche wayted thereon: that is myght be sene that they byd all thynges accordynge to Goddes worde, and not after the Idolatrye of theyr owne Imaginacion. And the cosynesse of the Tabernacle, and the beaute also pertaynyng therunto, that they shoulde se nothyng amonge the heathen but that they shoulde se thynges mox beautiful at home, because they shoulde not be moued to folowe them.

And in lyke maner, the dyuerse fashyons of sacrifices and ceremonies was to occupy theyr myndes, that they shoulde haue no luste to followe

lowe the heathen and the multitude of theym was, that they should haue so much to do in heppinge them, that they should haue no leasure to imagine other of their ownepes and that gods word might be by in all that they dyd, that they might haue their faith and trust in God, which he can not haue that followeth either hys owne traditions, or traditions of mennes makinge without gods word.

Finally, God hath two Testaments: the old and the newe. The olde testament is those temporall promyses, whiche God made the chyldren of Israel of a good lande, and that he woulde defende the, and of wealth and prosperite, and of temporall blessings, of whiche thou readest ouer all the lawe of Moyses, but namely. Levitic. xvi. and Deuter. xxi. and the auoydinge of all threatenynge and curses, of whiche thou readest lyke wyse euery where, but specially in the two booke about rehearsed, and the auoydinge of all punishment ordeyned for the transgressours of the lawe.

And the olde testament was built altogether vpon the heppinge of the lawe and ceremonies, and was the rewarde of heppinge them in this lyfe onely, and reached no farther then this lyfe and this worlde. As thou readest Levitic. x. iiii. A man that doeth the that I haue therin, which teche Paule rehearseth. Ro. x. and Galath. iii. That is, he that heareth them, shall haue his life gloriouse, accordinge to all the promyses and blessings of the lawe, and shall auoyde both all temporall punishments of the lawe, and all the threatenynge and cursynge also. For neither the lawe euen of the ten commandments, nor yet the ceremonies, iustified in the herte before God, or purged vnto the lyfe to come. In so muche that Moyses at hys death, euen fouretye yeres after the lawe and ceremonies were geuen, complayneth saying. God hath not geuen you an herte to vnderstande, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto this daye. As who shoulde haue sayd: God hath geuen you ceremonies, but ye knowe not the vse of them, and hath geuen you a lawe, but God hath not wrytten it in your hertes.

Wherefore serueth the lawe then, if it geue vs no power to do the lawe? Paule answereth the, that it was geuen to bitter synne onely, and to make it appere. As a scabbe is layd vnto an olde soze, not to heale it, but to styre it vp, and make the dyscase alyue, that a man myghte feele in what sorow he is, and howe nyghe death and not aways, and to make aways vnto the healyng place.

Euen so, sayeth Paule. Gala. iii. The lawe was geuen because of transgression (that is to make the synne alyue, that it myght be felte and seene) vntill the seide came vnto whom it was promysed, that is to saye, vntill the chyldren of sayth came, or vntill Christ that seide in whom God promysed Abraham, that all nacions of the worlde shoulde be blessed, came.

That is, the lawe was geuen to bitter synne, death, damnacion and curse, and to dyscuss vnto Christe, in whom forgiveness, lyfe, iustifyinge and blessing were promysed, that we myghte se so great loue of God to vs warde in Christe, that we henceforth ouercome with kindness, myghte loue agayne, and of loue kepe the commandmentes.

Howe he that goeth aboute to quiete hys conscience, and to iustify hym selfe with the lawe, doeth but heale hys woundes with scabbege roses. And he that goeth aboute to purchase grace with ceremonies, doeth but suche the ale pole to quench hys thyrste, in as muche as the ceremonies were not geuen to iustify the herte, but to signifye the iustifyinge, and forgiveness that is in Christes bloude.

Of the ceremonies that they iustify not, thou readest. Hebrews. x. It is impossible that synne shoulde be done aways with the bloud of oxen and goates. And of the lawe thou readest Galat. iii. If there had ben a lawe geuen, I coulde haue quickened or grauntyde: then hadde thyngs troulesome or iustifyinge come by the lawe in dede. Howe the lawe not onely quickeneth not the herte, but also wounderth it with conscience of synne, and minneth death and damnacion vnto hys lyfe. Col. ii. so that he must nedes dye and be dampned, excepte he synde once remede. So farre it is of that we are iustified or holpen by the lawe.

The new testament is those euerylastyng promyses, whiche are made vs in Christ the word thowmout all the scripture. And that Testament is buyt on sayth, and not on workes.

For it is not sayd of that testament: he that worketh shall lyue: but he that beleueth shall lyue. As thou readest. John. iii. God so loued the world, that he gaue hys onely begotten son, that none that beleue in hym shoulde perishe, but haue lyfe euerylastyng.

And when this Testament is preached and belied, the spyrte entereth the herte, and quickeneth it, and geueth it lyfe, & iustifyeth hym. The spyrte also maketh the lawe a lyuely tyng in the herte, so that a man byngeth forth good workes of hys owne accord without compulsion of the lawe, without feare of threatenynge, or cursynge: yea, and without all maner respects or loue vnto any temporall pleasure, but of the verie power of the spyrte, receyued thowmout sayeth, as thou readest. John. i. He gaue them power to be the sonnes of God, in that they beleued on hys name.

And of that power they worke, so that he whiche hath the spyrte of Christe, is now no more a chyld: he neither learneth nor worketh any longer for payne of the rodde, or for feare of bugges or pleasure of apples, but doeth all thynges of hys owne courage. As Christ sayth John. vii. He that beleueth on me, shall haue riuers of lyuynge waters flowynge out of hys belly. That is all good workes, and all giftes of grace spring out of hym naturallye, and by thep owne accord. Thou readest not to wycke good workes out of hym, as a manne woulde wyngge vertue out of crabbes. Naye, they flowe naturallye out of hym, as springes out of rocks.

The newe Testament was euer euen from the begynnyng of the worlde. For there were alwayes promyses of Christ to come, by sayeth in whyche promyses, the electe were then iustified inwardly before God, as outwardly before the worlde, by heppinge of the lawe and ceremonies.

And in conclusyon, as thou seest blessings or cursynge folowe the breakynge or heppinge of the lawe of Moyses: euen so naturallye do the blessings or cursynge folowe the breakynge or heppinge of the lawe of nature, out of whiche springe all our temporall lawes. So that whē the people kepe the temporall lawes of theyr lande, temporall prosperite, and all maner of suche temporall blessings as thou readest of in Moyses, do accompany them and fall vpon them. And contrarywyse, when they synne vnto

If any man aſke me, ſaying that ſapth ſuſpecteth me, why I worke? I anſwere. I loue com- pelleth me. For as long as my ſoul ſeeketh what loue God hath ſhewed me in Chriſte, I can not but loue God agayne, and bys wyll and coman- dementes, and of loue worke them, nor they can ſeme harde vnto me. I thynke not my ſelfe bet- ter for my workinge, nor ſeke heauen nor an higher place in heauen becauſe of it. For a Chri- ſtian worketh to make his weake brother per- fect, and not to ſeke an higher place in hea- uen. I compare not my ſelfe vnto hym that wor- keth not. No, he that worketh not to daye, ſhall haue grace to turne and to worke to morowe, and in the meane tyme, I praye hym and praye for hym: If I had wrought the wyll of God theſe thouſand yeres, and other had wroughte the wyll of the deuyll as longe, and thys daye he turne and be as well wyllynge to ſuffer with Chriſt as I: he hath thys daye ouer taken me, and is as farre come as I, and ſhall haue as muche rewarde as I, and I enuye hym not but reioyce moſt of al, as of a loſt treaſure found.

For if I be of God, I haue theſe thouſande yeres ſuffered to wyne hym for to come and praye the name of God with me. Theſe thouſand yeres, I haue prayed, longed, ed, longed, ſighed, and fought for that which I haue thys daye found, and therfore reioyce with al my might, and praye God for his grace and merce.

These are the names of the children of Iſrael, whiche came to Egypt with Iacob, e- uery man with his houſholde: Ruben, Sime- on, Leui, Iu- da, Iſachar, Zabulon, Ben Iamin, Dan, Reuithali, Gad and Aſer. All theſe ſoules procedynge out of the loynes of Iacob, were thre ſcore and ten, where as Joſeph was in Egypt alreadye.

When Joſeph was deade, and all his bre- then, and al that generacion, the children of Iſrael grew, encreaſed, multiplied, and waxed very myghtye: ſo that the land was full of them.

Then there roſe vp a new kynge in Egypt which knew not Joſeph. And he ſaped vnto his folke: behold the people of the chyl- dren of Iſrael are mo & mightier than we. Come, let vs playe wyſely with them: leſte they multiplye, and ſo (if there chaunce any warre, they ioyne them ſelues to oure ennemies and fight againſt vs, and ſo get them out of the land.

And he ſet taſkemaſters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buyt vnto Pharaos ctytes of deſenſe: Pſon- ton and Rameses. But the more they vex- ed them, the more they multiplied & grew: ſo that they abhorred the chylidren of Iſ- rael. And the Egyptians helde the chylidren of Iſrael in bondage withoute merce, and made theyr lyues bytter vnto them, with cruell labour in clape, and byrche, and all maner worke in the fieldes, and in al ma- ner ſerupce, whiche they cauſed them to worke, cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte ſapd vnto the midwives of the Ebrues women, of which the ones name was Sephora, & the other Phua: Whye ye do the offpce of a midwife, to the women of the Ebrues, and ſe in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But if it be a mayde, let it lyue. Notwithſtandynge the midwives feared God and did not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but ſaued the men children.

Then the kynge of Egypte called for the midwives, and ſaide vnto them: why haue ye delt on thys maner, and haue ſaued the men children? And the midwives anſwe- red Pharaos, that the Ebrues women were not as the women of Egypt: but were ſtr- dr womenne, and were deliuered afore the midwives came at them. And God there- fore deaſte well with the midwives. And the people multiplied & waxed very myght- ty. And becauſe the midwives feared God, he made a them houſes.

Then Pharaos charged al his people, ſay- inge: All the menchildren that are borne, caſte into the ryuer, and ſaue the maidechyl- dren alſue.

The ii. Chapter.

Moſes is borne, and bring call into the flag- ges, is taken vp of Pharaos daughter. He kyl- leth the Egyptians, he fleeth and taketh a wife. The Iſraelites crye vnto the Lord.

Another wet a man of the houſe of Leui. And toke a daughter of Leui. And the wyfe conceived and bare a ſonne. And when ſhe ſaw that it was a pro- pre chylid, ſhe hpd hym for in moneths. But when ſhe could no longer hde hym, ſhe toke a baſket made of bulruſhes, and dawbed it with ſlme and pytche, and laid the chylde therein, and put it in the flagges by the ry- uers byrke. And his ſiſter ſtoode a farr of, to wytte what would come of it. And the daughter of Pharaos came bounce to the ry- uer to waſh hyr ſelfe, & her maydes walked a longe a longe by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge the flagges, she sente one of her maydens, and caused it to be fet. And when she had opened it she saw the chyldre, and behold: the babe wept. And she had compassion on it and said: it is one of the Egiptians chyldren. Then sayd hys sister unto pharaos daughter: shal I go and cal vnto the a nurse of the Egiptians women, to nurse the that chyldre? pharaos daughter answered: So thy wape. And the mayden, & called the chyldres mother. The pharaos daughter sayed vnto her. Take this chyldre awape, and nurse it for me. And the woman toke the chyldre, and nursed it by.

And when the chyldre was growen, shee brought it vnto pharaos daughter, and it was made her son, and she called it *Moses, because (sayde she) I toke hym out of the water. And it happened in these daies, whē Moses was wated great, that he wēt out vnto hys brethren, and looked on their burdens, & sppe an Egiptian smyttinge one of hys brethren an Egiptian. And he looked rounde aboute, and when he saw that there was no man by, he *slew the Egiptian. and hyd hym in the sande. And he wēt to the nexte daye, and beholde, two Egiptians stroue together. And he sayde vnto hym that dōd the wronge: Wherefore smyttest thou thyne neyghboure? And he answered: who hath made the ruler or a iuge ouer vs: intendest thou to kyll me, as thou kyledst yesterdape the Egiptian? Then Moses feared and sayde: Truly the thing is knowen. And pharaos hearde of it, and wente aboute to sle Moses: but he fled from pharaos, and dwelte in the lande of Madian, and he satte downe by a welles syde.

The preast of Madian had vii daughters whiche came and drew water, and fylled the troughes, for too water theyr fathers shepe. And the shepheards came and droue the maydens awape: but Moses stode by, and helped them, and watered their shepe. When they came to *Raguell their father he said: how happeneth it that ye are come so soone to day? They answered: An Egiptian delucted vs from the shepheards, and so drew vs water, and watered the shepe. And he sayde vnto hys daughters. Where is he? why haue ye lefte the man? So cal hym that he maye eat & breade. And Moses was contente to dwell wth hys man. And he gaue Moses zephora hys daughter whiche bare a son, and he called hym Gerson: for he sayde: I haue bene a straunger in a straunge lande. And she bare yet another sonne whom he called Eliezer, sayinge: The God of my father is mine helper, and hath rid me out of the handes of pharaos.

And it chaunced in proffesse of tyme, that the kynge of Egipte dyed, and the chyldre of Israel syghed by the reason of labour, and cryed. And their complainte ascended vnto God from the labour. And God remembered hys promyse wth Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And God *looked vpon the chyldren of Israel, and knewe them.

The. iii. Chapter.

Moses kepte shepe, god appereth vnto him in a bush, and sendeth him to the chyldren of Israel, and to pharaos the oppressour.

Moses kepte the shepe of Jethro hys father in lawe, prieste of Madian, & he droue the flocke to the backside of the wyldernesse, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, in a flame of fyre, out of a bush. And he percepued that the bush burned wth fyre, & consumed not. Then Moses sayde: I wyl goo hence, and sethys greates syght, how it cometh that the bush burneth not. And when the lorde sawe that he came forth to see, he called hym out of the bush, and sayd: Moses, Moses. He answered, I am at hande. And he sayde: come not hyther, but put thy shoes of thy fete: for the place wher thou standest is holpe grounde. And he sayde: I am the God of thy father: the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to loke vpon God.

Then the Lorde sayed: I haue suerlye sene the trouble of my people whiche are in Egipt, and haue hearde their crye, whiche they haue of their taskmasters. For I knowe their sorowe and am come downe to deliuer them out of the handes of the Egiptians, and to bring them out of that lande, vnto a good lande, and a large, and vnto a lande that floweth wth mylke and honye. euen vnto the place of the Canaanites, Hetites, Amouites, Pherezites, Heuites, and of the Jebusites. Now therefore behold the complaint of the children of Israel: is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppression, whiche wth the Egiptians oppresseth them. But come, I wil send thee to pharaos, that thou mayest bring my people the children of Israel out of Egipt. And Moses sayd vnto God: what am I to go vnto pharaos, and to bringe the chyldren of Israel out of Egipt? And he sayd: I wyl be wth the. And thus Mahe a toke vnto the, that I haue sent the: After that thou haste broughte the people out of Egipte, ye shal serue God vpon thys mountayne.

Then sayd Moses to God: when I come vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: The God of your fathers hath set me vnto you, and theyr saye vnto me, what is hys name, what answereth I? Then sayde God vnto Moses: I am that I am. And he sayde: Thus shalte thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: The God that is, dōd sende me vnto you. and God spake further vnto Moses: Thus shalte thou saye vnto the chyldre of Israel. I lord god of your fathers, the god of Abraham, god of Isaac, and the god of Jacob, hath sent

The xiii. Chapter.

Moses receyued signes of his callinge as he was sente into Egypt. His wyfe zephora circumciseth her son Aaron meeteth with Moses, Moses taketh his leaue of his father in law.

Moses answered & sayd: Se, they wil not beleue me nor hearken vnto my voyce but wil say, the lord hath not appeared vnto the. Then the Lord sayd vnto him: What is that in thyne hande? & he sayd, a rod. And he sayd: cast it on the ground. he dyd cast it, and it turned vnto a serpente. And Moses ran away from it. And the lord sayd vnto Moses: put forth thine hande, & take it by the tayle. And he put forth his hand and caught it, and it became a rod againe in his hande and thus shalt thou do sayth the lord, that they maye beleue that the Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the Lord sayed furthermore vnto him thrust thyne hand into thy bosome. And he thrust his hand into his bosome, and toke it out. And beholde, his hand was leporous euen as snowe. And he sayd: put thyne hand into thy bosom againe. And he put his hand into his bosome againe, and plucked it out of his bosome, and beholde, it was tourned againe as his other flewe. And the water whiche thou takeste out of the ryuer, shall tourne to bloude vpon the drye lande.

And Moses sayd to the Lord: Oh my Lord, I am not eloquent, neyther in tymes past, ne yet sence thou hast spoken vnto thy seruaunt, but I haue an impediment of speche, and am slowe tongued. And the lord sayd vnto hym: who hath made mans mouth or who hath made the dum or the deaf, the seying or the blinde? haue not I, O Lord? So therefore, and I will be with thy mouth and teach the what thou shalt say. But he sayd: oh my lord send I praye the whom thou wylt. And the Lord was angrie with Moses and sayd, I know Aaron thy brother the Leuite that he can speake. And mouer behold, he cometh to mete the, and when he seeth the, he wyl be glad in the. And thou shalt speake vnto hym and put the wordes in his mouth, & I wyl be with thy mouth and with his mouth, & wyl teach you what ye shall do. And he shall be thy spokesman vnto the people: ne shall be thy mouth, and thou shalt be his god and take this rod in thy hande wherewith thou shalt do miracles.

And Moses wente and retourned to Fethio his father in law againe, and said vnto hym: let me go. I praye the and returne to my brethren whiche are in Egypt, that I maye se whether they be yet aliv. And Fethio sayde to Moses: go in peace. And the lord sayd vnto Moses in a vision. retorne againe into Egypt for they are dead whiche wente aboute to kyll the. And Moses toke his wyfe, and his sonnes, and late them on an Ass, and retourned to Egypt and toke the rod of God in his hand.

And the lord sayd to Moses, when thou art come to Egypt againe, se that thou do all the wonders before pharaon whiche I haue put in thy hand, but I wyl harden his herte so that he shall not let the people go. And tell pharaon, thus sayeth the Lord: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and therefore sayeth vnto the: Let my sonne go, that he maye serue me. If thou wilt not let hym go, behold, I wyl sle thyne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the way in the pynne that the Lord met hym, and woulde haue kyllid hym. The zephora toke a stone and circumcisid her sonne, and fell at his fete, and sayde: a bloudy husbnde art thou vnto me. And he let hym go. She sayd a bloudy husband, because of the circumcisid. Then sayd the Lord vnto Aaron: go mete Moses in the wilderness. And he went and met hym in the mount of god, and kysed hym. The v. Chapter.
Moyses and Aaron go vnto pharaos. The people of Israel are oppressed more & more, and they crye out vpon Moyses and Aaron therfore.

Then Moyses and Aaron wente & tolde pharaos, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. Let my people go, that they may kepe holre dape vnto me in the wilderness. And pharaos answered: What se lower is the Lorde, that I should heare his voice for to let Israel go? I knowe not the Lorde, neptier wil let Israel go. And they saied: the God of the Hebrews hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye the) that we maye iourney into the desert, that we maye sacryfice vnto the Lorde oure God: lest he smite vs either with pestilence, or wth sword. Then saied the kyng of Egypt vnto them: Wherfore do ye, Moyses and Aaron, let the people fro their worke? get pou vnto poure labour. And pharaos said furthermore: be holde, ther is much people in the land, and ye make the myracles, and let their woche stande.

* He knoweth not the lord, & fearerth hi not, neither beleueth in hi, but is as one, hauing nothing to do wth him. Such as al hard herseyd, & greddy woylsings & passe not so tranche grette gods commaunde: mentes for hurtes sake

And pharaos commaunded the same dape the taskemasters ouer the people, and the offycers saying: let that ye geue the people no more strawe to make bucke with, as ye did in tyme past: let them goo and gather straw theselues, and the numbze of bucke, wch they wet wont to make in tyme past, laye vnto their charges also, & diminish nothing therof. For they be ydel, and therfore crye, sayinge: Let vs go and do sacryfice vnto our God. They muste haue more worke laied vpon them, that they may labour therein, and then will they not turne them selues to false wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people & the offycers out, and told the people, sayinge: Thus sayth pharaos: I will geue pou no more straw, but go pou selues, and gather pou strawe where ye can find it, yet that none of poure labour be diminished. The people scattered abroad thowout all the lande of Egypte, for to gather theym stubble, to be in stede of strawe.

And the taskemasters haded them forward, saying: Fulfill poure worke dape by day, even as whē straw was geue pou. And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel, which pharaos taskemasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And it was saied vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled poure taske in makynge bucke, both yesterday and to dape, as well as in tymes past.

Then wente the offycers of the chyldren of Israel, and complayned vnto pharaos, sayinge: Wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruantes? there is no strawe geuen vnto thy seruantes, and yet they say vnto vs: make bucke. And so, thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: Ydell are ye, and therfore ye saye: lette vs go and do sacryfice vnto the Lorde. Soe therfore and worke, for there shall no strawe be geuen pou, and yet se that ye deliuer the hole tale of bucke.

When the offycers of the chyldren of Israel sawe them selues in threwd case (in that he sayde, ye shall mure the nothinge of poure daylye makynge of bucke) then they met Moyses and Aaron, and praynge in theyr waye, as they came out from pharaos, and sayd vnto them: The Lorde loke vnto pou as iudge, for ye haue made the sauoure of thy synke in the sight of pharaos, and of thy seruantes, and haue put a swerde in to theyr handes to slep vs.

Moyses returned vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Wherfore dealest thou cruelly wth this people: and wherfore hast thou sente me? For I came to pharaos to speake in thy name, he hath sared foule with this folke, and yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all. Then the Lorde said vnto Moyses: Howe shalt thou see what I will do vnto pharaos, for with a myghty hande, shall he lette them go, and wth a myghty hande, shall he dyspue them out of his lande.

When I maye cannot abide a thyng, the we lare, it lyeth in his syghte. So to like in pharaos syghte, is to be abhorred of hym.

I haue made the pharaon God, that is: I haue made the pharaon iudge as in Exo. xxi.

Moses and Aaron did as the Lord commaunded them. And Moses was lxxx. yere old, and Aaron. lxxiii. when they spake vnto pharaon. And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: When pharaon speaketh vnto pou, and saith: Shew a wonder, then shalt thou say vnto Aaron: Take the rodde, and cast it before pharaon, & it shall turne to a serpent. Then went Moses and Aaron to pharaon, and did as the Lord had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rod before pharaon and his seruantes, and it turned to a serpent. When pharaon called for the wise men and * enchaunters of Egypt: and they did in like maner with sorcerie. And they cast downe euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpents: but Aarons rodde ate vp their rods: and yet for all this pharaos herte was hardened, so that he hearkened not vnto them, according as the Lord had sayde.

Then said the Lord vnto Moses. pharaos herte is hardened, and he refuseth to let the people go. Get thee vnto pharaon in the morning, for he will come vnto the water, and stande thou vpon the riuers bankes, against he come, and the rodde which turned to a serpent take in thy hand. And say vnto him: the Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me vnto the, saying: let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wilderness: but hyther vnto thou woldst not heare. Wherefore thus sayth the lord: here by thou shalt knowe that I am the Lord. Beholde, I will smyte with the staffe that is in myne hand, the waters that are in the riuier, and they shall turne to bloud. And so shall that which is in the riuier shall dye, and the riuier shall dryne. so that it shall greue the Egyptians to dryncke of the water of the riuier.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, say vnto Aaron: take thy staffe and stretche out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypt, ouer their streames, riuers, poudes, and all pooles of water, that they maye be bloud, and that there may be bloud in all the land of Egypt: both in vessels of woode and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lord commaunded. And he lyfte vpp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the riuer, in the syghte of pharao, and in the syghte of hys seruauntes, and all the water that was in the riuer, turned into blud, And the fische that was in the riuer dyed, and the riuer stanke. so that the Egyp- tians coude not drynke of the water of the riuer. And ther was bloud thow out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchauntes of Egypte, did like wise with their enchauntementes, so that pharaos herte was hardened, and did not regarde them, as the Lord had saide. And pharao turned him selfe, and wente into his house: and sette not his herte there vnto. And the Egyptians digged round about the riuer for water to drinke, for they could not drynke of the water of the riuer. And it continued a weke after that the Lord had smitten the riuer.

The. viii. Chapter.

The plage of frogges. Moses prayeth for pharao. The plage of flies.

Ex. ix. vii. c.
Ex. ix. vii. b

The Lord spake vnto Moses: Go vnto pharao, and tell hym, thus sayeth the Lord: Lette my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyl smyte all thy land wth frogges. And the riuer shall scroule wth frogges, and they shall come vp, and go into thyne house and into thy chamber where thou slepest, and vpon thy bedde, and into the houses of thy seruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne Quens, and vpon thy wyntaples, whiche thou hast in doore. And the frogges shall come vpon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

The second
plage.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sape vnto Aaron: stretche forth thyne hande wth thy rodde over the streames, ryuers and poudes. And bringe vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande over the water of Egypte, and frogges came vp, and covered the lande of Egypte. And the sorcerers dyd lyke wyse with their sorcerye, and the frogges came vp, vpon the land of Egypte.

Then pharao called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: praye ye vnto the Lord that he maye take away the frogges from me and from my people, and I wyl lette the people go, that they maye doo sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto pharao: Appoynte thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall praye for the, and thy seruauntes, and thy people, too dryue away the frogges from the, and thy house, so that they shal remayne but in the riuer onelye. And he sayde, to morowe. And he sayde: euen as thou hast sayde that thou mayest knowe that ther is none lyke vnto the lord oure God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and from thine houses, and from thy seruauntes, and from thy people, and

And Moses and Aaron wente out from pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lord vpon the appoyntmente of frogges, whiche he hadde made vnto pharao. And the Lord dyd accordyng to the sayinge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houses, courtes and fieldes. And they gathered them together vpon heapes, so that the lande stanke of them.

But when pharao sawe that he hadde celle geuen him, he hardened his heart, and herkened not vnto them, as the Lord had sayde. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: sape vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde, and smyte the duste of the lande, that it maye tourne to lyse, in all the lande of Egypte. And they did so. And Aaron stretched out his hande wth his rodde, and smote the duste of the earth, and it turned to lyse bothe in man and beast, so that all the dust of the lande, turned to lyse, thow out at the lande of Egypte.

And the enchauntes assayed lyke wyse with their enchauntementes, too bringe forth lyse, but they coude not. And the lyse were bothe vpon man and beast. Then said the enchauntes vnto pharao. It is þ sin- ger of God. Neuerthelater pharaos herte was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lord had sayde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: rise vp earlye in the mornynge, and stand before pharao, for he wyl come vnto the water: and sape vnto him thus sayth the Lord: let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people go, beholde, I wyl sende all manner flies, bothe vpon the, thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into thy houses. And the houses of the Egyptians shall be ful of flies, and the grounde whereon they are. But I will seporate the same day, the land of Goshan wher my people are, so that there shall no flies be there: that thou mayst knowe, that I am þ lord vpon the earth. And I wil put a deuision betwene my people and thine. And euen to morowe shal this miracle be done.

And the Lord dyd accordynglye: and there came noysome flies into the house of pharao and into hys seruauntes houses, and into all the land of Egypte: so that the land was marred with flies. Then pharao sente for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the land. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we shoulde so offer vnto the Lord oure God, that whiche is an abhominacion vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abhominacion vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, and shal they not stone vs? we wil therfore go in. dapes iourneye into the wilderness, and sacrifice vnto the Lord oure God as he hath commaunded vs.

And pharao sayde: I wyl lette you go that that pe may sacrifice to the Lord your God in the wilderness: onelpy goo not farre awaye, and se that pe pray for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I wyl go out from the and praye vnto the Lord, and the flies shal departe frome Pharao, and frome his seruantes and frome hys people, to morowe. But let Pharao from henceforth desceiue no more, that he wil not let the people goo to sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And Moses went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord dyd as Moses had said, and toke awaye flies from Pharao, and from his seruantes, and from his people, so that they remained, not one. But for all that Pharao hardened his hearte even then also, and would not let the people go.

The. ix. Chapter.

The moyn of beastes. The plage of botches and sores. The horrible hayl, thondre and lightninge.

And the Lord saide to Moses, go to Pharao and tel him, thus saye the Lord God of the Egiptians: let my people go that they may serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, but wilt holde them still, beholde, the hande of the Lord shal be vpon thy cattell whiche thou haste in the felde, vpon hoises, asses, camels, oxen, and shepe, with a myghte greate mortayne. But the Lord shal make a deuision betwene the beastes of the Israelites and the beastes of the Egiptians: so that there shal nothyng be of all that belong to the chyldren of Israel. And the Lord appoynted a time, saying: to morowe the Lord shal do this thynge in the lande.

And the Lord dyd the thynge on the morowe, and all the cattell of Egipte dyed: but of the cattell of the chyldren of Israel dyed not one. And Pharao sente to wete: but there was not one of the cattell of the Israelites deade. For withstandinge the hearte of Pharao hardened, and he wolde not let the people go. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take your handes full of ayes oute of the foinace, and lette Moses spynkel it vnto the ayre, in the sighte of Pharao, and it shal turne to dust in all the lande of Egipte, and shal make swellying sores wth blaines, both on man and beaste, in all the lande of Egipte. And they tooke ayes oute of the foinace, and stood before Pharao, and Moses spynkled it vnto the ayre: And there brake out sores wth blaines, bothe in manne and beaste, so that the forcerers could not stand before Moses, for there wer botches vpon the enchaunters and vpon all the Egiptians. But the Lord hardened the herte of Pharao, that he hekened not vnto the, as the Lord had shewed Moses.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses, clype vnto the Lord in the mornynge, and stande before Pharao, and tell hym, thus saye the Lord God of the Egiptians: Let my people go, that they maye serue me, or elsse I wyl at thys time send al my plagues vpon thine hearte, and vpon thy seruantes, and on thy people, that thou mayest knowe that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe wyl I stretche oute my hande, and wyl smyte the, and thy people wth pestilence: so that thou shalte perishe from the earth. Yet in verpe deede for thys cause haue I turned the vnto, for to shewe my power in the, and to declare my name thowoute all the worlde.

If it be so that thou stoppest my people that thou wylt not let them go: beholde, to morowe thys tyme I wyl sende downe a myghte greate hable: euen such one as was not in Egipte sythens it was founded, vnto thys tyme. Sende therefore and fet home thy beastes, and al that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the manne and beastes whiche are founde in the felde, and not broughte home, shal the hable fall, and they shal dye. And as maner as feared the worde of the Lord, among the seruantes of Pharao made their seruantes, and they beastes fle to house: and they that regarded not the worde of the Lord, lete their seruantes and beastes in the felde.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: stretche forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that they maye be hable in all the lande of Egipte: vpon manne and beaste, and vpon all the herbes of the felde of Egipte. And Moses stretched oute hys rodde vnto heauen, and the Lord thondred and habled, so that the fyre ran a long vpon the ground. And the Lord so habled in the Lande of Egipte, that there was hable and fyre mingled with the hable, so greuous that there was none such in all the Lande of Egipte, sythens people inhabited it. And the hable smote in the lande of Egipte, al that was in the felde bothe man and beaste. And the hable smote all the herbes of the felde, and brake al the trees of the felde: onelpy in the Lande of Golan where the chyldren of Israel were, was there no hable. And Pharao sent and called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: I haue nowe synned, the Lord is right wylle, and I and my people are wylked. Praye pe vnto the Lord, that the thondre of God and hable may cease, and I wil lette you go, and pe shal take no longer. And Moses sayde vnto hym: As one as I am oute of the ctyte, I wyl spiede abroad my handes vnto the Lord and the thondre shal cease, neyther shal there be anye more hable: that thou mayest knowe howe that the earth is the Lordes. But I know that thou and thy seruantes yet feare not the Lord God. The flaxe and the barelpe were smytten, for the barlpe was not vnto, the flaxe was broulled: but where and the tye wer not smytten, for they wer late sown.

And Moses wente oute of the cite from Pharao, and spredde abroad hys handes vnto the Lord, and the thundre and hable

Exod. xiii. i. The Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go vnto pharao: neuertheles * I haue hardened hys hearte, and the hertes of hys seruantes, that I myghte shewe these my signes amonge them, and that thou tel in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sons sonne, the balkaunte actes whiche I haue done in Egypte, and the mpracles whych I haue shewed amonge them: that pe may knowe that I am the Lorde. him self about, and went out from Isharao

And pharaos seruauntes sayde vnto him: Howe longe shall we be thus entreated? Let the men goe that they maye serue the Lord theyr God: wylte thou not yet inowe that Egypte is descoied? And then Moses and Aaron were broughte agayne vnto pharaos, and he saide vnto them: Wo & serue þ Lord your God, but who are they that shall go: And Moses answered. we wil go wyth pong pea and olde, and with oure sonnes and wyth our doughters, and with our shepe & oxen must we go. For we must holde a feaste vnto the Lord.

And he said vnto them: shal it be so? The Lord be wpth you, shulde I let you go, and your children also? Take hede, for ye haue some mischefe in hand. Say not so, but go pe that ar men and serue the Lord, for that was your despie. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presence.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: Stretch the eyght out thyne hande ouer the Lande of Egypt for greeshoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egypte and eat all the herbes of the lande, and al that the haple lefte vn fouched. And Moyses stretched forth his rod ouer the lande of Egypte, and the Loorde broughte an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daie and all that nyghte. And in the mornynge the east wynde brought the grethoppers, and the grethoppers wente byppe ouer all the lande of Egypte and lyghted in all quarters of Egypte very greuously, so that before them were there no such grethoppers, neither after them shall be. And they couered all the earth, so that the land was darcke therewith. And they ate all the herbes of the land, and al the frutes of the trees which the hapi had left, so that there was no grene thing left in þe trees & herbes off the felde through al the land of Egypt.

Then Pharaos called for Moses and Aaron in haste and sayde: I haue sinned against the Lorde your God, and against you. Forgiue me yet my sinne onely this once, and praye vnto the Lorde your God, that he maye take awaye frome me this death onely. And he wente out from Pharaos, and prayed vnto the Lord, and the Lord turned the wynde into a myghty stronge west wynde, and it toke awaye the greshopers and cast them into the red sea: so that there was not one Greshopper in all the coastes of Egypte. But the Lorde hardened Pharaos hert, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: Stretch oute thy hande vnto heauen, and let there be darckenesse vpon the lande of Egypte, euen that they maie grope the darcknesse. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darknes vpon the land of Egypte iii. daies longe, so that no man saw an other, neyther rose vp from the place wher he was by the space of iii. daies, but al the children of Isræll had lighthe where they dwelled.

Then Pharao called for Moses and said: Go and serue the Lorde, onelye lette your sheepe and your oxen abyde, but lette your children go wpth you. And Moses answered: thou muste giue vs also offeryngs for to sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God, our cattell theretore shall go with vs, and ther shal not one hofe be left behinde, for there of must we take to serue the Lord our God Moreouer we cannot know wherewith we shal serue the Lord, til we come thither.

But the Lord hardened pharaos hert, so that he wold not let them go And pharaos said vnto him: get the from me & take hede

For whensoever thou comest in my sight thou shalt dye And Moses saide: Let it be

The. xii. Chapter.

The pascouer is eaten. The sweete breade. They muste teache theyr chyldren what the pascouer signifieth. The destruction of the first begotten in Egypt. The robbery of the Egyptians. The going out of the Israelites.

And the Lord spake too Moses and Aaron in the lande of Egypte, sayinge: This moneth shall be your chefe moneth, euen of the spylle moneth of the yere shall it be vnto you. Speke ye vnto al the felowship of Israel, sayinge that they take the tenth dape of this moneth to euerie household a shepe. If the household be to few for a shepe, the let him and his neighbour that is nerte vnto his house take accordynge to the nombre of the soules, and counte vnto a shepe accordynge too euerie mans eatynge. A shepe wpythoute spot, and a male of one yere shall it be, and oute of the flocke of the Lambes and the goates shall ye take it.

And ye shall kepe hym in til the xiiii. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyl hym aboute euen. And they shall take of the bloude, and strike it on the two syde postes, and on the upper dore post of the houses, wherein theye ate hym. And they shall eat the flesh the same nyght, rost with fyre and with unleuended breade, and wpyth soure. Besides they shall eat it. Se that ye eat not therof rawe, nor soden in water, but rost wpyth fyre: bothe the head, seate, and purytence together. And se that ye let nothynge of it remayne vnto the morninge, if oughte remaine burne it wpyth fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eat it: wpyth your loynes girded, and shooes on your fete, and poure staues in your handes. And ye shall eat it in haste. for it is the Lordes * passouer, for I wpll go aboute in the lande of Egypte this same nyghte, and wpll smyte all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, bothe of man and beast, and vpon all the boddes of Egypte wpll I the Lord do execution. And the bloude shall be vnto you a token vpon the houses wherein ye are: for wher I se the bloud, I wpll passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroy you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this dape shall be vnto you a remembrance, and ye shall kepe it holpe vnto the Lord: euen throughout your generacions after you shall ye kepe it holpe dape, that it be a custome for euer. Seven dapes shall ye eat unleuended breade, soo that euen the first dape ye shall put awaye leuen oute of your houses. For whosoever eateth leuended breade from the first dape vntil the seventh dape ye shall put awaye leuen out of Israel. * The first dape shall be a holp feast vnto you, and the vii. also. There shall be no manner of worke done in them, save about that only which euery man muste eat, that onelpe maye ye do. And se that ye kepe you to unleuended breade. For vpon that same dape I wpll bringe your armies out of the lande of Egypte therefore ye shall obserue this dape, and all your chyldren after you, that it be a custome for euer. The spylle moneth and the xiiii. dape of the moneth at euen, ye shall eat sweate breade vnto the xvi. dape of the moneth at euen agayne. Seven dapes se that there be no leuended breade founde in your houses. For whosoever eateth leuended breade, that soule shall be rotd oute from the multitude of Israel: whether he bee a straunger, or borne in the Lande. Therefore see that ye eat not leuended bread, but in al your habitacions eat sweate breade.

And Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Lofe oute and take to euery household a shepe and kylle passouer. And take a bunch of isope, and dyp it in the bloude that is in the bace, and strike it vpon the upper poste, and on the two syde postes, and see that none of you go oute at the dore of his house vntil the morninge. chylidren of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and laued our houses.

Then the people bowed them selues and worshipped. And the chylidren of Israel wente and did as the Lorde had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

And at midnyght the Lorde smote al the first borne in the lande of Egypt, from the first borne of pharaon that sat on his seat vnto the first borne of the captiue that was in pylson, and al the first born of cattell. When pharaon arose the same nyghte and al the seruantes and al the Egypoute Egypte, for there was no house wher there was not one deade.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyghte sayinge: Rise vp, and gette you hence from my people, bothe ye and also the chylidren of Israel, and go and serue pharaon as ye haue said. And take your shepe and your oxen with you as ye haue said, and depart, and blesse me also. And the Egyptians were ferece vpon the people, and made haste to sende them out of the land, for they sayde: we be al deade men. And the people toke the dough before it was soure whiche they had in store, and bounde it in clothes, and put it vpon theyr shoulders.
And the chylidren of Israel dyd accordyng to the sayinge of Moses: and they bowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and jewels of golde, and raymente. And the Lorde gat the people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians, and so they bowed and robbed the Egyptians.

Thus toke the chylidren of Israel theyr iourney from Rameses to Succoth. And hundred thousande men of foote, besyde chylidren. And muche common people went also with them, and shepe and oxen, and cattell exceeding much. And they baked swete cakes of the doughe whiche they brought oute of Egypte, for it was not soured, because they were thrust oute of Egypt and coude not tary, neither had they prepared any other prouision of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellinge of the chylidren of Israel which they dwelled in Eg-ypte was iii. c. and xxx. yere. And when the.iii. hundred and .xxx. yeres was expy-red, even the selfe same daye departed al the hostes of the Lorde oute of lande of Egypt. This is a nyghte to be obserued to the Lorde, because he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyghte of the Lorde, to be kepte of al the chylidren of Israel and of theyr generacions after theyr.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: this is the maner of passeouer: there shall no straunger eate thereof, but all the seruautes that are bought for mony shall ye circumsise, and then let them eate ther-of. A straunger and a hyed seruaunte shall not eate thereof. In one house shall it be eaten. Ye shall eate none of the fleshe oute at the dores: moreover see that ye breake not a bone thereof. All the multitude of the chylidren of Israel shall obserue it.

If a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyl holde passeouer vnto the Lorde, lette hym circumsise al that he males, and then let hym come and obserue it, and be taken as one that is borne in the lande. No vn-circumcised person shall eate thereof. One manner of lawe shall be vnto them that are borne in the land, and vnto the straungers that dwell among you. And al the chylidren of Israel did as the Lorde commaunded Moses & Aaron. And euen the selfe same daye did the Lorde bring the chylidren of Israel out of the land of Egypt with theyr armies.

The .xiii. Chapter.

The first begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lorde. The memorial of theyr deliuerance, whi-cher were caried through the wilderness. The bones of Joseph. The pylle of the cloud.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: Sanctify vnto me all the first borne that open all manner maner creatures amonge the chylidren of Israel, as wel of men as of beastes, for they are myne. And Moses sayde vnto the people, thinke on this daye in whiche ye came out of Egypt and out of the house of bondage: for with a myghtye hande the Lorde broughte you oute from thence. Se therefore, that ye eat no leuened bread. This daye come ye out of Egypt in the moneth of Abib.

When the Lorde hath brought the into moorites, Hittites and Jebusites, whiche he swaie vnto thy fathers that he wold geue thee a lande wherein mylke and honye floweth, then se that thou kepesthis cere-monie in this same moneth. Seven dayes thou shalt eate swete breade: and the eighth daye shall be feastfull vnto the Lorde.

Therefore thou shalt eate swete breade, vnto the eighth daye, and se that there be no leuened bread sene nor yet leue among you in al your quarters.

And thou shalt shew thy sonne at that tyme sayinge: this is done, because of that whiche the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came oute of Egypte. Therefore it shall be a signe vnto thee vpon thine hand, and as a remembraunce betwene thine eyes, that the Lorde lawe maye be in thy mouth. For with a strong hande the Lorde brought the out of Eg-of the Canaanites, as he hath sworn vnto the and to thy fathers, and hath giuen it thee, then thou shalt appoynte vnto þe Lord all that openeth the matryce, all the firste borne amonge the beastes whiche thou hast if they be males. And al the firste borne of the asses thou shalt redeme with a sheepe: if thou redeme him not, then breake his necke. But all the firste borne amonge thy children shalt thou bryng out.

And when thy sonne aske the in tyme to come, sayinge: what is this? thou shalt saye vnto him: with a mighty hande the Lord broughte vs out of Egypte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharaos was lothe to let vs go, the Lord slew all the first borne in the land of Egypt: as well the first borne of manne as of beastes. And therfore I sacrifice vnto the Lord all the males that open the matryce, but all the first borne of my children I muste redeme. And this shal be as a token in thine hande, and as a tpyngge hangyd vpon thine eies because the Lord broughte vs out of Egypte with a mighty hande.

When Pharaos had let the people goo, God carped the north to the land of the Philistines. though it were a nic way, thin kynge that the people myght haue * repente when they se warre, and so tume agayne to Egypte: therefore God led them aboute thowme the wyldernesse, that boryeth on the redde sea. The chyldren of Israel mente barned out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with hym: for he made the chyldren of Israel sweate, sayinge: God myll surely vset you, take my bones therefore away hence wth you. And they toke thei journey from Succoth, and pitched they tentes in Etham in the edge of the wyldernesse. And the Lord went before them by day in a pyllet of a cloud, to leade them the way: and by nyghte in a pyllet of fyre to geue them lycht, that they myght go both by day and nyghte. And the pyllet of the cloude neuer departed by day, nor the pyllet of fyre by nyght out of þe peoples syght.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Pharaos here is hardened, & he followeth the Israelites with all his hoste, and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go thowgh the red sea.

Then the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: byd the chyldren of Israel that they tume and pitch their tentes before the entering of Egypte: but wene Egypte and the sea toward Baalzephon: euen before that shal pe pitch vpon the sea. For Pharaos myll saye of the chyldren of Israel: they are inuegled in the lande, the wyldernesse hath shutte them in. And I will harden his herte, that he shall folowe after them, to thynente I may gette me honoure vpon Pharaos and vpon al his host, that the Egypcyans maye knowe that I am the Lord. And they dyd euen so.

And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypte that the people fled, then Pharaos hert & al his seruants turned agaynst the people & sayd: why haue we this done, þe we haue let Israel go out of our serupce? And he made ready his charrettes and toke his people with him, & toke .vi. hundred chosen charrettes and al the charrettes of Egypte, and capteyns vpon all his people. For the Lord hardened the herte of Pharao king of Egypt, that he followed after þe chyldren of Israel. whiche neuer thelesse wente out of thowme an hys hand, and þe Egypcyans followed after them, and ouertooke them wher they pitched by the sea, with all the hoises and charrettes of Pharaos and with his horsemen and his host: fall by the enterynge of Biton before Baall zephon. And Pharaos drewe nye, and when þe chyldren of Israel lyft vp they eyes, and saw that the Egypcyans folowed after them, they were sore asfapde, and cryed oute vnto the Lord.

Then sayde they vnto Moses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste bryng vs awaye to dye in the wyldernesse: wherfore hast thou serued vs thus to carpe vs out of Egypte? Dyd not we tel the this in Egypte saying, let vs be in rest and serue the Egypciā? For it had ben better for vs to haue serued þe Egypciā, then to die in þe wyldernesse. And Moses sayde to the people: feare not but stand styll & beholde howe the Lord shal saue you this day: for the Egypciā whome ye se this daye, ye shall neuer se more for euer. The Lord shall fycht for you, and ye shall be styll.

The Lord sayd vnto Moses: Wherfore criest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israel to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretch forth thy hande ouer the sea, and byurde it a sondre, that the chyldren of Israel maye goo on drye grounde, thowme the myddest thereof. And beholde, I will harden the hertes of the Egypciā that they maye folowe you. And I will get me honoure vpon Pharaos and vpon all his host, vpon his charrettes, & vpon his horsemen. And the Egypciā shal knowe þe I am the lord whē I haue gotte me honoure vpon Pharaos, vpon his charrettes, and vpon his horsemen.

And the sungen of God whych went before the host of Israel, remoued, & tume behind the. And the cloude pyllet that was before them, remoued & stode behind them & went betwene the host of the Egypciā & the host of Israel. It was a darcke cloude & gaue lycht by nyght: so that all the night long the one could not come at the other.

When Moses stretched forth his hand ouer the sea, the Lord carped away the sea with a strong east wynde that blew all nyght, and made the sea drye land, and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of

And in the mornynge watche the Lord looked vnto the hooke of the Egyptians oute of the fierpe & cloudy pyller, and troubled theyr hooke, and smote of theyr charette wheles, and cast them down to the ground. Then sayde the Egyptians: Lette vs flee from Israell, for the Lord fygtheth for them agaynste vs. Then sayde the Lord vnto Moses: Stretche forth thy hande ouer the sea, that the water maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon theyr charettes and horsmen.

Then stretched forth Moses his hande ouer the sea, and it came agayne to his course earlye in the mornynge, and the Egyptians fledde agayne. l. m. The

The Israelites come into the desert of Sin.
It raineth quailles & Manna. They grudge.

Ad as they came to Elim, where were xii. welles of water, and .lxx. date trees, and they pitched there by the water. And they took their journey from Elim, and all the hole company of the children of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, where the spirit bytwene Elim and Sinai, the .xv. daye of the .ii. moneth after that they were come oute of the lande of Egypte. And the hole multitude of the chylidren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in the wilderness, and sayed vnto them: woulde God wee had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypte, when we sate by the flesch pottes, and ate breade out belies ful: for ye haue brought vs out into this wilderness to kill this hole multitude for hunger.

Then said the Lorde to Moses: beholde I wyl rayne bread from heauen downe to you, and let the people go out, and gather day by day that I may proue the whether they wyl walke in my lawe or no. The .vi. day let them prepare that which they wil byngne in, and let it be as muche as they gather dayly. And Moses and Aaron sayed vnto all the chylidren of Israel: at euen ye shal knowe that it is the Lorde, whiche broughte you out of the land of Egypt, and in the mornynge ye shall see the glory of the Lorde, because he hath herd your grudgynge agaynst the Lorde: for what are we that ye should murmure agaynst vs?
And moreover Moses said. At euen the Lorde wyl geue you flesh to eat, and in the mornyng breade ynough, because the Lorde hath heard your mutmure which ye mur-mure agaynst hym: for what are we? your moutmynge is not agaynst vs, but a-gaynst the Lorde.

And Moses said to Aaron: say to all the companye of the chylidren of Israel, come forth before the Lorde, for he hath heard your grudgynge. And while Aaron spake vnto the hole multitude of the chylidren of Israel, they looked toward the wildernesse: and beholde the glory of the Lorde appeared in a cloude. And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: I haue herd the murmynge of the chylidren of Israel, tel the therfore and saye that at euen they shall eate flesh, and in the mornynge they shall be fylled wth breade, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God. And at euen the quailles came and couered the ground where they lay: And in the morning the laye round about the host. * And when the dew was fallen, behold it lay vpon the ground as small and rounde as thin nathelesse fast on the ground. When the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another: what is this? For they wist not what it was. And Moses sayde: this is the bread which the Lorde hath geuen you to eat. This is the byngne which the Lorde hath commaunded that ye gather euery man ynough for hym to eat: a gomer full for a man according to the number of you, and gather euery man for them whiche are in his tence.

And the chylidren of Israel dyd so, and gathered some more, some lesse, and dyd more it wth a gomer. * And to hym that gathered much was no superfluite, and to hym that hadde gathered lytle, was no lacke, but euery man had gathered sufficiente for his eatynge. And Moses sayed to them: se that no man let ought remayne of it tyll the mornynge. For wthstandynge they obeyed not Moses: but some of them left of it tyll mornynge, and it was full of wormes and ranke, and Moses was angrye wth them.

And they gathered it all mornynge: e-uery man as muche as sufficed for his eat-ynge, for as soone as the heate of the sunne came it mould. And the .vi. day they gathered twyse so muche bread, that is to wyte, two gomets for one man, and the rulers of the multitude came and told Moses. And he said vnto them, this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayd: to morrow is the Sabothe of the holy rest of the Lorde, bake that ye wyl bake, and seeth that ye wyl seeth, and that remayneth laye vp for you: kepe it tyll the mornynge. And they layde it vp till the mornynge as Moses had, & it stode not, neither was there any wormes therein. And Moses said: eate this to daye, for to daye it is the Lordes Saboth: to daye ye shall fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes ye shall gather, for the .vii. is the Saboth: in it shall be none.

For wthstandynge there went oute of the people in the .vii. daye to gather, but they founde none. Then the Lorde sayed to Moses: howe longe shall it be ere ye wyl keepe my commaundemets and lawes? * Se, because the Lorde hath giuen you a Saboth, therfore he grueth you the .vi. daye bread for two dayes. Abode therfore euery man at home, and let no man go out of his place the .vii. daye. And the people rested the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it manna. * And it was lyke vnto Coriander seed, and whyte, and the taste of it was like vnto wafers made wth honny.

Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaunded, spyll a Gomer of it that it maye be kept for your chylidren after you, & they maye see the bread wher wth he fed you in wil-dernes, when he had broughte you out of the land of Egypt. And Moses sayed vnto Aaron: take a cruze, and put a Gomer ful of manna therein, & lay it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for your chylidren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron layed it vp before the testimony ther to be kept the wilderness of Synne at the comin Raphidym: where was no water for the people to drinke who chode wth Moses and sayd: Giue vs water to drinke. Moses sayde vnto them: Why chyd ye wth me, and wherefore do ye tempte the Lorde? So the people thirsted for water, and murmu-

Jerhios counsel is receyued of Moses.

Jerhio the priest of Madyan Moses sathet in lawe herde of all that God had done to Moses and Israel bys people, that the Lorde had broughte Israel forth of Egypt. And he toke Jethro a Moses wife after he was sent backe. her two sonnes, of whiche the one was called Gerson, for he sayde: I haue ben an alien in a strange lande. And the other was called Eliezer, for the god of my father was myne helpe, and deliuered me from the swerde of Pharao. So Jerhio Moses father in lawe came wth his two sonnes and bys wife to Moses in the wilderness: where he had pyeched his tent by the mount of God. And he sent worde to Moses: I thy father in lawe Jerhio am come to the, and thy wyfe also, and her two sonnes wth her. And Moses went forth to mete his father in lawe, and bowed himselfe and kyssed hym, and they saluted eche other and came into the tent.

I knowe that the Lorde is greater then al

And it chanced on the morowe that Mostode about Moses from morninge til eue.

When bys father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayd: What is this that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou thy selfe, and lettist al the people stand

Moses said vnto his father in lawe, because the people came vnto me to seeke counsel of God. For when they haue a matter, they come to me, and I must iudge betwene eue-

The xix. Chapter.

The children of Israel come to the mounte Synay. The people of God are holy and aroyal pfecthod. He that toucheth the hyll dyeth. God appeareth to Moses on the mount in thondre and lychtenyng.

The thirde moneth after the thyliden of Israel were gone out of Egypte, the same day they came into the wyld-ernes of Synay. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the deserte of Synay, and had pitched theyr testes in the wyldernes. And then Israel picched before the mount. And Moses wente vp to God, And the Lord called to hym oue of the mountayne, sayinge: thus say to the house of Jacob, and tel the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd to the Egi-ptians, and howe I toke you vp vpon egles wynges, and haue broughte you vnto my selfe. Now therfore if ye wil heare my voice and kepe myne appoyntemente, ye shall be myne owne aboute all nacyns, for all the are the wordes whych thou shalt say vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Moses came and called for the elwordes of the people vnto the Lord. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morrowe, and let them washe theyr clothes, that they may be redye agaynst the thyrd daye. For the thyrd daye the Lord will come downe in the sygh of all the people vpon mounte Synai. And sette markes round aboute the people, and saye: beware that ye go not vp into the mount, and that ye touche not the borders of it, for whosoeuer toucheth the mounte, shall surely dye.

Where shall not an hand touch it, but that he shall either be stoned or els shot thorow: whether it be beaſt or man, it shall not lue: when the hoine bloweth, then let the come vp into the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mounte to the people, and sanctified them, & they washed theyr clothes. And he sayd vnto the people. be redye agaynst the thyrd daye, & se that ye come not at your wyues. And the thyrd day in the mornynge ther was thynder, and lychtenyng, and a thicke cloude vpon the mount, and the voyce of the hoine was exceedyng lowde, and all the people that was in the host was afrayed. And Moses brought the people out of the tres to mete wyth God, and they stode vnder the hyll.

And mounte Synai was altogether on a smoke: because the Lord descended down vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as it hat bene the smoke of a hyll, and all the mount was exceedyng feareful.
And the voyce of the hoine blew and war-ed lowder, and lowder. Moses spake, and God answered hym and that wyth a voyce.
And the Lord came downe vpon mounte Synai, euen in the top of the hyll, and called Moses vp into the top of the hyll. And Moses wente vp.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Go downe and charge the people, that they please not vp vnto the Lord to se hym, least so many of them pearyſhe. And let the priestes also whych come to the Lords presence, sanctify them selues, least the Lord smite them.
Then Moses layde vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp into the mount Synai, for I chargede vs, sayinge: set markes a-boute the hyll, and sanctifye it. And the Lord sayd vnto hym: away, and get the doone, and come vp agayne both thou and Aaron wyth the. But let not the priestes and the people presume to come vp vnto the Lord, least he smyte the. And Moses wente downe vnto the people, and tolde them.

Wpures lawes and polypque ordynances.

Thou shalt not receiue a vaine tale, nei ther shalt put thine hand with þ wic

Thou shalt not folow a multitude to do e uill: neither answere in a matter of pier, lest thou willing to folow manie, turne asyde bring them to him again. If thou se thine enemies asse synke vnder his burthe, thou shalt not passe by & let him alone: but shalt helpe him to lifte him vp agayne.

Thou shalt not hynde the righte of the Kepe the farre from a false matter, and the innocent and righuous: se thou slep not, for I wil not iustifie þ wicked. Thou shalt take no gyftes, for gyftes blind the iudicet, and peruerthe the wordes of the righuous.

Thou shalt not oppresse a straunger, for I know the heart of a straunger, because pe were straungers in Egypt. Sixe peres thou shalt sowe thy land, and gather in the frui tes therof: And the seventh pere thou shalt let it rest and lye still, that the poore of thy people may eate, and what they leaue, the beastes of the felde shall eate: In lyke ma ner thou shalt do with thy vynesarde and thyne olyue trees.

Sixe dayes thou shalt do thy worke, and the seventh day thou shalt kepe holy daye, that thyne ore and thyne asse may rest, and the sonne of thy mayde, and the straunger maye be refreshed. And in all thinges that I haue sayd vnto you, be circumspect. And pe shall not sweare by the names of strange Gods, neither let any man heare them out of your mouthes.

Thre feastes thou shalt holde vnto me in a pere. * Thou shalt kepe the feast of swete bread, that thou eat vnkauend bread seven dayes longe, as I commaunded the in the for in that moneth thou camest oute of E the feast of ingathering in the ende of the bours out of the fildes.

Thre times in a pere shall al thy men chil

* Thou shalt not offer the bloude of my sa

Behold I send myne aungel before the,

of him, and heare his voice, and angre him not, for he will not spare poure mysdedes, pea & my name is in him. But if thou shalt hearken vnto hys voyce, and kepe al that I shall tell the, then I wyl be an ennemy vn to thyne ennemies, and an aduersary vn to thyne aduersaries. When myne aungel goeth before the, and hath brought the vn to the Amontes, Bethites, Pherezites, Ca nantes, Deuptes, and Jebusites, and I shall haue destroyed them, se thou worship not they: Gods, neither serue them, ney ther do after the works of them, but ouer throwe them, and breake downe the places of them. And se that pe serue the Lorde your God, and he shall blesse thy breade, and thy from you.

Moreover ther shall be no woman child lesse or vnfruitful in thy land, and the num whycher thou shalt go. And I will make al thyne ennemies turne their backs vnto the,

and I will send * hornets before the, & they shall dyspue out the Hewites, the Cananites, and the Bethites before the. I wil not cast them out in one peare, lest the lande growe to a wyldernesse, and the beastes of the fild multiply vpon the. But by litle and litle I wyl dyspue them out before the, tyl thou be increased, that thou mayest ennerpte the

The xxviii. Chapter.

Aarons apparell, and his sonnes.

AND take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sons with him, forth of the childre of Israel, that he may minister vnto me, both Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holpe raiment for Aaron thy brother, bothe honourable and glorious. Moreover speke vnto al that are and put them in the two edges of the breastlap even in the borders thereof toward the insyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynst it. And yet two other rynges of golde thou shalt make, and put them on the two spades of the Ephod, beneth ouer agaynst the breastlap, alowe whete the spades are ioynted together vpon the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And they shall bynde the breastlap by hys rynges, vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wpth a lace of Jacincte, that it may be close vnto the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod, that the breastlap be not losed from the Ephod.

And Aaron shall beate the names of the chyldren of Israell, in the breastlap of iudgemente, vpon his herte, when he goeth in to the holy place, for a remembraunce, before the lord alwaye. And thou shalt put in the breastlap of iudgemente * Clippin and Chumme that they be vpon Aarons herte, when he goeth in before the lord, and Aaron shall beate the ensample of þe chyldre of Israell vpon his herte, before the lord alwaye.

And thou shalt make the tunicle vnto the Ephod, al together of Jacincte. And there shall be an hole for the head, in the middes of it, and let there be a bond of wouen worke rounde about the coler of it, (as it were the coler of a partlet) þe it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates of Jacinct, of scarlet, of purple, round aboute the hem, & belles of golde betwene them round about: that they be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, round aboute vpon the hem of the tunicle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him when he ministereth, that the sound may be heard, when he goeth into the holy place, before the lord, and when he cometh out, that he dye not.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and graue thereon, (as signettes are graued) the holynesse of the lord, and put it on a lace of Jacincte, and tye it vnto the mitre vpon the forefront of it, that it be vpon Aarons forehead: that Aaron beate the spenne of holy thynges which the chyldre of Israell haue halowed in all their holpe gyftes. And it shall be alwayes vpon Aarons forehead, þe they may be accepted before the lord. And thou shalt make an albe of bysse, and thou shalt make a mitre of bysse, and a gyrdle of needle worke.

And thou shalt make for Aarons sons albe cotes, gyrdels and bonettes honourable & glorious, & thou shalt put the vpon Aarons brother, and on hys sons with him and thou shalt annoint them, and splay their hands, & consecrate them that they may minister vnto me. And thou shalt make them linen byches to couer their prauities: from the loynes vnto the thies that they reach. And there shall be vpon Aaron and hys sons, whet they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or whet they go vnto þe altar to minister in holines, that they beate no spenne, and so die. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and hys seed after him.

The xxix. Chapter.

The consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

This is the thyng that thou shalt do vnto the when thou halowedest them to be my prestes. Take one oxe and two rammes that are without blemish, and unleuended bred, & cakes of swete bred tempered with oyle, and wafers of swete bred, annointed with oyle (of wheten flour shalt thou make them) and put the in a maunde and bynge them in the maunde wpth the oxe, and the two rammes.

And bynge Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & wash them wpth water, and take the garments, & put vpon Aaron the scaple cote & the tunicle of the Ephod, & the Ephod, and the breastlap: and gyrdle the to him, with the bordered gyrdle of the Ephod. And put the mitre vpon his head, & put the holy crown vpon the mitre. Then take the annointing oyle, and powre it vpon his head & annointe him. And bynge hys sons, and put albes vpon them, and gyrdle them with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as hys sons. And put the bonettes on them: that the prestes offyce may be theirs for a perpetual lawe.

And splay the hands of Aaron & of hys sonnes, & bynge the oxe before the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let Aaron and hys sonnes put their hands vpon his head, and kill him before the lord in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And take of the blood of þe oxe & put it vpon the hornes of the altar wpth thyngar and powre all the bloude vpon the botome of the altar, and take al the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the kyll that is on the lyuer, and the two kyndres with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon the altar: But the fleshe of the oxe & hys skyn and hys donge shalt thou burne with fyre wpthout the host, for it is a syn offering.

Then take one of the rammes, & let Aaron and hys sonnes put the thyr hands vpon the head of the ram, & cause him to be slayn and take of his blood, & splay it rounde aboute vpon the altar, & cut the rammes peeces, and wash the inwardes of him and hys legges, and put them vnto the peeces, and vnto hys head, and burne the hole ram vpon the altar. For it is a burnt offering to the lord and a swete sauour of the lordes sacrifice.

And take the other ram, and let Aaron & hys sons put their handes vpon his head, & let him thil be killed. And take of his blood and put it vpon the top of the right eare of Aaron and of hys sons, & vpon the thombe of the right handes, and vpon the great to of their right fete, and splay þe blood vpon the altar round about.

Then take of the blood, that is vpon the altar, and of the annointing oyle, & splay

Del it vpon Aaron, and his bestiments, and vpon his sonnes, and vpon their garments also. Then is he and his clothes holy, and his sonnes, and their clothes holy also.

Then take the fat of the ramme, and his rompe, and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the kail of the luer, and the two kidneys, and the fatte that is vpon them, and the right shoulder (for that ram is a full offering) and a spinnell of bread, & a cake of opled bread, and a wafer out of the basket of swete bread that is before the lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aaron, and on the handes of his sonnes: and waue the in and out a waue offering vnto the lord. Then take it from of their handes, & burne it vpon the altar: euen vpon the burnt offering, to be a sauoure of sweetnesse before the lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the lorde.

When take the best of the ram that is Aarons full offering, and shalt sanctifie it an offering before the lorde, and let that be the part. And sanctifie the breste of the waue offering, and the shoulder of the heue offering, which is the full offering of Aaron, and of his sonnes. And it shall be Aarons and his sonnes due for euer, of the children of Israel, for it is an heue offering. And the heue offering shall be the Lords due of the children of Israel: euen of the sacrifice of their peace offerings, which they haue vnto the lorde. And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his sonnes after him, to anoint them therein, and to fill their hands therein. And that sonne that is priest in his steede after him, shall put them on seven daies: that he goe into the tabernacle of witness, to minister in the holy place.

When take the ram that is the full offering, and set his flesh in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall eat the flesh of him, & the bread that is in the basket: eue in the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And they shall eat them, because the attonement was made therewith to fill their hands, & to sanctifie them: but a stranger shall not eat thereof, because they are holy.

Asought of the flesh of the full offerings, or of the bread remain vnto the morning, thou shalt burne it with fire: for it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And se thou doe vnto Aaron & his sonnes, euen so in all things as I haue commaunded thee: that thou fill their hands seven daies, and offer euery day an oxe for a syn offering to reconcile with. And thou shalt hallow the altar, when thou reconcilest it, and shalt anoint it, to sanctifie it. Seven daies thou shalt reconcile the altar, and sanctifie it, that it maye be an altar most holpe: so that no man may touche it but they that be consecrate.

This is that thou shalt offer vpon the altar, two lambes of one yeare olde, day by day for euer, the one thou shalt offer in the morning, & the other at eue. And vnto the one lambe take a tenth deale of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beate oile, & the fourth part of an hin of wine, for a drink offering. And the other lamb thou shalt offer at euen, and shalt do thereto accordinge to the meat offering and drinke offering in the morninge, to be an odoure of a sweet sauoure of the sacrifice of the lorde. And it shall be a conepnual burnt offering amonge you children after you, in the doore of the tabernacle of witness before the lorde, where I will mete you, to speake vnto you there. There I will mete with the children of Israel, and will be sanctified, in mine honoure. And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of witness, and the altar: and I will sanctifie also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my priestes. And moreover I will dwell amonge the children of Israel, and will be theyr God. And they shall knowe that I am the lorde theyr God, that brought them oute of the land of Egypte, to dwelle amonge them: euen I the lorde their God.

The xxx. Chapter.
The altare of incense. The hyalen laver. The anoyntment oyle.

Ad thou shalt make an altar to burne incense therein, of setim wood: a cubite longe, & a cubite broade, euen foure square shall it be, and two cubits hye: with hornes proceeding out of it, and thou shalt overlape it with fine golde, both the roffe, and the walles rounde about, and his hornes also, and shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde round about, and two golden rynges on either syde, euen vnder the crowne, to put haues therein, for to beate it withal. And thou shalt make the haues of setim woode, and couer them with golde. And thou shalt put it before the vayle, that hangeth before the arcke of witness, and before the mercy seate that is before the witness, where I will mete thee.

And Aaron shall burne thereon sweete cense euery morninge, when he dresseth the lampes: and likewise at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes, he shall burne cense perpetually before the lorde, thoroughout your generations. Ye shall putte no strange cense thereon, neether burnt sacrifice, nor meat offering, neether pour any drinke offering thereon.

And Aaron shall reconcile vpon the hornes of it, once in a yeare, with the blood of the synne offering of reconciliation: euen once in the yeare shall he reconcile it thoroughout your generations. And so is it most holy vnto the lorde.

And the lorde spake vnto moyses, saying: * When thou takest the summe of the children of Israel, and tellest them, they shall geue euery man a reconciling of his soule vnto the lorde, that there be no plague among them when thou tellest the. A And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: Behold. I have called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur, of the tpeche of Juda. And I haue spiled hym with the spirite of God, with wisdom, vnderstandyng, and knowledge euen in al maner of woik to fynd out sotie feaptes, to woike in gold, siluer, and brasse and wyth the crafte to graue stones, to set and to carue in fumber, and to woike in all maner workmanshipp. And behold, I haue givyn hym to be companion, Aholiab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the tpeche of Dan, and in the hertes of all that are wyse hearted, I haue put wysdome to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the atke of wytnes, & the metey seate that is therevpon al the ordna-Bmentes of the tabernacle, & the table wyth his ordinaunce, & the pure candelsticke with al his apparet, and the alter of incens, and the alter of burnt offerings, with al his vessels, & the lauer with his foote, and the vesselmentes to minister in, and the holy garmentes for Aaron the pny, and the garmentes of his sonnes to minister in, and the anointyng oyle, and the swete cense for the sanctuary: according to al that I haue coma-Cunded the, shal they do.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses saying: speake vnto the chyldre of Israell, and say: In any wise, se that ye kepe my Sabbath: for it shal be a signe betwene me and you, in your generacions, for to knowe, that the Lord do sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabbath therfore, that it be an holy thing vnto you. He that defileth it shalbe slayne therfore. For whosoever woiketh therein, the same soule shal be rote out from his people.

Sixte daies shal men woike, but the seventh day is the Sabbath, of the holre rest of the Lord: so that whosoever doth any woik in the Sabbath day, shal dye for it: Wherfore let the chyldren of Israell kepe the Sabbath, that they obserue it thowme out theyr generacions, that it be an appoyntment for euer. For it shalbe a signe betwene me and the chyldre of Israell for euer. For in syxte dayes the lord made heauen & earth and the seventh day he rested and was refreshed.

And when he had made an ende of com-myning with Moyses vpon the mount Sinai, he gaue him two tables of wytnes: which were of stone, and witten with the fpynger of God. The xxxii. Chapter.

A And when the people saw that it was longe of Moyses came downe of the mountayne, they gathered them selues together, and came vnto Aaron, & said vnto hym. * Arise and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moyses thy felowe that brought vs out of the land of Egypt, we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayd vnto them: plucke of the golden earynges, whych are in the eares of your wyues, your sons and of your daughters: and bring them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and brought them vnto Aaron. And he receiued them of their handes, and fashyoned it wth a grauel, and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * This is thy God O Israel, whiche broughte the oute of the lande of Egypte.

And when Aaron sawe that, he made an altare before it, and made a proclamation, sayinge: Tomorrow shall be holy daie vnto the Lord. And they rose vp in the morninge & offered burnt offerings, & brought offerings of attonement also. * And then they sat them downe to eate and drinke, & rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: * go get the downe, for thy people whiche thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once oute of the waye, whych I commaunded them: * I haue made them a calfe of molten metall, & haue worshipped it, and haue offered thereunto, and haue sayed: This is thy God thou Israel, which hath brought the oute of the lande of Egypte. And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: beholde, * I se this people & it is a stiffnecked people, & nowe therefore suffice me & my wrath maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a mighty people.

Then Moyses besought the Lord his god and sayd: O Lord, Whyp should thy wrath waxe hote vpon thy people whiche thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and with a mighty hande? * wherfore shouldest thou speake & say: For a mischefe dyd he bring them out: euen to slea them in the mountaynes, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turne fro thy ferefull wrath, and haue compassion ouer the wickednesse of thy people. Remember Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruautes, to whom thou sworest by thyne owne selfe, and saydest vnto the:

* I will multiplye your seede as the starrs of heauen, and all this land whiche I haue sayd: I will geue vnto your seede, and they shall inheret it for euer. And the Lord repented hym selfe from that euill, whiche he sayde, he wolde do vnto his people.

And Moyses turned his backe, and wente downe from the hyl, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hand: which were witten on both the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the wytyng was the wytyng of God, grauen vpon the tables. And when Josua hearde the noyse of the people as they shouted, he said vnto Moyses: ther is a noyse of warre in the hoste. And he sayed: it is not the crye of them that haue the masterye, nor of them that haue the waye: but I do heare the noyse of synngng.

And asone as he came nigh vnto the hoste and sawe the calfe and the daunsyng, his wrath waxed hote, and he caste the tables out of his hand, and brake the euen at the hyl fote. And he toke the calfe whiche they had made, and burned it with fire, & stampet it vnto powder, & strawed it in the water, & made the chylidren of Israel dryncke. And then Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: What dydsthy people vnto the, & thou hast broughte so great a synne vpon them?

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lord waxe ferefull, thou knowest the people, that they are euen set on mischefe: they sayd vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moyses thy felow, that broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte. And I sayed vnto them: Let them that haue gold, take and byngge it me: And I cast it into the fyre, and therof came out this calfe.

When Moyses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron hadde made them naked vnto their shame, when they made insurrection) he wente and stode at the gate of the hoste, and sayed: If anye man pertaine vnto the Lord, let hym come to me. And all the sons of Leui gathered themselves together, & came vnto hym. And he sayd vnto the: Thus sayth the Lord god of Israel: * But euerye man his swerde by his syde, & go in and out from gate to gate thorowout the hoste: and slea euerye man his brother, euerye man his frende, and euerye man his neighbour. And the chylidren of Leui did as Moyses had said. * And there were slaine of the people the same daye, aboute thre thousand men. Then Moyses said: spyl your handes vnto the Lord this daie, euery man vpon his sonne & vpon his brother: to bring vpon you a blessing this daie.

And on the morow, Moyses sayed vnto the people: Ye haue sinned a greafe synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lord, to wryt whether I can make an attonement for your synne.

And Moyses went agayne vnto the Lord, & sayd: Oh, thy people haue sinned a greafe synne, and haue made them a God of gold: yet forgue them their synne. I praye the: I feare not a wyprae me out of thy booke whiche thou hast witten. And the lord sayd vnto Moyses: I will put hym oute of my booke & I haue sinned agaynst me. But go & bring the people vnto the land whiche I sayed vnto the: behold, myne aungell shall go before the. & euerye the later in the daie when I byset, I will byset their synne vpon them. And the Lord plagued the people, because they

a) To wype him out of the booke, is to put hym out of the number of the chosen and to cast him cleane out from God, as Rom. ix. a (b) To byset their syn is to haue their syn in remembrance to punish it: as in Gen. ii. 16 they made the calfe wherch Aaron made.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The lord sendeth an angel before his people. The lord benyeth to go up with his people. The people lament their synne. Moses talleth with the lord, and bespeth to se his face: & is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: departe and go hence: both thou & the people, which thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt, vnto the land wherch I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, saying: vnto thy seed I will giue it. And I will sende an angell before thee, and will cast oute the Canaanites, the Amorites, the Hethytes, the Pherezites, the Iseuites, & the Jebusites: that thou mayest go into a land that floweth with milke & honny. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume you by the way. And whie the people heard this euill tidings, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses: Saye vnto the children of Israel: ye are a stiffnecked people, I must come once sodenly vpon you, & make an end of you. But now putte your goodly rayment from you, that I may wete what to do vnto you. And the children of Israel layde their goodly rayment from them euery vnder the mount Horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle & pitched it without the host a farte of from the host, & called it the tabernacle of witnesse. And all that wold aske any question of the lord, went out vnto the tabernacle of witnesse, which was without the host. And whie Moses wente oute vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in his tent doore, and looked after Moses, vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And as soon as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloude pillar descended, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked wth Moses. And when all the people saw the cloude pillar stande in the tabernacle doore, they rose vp and worshipped: euery man in his tent doore.

* To se God, or to speke to God, face to face, is to haue a mans selfe & a sure knowledge of him as in se. xxxiii. g.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses: face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his friend. And when Moses turned agayne into the host, the lad Josua his seruante the sonne of Nun departed not oute of the tabernacle. And Moses said vnto the Lord: See, thou saydest vnto me: lead this people forth, but thou shewest me not whom thou wilt send with me. And hast said moreover: I knowe the by name, & thou hast also founde grace in my sight: Now therefore, if I haue found fauour in thy sight, shew me thy waye, and let me knowe the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte. And loke on this also, how that thys nation is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go wth thee, and I will giue thee rest. And he sayde: If thy presence goe not with me, carpe vs not hence, for how shall it be knowne now that both I and thy people haue found fauour in thy sighte, but in that thou goest with vs: that both I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth. And the lord saied vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my sighte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseeche thee, shewe me thy glorie. And he sayde: I will make at my good goo before thee, and I will be called in thys name Jehouah before thee, and will shewe mercie to whom I shewe mercie, and will haue compassion on whom I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermore: thou maiest not se my face, for ther shall no man se me and lyue.

And the Lord sayde: Beholde, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stande vpon a rocke, and whyle my glorie goeth forth, I will put the in a clyfte of the rocke, & will put myne hand vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I will take awaye myne hande, and thou shalt se my backe partes: but my face shall not be seene.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The tables are renewed. The mercie of god. To haue fellowship wth the gentiles is forbidden, and ther vtolatrye also. The feaste of sweete bread. The first begott. The Sabbath. The feaste of the weekes. The first fruytes. Moses fast. Moses face glistereth.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: hewe the two tables of stone, like vnto the fyrste, that I maye write in them the wordes which were in the first two tables, wherch thou brakest. And be redy agayne the morryng that thou mayest come by etly vnto the mount of Sinai, & stand by me ther vpon the top of the mount. But let no man come by with thee, neyther let any man be seene thorow out all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oren fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and rose vp early in the morryng, and went vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lord commaunded him, and toke in his hande the two tables of stone. And the Lord descended in the cloude, and stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lord. And when the Lord walked before him, he cryed Lord: Lord god, full of compassion and mercie, whiche arte not lightly angrey, but aboundant in mercie and truth, and kepest mercie in store for thousands, & forguest wyckednesse, trespass, and synne: for there is no man innocent before thee, and visitest the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the children, & vpon childrens children, euery vnto the thirde and fourth generacions. And Moses bowed himselfe to the earth quickly, and worshipped, & sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy sight, O Lord, then let my Lord go with vs (for it is a stubburne people) and haue mercie vpon our wyckednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne inheritaunce.

* There shall no man se my face & lyue. Not the face of god wherch is the face of lyte, is the cause of death to the that se it: for the saints & are in hea- uen do in orde se it. But none that liueth in the bodye can se nor se. I prebend the maner of his face: but must be first purified by death as I haue sayd clarely. Ex. xxxiii. g.

And he sayd: behold, I make an appointment before all this people, that I will do marvelles, such as have not bene done in all the world, neither among any nation. And al the people among which thou art, shall see the worke of the Lord: for it is a terrible thing that I will do with thee: kepe al that I commaunde thee this day, & behold, I will cast out before thee the Amontes, Canaanites, Hethites, Pherezites, Hevites, and Jebulites. * Take heede to thy selfe, that thou make no league with the inhabitants of the land whether thou goest, leaue it because of ruine among you. But ouerthrow their altars, and breake their pilers, and cut downe their groues, for thou shalt worship no straunge God. For the Lord is called gelous, because he is a gelous god: least if thou make an agreement with the inhabitants of the land, when they go a hooing after their Goddes, and do sacrifice vnto their Goddes, they call thee, and thou rate of their sacrifice: and thou take of their daughters vnto thy sons, & when their daughters go a hooing after their goddes, they make thy sonnes go a hooing after their Goddes also.

Thou shalt make the no Gods of metal, the feast of sweete bread shalt thou kepe, & seven daies thou shalt eat unleuend bread (as I commaunded thee in the time appointed in the moneth of Abib: for in the moneth of Abib, thou camest out of Egypte) Al that breaketh by the matrice, shall be pure, and al that breaketh the matrice of thy catel, if it be male: whether it be ore or a shepe. But the spitt of the asse, thou shalt bye out with a shepe, or if thou redeme him not, see thou breake his necke. All the spitt borne of thy sonnes, thou must nedes redeme. * And see that no man appeare before me emptye.

Six daies thou shalt worke, and the seventh thou shalt rest: both from earinge & reappng. * Thou shalt obserue the feast of weekes with the first frutes of wheat herewe, and the feast of ingathering at the peeres ende. Thou shalt in a peare haue al your men children appeare before the Lord omnipotent God of Israel: for I will cast out the nations before thee, and will enlarge thy coastes, so that no man shall desire thy land, while thou goest vp to appeare before the face of the Lord thy God, thysle in syere.

* Thou shalt not offer the bloud of my sacrifice with leuended breade: neptier shall ought of the sacrifice of the feast of pascouer be left vnto the morning. The first of the first frutes of thy land, thou shalt bring vnto the house of the Lord thy God. And see, thou seth not a kydde in hys mothers milke.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: Wryte these words, for vpon these words I haue made a couenaunt wth thee, and with the children of Israel. * And he was ther with the Lord xij. daies, and xij. nightes, and neither ate breade nor dranke water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the couenaunt: euenten herles.

And Moses came downe from mounte Sinai, and the two tables of wptnesse in his hande, and wist not that his face shone wth beames of hys commenyng with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and al the children of Israel looked vpon Moses, and saw that the skynne of his face shone with beames, they were afrayed to come nigh him. But he called them to him, & then Aaron & al the chiefe of the company came vnto hym, and Moses talked with them.

And at last all the children of Israel came vnto hym, and he gaue commandement vnto them of al that the Lord had sayd vnto him in mount Sinai. And as soon as he had made an ende of talkyng wth them, he put a couerpage vpon hys face. But when he wente before the Lord to speake wth hym, he toke the couering of, but when he came out, he came out and spake vnto the children of Israel, that which he was commaunded. And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skyn of hys face shone with beames, but Moses put a couerpage vpon hys face, till he wente in to commun with hym.

The xxxv. Chapter.

The Sabbath. The first frutes are required. The readiness of the people to offer. Bezalel and Aholiab are praisyd of God for their worke.

And Moses gathered al the company of the children of Israel together, & sayd vnto them, these are the thynges which the Lord hath commaunded to doo. Six daies ye shall worke, but the seventh day shall be vnto you the holy Sabbath of the Lords reste, so that whosoever doeth any worke therein, shall dye. Moreouer ye shall kinde no fyre thorowe out al your habitacions, vpon the Sabbath day.

And Moses spake vnto al the multitude of the children of Israel, saying: * this is the thyng which the Lord commaunded, saying: * Brue from among you first frutes vnto the Lord.

All that are wyllyng in their hartes, shall bring first frutes vnto the Lord: gold, siluer, brasse, Iacinet, scarlet, purple, bysse, & goates herte: rammes skynnes red, & fawus skynnes, and Setim woode: and oyle for lychtes and spices, for the anointyng oyle and for the swete encense: and Onyx stones, and flones to be set for the Ephod and for the brestlappe.

And let al the people that are wyllyng harted amonge you, come and make all that the Lord hath commaunded: the habitacion, and the tente thereof with his couerpage & hys ringes, bordes, battes, pylers, and sockettes, the arke and the staues therof with the mercy seate, and the baile that couered it, the table and his staues, wth all that pertayneth thereto and the shewbread, the candelcandelsticke of light with his furnyngge and his lampes, and the oyle for the lightes, the incense alter and his staves, the anointyng oyle, and the sweete incense, and the hangyng before the tabernacle doore, the altare of burnt sacrifices, and hys brasen grebiron that longeth therto with his staves and all his ordynance, and the iacuer & hys fote: the hangyngs of the court with his pillars and their sockets, and the hangyng to the doore of the court: the pyennes of the habitacon, and the pyennes of the court with their borders: the ministring garments to minstre within holynes, and the holy vestmentes of Aaron the puelle, and the vestments of his sonnes, to minstre in.

And al the company of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moyses. And they went (as many as their hearts couaged them, and as many as their spirittes made them willinge) & brought heueoffringes vnto the lord, to the makinge of the tabernacle of wyrtneffe, and for all his uses, & for the holy vestments. And the men came with the women (eue as many as were willing herted) and brought bracelets, earpynges, rpynges and gyrdels, & all maner Jewels of golde. And all the menne that waued waucoffringes of gold vnto the Lord & euey man with whom was founde Facincte, Scarlet, purple & bysse or goates heate or red skynnes of Hammes or fapys lappes, brought it. And al þ houe by golde or brasse, brought an heueoffryng vnto the Lord. And al mē with whom was found Sethum woode mete for anye maner worke, or scrupce, brought it.

D And al the women that were wise herted to worke with their hands, span & brought the sponne worke, both of Facincte, scarlet purple and bysse. And all the women that excelled in wysdome of herte, span the goates lappes. And the lordes brought Ourestones and setstones for the Ephod, and for the brestlappes, and spyrce and oyle, both for the lightes and for the anointyng oyle and for the sweete incense. And the chyldren of Israel brought wyllyngge offerynges vnto the Lord, both men and womenne, as many as their hertes made them wyllyngge to bypnye, for all maner workes whiche the lord had commaunded to make by the hande of Moyses.

Exo. xxxi. And Moyses sayd vnto the children of Israel, behold, * the Lord hath call by name Bezaleel the son of Urie the sonne of Iur of the trybe of Juda, and hath fylled hym with the spyrte of God, wpth wysdome, vnderstanding and knowlege, euen in al maner worke, & to fynd out curpous workes, to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, & with grauing of bones to set, and with keruynge in wood, and to worke in al maner of cote workes. And he hath putte in hys herte the grace to teache, both hym and Ahaliab the son of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan hath he fylled wpth wysdome of hert, to worcke al maner of graue worke, they are also byderers and workes with nedle, In Facinct Scarlet, Purple and Bisse, and at weuers that can make all maner worcke, and can deuyse luttel workes.

And Bezaleel wrought and Ahaliab & al wylse herted men, to whō the lord had gyuen wysdome and vnderstanding, to knowe howe to worcke all maner worke for the helpe scrupce, in all that the Lord commaunded.

And Moyses called for Bezaleel, Ahaliab, and al the wise herted men, in whose herts the lord had put wysdome, euen as many as their herts were encouraged to come vnto the worke to worke it. And they receiued of Moyses all the heueoffrynges, whiche the chyldre of Israel had brought for the work of the holy scrupce, to make it withal. And they brought besyde that wyllyngge offerynges euery moynyng.

And al the wylse men that wrought all the holy worke, came euery man fro his worke whiche they made, and spake vnto Moyses, sayyng: the people bring to much, & aboue that is prought to serue for the work whiche the Lord hath commaunded to make. And then Moyses gaue a commaundment, and they caused it to be proclaimed thorow out the host sayyng, le that neither manne nor woman ptepare any more worke for the holy heueoffryng, & so the people were forbodden to bypnye, for the stuffe they hadde was sufficient for them vnto al the worke, to make it, and to much.

And al the wylse herted men among them þ wrought in the worke of the habitacon, made euen ten curtaynes of twyned bysse, Facincte, Scarlet, and Purple, and made thē full of Cherubins with broderd worke. The length of one curtayne was. xxviii. cubytes, and the breyth foure, and were al of one spse. And they coupled foure curtaynes by the selues, and other foure by the selues. And they made .l. ringes of brasse to couple the tente together that it myghte be one. And they made a covering vnto the tente of rammes skyns red, and yet another of Taurus skynnes aboute all.

AND they made borders for the dwelling place of Sethim woode, that stode vpright euery boorde ten cubites longe, and a cubyte and a halfe bryde. And they made two fete to euery boorde of the dwelling place to couple one to another. And they made twenty boordes for the southsyde of the habitacion, and .xl. sockettes of syluer vnder the .xx. boordes two sockettes vnder euery boorde, euen for the two fete of them. And for the other syde of the dwelling place toward the North, they made other twenty boordes with fouerty sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery boorde. And behynde in the end of the tabernacle toward the west, they made six boordes and two other boordes for the corners of the habitacion behynde, and they were ioined close both beneth and also aboute with clamps, and thus they dyd to both the corners: so they were in all eight boordes and .xvi. sockettes, vnder euery boorde two sockettes.

And they made an hangyng of Iacinct, of Scarlet, purple & twyned byss of Cherubins of broderd worke. And made therunto foure pillers of Sethim woode, & ouerlaide them with golde. The knoppes were also of gold, and they cast for the .iiii. sockettes of syluer. And they made an hangyng for the tabernacle doore of Iacinct, Scarlet, purple and twyned byss, of needles worke, and the pillers of it were spue wth their knoppes, and ouerlappe the heades of them and the hopes with golde, wth their spue sockettes of brasse.

The xxxvii. Chapter.

The arke of wyntyle. The mercy seate. The table. The candelsticke. The lyghtes. The altar and the incense.

AND Bezaleel made the arke of Sethim wood two cubites and an halfe long, and a cubite and a halfe bryde, and a cubite and an halfe hygh: and ouerlappe it with fyne gold both within & without, and made a crowne of golde to it round aboute, and cast for it foure ringes of gold for the foure corners of it: two ringes for the one syde, and two for the other, and made staues of Sethim woode, and couered them wth golde, and put the staues in the ringes alonge by the syde of the arke to beare it with.

And he made the *mercy seate of pure gold, ^{*The mercy seate, was vpon the arke fro whence God spake. It was a figure of Christ.} two cubites and a halfe longe & one cubyte & a halfe bryde, and made two Cherubins of thicke golde vpon the two endes of the mercy seate: One cherub on the one ende, & an other Cherub on the other ende of the mercy seate. And the Cherubins spread out their winges aboute an hygh, and couered the mercy seate therewith. And their faces were one to another: towardes the mercy seate, were the faces of the Cherubins.

And he made the table of Sethim wood two cubytes long and a cubyt bryde, and a cubyte and a halfe hygh, and ouerlappe it with fyne gold, and made thereto a crowne of gold round aboute, and made thereto an hope of an hande brydth round aboute, and made vnto the hope a crowne of gold round aboute, and cast for it foure ringes of gold, and put the ringes in the foure corners by the fete: euen vnder the hope to put staues in to beare the table with. And he made staues of Sethim woode, and couered them with golde to beare the table with, & made the vesselles that were on the table of pure golde, the dishes, spones, flatpeeces & pottes to poure with.

And he made the candelstick of pure thicke golde: both the candelsticke and his staff: with branches, bolles, knops & floures proceeding out of it. Foure branches proceeding out of the sides therof, thre out of the one side, & thre out of the other. And on euery branch were thre cups lyke vnto almondes with knoppes and floures thowout the six branches that proceeded out of the candelstick. And vpon the candelstick selfe were foure cuppes, after the fashion of almondes with knops & floures: vnder euery two branches a knoppe. And the knops, and the branches proceeded out of it, & were all one peece of pure thicke gold. And he made seven lampes thereto, & the snuffers therof, and firepannes of pure golde. An hundred weight of pure golde made both it and all that belonged thereto.

And he made the altar of incense, of Sethim wood of a cubyte longe, and a cubyt bryde: euen four square, and two cubites hygh wth hornes proceeding out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the top and the sydes round about, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde round about.

And he made two rings of gold vnto it, euen vnder the crowne vpon eether syde of it, to put the staues in for to beare it with: & made staues of Sethim woode, & ouerlaide them wth golde. And he made the holp anointyng oyle and the swete pure incense after the Apothecaries crafter.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

The altar of burnt offryngs. The brasen laver. The summe of that the people offered to the buyldyng of the habitacion of the Lord.

And he made the burnt offering altace of sethim wood, fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode: euen all square and the cubytes hygh. And he made voyces in the foure corners of it pro-ceedynge out of it, and ouerlaid it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altace: the cauldrons, bowls, basins, dishes, hookes, and colepannes, all of brasse.

And he made a brasen gredyon of net worke into the altace roundabout. Alond beneith under the compasse of the altace: so that it reacheth vnto halfe the altace, a salt fourcynge of brasse, for the foure ends of the gredyon to put stauces in. And he made stauces of sethim wood, and couered them with brasse, and put the stauces in the cyn-ges alonge by the altace fyde to beare it, and made the altace halowe with borders.
And he made all the lauer of brasse and the fore of it also of brasse, in the sighte of them that byd warde before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And he made the court with hangynge of twyned wyffe, of an hundred cubytes longe vpon the southside, and twenty pyl-lers with twenty sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pylers, and the hoopes were of siluer. And on the northside the han-gynge were an hundred cubytes long with twenty pylers, and twenty sockettes of brasse, but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of siluer. And on the west fyde, were hangynge of fyue cubytes longe, and x. pylers with x. sockettes of brasse, and the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of siluer. And on the east fyde toward the sunne ryfonge, were hangynge of fyue cubytes: þe han-gynge of the one fyde of the gate were fyue cubytes long, and there pylers thre with thre sockettes. And of the other fyde of the court gate were hangynge also of x. cubytes longe, and there pylers thre with thre sockettes. Now all the han-gynge of the court roundabout, were of twyned wyffe, and the sockettes of the pylers were of brasse: but þe knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of siluer, and the beades were ouerlaid with syluer, and all the pylers of the court were hooped about with siluer.
And the hangynge of the gate of the court was needleworke, of Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple, and twyned wyffe, twenty cubytes longe, and fyue in the bredth, according to the hangynge of the court. And the pyl-lers were foure with foure sockettes of brass, and the knoppes of siluer, and the bea-des ouerlaid with syluer, and hooped about with syluer, and all the pyunes of the tabernacle and of the court roundabout were of brasse.

This is the summe of the habytacion of wytnesse, whiche was counted at the commandement of Moyses: and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Aha-mae sonne to Aaron the piteffe. And Bezai leelonne of Geth, sonne to Gur of the tribe of Iuda, made all that the Lorde commanded Moyses, and with hym Ahaiab sonne of Ahyfamahe of the tribe of Dan, a cunning grauer, and a worker of needleworke in Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple and Wyffe.

All the golde that was occupied vpon all the worke of the holpe place (in whiche was the golde of the waueoffering) was xlii hundred myghte, and seven hundred and thirtie scyles, according to the holpe scyle. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude was true score hundred myghte, and a thousand seven hundred and lxxv. scyles of the holpe scyle. Eue-ry manne offering halfe a sicle after the trength of the holpe scyle amonge them that were to be numbred from twentys yeare olde and aboue, amonge vne hundred thousand and thre thousand, and true hundred and fyfety men.

And the true score hundred myghte of syluer went to the casting of the sockettes of þe sanctuary & the sockettes of the vable: an hundred sockettes of the true score hundred myghte, an hundred myghte to euery sockette. And the thousand seven hundred and lxxv. scyles made knoppes to the pylers and ouerlaid the beades and hooped the.

And the brasse of the waueoffering was lxx. hundred myghte, and two thousande, and foure hundred scyles. And therewith he made the sockettes to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altace, and the brasen gredyon that longeth thereto, and all the vessels of the altace, and the sockettes of the court roundabout, and the sockettes of the court gate, and all the pyunes of the habytacion, and all the pyunes of the court roundabout.

The xxxix. Chapter.

The makinge of Aaron and his sonnes ap-parell. At that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

And of the Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple, and twyned wyffe, they made the vestiments of ministracion to do seruice in the holpe place, and made the holpe garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, Ja-cynthe, Scarlette, Purple, and twyned wyffe.
And they beate the golde into thynne plates and cut it into wyres to worke it in þe Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple, and the Wyffe, with broded worke. And they made the spdes come together, and closed them by wyres. And the byddynge of the gyrdelle that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same worke of Golde, Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple and twyned Wyffe, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they brought Onix stones closed in ouches of golde, and graued as signettes Li. are are grauen with the names of the children of Israel, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod that they should be a remembrance of the children of Israel, as the Lord commanded Moses.

And they made the breastplate of cunning work, after the work of the Ephod, even of Gold, Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple & typered Wyllow. And they made it four square and double, an hande breadth long and an hande breadth broad. And they spild it with four rowes of stones, the first rowe Sardon, a Topas, and a Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Ruby, a Saphir and a Diamonde: the thirde rowe, a Iagurion, an Achat, and an Amethyste: the fourth rowe, a Turcas, an Onix and a Jaspes) closed in ouches of golde in their inclosures. And the .xii. stones were grauen as signettes with the names of the children of Israel, euery stone with his name, according to the .xii. tribes.

* On a sac bundle.

And they made upon the breastplate, two fastenings chelines of motherl wyke and pure gold. And they made .ii. hooks of gold and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges upon the two corners of the breastplate. And they put the two chelines of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the breastplate. And the two endes of the two chelines they fastened in the two hooks, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod upon the forefront of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde, and put them on the two other corners of the breastplate longe upon the edge toward the insyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynst it. And they made yet two other golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneath on the fore syde of it, euen where the shoules goe togyther, aboue upon the brydging of the Ephod, and they scaped the breastplate by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of Jacynthe, that it myghte be faste vpon the brydging of the Ephod, and should not be loosyd from of the Ephod, as the Lord commanded Moses.

And he made the Tunicke vnto the Ephod of woun wyke, and all togyther of Jacynthe, and the head of the Tunicke was in the myddell of it as the collar of a parlet, with a bond round aboute the collar that it shuld not rent. And they made beneath vpon the hemme of the Tunicke, Pommegranettes of Jacynthe, Scarlet, purple and typered Wyllow. And they made spile belles of pure goulde, and put them amonge the Pommegranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the Tunicke a belle and a Pommegranate, a belle and a Pommegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the Tunicke, to mynster in, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

And they made coates of bylle of woun wyke for Aaron and his sons, and a my-tee of Wyllow, and goodly bonettes of Wyllow, and lynnen breeches of typered Wyllow, and a girdell of typered Wyllow, Jacynthe, Scarlet and purple, euen of redde wyllow, as the Lord commanded Moses.

And they made the plate of the holpe crowne of fyne gold, and wor vnto it with grauen work, the volutes of the Lord, and tyed it to a lace of Jacynthe to fasten it on hygher vpon the myster, as the Lord commanded Moses.

Thus was all the work of the habytacion of the tabernacle of witness finished. And the children of Israel byd accordinge to all that the Lord hadde commaunded Moses.

And they brought the habytacion vnto Moses, the tente and all the furniture thereof, the buerous, boordes, battes, pyllets and sockettes, and the couerpage of Rammes skynnes red, and the couering of Tarus saynnes, and the hangynge baple, and the arcke of wytnesse with the staues thereof, and mercy seate: and the table and all the ordynance thereof, and the shewbread, and the pure candellsticke, and the lampes prepared thereto, with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghtes, the golden altare, and the annoyntinge oyle and the smere incense, and the hanging of the tabernacle doore, and the brasen altare, and the gredyroun of brasse longynge ther vnto with his bars and all his vessels, and the lauer with his sore, and the hangynge of the court with his pyllets and sockettes, and the hangynge to the court gate, his boordes and pinnes, and all the ordynance that seruerth to the habytacion of the tabernacle of witness, and the mynsterpage vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the prestre, and his sonnes saymenes to mynster in, accordinge to all that the Lord commanded Moses, euen so the children of Israel made all the wyke. And Moses bebride all the wyke, and he, they had done it euen as the Lord commaunded, and then Moses blessed them.

The. xli. Chapter.

The tabernacle is seced vnto the gloire of the Lord appereth in a cloude couering the tabernacle.

As the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: In the firste daye of the firste moneth shalt thou sette vp the habytacion of the tabernacle of witness, and put therein the arcke of witness, and couer the arcke with the baple, and bring in the table and apparelle it, and bring in the candellsticke and put on his lampes, and set the cense altare of golde before the arcke of witness, and put the brydging of the doore vnto the habytacion. And set the burreofferynge altare before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and set the lauer betweene the tabernacle of witness and the altare, and put water therein, and make the court rounde aboute, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate.

Thus was the tabernacle reared vp the first day, in the first moneth, in the seconde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle and fastened his sockettes, and set vp the bordes, and put in theyr battes, and reared vp the pilles, and spread abroad the tente ouer the habitacyn, and put the couerynge of the tente on hygh aboue it: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testimony in þe arcke, and set the statutes to the arcke, and put the mersey seate on hygh vpon the arcke, and brought the arcke into the habitacion, & hanged vp the vail and couered the arcke of wytnesse, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse in the Northside of the habitacion wythoute the vail, and sette the breade in order before the Lord, such as the Lord had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candelstykke in the tabernacle of wytnesse ouer agaynst the table in the southsyde of the habitacion, and set vp the lampes before the Lord: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of wytnesse before the vail, and brennt sweete incense thereon as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And set vp the hangynge in the doore of the habitacion, and set the burnt offering altare before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and offered burnt offeringes and meat offeringes thereon: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their handes and theyr feete therat: both when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and when they went to the altare, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he reared vp the court round about the habitacion and the altare, and sette vp the hangynge of the court gate: and so Moses synished the worke.

* And the cloude couered the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glorie of the Lord fylled the habitacion, so that Moses coulde not entre into the tabernacle of wytnesse, because they coulde not abide therein, & the glorie of the Lord fylled the habitacion.

When the cloude was taken vp from of the habitacion, the chyldren of Israel toke their iourneyes as ofte as they had iourneyed. And if the cloude departed not, they iourneyed not, till it departed: for the cloude of the Lord was vpon the habitacion by day and by nyghte, in the syght of all the house of Israel in all their iourneyes.

The Prologe

Deliver them from theyr shadowes and clove the lyghte and the heathen oute of theyr bracke shap of darke blynde ignorance. And as the Ma dowe danceth awaye at the comynge of the lyghte, even so do the ceremonies and Sacry fices at the comynge of Christ, and are hence forth no more necessarie then a token lesse in re membraunce of a bargayne, is necessary when the bargayne is fulfilled. And though they seme playne chylde, yet they bee not altogether scrutinisable as the popes and manner of ty ples whiche mother's permitte unto theyr yonge chylde be not all in vaine. For albeit that such phantasies be permitted to satisfy the chylde's lusts, yet in that they are a mother's gift, and be done in place and tyme at byr commaundement, they keep the chylde in awe, and make them know the mother and also make them more apt agayne like a more stronger age, to obey in theyr gode of a greater carnelle.

And more over though the sacryfices and cere monies can be no ground of foudatō to build upō: that is, though we can promise nought with them: yet when we have once founde out Christ and his mysteries, then we maye borrowe signi ficates, that is to say allegories, symplitudes of en samples to open Christ and the secretes of god hye in Christ even unto the quicke, & to declare them more spually and sensibly woth them, then with all the wordes of the world.

For thus liether have more vertue and pow er woth them: then bare wordes, and lead a man wories further into the pythe and marpe, and spirituall understandinge of the thyng, then all the wordes that can be imagined. And though also that all the ceremonies and sacryfices have as it were a shew of light of Christ, yet some ther be that have as it were the lyghte of the bracke dawe a lytle before the sunne rysinge, and ex pelle hym and the circumstaunces and vertue of his death, so playnly as if we shoulde playe his passion on a scaffold or in a stage play opens ly before the eyes of a people. As the scape goate the braken serpent, the ore burne wythout the hoile, the pascouer lambe, &c. In so muche that I am fully perswaded, and can not but beleue that God hath shewed Moses the secretes of Christe and the very manner of his death before hande, and commaunded hym to ordeyne them for the conpyng of our faithes whiche are now in the cleare day lyght. And I beleue also, that the Prophetes whiche folowed Moses to conpyne his prophesies and to magnifye his doctryne unto Christes comynge, were mo ued by suche thynges to searche further of Chri stes secretes. And though God would not have the secretes of Christ generally knowne, save unto a fewe familie frendes whiche in that fancy he made of mans wytt to helpe the other babes: yet as they had a generall promise that one of the seede of Abraham shoulde come and blesse them, even so they had a generall faith, that God would by the same man save them, though they wyl not by what means, as the very apo stles wold it was oft told them: yet they coulde ne ver expounde it, till it was fulfilled in dede.

And beyond all this their sacryfices and ce rimonies as farforth as the promise annexed unto them extende, so farforth they saved them and fulfilled theym, and sode them in the same freede as our Sacramentes doo us: not by the power of the Sacryfice or dede it selfe, but by the vertue in the faith, in the promise whiche the sacrifice or ceremonies preached and where of it was a token or sygne. For the ceremonies

and sacryfices were lesse woth them and com maunded them to kepe the promise in remem braunce, and to waite by theyr faith. As it is not enough to send manne on a candell and to tel them what they shal doo, but they must have a remembraunce woth them, and it be but a ring of a ring aboute one of theyr fyngers. And as it is not enough to make a bargayne woth wordes only, but we muste put thereto an oth and give easell to conpyne the faith of the person woth whom it is made. And in like manner if a manne promise, whatsoever triful it be, it is not bele ved except he holde up his finger also, such is the weaknes of a word. And therfore Christ him selfe dyd of tymes dyverse ceremonies in curyng the syke, to sturke up their faithe woth all. As for an ensample, it was not the bloude of the lame that saved them in Egypt when the an gell smote the Egyptians: but the mercy of god and his trithe wherof that bloude was a to ken and remembraunce to sturke up theyr faithes wythall. For though God make a promise, yet it sauerh none synnall, but them that longe for it, and praye God woth a stronge faith to fulfill it for his mercy and truth only, and knowe ledge theyr unworthynesse. And even so oure sa cramentes if they be truly ministered, p. eache Christ unto us and lead our faithes unto Christ by which faith oure synnes are done away, and not by the dede or worke of the Sacramente.
For as it was impossible that the bloude of cal ves shoulde put away synne: even so is it impos sible that the water of the founte shoulde wash our hertes. For whiche the sacraments cleanse us and absolue us of oure synnes, as the pyestes do in preachyng of repentaunce and sayeth, for whiche cause either other of them were ordeined: but if they preach not, whether it be the pyeste or the sacramente, so profyte they not.

And if a man allege Christe Joban in the .iiij. chapter, sayng: Except a man be borne againe of water and the holpe gooste he can not see the kingdome of god, and wyl therefore that the holpe goost is present in the water and therefore the very dede of worke doeth put away synne. then I wyl send hym unto Paul whiche writeth his Galathians whether they receyved the ho ly goost by the dede of the law or by preachyng of faith, and there concludeth that the holpe goost accompanyeth the preachyng of faith, & in the word of faith, entereth the harte and purgeth it wher the thou mayst also understand by saint Pauls sayng: ye are borne a new out of the water tho row the word. So now if baptysme be a washing in Christes bloude, so doth the holpe goost accompanye it, and that dede of preachyng thow sayth doth put away my synnes. For the holpe goost is no dūme god nor no god goeth a mummyng. If a manne say of the sacra ment of Christes body, & bloude, that it is a sacri fice, as well for the dead as for the quicke, and therefore the very dede it selfe iustifyeth and put teth away synne, I answer that a sacryfice is the seynge of the body of a beast or a man: wher fore if it be a sacryfice, then is Christes bodye there layne and his bloude there shed: but that is not so. And therefore it is properly no sacry fice, but a sacramente and a memorialis of that eternall sacryfice once for all whiche he offered upon the crosse nowe up on a fiftene hundred yeres ago, and pre acheth onely unto them that are alive. And as for them that be dead, it is as profitabell to them as is a candell in a lantern wothoute lyght, unto them that walke by the waye in a dark night, and as the gospel song in latine is vnto them that vnderstand none at all, and as a sermon preached to him that is dead and heareth it not. It preacheth vnto them that are a lyue only: or they that be deade, if they dyed in the faith which that sacrament preacheth, they be late and are past all recovery. For when they were at the they harted toward the lawe of God and therefore synned not, and were soye that their members synned, and were moued to synne, and therefore thow sayth it was forgeuen them. And now they synnefull members be dead, so that they can now synne no more, wherefore it is vnto them that be dead neither sacrament nor sacrifice: But vnder the pretence of theyr soule health, it is a seruant vnto our spynalltyes holre consciences, and an ex-componer, and a bryder of abayce, colleges of synners, cathedral churches wth the gotten good, a y^e tyure, a poller, & a bottemleake bag.

Some men wold hapely say, that the prayers of the masse helpe muche: not theyr synne onl^y, but also the deade. Of the vntowle of their fir-uent praye, when consumed: faster then at the worlde is alle to bringe sacrifice, I haue s^ude sufficientlye in other places. Howe be it it is not possible to bringe me in beleue that the prayer which helpeth her owne master vnto no vertue, should purchase me the forgiveness of my synnes. If I saw that theyr prayers had obtained them grace to leue synne at le as god-des worde did not rebuke, then coulde I s^ude be borne in hande that what soeuer they aske of God theyr prayers should not be in vayne. But now, what good can he wth he me in his prayers that enureth me I must the sode and the life of my soule: What good can he wth me whose herse cleaueth a sounde for payne when I am taught to repent of my euill.

Furthermore because that fewe knowe the vse of the olde testamēt, and the mooste parte thinke it nothyng necessarie, but to make alle goyses, whiche they sayne euer man after his owne bypne & wyl, at al aduenture without any certayne rule: therefore though I haue spoken of the in another place yett lest I shoulde come not so at mens vnde that wth read this, I wil speke of them here also a worde or twaine.

We had neede to take heede euer where that we be not begyled wth false allegories, whether they be drawne out of the new testamēt, or the old, either out of any other storie, or of the creatures of the world, but mainly in this booke.
Here a man had neede to put on al his spectacles & to arme him selfe agaynst inuysible spectres.

First allegories proue nothyng and by alle goyses vnderstande examples or similitudes borrowed of straunge matters, and of an other thyng than that thou entreated of. As though circumcision be a figure of baptysme, yet thou canst not proue baptysme by circumcision. For this argument was very feble, the Israelites were circumcised, therefore we must be baptised.
And in the same maner though the offering of Isaac were a figure or ensample of the resurrection, yet is this argument no ghte, Abrahham wold haue offered Isaac, but god deliue-red him fro deeth, therefore we shall r^ele agayne, and so forth in al other.

But the very vse of allegories is to declare and open a terte that it maye be the better per-ceyued and vnderstande. As when I haue a cleare terte of Christe and of the Epoules, that I must be baptised, then I maye borrowe an en-sample of circumcision to expresse the nature power and frute or effecte of baptysme. For as circumcision was vnto them a comen badger, sig-nifyinge that they were at lowdyars of God to warre wth war, and to paraynge them from al other naeyons dyshobed vnto God: such so baptysme is our comen badger & surerren. It and perpetuall memorpalle that we pertaine vnto Christ, and are separated from al that are not Christes. And as circumcision was a tolde certifyinge them that they were receyued vnto the fauour of God and theyr synnes forgiven them; euen so baptysme certifieth vs that we are washed in the blende of Christ, and receyued to fa-uour for his sake, and as circumcysion signified vnto them the cutting away of theyr owne lutes and fearng of theyr free wyl as they cal it, to folow the wyl of God: euen so baptysme signifieth vnto vs repentance, and the mor-tyfing of our vncleane members & body of synne, to walke in a newe styte and so forth.

And lykewyse though the sayings of Isaie and of them that were wth hym in the flap, thowse water, is a figure, that is to saie an example and likenesse of baptysme, as we ter maketh it, De iii. Yet I can not proue bap-tysme ther wth, I haue described it only. For as I shal saie the in the water thowse forth, that they beleeued God, and as the other that vould not be-lieue were perished, euen so baptysme saith vs thowse the word of faith, whiche is preacheth vnto all the world of the vnbelyuyng perisherth.
And Paul I Cor maketh the sea and the cloude a figure of baptysme, by whiche and a thousand mo I myght declare it but not proue it. Paul also in the sayd place maketh the rocke oute of whiche Moyses broughte water vnto the chyldren of Israel a figure or example of Christ, vnto not to proue Christ, for that were impossible, but to describe Christ only, euen as Christ him selfe, Joh. iii. b^y owerth a similitude or figure of the brazen serpente to lead synners fro his rathe imag nation into the spirituall vniderstandyng of Christ, saynge. As Moyses lifted vp a serpent in the wyldernes, so muste the sonne of manne be lifted vp, that none that beleue in hym perishe, but haue euerslastyng life by whiche I saye the vertue of Christes deathe is better described then thou couldest declare it wth a thousand wordes. For as those murmurers agaynst god as sone as they repented were healed of their deadly woundes thowse lepyng on the brazen serpente only, without medicine or any other helpe, yea, and without any other res^u, but that god had said it shoulde be so, & not to murmure agayne, but to leaue theyr murmuringe: euen so all that repente and beleue in Christ are saved from euerslastyng deathe of pure grace without and b^y toze theyr good workes, and not to synne agayne, but to synne agaynst synne, & therefore to synne no more.

Euen so wth the ceremonies of this booke thou canst proue nothyng save describe and declare onely the putting away of our synnes thowse the deeth of Christ. For Christ is Iaros^u and Iarons sonne and al that offer the sacri-fyce to purge synne. And Christ is all maner offeringe that is offered: he is the oxe, the shepe, the goate, the hydde, & the lambe: he is the oxe that is burne without the holle, and the scapegoate that carryed all the synne of the people away into the wyldernes, for as they pouged the people fro their worldly vncleannes thowse blood of the sacrifices, euen so doth Christ purge vs from the vncleannes of euerslastyng deathe wth his owne bloude, & as theyr woulde syn-

There could be none otherwyse be purged then by bloude of sacrifice, euen so can oure synnes be no otherwyse forgiven then thow the bloud of Christ. All the dedes in the world, save the bloude of Christ, can purchase no forgiveness of synnes: for oure dedes do but heale oure neyghboure, and mortifye the helpe, and helpe that we sinne no more, but and if we have synned, it must be frely forgiven thow p b. ud of Christ or remaine ever.

And in lyke maner of the leapers thou canste pprove nothynge: thou canste never confesse oute confession thence, how be it thou haste an honest example there to open the byndynge and lawynge of our prestes with the bape of goddes wordes: for as they made no man a leper, euen so oures haue no power to commaunde any man to bee in synne, or to go to purgatorie or hel. And therefore in as muche as byndynge and lawynge is one power, as those prestes healed no man, euen so oures can not of their invisible and domine power drive any mannes synnes aways, or deliuer him from hell or earned purgatorie: how be it, if they preached gods word purely which is the authorite that Christ gaue them, then they shoulde brude and leuse, hyl and make alpe againe, make vailens and cleane agayne, and sende to hell and sette thence agayne, so myghte be Gods word: for if they preached the lawe of God, they shoulde bynd the consciences of sinners with the bonds of the pyntes of hell, and bynge them vnto repentance. And then if they preached them the merce that is in Christ, they shoulde leuse them and quiet theyr ragynge consciences and terrify them of the fauoure of God, and that theyr synnes be forgiven.

Finallie beware of allegories, for there is not a more handsome or apte thyng to begyle wythal then an allegory, nor a more subtle and perspicuous thyng in the world to perswade a false matter then an allegory. And contrarie wyse, there is not a better, behemmer, or myghtier thyng to make a man vnderstand withal then an allegory. For allegories make a manne quicke wytted and pynne wylde in hym, and make it to abyde, where bare wordes goo but in at the one eare, and oute at the other. As thys wyth such lyke saynges: put lalle to all your sacrifices, in steade of thys sentence, do all your dedes wyth discretion, graue and byerth (if it be vnderstande) more then playne wordes. And whā I saie in steade of these wordes both not your selve of your good dedes, rate neyther bloud nor the fatte of your sacrifice, there is an greates difference betwene them as there is distance betwene heauen and earth. For the lyfe and beauty of all good dedes is of God, and we are but the caren leane, we are only the instrumente wherby god worketh onely, but the power is hys. As god created Dauid a newt, poured hys wylde in him, gaue him myghte, and promysed hym that his grace shuld neuer faile hym, and al with our deservynge, excepte that murderynge the sayntes and makynge them curse and rayle on Christ be mercurious. Howe as it is beaue to eat the flour or fawe of any sacrifice, is it not (thynke ye) damnable to robbe God of his honour, and to glorifyr selfe with his honour?

The ende of the prologe.

The thirde booke of Moses called Leuiticus.

The first Chapter.

The order of burnt offerings, whether it be of smal or great cattel or fowles.

And the Lorde called Moses, and spake vnto him oute of the tabernacle of wytnes, sayinge: Speke to the chyldren of Israel, and saie vnto them: whoso euer of you shall bynge a gyfte vnto the Lorde, shal bynge it of the cattel: euen of the oren of p shepe.

If he bynge a burnt offering of the oren, he shal bynge a male without blemyshe, and shal byng hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let hym put hys hande vpon the heade of the burnt sacrifice, and fauoure shal be geuen hym to make an attonement for him, and let him kill the oren before the Lorde. And let the prestes Aarons sonnes bynge the bloud, and let them spynkle it rounde aboute vpon the alter, that is before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And let the burnt offerings be stripped and beueld in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaton the pyest put fyre vpon the alter, and put wood vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces wyth the head and the fat vpon the wood that is on the fyre in the aultare. But the intrayles and the legs ther shal washe in water, and the pyeste shal burne all together vpon the aultare, that it be a burnt sacrifice, and an offering of a sweete odour vnto the Lorde.

If he wyl offer a burnt sacrifice of the shepe, whether it be of laves or of the gates he shal offer a male without blemyshe. And let hym kill it on the north syde of the aultare before the Lorde. And let the prestes, Aarons sonnes spynkle the bloud of it rounde aboute vpon the aultare. And let it be cutte in peces, euen to the head and hys fat; and lette the pyeste put them vpon the woode that lyeth vpon the fyre in the aultare. But lette him washe the intrayles and the legges wyth water, and then bring all together and burne it vpon the alter: that is a burnt offering, and a sacrifice of sweete fauoure vnto the Lorde.

If he wyl offer a burnt offering of the fowles, he shal offer ether of the turtle doves, or of the pounge pygeons. And the pyeste shal bynge it vnto the aultare, and bynge the necke a funder, and burne it on the aultare, and lette the bloude runne oute vpon the sydes of the aultare, and plucke awaye his croppe and hys feathers thers, and caste them besyde the aulter on the East parte vpon the heape of ashes, and breake hys wnges, but pluckethem not a sonder. And then let the priest burne it vpon the aulter: euen vpon the wood that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifice, and an offering of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

The ii. Chapter.

The order of meateofferings, of sweete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankensence &c. wythoute leuen, and wythoute honye, but not wythoute salte.

If any soule will offer a meate offering vnto the Lorde, his offering shalbe fyne flour, and he shal poure thereto oyle, and putte frankensence thereon, and shal bynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the priestes, And one of them shal take thereout hys handfull of the flour, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter: an offering of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And the remaunte of the meateoffring shalbe Aarons and his sonnes, as a thing most holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

If anye man bynge a meate offering that is baken in the oven, lette hym byng swete cakes of fyne flour mingled with oyle and vbleuened wafers anointed with oyle. If thy meateoffring be baken in the frynge panne, then it shal be of swete flour mingled with oyle. And thou shalte mpyce it small, and poure oyle thereon: and so it is a meate offering.

If thy meateoffring be a thynge broyled vpon the greddyn, of flour mingled with oyle it shalbe. And thou shalt bynge the meate offering that is made of these thynges vnto the Lorde, and shalte deliuer it to the prieste, and he shal bynge it vnto the aulter, and shal hene vpepaart of the meate offering for a memorial, and shal burne it vpon the aulter: an offering of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that is left of the meateoffring shalbe Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thinge that is moste holy of the offerings of the Lorde.

At the meateofferings which ye shal byng vnto the Lord, shalbe made without leuen. For ye shal neither burne leuen nor hony in any offering of the Lord: notwithstanding ye shal byng the firste frutes of them vnto the Lord: but they shal not come vpon the aulter, to make a sweete sauoure.

At thy meateofferings thou shalt salt with salt: nether shalt thou suffer the salt of the couenaunt of thy god to be lacking fro thy meateoffring: but vpon all thine offerings thou shalt bringe salte.

If thou offer a meateoffring of the fyre ripe frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche is yet grene, and drye it by fyre, and beate it small, and so offer the meateoffring of thy fyre ripe frutes, And the poure oyle thereto, and putte frankensence thereon: and so it is a meateoffring. And the prieste shal burne parte of the beate corn, and parte of that oyle with all the frankensence, for a remembraunce, that is an offering vnto the Lorde.

The third Chapter.

The order of peaceofferings, which were offered for the keepinge of peace, made of oxen, shepe, lamdes and goates.

If anye man bynge a peaceoffering of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shal bynge such as is withoute blemish before the Lorde and let hym putte hys hande vpon the heade of his offering and kyll it before the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse. And Aarons sonnes the priestes shal spynkle the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And they shal offer of the peace offering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes: and the two kidneis, with the fat that lyeth vpon the loynes: and the kyll that is on the spuer they shal take awaye with the kidneis. And Aarons sonnes shal burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifice which is vpon the wood on the fyre: that is a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

If a man bynge a peace offering vnto the Lorde frome the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shalbe without blemish. If he offer a lambe, he shal byng it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offeringes head, and kill it in the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse, and Aarons sonnes shal spynkle the bloude thereof rounde aboute the aulter.

And of the peace offering they shal bynge a sacrifice vnto the Lord: the fatte therof and the romys altogether which they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneis with the fat that lyeth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the kyll that is vpon the spuer, he shal take awaye with the kidneis. And the priest shal burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lords of ferynge with.

If the offering be a goate, he shal bynge it before the Lord, and put his hand vpon the head of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of witnessse, and the sonnes of Aaron shal spynkle the bloude therof vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And he shal bynge therof his offering vnto the Lordes sacrifice: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneis, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loines and the kyll that is vpon the spuer, he shal take awaye with the kidneis. And the priest shal burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifice with, and to make a sweete sauoure. And thus shal all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shalbe a law forever among your generacions after you in your dwelling.

lynge places: That ye eate neyther fatte nor bloude.

The.iii. Chapter.

The offeringe made for synne done of ignorance.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speke vnto the children of Israel and saye, when a soule spanneth thorowe ignorance, and hath done anye of those thynges whiche the Lord hath forbiddē in hys commaundements to be done: If the priest that is anoynted, spyn and make the people to do amysse, he shall byngge for hys synne whiche he hath done: an Oxe without blempe vnto the Lord for a synne offeringe. And he shall byngge the Oxe vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness before the Lord, and shall putte hys hande vpon the Oxe head, and kyll him before the Lord.

And the priest that is * anoynted shall take of the Oxe bloude, and byngge it into the tabernacle of witness, and shall dyppe hys synger in the bloud, and synckle ther of seven tymes before the Lord: euen before the hangynge of the holpe place. And he shall put some of the bloud vpon the hor-nes of the altare of sweete incense before the Lord, whiche is in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure all the bloude of the Oxe vpon the bottome of the altare of burnt offeringes, whiche is by the doze of the tabernacle of witness. And he shall take awaye all the fatte of the Oxe that is the synne offeringe: the fatte that couereth the intestines, and all the fat that is aboute them, and the two kidneys with the fat that lyeth vpon them and vpon the lornes, and the kyll vpon the synner lette them take awaye also with the kidneys, as it was taken from the Oxe of the peace offeringe, and let the priest burne them vpon the altare of burnt offeringes. But the skin of the Oxe and all hys skyn with his heade, his legges, his entrails with his donge, shall he carpe al together out of the host vnto a cleane place: where the ashes are poured out, and burne him on woode with fyre: euen vpon the heape of ashes.

If the hole communaltie of the chyldren of Israel synne thorowe ignorance, and the byngge be hyd from theyr eyes: so that they haue committed any of these thynges whiche the Lord hath forbiddē to be done in hys commaundementes, and haue offended, and the synne whiche they haue spynned be afterwarde known, then shall they offer an Oxe for a synne offeringe, and shall byngge hym before the tabernacle of witness, and the elders of the multitude shall put theyr handes vpon hys heade before the Lord.

And the priest that is anoynted, shall byngge of hys bloud into the tabernacle of witness, and shall dyppe hys synger into the bloude: and synckle it. vii. tymes before the Lord, euen before the vail. And shall put

of the bloude vpon the hornes of the alter, whiche is before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure al the bloude vpon the bottome of the altare of burnt offeringes, whiche is by the doze of the tabernacle of witness, and shall take all his fat from hym, and burne it vpon the altare, and shall do with hys ox as he did with the same offeringe ore. And the priest shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgeuen them. And he shall byngge the Oxe without the hooste and burne hym as he burned the spynner: so is this the synne offeringe of the communaltie.

When a Lord synneth, and commit-teth thorowe ignorance any of these thynges whiche the Lord hys God hath forbiddē to be done in his commaundements and hath so offended: when hys synne is shewed vnto hym whiche he hath spynned he shall byngge for hys offeringe, an hee goote without blempe, and lay hys hand vpon the heade of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offeringes are kyled before the Lord: this is a synne offeringe.
Then let the priest take of the bloude of the synne offeringe with hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeringe altare, and poure hys bloude vpon the bot-tome of the burnt offeringe altare, and burne all hys fatte vpon the altare, as he doth the fat of the peace offeringes. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym as concernynge hys synne, and so it shall be forgeuen hym.

If one of the common people of the lād synne thorowe ignorance, and committe any of the thynges whiche the Lord hath forbiddē in hys commaundementes to be done, and so hath trespassed, when hys synne whiche he hath spynned is come to hys knowledge, he shall byngge for hys offeringe a she goate without blempe for hys synne whiche he hath spynned, and lay hys hande vpon the heade of the synne offeringe, and kyll it in the place of burnt offeringes. * And the priest shall take of the bloude with hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeringe altare, and poure al the bloude vpon the bottome of the altare, and shall take awaye all hys fat as the fat of the peace offeringes is taken away. And the priest shall burne it vpon the altare for a sweete sauour vnto the Lord, and the priest shall make an attonement for hym: and it shall be forgeuen hym.

If he byngge a lambe, and offer it for a synne offeringe, he shall byngge a femal without blempe, and lay hys hande vpon the heade of the synne offeringe, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offeringes are kylled. And the priest shall take of the bloud of the synne offeringe with hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeringe altare, and shall poure al the bloud thereof vnto the bottome of the altare. And he shall take awaye all the fatte thereof, as the fatte of the sheepe of the peace offerings was taken away. And the priest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the priest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shall be forgiven hym.

The .v. Chapter.

Of othes. The cleansing of him that toucheth vncleane thyngs. The purgation of an othe of synne done by ignorance.

Vhen the soule hath synned, and heard the voyce of cursynge, and is a wylfulnesse, whether he hath sene or knowen of it, if he haue not uttered it, he shall beare his synne. Either when a man toucheth any vncleane thyng: whether it be the carion of an vncleane beaste, or of vncleane cattell or vncleane wyne, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane, and hath offended. Either when he toucheth any vncleanness of man (whatsoeuer vncleanness it be, that a man is defiled with) and is not ware of it, and after cometh to the knowledge of it, he is a trespasser.

13 Either when a soule sweareth, so that he pronounceth with his lippes to do euyl, or to do good (whatsoeuer it be that a manne pronounceth) with an othe: and the thyng be oute of his mynde, and afterwarde cometh to the knowledge of it then he hath offended in one of these. Then when he hath synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that wherein he hath synned, and shall bringe his trespass offering vnto the Lord for his synne which he hath synned. A female from the flocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goate, for a synne offering. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. * But if he be not hable to bringe a sheepe, then let hym bringe for his trespass which he hath synned two turtle Doves, or two ponge pigeons to the Lord, one for a synne offering, and an other for a burnt offering. And he shall bringe them vnto the priest, whiche shall offer the synne offering first, and wrynge the necke a sonder of it, but plucke it not cleane of. And let him sprinkle of the bloude of the synne offering vpon the side of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude blede vpon the bottoome of the aulter, and then it is a synne offering. And let hym offer the second for a burnt offering as the maner is: and so shall the priest make an attonement for him for the synne which he hath synned, and it shall be forgiven hym.

And yet if he be not hable to bringe two turtle Doves or two ponge pigeons, then lette him bringe his offering for his synne: * the tenth part of an Ephah of fine flour for a synne offering, but put none oyle thereto, neyther putte any frankincense thereon, for it is a synne offering. And lette hym bringe it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handfull of it, and burne it vpon the aulter for a remembraunce, to be a sacrifice for the Lord: that is a synne offering. And let the priest make an attonement for him for his synne (whatsoeuer of these he hath synned) & it shall be forgiven. And yet remaunt shall be the priestes as it is in the meat offering.

And the Lord communed with Moyses, sayinge: When a soule trespasseth and synneth thorowe ignorance in anye of the hye thynges of the Lord, he shall bringe for his trespass vnto the Lord a Ramme without blempe oute of the flocke valued at two sheles, after the spele of the sanctuary, for a trespass offering. And he shall make amendes for the harme that he hath done in the holie thyng, and put the fyfte parte more too, and geue it vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym with the ramme of the trespass offering, and it shall be forgiven hym.

When a soule synneth and committeth anye of these thynges whiche are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lord, though he wylle it not, he hath yet offended and is in synne, and shall bringe a ramme without blempe oute of the flocke that is esteemed to be worthe a synne offering, vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorance whiche he did, and was not ware, and it shall be forgiven hym: This is a trespass offering, for he trespassed agaynst the Lord.

The .vi. Chapter.

Of the offerings for synnes whiche are don wyllynge. The law of burnt offerings. The lawe must abide euermore vnto the altar. The offerings of Aaron and his sonnes.

And the Lord commaunded Moyses sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespasseth agaynst the Lord, and is denyed vnto his neyghboure that whiche was taken hym to kepe, or that was putte vnder his hande, or that whiche he hath violently taken away, or that whiche he deceyued his neyghboure, or with subtiltye, or hath founde that whiche was losse and denpeth it, and sweareth falsly in whatsoeuer thyng it be that a man dothe, and synneth therein.

Then when he hath synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he took violently away, or the wynges whiche he did, or that whiche was deceyued him to kepe, or the losse thyng whiche he founde, or whatsoeuer it be aboute whiche he hath sworne falsely, he shall * restore it agayne in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte more thereto, and geue it vnto hym to whome it pertayneth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespass, and shall bringe for his trespass offering vnto the Lord a ramme without blempe oute of the flock that is esteemed worthe a trespass offering vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym before the Lord.

Restitucion muste be made vnto our neyghboure by satisfaction, and vnto god by restitution.

Lord and it shall be forgiven him, in what soeuer thinge it be that a manne doth and trespasseth therein.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: Commande Aaron and hys sonnes, saying: this is the lawe of the burnt offering. The burnt offering shall be vpon the hearth of the altar all upght vnto the morninge, and the fyre of the altar shall burne therein. And the prieste shall putte on hys linnen albe, and hys linnen breeches vpon hys fleshe, and take awaye the ashes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the altar hath made, and putte them besyde the altar, and then put of hys raimente, and put on other, and carpe the ashes wth out the hooke vnto a cleane place.

The fyre that is vpon the altar shall burne therein, and not go out. And the priest shall put wood on the fyre every morninge, and put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne thereon the fatte of the peace offerings. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the altar, and neuer go oute.

This is the lawe of the meate offering: Aarons sonnes shall bryng it before the Lord, vnto the altar: and one of them shall take hys handfull of the flour of the meate offering and of the oyle wth al the frankincense whiche is thereon, and shall burne it for a remembrance vpon the altar, to be a sweete sauoure of the memoriall of it vnto the Lord. And the rest thereof, Aaron and hys sonnes shall eat vnto leuend: it shall be eaten in the holpe place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of witness they shall eat it. The parte whiche I haue geuen them of my sacrifice shall not be bakyn with leuen, for it is mooste holpe, as is the synne offering, and trespase offering. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eat of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generations of the sacrifices of the Lord: neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed.

That is appointed to minister.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: this is the offering of Aaron and of hys sonnes whiche he shall offer vnto the Lord in the daye when they are anointed: the tenth parte of an epha of flour: whiche is a dayly meate offering perpetual: halfe in the morninge and halfe at nyght: and in the fyinge panne it shall be made with oyle. And when it is fyled, thou shalt bryng it in as a baken meate offering mynsed small, and shalt offer it for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And that prieste of hys sonnes that is annointed in hys steade shall offer it: and it shall be the Lordes dutye for euer, and it shall be burnt altogether. For all the meate offerings of the priestes shall be burnt altogether, and shall not be eaten.

And the Lord talked with Moses, saying: speake vnto Aaron and vnto his sons and saye. This is the lawe of the synne offering. In the place where the burntofferinge is kylled, shall the synne offering be kylled also before the Lord, for it is moost holpe. The prieste that offereth it, shall eat it in the holpe place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of witness. No man shall touche the fleshe thereof save he that is halowed. And if anye raimente be spynckled therewith, it shall be washed in the holpe place, and the earthen pottle that it is soden in, shall be broken. If it be soden in brasse, then the pottle shall be scoured and rynsed in water. All the males amonge the priestes shall eat thereof, for it is moost holpe. Notwithstandyng no synne offering that hath hys blood brought into the tabernacle of witness to reconple wth in the holpe place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

Leuit. xv. b

The. vii. Chapter.

Trespase offerings, synne offerings and peace offerings. The fatte and the bloude maye not be eaten.

This is the lawe of the trespase offering whiche is mooste holpe. In the place where the burnt offering is kylled, the trespase offering shall be kylled also, and hys blood shall be spynckled round aboute vpon the altar. And al the fat that couered the inwardes and the two kidneis wth the fatte that lyeth on them and vpon the lynes, and the kail on the luer, shall be taken awaye wth the kidneis: and the priest shall burne them vpon the altar, to be an offering vnto the Lord: this is a trespase offering.

A trespase offering is that whiche was made for the people as well as for the synners as well as for the saint god, as for neyghbours.

All the males amonge the priestes shall eat thereof in the holpe place, for it is moost holpe. As the synne offeringe is, so is the trespase offeringe, one lawe serueth for bothe. And it shall be the priestes that reconpleth therewith. And the priest that offered a mannes burnt offering shall haue the skynne of the burnt offering whiche he hath offered. And all the meate offerings that are bakyn in the oven, and all that is dressed vpon the gadron and in the fyinge pan, shall be the priestes that offereth them. And al the meate offerings that are mingled with oyle or dype, shall pertayne vnto al the sons of Aaron, and one shall haue as much as an other.

This is the lawe of the peace offerings whiche shall be offered vnto the Lord. If he offer to geue thanks, he shall bryng vnto hys thanke offering, sweete cakes mingled wth oyle and sweete wafers annointed with oyle, and cakes mingled with oyle of fyne flower fyled, and he shall bryng hys offering vpon cakes made of leuend bread vnto the thank offering of hys peace offering and of them all, he shall offer one too be an heaue offering vnto the Lord, and it shall be the priestes that spynckleth the bloude of the peace offerings. And the flesch of the thanke offering of hys peace offerings shall be eaten the same daye, that it is offered, and there shall none of it be laid up vnto the morrowe.

That is a If it be a * boue of a fre wpll offeringe gyfte accu- that he bringeth, that same daye that he offomed to be fereth it, it shall be eaten, & that remaneth offered to shal be eaten on the morrowe, but as much god bi some of the offered fleshe as remaneth vnto the outward ce thirde daye, shall be burnt wth fyre. For remayne, if anye of the fleshe of the peace offerings be eaten in the thirde daye, then shall he be cut off from his people, neither shall he be returned vnto him, but shall be an abhomination, and the soule that eateth of it, shall be cut off from the synne thereof.

C The fleshe that toucheth anye vnclene thyng, shall not be eaten, but burnt wth fyre: and al that be cleane in their flesh, may eate fleshe. If anye soule eate of the fleshe of the peace offerings that pertaine vnto the Lorde, and hys vnclennesse yet be vpon hym the same soule shall perishe oute of hys people. Moreover if a soule toucheth anye vnclene thyng, whether it be the vn-clennes of man, or of anye vnclene beast, or anye abhominacion that is vnclene, and then eate of the fleshe of the peace offerings which pertaine vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perishe from his people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say-
inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: ye shall eate no manner fatte of Oten, shepe, or gootes: yet the fatte of the beaste that dyeth alone, and the fat of that whiche is torne wth wilde beastes, may be occupied in all manner vses: but ye shall in no wyse eate of it. For whosoever ea-teth the fatte of the beaste of whiche men bring an offeringe vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall perishe frome hys people.

Leu. xlii. d. Moreover ye shall eate no manner of bloude wheresoever ye dwell, whether it be of soule or of beaste. What soever soule it be that eateth anye manner bloude, shall perishe from hys people.

And the Lorde talked wth Moses, say-
inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: he that offereth hys peace offeringe vnto the Lorde, shall bringe his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his peace offeringe: his owne handes shall bringe the offeringe of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the brest he shall bringe wth the brest, to waue it as a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And the priest that burne the fatte vpon the altar, and the brest shall be Aarons and hys sons.
And the righte shoulder they shall geue vnto the priest, to be an heue offeringe, of their peace offerings. And the same that offereth the bloud of the peace offerings & the fat amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the righte shoulder vnto his part, for a waue brest & a heue shoulder I haue take of the chyldre of Israel, eue of their peace offerings. I haue geue it vnto Aaron the priest, and vnto his sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the annointyng of Aaron, and of the sacrifices of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offered to the pyres vnto the Lorde, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be geuen them in the daye when he annoynted them, of the chyldren of Israel, and to be a dutye for euer amonge theyr generacions. This is the lawe of waue offeringes, of meate offerings, of synne offeringes, of trespass offerings, of full offerings, of peace offerings, whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mount Synay, in the daye when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer their offerings vnto the Lorde in the wyldernes of Synay.

The viii. Chapter.

The annointyng and consecration of Aaron and hys sonnes.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, A sayinge: take Aaron and his sonnes wth hym, and the bestures and the annointyng oyle, and an Oie for a synne-offeringe, and two rammes, and a baskette of sweete breade: and gather al the commentye together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse. And Moses dydde as the Lorde commaunded hym, and the people gathered them selues together, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse. And Moses sayde vnto the people: this is the thing whiche the Lorde commaunded to do.

And Moses broughte Aaron and hys sonnes and washed them with water, and putte vpon hym the albe, and girded hym wth a gyrdell, and put vpon hym the tu-nicle, and put the Ephod thereon, and girded hym wth the broidred gyrdle of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therewith.
And he putte the brestlap thereon, and put in the brestlap Urim and thummim. And he put the mitre vpon hys head, and put it vpon the myter, euen vpon the forefront of it the golden plate of the holy crown, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke the annointyng oyle, and annoynted the habitacion and all that was therein, and sanctified them, and sprinkled thereof vpon the altar seuen tymes, and annoynted the altar and al hys vessels, and the lauer with the faine, to sanc-tifie them. And he poured of the annom-tyng oyle vpon Aarons head, and annoynted him to sanctifye him. And he broughte Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and girded them wth gyrdles, and putte bo-nettes vpon their heades: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And the synne offeringe was broughte,
And Aaron and his sonnes put their hands vpon the heade of the Oie of the synne offering. And when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude, and put it vpon the hor-nes of the altar round about wth his finbypon the bottome of the aulter, and sanctified it, and reconpled it. And he took all the fatte that was bypon the inwardes, and the kail that was on the liver, and the two kidneys wth their fatte, and bourned it bypon the aulter. But the Ore, the lpyde, hys fleshe and hys Dunge, he burnt wth fyre wthoute the hooße, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

D And he brought the ramme of the blent offering, and Aaron and his sonnes putte their handes bypon the heade of the ramme, and it was kylled. And Moyses spynckled the bloude bypon the aulter rounde aboute, and cutte the Ramme in peces, and blent the heade, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and burnt the ramme euery whyle bypon the aulter. That was a burnt sacrifice of a sweet sauoure, and an offering vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he brought the other ram that was the full offering, and Aaron and hys sonnes putte their handes bypon the heade of the Ramme, and when it was slayne, Moyses took of the bloude of it, and putte it bypon the lpyde of Aarons ryghte eare, and bypon the thombe of hys ryghte hande, and bypon the grete toe of his ryghte foote.

Then wer Aarons sons brought: and Moyses putte of the bloude on the lpyde of the ryghte eare of them, and bypon the thombs of their ryghte handes, and bypon the grete toes of their ryghte feete, and spynckled the bloude bypon the aulter rounde aboute.

And he took the fatte and the rompe, and all the fat that was bypon the inwardes, and the kail of the lpyer, and the two kidneys wth their fatte, and the ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of sweete breade that was before the Lorde, he took one swete cake of oyled breade and one wafer, and put them on the fatte, and bypon the ryghte shoulder, and put altogether bypon Aarons handes, and bypon hys sonnes handes, and waured it a waue offering before the Lorde.

A And then Moyses took them from their handes again, and burnt them bypon the aulter, even bypon the burnt offering: these are the full offerings of a sweete sauoure, and a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moyses took þe best, and waured it a waue offering before the Lorde: of the Ramme of the full offerings: and it was Moyses part, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses took of the anoynting oyle, and of the bloude which was bypon the aulter, and spynckled it bypon Aaron, and bypon hys vestimentes, and bypon his sonnes, and on their vestimentes wth hym, & sanctified Aaron and his brethren, and his sonnes & hys sonnes vestures also. Then Moyses sayed vnto Aaron and hys sonnes: bop the fleshe in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there eate it wth the breade that is in the baskette of full offerings, as the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that whiche remaineth of the fleshe and of the breade, burne it wth fyre.

And se ye departe not from the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse seven dayes longe, till the dayes of your full offerings be at an ende. For seven dayes muste your handes be spiled, as they were this day, when the Lorde hath commaunded to do so, till ye be reconciled. Therefore ye shall byde in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse seven dayes long: and kepe the watche of the Lorde that ye departe not, for so I am commaunded. And Aaron & hys sonnes byd at that the Lorde commaunded by the handes of Moyses.

The. ix. Chapter.

The synne offerings of Aaron, for hym self, and for the people. Aaron himselfe and the people. The glory of the Lorde shal be seen. And he is coming to do aboute comynly the sacrifice.

A And the firste daye, Moyses called Aaron and hys sonnes, and the elders of Israel, and sayde to Aaron, take a calfe for a synne offering, a ramme for a burnt offering, both wthoute blemish, and bynge them before the Lorde. And vnto the elders of Israel he spake, sayinge: take ye an he goate for a synne offering, and a calfe and a lambe bothe two of a yere old and without blemish for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ram for a peace offering to offer before the Lorde, and a meate offering mingled wth oyle, for to daye the Lorde wyl appeare vnto you.

And they brought that whiche Moyses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the people came and stode before the Lorde. And Moyses sayde, this is that the Lorde commaunded ye should do: and then the glory of the Lorde shal appeare vnto you. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto the aulter, and offer thy synne offering, and make an attonement for þe and the people, and reconcile them also, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Aaron went to the aulter, and slew the calfe that was hys synne offering. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the bloud vnto hym, and he dypt hys spnger in the bloude, and put it bypon the hornes of the aulter, and poured the bloude vnto the bottome of the aulter. And the fat and the two kidneys wth the kail of the lpyer of the synne offering he burnt bypon the aulter, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. But the fleshe and the lpyde, he burnt wth fyre wthoute the hooße. Afterwarde he slew the burnt offering, and Aarons sonnes brought the bloud vnto him, and he spynckled it rounde aboute bypon the aulter. And they brought the burnt offering vnto him in peces, and the heade also, and he burnt it bypon the aulter, and byd waue the inwardes, and the legges, and burnt them also bypon upon the burnt offering in the aulter.

And then he brought the peoples offering and toke the gote that was þ peoples syn offering, and slewe it, and offered it for a syn offering: as he dyd the first. And then brought the burnt offering, & offered it as the maner was. & brought the meat offering and filled his hand therof, and burnt it upon the aulter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the morning.

Then he slewe the ore and the ram that were the peoples peace offerings. & Aarons sonnes brought the bloude vnto him, and he spyruckled it vpon the aulter round about, and toke the fat of the ore and of the ram: the rumpe and the fat that couereth the inwardes and the kidneies and the kail of the luer, & put them vpon the breasts, and burnt it vpon the aulter: but the breasts and the right shoulders Aaron waied before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp his hand ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe fro offering of syn offerings burnt offerings and peace offerings. The Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of witness, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glory of the lord appeared vnto al þ people. And there came a fyre out from the lord, and consumed vpon the alter, the burnt offering and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and shoted, and fel on their faces.

The x. Chapter

Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneþ for the. The priestes are forbidden wine. The residue of the sacrifice the priestes eat.

* Good incense shall be made without the wynde of god.

* That is, honoured and obeyed.

And * Nadab and Abihu the sons of Aaron toke either of theyn his censur, and put fire therein, and put censur vpon, & broughte straunge fyre before the Lorde, wherof he commaunded them not: and ther went a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed them, and they dyed before the lord. Then Moses sayd vnto Aaron: this is that the lord spake saying: I will be sanctified in them that come npe me, and before al the people I will be glorified. And Aaron helde his peace. And Moses called Misael and Elaphan the sons of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and sayd to them: Go and carrye your brethren from the holpe place out of the host. And they went to them and carried them in theyr albes out of the host as Moses bad.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron and Elazar and Jthamar his eldest sons. Vncouer not your head, neither rent your clothes, lest ye die, and wiath come vpon al the people. let your brethren the hole house of Israel be wepe the burninge whiche the Lorde hath burnt. But go ye not out by the doore of the tabernacle of witness, lest ye dye: for the anoyntinge oyle of the lord is vpon you. And they did as Moses bad.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, saying: Drynke no wyne ne stronge drinke, neither thou nor thy sons with the when ye go in to the tabernacle of witness, lest ye die. And let it be a lawe for ever vnto your children after you, that ye maye put difference betwene holy and unholy, betwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye may teach the children of Israel al the ordinaunces whych þ Lorde hath commaunded them by the handes of Moses.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron, and vnto Elazar and Jthamar his sonnes that wer left. Take þ meat offering that remaineth of the sacrifices of the lord, and eat it with out leuen besyde the aulter, for it is moste holy: eat it therfore in the holy place, because it is thy due and thy sons due of the sacrifice of the Lorde: for so I am commaunded. And the wauebrest & heue shoulder eat in a cleane place: both thou and thy sons, and thy daughters with the. For it is thy due, and thy sons due wth the, of the peace offerings of the chyldren of Israel. For the heue shoulder, and the wauebrest whych they bunge wth the sacrifices of the fat, to waue it before the Lorde shall be thyne, and thy sonnes wth the: and be a lawe * for ever, as the Lorde hath commaunded.

And Moses sought for the gote that was the syn offering, and se it was burnt. And he was angry with Elazar and Jthamar the sons of Aaron, wherof he wrote alpeur, saying: wherefore haue ye not eate the syn offering in the holy place, seing it is moste holy: and for as much as it is geuen you to beate the syn of the people, and make agreement for them before the lord? Behold, the bloude of it was not brought in within the holy place, therfore hold ye haue eate it in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron sayd vnto Moses: behold, this dai haue they offered the syn offering and they burnt offering before the Lorde, & it is chaunced me after this maner. * If I holde eate of the syn offering to day, wold the lord be content with al? And when Moses heard that he was contente.

Of beastes which be cleane and which be vncleane.

And the lord spake vnto Moses & Aaron, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, & say: these are the beastes whych ye shal eate amonge al the beastes þ are on þ earth: what soeuer hath hofe & deueth it into two clauies, and cheweth cud, among þ bestes, þ shal ye eate. But these shal ye not eate of the that chewe cud and haue hofes. The Camell, for he cheweth cud, but he deueth not the hofe into two clauies, therfore he is vncleane vnto you. And the cony, for he cheweth the cud, but deueth not the hofe into two clauies, therfore he is vncleane to you. And the hare, for he like wyse cheweth the cud, but deueth not the hofe into two clauies, he is therfore vncleane.

And al maner drinke that is dronke in al maner such vessels shal be vncleane. And whether it be on a ketle it shal be broken. For they are vncleane, & shal be vncleane vnto pou. offere them before the lord, and make an attonement for him, and so the shal be purged him that hath borne a child, whether it be male and the other for the synoffering. And the pnest shal make an attonement for her, and she shal be cleane.

The xiii Chapter.

The pnestes are appoynted to iudge who are leprose.

And the lord spake vnto Moses, and vnto Aaron, saying: when ther appereth a rpsing in a mans flesh, ept her a scab, or a glistering whyte: as though the plage of leprose were in the skinne of hye flesh, let him be brought vnto Aaron the pnest, or vnto one of his sonnes the pnestes. * And let the pnest loke on the soze that is in the skin of hye flesh. If the herre in the soze be turned vnto whyte, & the soze also seme to be lower then the skin of his flesh, then it is surely a leprose, and let the pnest loke on hym, and iudge him vncleane.

If ther be but a white plecter in the skin of hye flesh, and seme not to be lower then the other skin, nor the herre thereof is turned vnto whyte, then let the pnest shut him vp seven daies. And let the pnest loke vpon him the seventh day: if the soze seme to him to abyde still, & to go no further in the skin, then let the pnest shut him vp yet. vii. daies mo. And let the pnest loke on him again the seueth day. When if the soze be waxed blackish, & is not growen abrode in the skinne, let the pnest make him cleane, for it is but a skint. And let him wash his clothes, & then he is cleane: But if the scab grow in the skin after that he is sene of the pnest againe: if the pnest se that the scab be growen abrode in the skin, let him make him vncleane: for it is surely a leprose.

If the plage of leprose be in a mā, let him be brought vnto the pnest, & let the pnest se him. If the rising appere whyte in the skin, & haue also made the herre whyte, and there be rawe flesh in the soze also, then it is an old leprose in the skin of his flesh. And the pnest shal iudge him vncleane, and shal not shut him vp, for he is vncleane.

If a leprose breake out in the skin, & couer al the skin from the head to the fote ouer all, wherfoeuer the pnest loketh, the let the pnest loke vpon him. If the leprose haue couered al his flesh, let him iudge & disease him cleane, for in as muche as he is altogther whyte, he is cleane. But if there be raw flesh on hym when he is sene, then he shal be vncleane. Therefore when the pnest seeth the rawe flesh, let the pnest iudge hym vncleane.

For in as muche as his flesh is rawe, he is vncleane. And it is surely a true leprose. But if the rawe flesh depart againe, & chaunge in to whyte, let him come to the pnest, & let the pnest se him. If the soze be changed vnto whyte, let the pnest iudge the disease cleane, and then he is cleane.

When ther is a blem in the skinne of any mans flesh, and is healed, and after in the place of the blem there appere a whyte rpsing, ept her a rpsing whyte, somwhat lesser, let him be sene of the pnest. If when the pnest seeth him, it appere lower then the other skin, and the herre thereof be chaunged vnto whyte, let the pnest iudge hym vncleane: for it is a verp leprose, that is brokē oute in the place of the blem. But when the pnest loketh on it, ther be no whyte her-res therein, neither the scab lower then the other skin, and be somwhat blackish, then the pnest shal shut him apart seven daies.
If it spread abrode in the neane season, let the pnest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprose. But if the glistering whyte abide still in one place, and go no further, then it is but the pñe of the blem, and the pnest shal iudge hym cleane.

When the skin of any mans flesh is burnt with fyre that it be raw, and ther appere in the burning a glistering whyte that is som-what redde, or altogther whyte, let the pnest loke vpon it. If the herre in & bright-nesse be chaunged to whyte, & it also appere lower then the other skin, then it is a leprose that is broken out of the place of the burning. And the pnest shal iudge hym vncleane, for it is a leprose. But if (when the pnest loketh on it) he see ther is no whyte herre in the brightnes, & that it is no lower then the other skin, and that it is also blackish, then let the pnest shut him vp seven daies. And if, when the pnest loketh on him the seventh day, it be growen abrode in the skin, let him iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprose. But if that brightnesse abyde still in one place, and go no further in the skin and be blackish, then it is but a rpsing in the place of the burning, and the pnest shal make him cleane: for it is but the pñe of the burning onely.

When ept her man or woman hath a bre-king out vpon the head or the beard, let the pnest se it. And if it appere lower then the other skin, and there be therein golden her-res and thynne, let the pnest iudge him vncleane, for it is a breakinge out of leprose vpon the head or beard. If (when the pnest loketh on the breakinge out) he se it is no lower then the other skinne, and that there are blacke herres therein, let hym shut hym vp seven daies. And let the pnest looke on the disease the seventh day: and if the breaking out be gone no further, nept her be any golde herres therein, neither the scab be lower then the other skin, then let hym be chaunen, but let him not haue the scab: and ther it be in the warpe or wole of the linnen, thyng made of skyn, if the disease be pale or somewhat red in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wole, or any thyng that is made of skyn, then it is a berry leprosy, and muste be shewed vnto the priest. And when the priest seeth the plage, let him shut it vp seuen dayes, & let him loke on the plage the seuenth daye. If it be increased in þe cloth, whether it be in the warp or wole, or in a skynne, or in any thing that is made of skyn, the plage is a freating leprosy, and it is vncleane: and that cloth shall be burnt, epyther warpe or wole, whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thyng that is made of skyn wherein the plage is, for it is a freating leprosy, and shall be burnt in the fyre.

If the priest se that the plage hath freate wash the thyng wherein the plage is, and ged his fashion, though it be spred no fur-it in the fyre, for it is freate inward: whether in part or in all. But if the priest se it som-what blackish after it is washed, lette him rent it out of the cloth, or out of the skyn,

And if it appeare any more in the cloth either in the warpe, or in the wole, or in any ther it be in the warpe or wole, or in any

The xiiii. Chapter.

The cleansing of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

ing: This is the lawe for a leper whē he shall be cleansed: he shall be brought vnto the priest, and the priest shall go forth wthout the hoste and loke vpon hym. If the plage of leprosy be healed in the leper, then shall the priest commaund that ther be brought for him that shall be cleansed two liuing byrds that are cleane, and cedar wood, and a piece of purple cloth & plope. And the priest shall commaund that one of the byrdes be kylled in an earthen vessel wth renning water. And the priest shall take the lpyng byrd and the cedar wood, & the purple, and the plope, & shall wype them and the lpyng byrd in the bloude of the kylled byrd, & in the renning water, and sprynckle it vpon him that must be cleansed of hys leprosy seuen times, and cleanse hym, and shall let the lpyng byrd go fre into the fieldes.

And he that is cleansed shall wash his clothes, and haue of al hys herre, & wash hym self in water, and then he is cleane. And after that he shall come into the host, but shall tape without his tent seuen dayes. When the seuenth day is come, he shall haue of al his herre, both vpon hys head, and hys beard, & on hys browes, and euen all the herre that

And then let them sle the lamb in the place where the spnoffering and the burnt offering were slayne: euē in the holy place. For as the spnoffering is, euē so is the trespass offering of the priestes, for it is most holy.

E Then let the priest take of the bloud of the trespass offering, & put it vpon the tpy of the right eare of him that is clesed, & vpon the thombe of his right hand, and vpon the great toe of his right fote. The priest take of the logge of ople, and poure it into the palme of his left had, and dip his right spnger in the ople that is in the palme of his left hand, & let him spunkle it with his finger seuen times before the Lord. And the rest of the ople is in the priestes hand, he shall poure vpon the head of hym that is clesed: and so shall the priest make an attonement for him before the Lord.

Then let the priest offer the spnoffering, & make an attonement for him that is clesed for his uncleynesse. And then let the burnt offering be slayne, and let the priest put both the burnt offering and the meat offering vpon the altier: and make an attonement for him, and then he shall be cleane. And lette hym bringe them the righte daye for his cleansing vnto the priest to the dole of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lord.

D And let the priest take the lamb that is the trespass offering, and the logge of the ople, and waue them before the Lord. And when the lambe of the trespass offering is kplied, the priest shall take of the bloud of the trespass offering, and put it vpon the tpy of his right eare that is clesed, and vpon the thombe of his right hand, & vpon the great toe of his right fote. And the priest shall poure of the oyle into his right hand, & shall spunkle with his spnger of the ople that is in his left hand seuen tymes before the Lord.

And the priest shall put on the ople that is in his hand (vpon the tpy of the right eare of him that is clesed, and vpon the thombe of his right hand, and vpon the great toe of his right fote: euē in the place where the bloud of the trespass offering was put. And the reste of the ople that is in his hand, he shall poure vpon the head of him that is clesed: to make an attonement for him before the lord. And he shall offer one of the turtle doves, or of the yonge pygions, such as he can get: the one for a spnoffering, and thother for a burnt offering vpon the altier. And so shall the priest make an attonement for him that is clesed before the lord. This is the law of him that hath the plague of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get that belongeth to his cleansing.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses & Aaron, saying: when ye come vnto the land of Canaā, whiche I geue you to possesse: if ye put the plague of leprosy in the house of the lade of your possesid, let him sheweth the house go & tell the priest, saying: me thynke that ther is as it were a leprosy in this house. And the priest shall commaund them to wydde all thyng forth of the house, before the priest, enter to see the plague: that he make not all that is in the house vncleane, and then the priest shall go in, and see the house.

If the priest se that the plague is in the walles of the house, & that ther be holow crakes pale or red, whiche seme to be lower then the other partes of the wall, then lette the priest go out at the house doores, and shutte vp the house for vii dayes. And let the priest come again the seventh day and se it: if the plague be increased in the wals of the house, let the priest commaund them to take away the stones in which the plague is, and let the cast them in a foule place wthout the ctyte, & scrape the house wthin roundabout: and poure out the dust without the ctyte in a foule place. And let them take other stones, and put them in the places of these stones, and other morter, & plaster the house wth. If now the plague come agayne, and breake out in the house, after that they haue taken awaye the stones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is plastered anewe: lette the priest come and se it. And if then he perceyue that the plague hath eaten further in the house, it is a fretting leprosy that is in the house, & it is vncleane. Then they shall breake downe the house: both stones, timbre, and al the morter of the house, and carreyt forth of the ctyte vnto a foule place. Moreouer he that goeth into the house all the whyle it is shut vp, shall be vncleane tyll nyghte. And he that slepeth in the house, shall washe his clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall wash his clothes.

But if the priest come and see that the plague hath spred no further in the house after it is new plastered, then let him make it cleane, for the plague is healed. And let hym take to cleanse the house with: two byrdes, cedar wood, and purple cloth, & psope. And let hym kply one of the byrdes in an earthen vessell wth runninge water: and take the cedar woode, the psope, the purple, and the lypung byrde, and dippe them in the bloud of the slayne byrde, and in the running water, and spunkle vpon the house seuen tymes, and cleanse the house wth the bloude

And he shall let the lypunge byrde fly forth of the towne into the wilde felde, & so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the law of leprosy.

The manner of purging the vncleane both of men and women.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses & Aaron, saying: Speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, & say vnto them: euery man that hath a running pſſue in his fleshy, is vncleane by reason of his pſſue. And hereby shall it be knowen when he is vncleane. If his fleshy runne, or if his fleshy congele by the reason of his pſſue, then he is vncleane. Euery couche wheron he lyeth, and euery thyng wheron he sitteth, shall be vncleane. He that toucheth his couche, shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, and be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that sitteth on that wheron he lye, shall washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe wth water, & be vncleane vntill the euenyng. And he that toucheth his fleshy, shall wash his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If any such spyt vpon him that is cleane, he must washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen.

Whatsoever sabel that he rydeth vpon shall be vncleane. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any such thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: & whosoever he toucheth (if he haue not first washed his handes in water, must washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euenyng. And if he touche a vessel of earth, it shall be broken: and al vessels of woode, shall be rſed in water.

When he that hath an pſſue is clenſed of his pſſue, let him numbre seven daies after he is cleane, and washe his clothes, & bathe his fleshy in running water, and then he is cleane. And the eighth day let hym take two turtle doves, or two ponge pygpons, and come before the Lorde vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and giue them vnto the priest. And the priest shall offer them: the one for a spynne offering, and the other for a burnt offering: and make an attonement for him before the Lorde concerning his pſſue.

If any mans sede departe from him in his slepe, he shall wash his fleshy in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And al the clothes of fures, wheron such sede changeth, shall

When a womans natural course of blood runneth, she shall be put aparte .vi. dayes: & whosoever toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth or sitteth vpon as long as she is put apart, shall be vncleane. And whosoever toucheth her couche, shall wash his clothes, & bath him selfe with water, & be vncleane vnto the eue. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that she lye vpon, shall wash his clothes, & wash him selfe also in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so whether he touch her couche or any thyng wheron she hath sptten, he shall be vncleane vnto the euen: and if a man lye wth her in the meane tyme, he shall be put aparte as well as she, and shall be vncleane seven dayes, & al his couche wheron he slepeth shall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme, beyond the tyme of her natural course: as long as her vncleannes runneth, she shall be vncleane, after the manner as when she is put aparte. Al her couches wheron she lyeth as long as her pſſue lasteth, shall be vncleane to her as her couche, when she is put apart. And whosoever she sitteth vpon, shall be vncleane as is her vncleannes when she is put apart. And whosoever toucheth them, shall be vncleane, and shall wash his clothes, and bath him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen.

But if she be cleane of her pſſue, let her count her .vi. dayes, after that she is cleane. And the eighth day let her take two turtles or two ponge pygpons, and bring them vnto the priest vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And the priest shall offer the one for a spynne offering, and the other for burnt offering: and so make an attonement for her before the Lorde, concerning her vncleane pſſue. Make the chyldren of Israel to kepe themselves from their vncleannes, that they dye not in their vncleannes: when they haue despyled my habitation that is amonge them.

This is the law of hym that hath a running soze, and of hym whose sede runneth from hym in his slepe, and is despyled therewith, & of her that hath an pſſue of bloude as long as she is put aparte, and of whosoever hath a running soze, whether it be man or womanne, and of hym that slepeth wth her that is vncleane.

And he shal put the holy linnen albe vpon hym, and shal haue a linnen breeche vpon his fleshe, & shal gird hym wth a linnen gyrdel, and put the linnen mytre vpon his head: for they are holy raymentes. And he shal wash his fleshe with water, and put them on. And he shal take of the multitude of the children of Israel two he goates for a synofferyng and a ram for a burntofferyng.

And Aaron shal offer the bullocke for his synofferyng, & make an attonement for him and for his house. And he shal take the two goates, and present them before the Lord in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shal caste lots ouer the two goates: one lot for the Lord, & an other for a scapegoate. And Aaron shal bynge the goate vpon which the Lords lot fel, and offer him for a synofferyng. But the goate on which the lot fel to escape, he shal set alyue before the Lord to reconple wth, and to let hym goe into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shal bynge the bullocke of his synofferyng, and make attonement for him selfe and for his householde, and kyll hym.

And then he shal take a censet ful of burntynng coles out of the altare that is before the Lord, & his handfull of sweete incense beaten smal and byng them within the vayle, and put the incense vpon the spie before the Lord: that the cloude of the incense maye couer the mercy seat, that is vpon the wytnesse that he dye not. * And he shal take of the blood of the bullock, & spynkle it with his synger before the mercy seat eastward: euen seuen tymes.

Then shal he kyll the goate that is the peoples synofferyng, & bynge his blood wth in the vayle, & do wth his bloude as he did with the blood of the bullock, and let hym spynkle it toward the mercy seat, and before the mercy seat: and reconple the holy place from the vncleynesse of the chyldren of Israel, and from theyr trespasses and all their syns. And so let him doo also vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that dwelleth wth them, euen among theyr vncleynesses.

* And ther shalbe no person in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, till he come forth again. And he shal make an attonement for hym selfe and his householde, and al the multitude of Israel. When he shal go forth vnto the aultare that standeth before the Lord, and cense it, and shal take of the bloude of the bullock, and the goate, and put vpon the hornes of the altare roundabout, and spynkle of the blood vpon it with his synger seuen tymes, and cense it, & halowe it from the vncleynesse of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath censed the holy place & the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, let hym byng the lyeue goate, and let Aaron put both his handes vpon the head of the lyeue goate, and confesse ouer him al the misdedes of the children of Israel, & their trespasses and all their syns: and let him put the vpon the head of the goate, and send him away by the handes of one that is acquainted in the wyldernesse. And the goate shal beare vpon him al their misdedes into the wyldernesse, and he shal let the goate go fre in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the linnen clothes which he put on when he wet into the holy place, and leaue them ther. And let him wash his fleshe wth water in the holy place, and put on his owne raiment, and then come out & offer his burnt offering & the burnt offering of the people, and praye for him selfe & the people, and the fat of the sinne offering let him burne vpon the altare. And let him that carryed forth the scapegoate, wash his clothes and bath his fleshe in water, and then come into the host agayne.

And the bullocke of the synofferyng and the goate of the synofferyng (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonement in the holy place) let one carpe forth wthout the host and burne with fyre: both theyr skynnes, their fleshe and their donge. And let him that burneth them, walsh his clothes and bath his fleshe in water, and so come into the host agayne. And this shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto pou. And eue in the tenth day of the seuenth moneth, ye shal humble your soules and shal do no worke at al: whether it be one of your selues or a straunger that sojourneth among pou, for that day shal an attonement he made for pou to cense you from al your synnes before the Lord, and ye shal be cleane. It shal be a Sabbath of rest vnto pou, and ye shal humble your soules, and it shal be an ordinaunce for euer.

And the priest that is anoynted and whose hand was fylled to minister in his fathers seide, shal make the attonement and shal put on the holy linnen clothes and holy vestmentes, and shal repourge the holpe sanc tuary and the tabernacle of wytnesse and the aultar, and shal make attonement also for the priestes and al the people of the congregacion. And this shal be an euertlasting ordinaunce vnto pou to make attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all theyr synnes ones & pere, and it was done eue as the Lord commaunded Moses.

The Notes.

Idoloch. (a) Under the name Idoloch, is forbidden all manner of Idolatry, specially the offeringe of children therunto for that was abominable being in it, vii. closets. The first was to offer there in fine flour, an other for turtledouers, the third for a shepe, the fourth, for a ram, the fift for a calf, the sixth for an ox. And for him that wold offer his son, was opened the vii. closet. And the face of this Idole was like the face of a calf, his hand made playne ready to receiue of them,

And though he the people of the land hideth his eyes from that fellow, when he giueth of his seide vnto Moloch, so that they kyl him not yet I wyl put my face vpon that man and vpon his generation, and wil destroye him and all that go a horpuge wprk hym and comit horpdom wprk Mo- loch from their people.

If any soule turne hym to enchanters or expounders of tokens and go a horung af- ter them, I wil put my face vpon þe soule & wil destroye him from his people. Sancti- fy your selues therfore, and be holy, for I am the lord your God. And se ye kepe mine ordinaunces and do them. For I am the lord which sanctifie you.

If a woman go vnto a beaſt & lye downe thereto, thou shalt kyl the woman and the beaſt also, they shall dye, and their bloud be vpon their heads.

If a man take his sister, his fathers daugh- ter or his mothers daughter & se her secretes and she se his secretes also, it is a wprked thing. Therefore let them perish in the sight of their people, he hath sene his sisters se- cretes, he shall therfore beate his spine.

No man that is deformed of the seede of spyle not the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel, whiche they haue offered vnto the Lorde, lest they lade themselves with misdoynge and trespass in eatyng thep halowed thynges, for I am the Lorde whiche halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake

Ceremonyes, Leviticus.

I speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all the children of Israel and saie vnto them, whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel or a stranger in Israel that will offer his offering: whatsoeuer vowe or fre wyl offering it be whiche they will offer vnto the Lord for a burnt offering to reconcele them selues, it must be a male without blemish of the open, shepe, or goates, let them offer no thinge that is deformed, for they shall get no fauoure.

If a man wyl offer a peace offering vnto the Lord, and seporate a vowe or a fre wyl offering of the open or the flocke, it must be without deformitie, & it may be accepted.

There maye be no blemish therein: whether it be blinde, broken, wounded, or haue a wenne, or be maunged or scabbed, see ye offer no such thinge vnto the Lord, nor put an offering of any such thinge vpon the altare vnto the Lord.

D An oxe or a shepe that hath any membre oute of proportion, mayest thou offer for a fre wyl offering: but in a vowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lord that is bruised, broken, plucked oute or cut awaie, neither shalt thou make any such thinge in your land, neither of a strangers hand shall ye offer an offering to your God of any such thinge. For they marre all in that they haue deformities in them, and therefore can not be accepted for you. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: when an oxe, a shepe, or a goat is broughte forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the dame. And from the eighth daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gift in the sacrifice of the Lord. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyll it and he poyng both in one daye.

* That is, geue thankes, prayse & magnifye the Lord.

When ye will offer a * thank offering vnto the Lord, ye shall so offer it, that ye maye be accepted. And the same day, it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it till the morowe. For I am the Lord, kepe now my commaundementes and do them, for I am the Lord. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the children of Israel. For I am the Lord whiche halowe you, and broughte you oute of the land of Egypte, to be your God: for I am the Lord.

Of the holy dayes, as the Sabbath, Easter, whylsomtyde, the feast of the first frutes, the feast of cleaunge, the feast of Trompettes, the feast of the tabernacles.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saie vnto them. These are the feastes of the Lord whiche ye shall call holy feastes. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, and the seventh is the Sabbath of rest an holpe feast: so that ye maye do no worke therein, for it is the Sabbath of the Lord, wherfoeuer ye dwell. moneth at euen is the Lordes * passeouer. And the firste daye of the same moneth is the feast of swete breade vnto the Lord, seuen dayes ye must eate unleuened bread. The first daye shall be an holpe feast vnto you, so that ye maye do no laborouse worke therein. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lord seuen dayes, and the seventh daye also shall be an holpe feast, so that ye maye do no laborouse worke therein.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: I speake vnto the children of Israel, & saie vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande whiche I geue vnto you and reape doune your harvest, ye shall bringe a shefe of the * first frutes of your harvest vnto your priest, and he shall waue the shefe before the Lord to be accepted for you: and eue the morowe after the Sabbath the priest shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when he waue the shefe, a lamb without blemish of a yere olde for a burnt offering vnto the Lord: and the meat offering therof, two tenth deales of fyne flour mengled with oyle to be a sacrifice vnto the Lord of a swete sauoure: and the drinke offering thereto, the fourth deale of an hynde of wyne. And ye shall eate neither breade, nor parched corne, nor anyment of new corne: vntill the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offering vnto your God. And this shall be a lawe for euer vnto your children after you, wherfoeuer ye dwell.

And ye shall counte from the morowe after the Sabbath: euen from the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waue offering, seuen weekes complete: euen vnto the morowe after the seuen weekes, ye shall number the firste dayes. And then ye shall bringe a newe meat offering vnto the Lord. And ye shall bringe out of your habitacions two waueloues made of two tenth deales of fyne flour leuened and baken, for first frutes vnto the Lord. And ye shall bringe wth the bread seuen lambes without deformitie of one yere of age, and one yonge oxe, and two rams, which shall serue for burnt offerings vnto the Lord, with meat offerings, and drinke offerings longynge to the same, to be a sacrifice of a swete sauour vnto the Lord.

And ye shall offer an he goate for a syn offering: and two lambes of one yere olde for peace offerings. And the priest shall waue them wth the bread of the first frutes before the Lord and wth the two lambes. And they shall be holpe vnto the Lord, and be the priestes. And ye shall make a proclamation the same daye, that it be an holpe feast vnto you, & ye shall do no laborous worke therein: And it shall be a lawe for euer thow out all your habitacions vnto your children after you.

* When ye reape doune your harvest, thou shalt not make cleane riddance of thy felde, neither shalt thou make anye aftergathering of thy harvest: but shalt leue the same vnto the the poore and the stranger, I am the Lord your God.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, speak unto the children of Israel and saye. The first daye of the seventh moneth shall be a rest of remembrance unto you, to blowe homes in, an holy feast it shall be, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein, and ye shall offer sacrifice unto the Lord.

And the Lord spake unto Moses saying: also the tenth daye of the selfe seventh moneth, is a daye of attonement, and shall be an holy feast unto you and ye shall humble your soules and offer sacrifice unto the Lord. Moreover ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of attonement to make an attonement for you before the Lord your God. For what soeuer soule it be that humblyeth not hymselfe that daye he shall be destroyed from bys people. And what soeuer soule doo anye manner worke that daye, the same I will destroye from my people. For ye do no manner worke therein. And it shall be a law for ever unto your generations after you in al your dwellings. A Sabbath of rest it shall be unto you and ye shall humble your soules. The .ix. daye of the moneth at even and the .x. daye from even to even agayne, ye shall keepe your Sabbath.

The feast of tabernacles of booths.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: speak unto the children of Israel, and saye: the .xv. daye of the same seventh moneth, shall be the feast of tabernacles vii. dayes unto the Lord. The first daye shall be an holy feast, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therein. Seven dayes ye shall offer sacrifice unto the Lord, and the .viii. shall be an holy feast unto you, and ye shall offer sacrifice unto the Lord. It is the ende of the feast, and ye shall doo no laborious worke therein.

These are feastes of the Lord whiche ye shall proclame holy feastes, for to offer sacrifice unto the Lord, but no offeringes meate or offerynges and drynke or offerynges euer ye daye: besyde the Sabbathes of the Lord, and besyde your gyftes, and al your vowes, and all your frewill offeringes whiche ye shall give unto the Lord.

Moreover in the .xv. daye of the seventh moneth after ye haue gathered in the frutes of the lande, ye shall keepe holy daye unto the Lord seven dayes longe. The first daye shall be a daye of rest, and the eighth daye shall be a daye of rest. And ye shall take you the first daye, the frutes of goodly trees, and the branches of palme trees, and the homes of chycke trees, and wyllowes of the brooke: and shall reioyse before the Lord seven dayes. And ye shall keepe it holy daye unto the Lord seven dayes in the year. And it shall be law for ever to your children after you, that ye keepe that feast in the seventh moneth. And ye shall dwell in booths seven dayes: even all that are Israelytes borne shall dwell in booths that your children after you maye knowe howe I made the children of Israel dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the lande of Egypt: for I am the Lord your God. And Moses told al the feastes of the Lord unto the children of Israel.

The. xxiiij. Chapter.

The oil for the lampes and lyghtes of the brade of remembrance of shewbread the which must be stoned he that killeth shall be hylled, etc.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: commaunde the children of Israel that they bringe unto the, pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes to putte in to the lampes alwaye, withoute the vaile of myracle within the tabernacle of myracle. And Aaron shall dresse them both even and morning before the Lord alwayes. And it shall be a law for ever among your children after you. And he shall dresse the lampes upon the pure candelsticks before the Lord perpetuallye.

And thou shalt take synecoure & bake twelve wafers thereof, two tenth partes shall be. And make two rowes of them, stre on a rowe upon the pure table before the Lord, and put pure frankincense upon the rowes. And it shall be bread of remembrance, and an offeringe to the Lord. Euer Sabbath he shall put therein in cornes before the Lord euermore, giuen of the children of Israel, that it be an everlastynge covenante. And they shall be Aaron and his sonnes, and they shall care therein in the holy place. For they are most holye unto him of the offeringes of the Lord, and shall be a due ty for ever.

That is shewbread, or halowed loaves.

And the son of an Israelite the worse whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel. And this sonne of an Israelite his wife and a man of Israel stroue together in the host. And the Israelite the womans sonne blasphemed the name of the Lord and cursed, & they brought him unto Moses. And his mothers name was Samlath, the daughter of Dibir of the tribe of Dan: and they put him in a garde, that Moses should declare unto the what the Lord saide thereto. And the Lord spake unto Moses saying, bringe that blasphemed without the host and let al the children put their handes upon his head, & let al the multitude stone him. And they brought him unto the children of Israel saying, Whosoever curseth the Lord, shall beate his sinne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, shall dye for al the multitude shall stone him to death. And the stranger as wel as the Israelite if he curse the name, shall dye for it.

That is blasphemye gaineth by the lawes. Cursing.

He that killeth any man, shall dye for it, but he that killeth a beaste shall paye for it beaste for beaste. If a man mayne bys neyghboure, even as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye and to the for to the: euen as he hath harmed a manne, so shall he be mapmed agayne. So now he that kylleth a manne, shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner law amonge you: euen for the straunger as wel as for one of your selues for I am the Lord your God

And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel that they should bypunge hym that had cutted, out of the booste, and stoupe hym wyth stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commanded Moses.

The.xv.Chapter.

A The Sabbath of the seuen peeres and of þ peere of iohelle, otherwys called þ fiftiþ peere.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai, sayinge: speake vnto children of Israel, and say to them. When ye be come into the land whiche I gyue you let the land rest a Sabbath vnto the Lord. Six peeres thou shalt sowe thy speld, and six peere thou shalt cut thy vynes and gather in thy scutes. But the seuenth peere shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Saboth he it shall be and thou shalt neither sowe thy speld, nor cut thy vynes.

B The coyne that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not reape, neyther gather the grapes that growe wythout thy byessynge: but it shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto the lande. Neuerthelesse the Sabbath of the lande shall be meate in you: euen for the and thy seruaunte, and for thy mayde and for thy byed seruaunte, and for the straunger that dwelleth with the: and for thy catel, and for the beastes that are in thy land, that al the encrease thereof be meate. Then numbze seuen (a) weekes of peeres, that is, seuen times seuen peere: and the space of the seuen weekes of peeres myll be vnto the .xlii. peere. And then thou shalt make an hoine blowe: euen in the tenth day of the seuenth moneth which is the day of attonement. And then shalt ye make the hoine blow, euen thowout all your lande. And ye shall halowe the spfrierþ peere, and proclayme lybertie thowtome out the lande vnto all the inhabyters thereof. It shall be a peere of (b) iubely vnto you, and ye shall retourne: euery man vnto his possession, and euery man vnto his kyndred agayne. A peere of iubely shall that spfrierþ peere be vnto you.

Ye shall not sowe neyther reape the coyne that groweth by it selfe, nor gather þ grapes that growe wythout thy labour, for it is a peere of iubely and shall be holpe vnto you: howe be it, yet ye shall eate of the encrease of the felde. And in this peere of iubely ye shall retourne, euery man vnto his possession agayne.

When thou sellest ought vnto thy neyghboure or byelle of thy neyghbours hand, ye shall not oppresse one an other: but accordynge to the number of peeres after the (c) iubely peere, thou shalt bye of thy neyghboure, and accordynge vnto the number of scute peeres, he shall sel vnto the. Accordynge vnto the multitude of peeres, thou shalt encrease the pryce thereof, and accordynge to the fewnesse of peeres, thou shalt mynyshe the pryce: for the number of the scute he shall sel vnto the. And le that no man oppresse his neyghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God. Wherefore doo after myne ordynauces, and keepe my lawes, and doo them, that ye maye dwelle in the lande in safetye. And the lande shall gyue her scute, and ye shall eate your fill and dwell therein in safetye.

It ye shall say: what shall we eate the seuenth peere, in as muche as we shall not sowe nor gather in our encrease. I will sende my blessinge vpon you in the syxte peere, and it shall byynge loth fruite for thre peeres: and ye shall sowe the eyght peere, and eate of olde scute vntill the nynthe peere, and euen vntill bet scutes come, ye shall eate of olde store.

Whether the lande shall not be sold for euer, because that the lande is myne, and ye but straungers and sojourners with me and ye shall thowtome oute all the lande of your possession, let the lande goo home free agayne.

* When thy brother is waxed poore, and hath sold of his possession: if anye of his kin come to redeme it, he shall bye out that whiche his brother solde. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet if his hande can gette sufficient to bye it oute agayne, then lette hym counte howe longe it hath be solde, and deluyt the rest vnto hym to whome he solde it, and so he shall retorne vnto his possession agayne. But if his hande cannot get sufficient to restore it to hym agayne, then that whiche is sold shall remayne in the hand of hym that hath bought it, tyl the Jubely: and in the peere of Jubely it shall come out, and he shall retourne vnto his possession agayne.

If a man sel a dwelling house in a walled cytye, he maye bye it oute agayne any tyme within a hole peere after it is solde: and that shall be the space in which he may redeme it agayne.

But if it be not bought oute agayne wylch in the space of a full peere, then the house in the walled cytye shall be stablyshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it, and to his successours after him, and shall not go out in the peere of Jubely. But the houses in byllages whiche haue noo walles rounde aboute theym shall be counted lyke vnto the felde of the countrey, and maye be boughte oute agayne at any season, and shall goo oute free in the peere of Jubely.

Notwithstandynge the cytyes of the uptes and the houses in the ctyes of the p^rop^ressions, the Leuites may redeme at al seasons. And if a man purchase oughte of the Leuites: wherbet it be house or ctye that they possesse, the bargayne shall goo oute in the yere of Jubelpe: for the houses of the ctyes of the Leuites, are they possessions amonge the chyldren of Is^rael.

But the felde that lye roundabout the ctyes, shall not be boughte: for they are they possessions for euer.

If thy brother be wared poze and fallen in decay wth the, receyue hym as a stranger or a sojourner, and lette hym lye by the. * And thou shalt take none v^rsurpe of hym nor gaires. But shalt feare thy God, that thy brother may lye wth the. Thou shalt not lende hym thy money vpon v^rsur-pe, nor lende hym of thy sode to haue gaires by it: for I am the Lorde your God which haue brought you forth of the lande of Egypt, to geue you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

If thy brother that dwelleth by þ were poze and sell him selfe vnto the, thou shalt not let hym labour, as a bondseruaunte doth: but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a sojourner he shall be wth the, & shall serue the, vnto the yere of Jubelpe, and then shall he departe from the: both he and his chyldren wth hym, and shall retourne vnto his owne kynted agayne and vnto the possessions of his fathers: for they are my seruan-tes whych I broughte oute of the lande of Egypt, and shall not be sold as bōdmē.

So thetfore thou saygne not ouer hym cruellye, but feare thy God. If thou mylt haue bondseruautes and maydens, thou shalt be the of the beahten that are rounde aboute you, and of the chyldren of the straungers that are sojourners among you and of they generacions þ are wth you; whych they begate in your land.
And ye shall possesse them and geue them vnto your chyldren after you, to possesse them for euer: and they shall be your bond menne. * But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Is^rael, ye shall not rapne one ouer another cruellye.

When a stranger and a sojourner wareth wth þ the, and thy brother that dwelleth by hym warth poze and sel him selfe vnto the stranger that dwelleth by the, or to any of the straungers kynne: after that he is solde he may be redemed agayne: vnto of his brethren maye bpe hym or to the ther it be his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is vnto of the vnto hym of his kynted: eyther y^r his hand can get so much he may be loosed.

And he shall cecken wth hym þ bought hym from the yere in whych he was sold, vnto the yere of Jubelpe, and the price of hys bypge shall be accordyng to the number of yeres, and he shall be wth hym as a hyred seruaunte. If ther be yet man y^r les behynde, accordyng vnto them, he shall geue a gapne for þ & delpuaunce, of the money that he was solde for.

If there remayne but fewe yeres vnto the yere of Jubelpe, he shall counre wth hym, and accordyng vnto hys yeres geue hym agayne for his redemption, and shall be wth hym yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte, and the other shall not saygne cruelly ouer him in thy spghte. If he be not bought free in the mean tyme, then he shall go out in the yere of Jubelpe and hys chyldren wth hym: for the chyldren of Is^rael are my seruautes whych I broughte out of the land of Egypt.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Images are forbydden. Blessed are they þ kepe the thynges that God byddeth & mōt curled are they that kepe them not.

I am the Lorde your God. Ye shall make you no Idolles nor grauen ymage, neyther teate you vp any pyllet, neyther ye shall set vp any ymage of stone in your lade to bowe your selues thereto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe my Saboths and (a) feare my sanctuary for I am the Lorde.

If ye shall walk in mine ordinaunces & kepe my cōmaūdements and do them, the I will send you rayne in the tyme season, & your land shall yeld her increase, and the trees of the feld shall geue their frute. And the chiefringe shall reach vnto wyne harueste, and the wyneharuest shall reach vnto sowpge time, and ye shall eat your bread in plenteousnes, and shall dwell in your lade peasably. And I will sende peace in your lande, that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you a scape.

And I will cōd out euil beastes out of your lande, and there shall no swerde go thowm out your lande: And ye shall chase your ene-myes, and they shall fall before you vnto the swerde. And hye of you shall chare an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put tenne thousand to flight, and your enemies shall fall before you vpon the swerd. And I will touch vnto you and encrease you and multiple you, and set by my testamēt wth you.
And ye shall eat olde store, and cast out the 20. 22. 23. 24. 25. my soule shall not lothe you. And I wyl walcke among you, and wyl be your God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the Lorde your God, which broughte you out of the Lande of the Egypcyans, that ye shoulde not be theyre bondmen, and I brake the bowes of your pokes, and made you go wynght.

De. xlviii b Mala. ii. a.

* But if ye wyl not hearken vnto me, nor wyl do al these my commaundements or if ye shall despise my ordinaunces, euether if your soules refuse my lawes, so that ye wyl not doo all my commaundements but shall breake myne appoyntemente: then I wyl doo bys agayne vnto you: I wyl vsette you wth veracions, swelllunge and feuers, that shall make your eyes welell, and wth sorowes of hearte.
 And ye shall sowe your seede in vayne, for your enemies shall eate it. And I wyl sette my face agaynst you. And ye shall fall before your enemies, and they that hate you shall ragge ouer you, and ye shall be when no man pursueth you.

(b) And if ye will not yet for all this he-ken vnto me, then wyl I punishe you seuen tymes more for your synnes, and wyl breake the pride of your strengthe. For I wyl make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, and your Land as hyrde as bras.
 And so your labour shall be spent in vaine.
 For your Land shall not geue her en-crease neyther the trees of the land shall geue their frutes.

And if ye walke contrary vnto me, I wyl not heken vnto me, I wyl bynge seven tymes mo plagues vpon you according to your synnes. I wyl send in wilde beastes vpon you, which shall spoyle you of your chyldren & destroy your catel, and make you so fewe in number that your high wayes shall grow to a wilderness.

And if ye wyl not be learned yet, for all this, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I also walke contrary vnto you, and wyl punishe you yet (c). vii. tymes for your synnes. I wyl send a sword vpon you, that shall auenge my testamente wth you. And when ye are fled vnto your ctytes, I wyl send the pestilence among you, ye shall be geuen into the handes of your enemies. And when I haue broken the staffe of your bread, that your wyues shall bake your bread one ouen and men shall deliuer you your bread agayne by weight, then shall ye eate and shall not be filled.

And if ye wil not yet for all this heken vnto me, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then I wyl walke contrary vnto you also, wth fullpe and wyl also punishe you seuen tymes for your synnes: so that ye shall eate the flesh of your sonnes and the flesh of your daughters. And I wyl destroy your altars buyt vpon hygh hylles, and ouerthrowe your Images, and caste your carcases vpon the bodies of your Idols, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I wyl make your cities desolate and bynge your sanctuaries vnto naughte, and wyl not smel the sauours of your swete odours.

And I wyl bynge the lande vnto a wyl-dernesse, so that your enemies which dwell therein, shall wondre at it. And I wyl straw you amonge the heathen, and wyl drawe oute a sword after you, and your land shall be wast, and your cities desolate. When the land shall reopse in her sabbother, as long as it lyeth void & ye in your enemies land, euen then shall the land keepe holpe daye and reopse in her sabbother. And as long as it lyeth void it shall reaste, for that it coude not reaste in your sabbother, when ye dwelt therein.

And vpon them that are left alpye of you I wyl sende a fayntnesse into theyr heartes in the lande of theyr enemies: so that the sounde of a lease that talleth shall chase them, and they shall flee as though they fledde a swerde, and shall fall, noo manne folowinge them. And they shall fall one vpon an other, as it was before a swerd no manne pursuynge them, and ye shall haue no power to stand before your enemies. And ye shall perishe amonge the heathen, and the lande of your enemies shall eate you vpper.

And they that are left of you, shall pine awaye in theyr vnght councelle, euen in theyr enemies Lande, and also in the mysdoes of theyr fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse theyr mys-dedes, and the mysdedes of theyr fathers in theyr trespasses whiche they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walcked contrary vnto me.

Therefore I also wil walke contrary vnto them, and wyl bynge them into the land of theyr enemies. And then at lease wape their vnght hertes shall be tamed, and then then they shall make an at-tement for theyr mysdedes.

And I wil remember my bond with Jacob and my covenant with Isaac, and my testamente with Abraham and wil thynke on the lande. For the Lande shall be left of them and shall haue pleasure in her sab-bother, while they shall waste wthoute them, and they shall make an attement for theyr mysdedes, because they despised my lawes and theyr soules refused my ordinaunces. And yet for all þ when they be in the Lande of theyr enemye, * I wil not so caste them away, nor my soule shall not so abhorre them, that I wyl utterpe destroye them, and breake myne appoyntemente wth them, for I am the Lorde theyr God. I wyl therefore remembre vnto them the olde couenaunte made when I broughte them oute of the Lande of Egypte in the sight of the heathen to be then God: for I am the Lord.

These are the ordinaunces, iudgements and lawes whiche the Lord made between hym and the chyldren of Israel in mount Synai, by the hande of Moyses.

The Notes.

(a) To feare the Sanctuary, is diligently to performe the true worshyppe and seruyce of God, to leaue of nothyng, to obserue and keepe the purenes both of bodye and mynde be truly and not hypocritically to beleue that he knoweth, beholdeth, doth and ruleth all thynges: to beware of offendynge hym, and with all feare and diligence to walke in the pathes of hys lawes.

(b) When men se that God punyssheth them for theyr iniquyte, and yet wyl not repente and seke hys mercy, but be as menne fully against God and his fatherly chastityment: then wyl God encrease hys plagues, and at the length destroye them utterly, that he maye be knowne to be the almyghty Lord agaynste whome none can praye.

(c) By thys number seven, vnderstand here all erunes, as in thys Chap. x.

(d) The speakynge of the staffe of breadye, is the mynyng of the plenty therof, so that ther be scarcety of vytayls.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Of dedycate bowes and redempcyon of the same. Of tythes. &c.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayenge, speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any man wyl geue a synaguler vowe vnto the Lord accordyng to the value of hys soule then shall the male from twenty yere vnto lx. be set at .l. * cycles of syluer, after the scale of the Sanctuary, and the female of .xxx. cycles. And from syue yeres to twenty the male shall be set at .xx. cycles, and the female at .x. cycles. And from a moneth vnto .v. yeres, the male shall be set at .v. cycles of syluer, and the female at thre. And the man that is .lx. and aboue, shall be valued at .xx. cycles, and the woman at .x. If he be to pore so to be set, the let hym come before the prest: and let the prest value him accordyng as the hande of hym that vowd is hable to gette.

Ram. iii. g.

If it be of the beastes of which me bring an offering vnto the Lord: all that any man geueth of such vnto the Lord, shall be holpe. He may not alter it nor change it: a good for a bad or a bad for a good. If he change beest for beest, the bode of same beest & it al so wherwith it was changed shall be holp. If it be any maner of vnclene beest of whiche me may not offer vnto the Lord, let him bring the beest before the prest and let the prest value it. And whether it be good or bad as the prest setteth it, so shall it be. And if he wyl bye it agayne, let hym geue the fyft part more to that it was set at.

If any man dedycate his house, it shall be holp vnto the Lord. And the prest shall see whether it be good or badde, and as the prest hath set it, so it shall be. If he that sanctified it, wyl redeme hys house, lette him geue the fyft parte of the moneys that it was iudged at thereto, and it shall be his.

If a man halow a pece of his inherited laud vnto the Lord, it shall be set accordyng to that it beareth. If it beare an homer of barley, it shall be set at fyfte cycles of syluer. If he vowe hys land forthyth from the pece of Jubely, it shall be more accordyng as it is esteemed. But if he halowe hys feld after the trumpet yere, the prest shall recken the pryce wth hym accordyng to the yeres that remaine vnto the next yere, and thereafter it shall be lower set.

If he that sanctified the feld wyl redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyfte part of the pryce that it was set at therunto, & it shall be his, if he wyl not, it shall be redemed no more. But when the feld goeth oute in the pece of Jubely, it shall be holpe vnto the Lord: euen as a thyng dedycated, and it shall be the prestes posselion.

If a man sanctify vnto the Lord a feld, which he hath bought, and is not of hys inheritaunce, then the prest shall reaken wth hym what it is worth vnto the pece of Jubely, and he shall geue the pryce that it is set at the same day, & it shall be holp vnto the Lord. But in the pece of Jubely, the feld shall retorne vnto him of whom he bought it, whose inheritaunce of land it was.

And all setyng shall be accordyng to the holy scale. One scale maketh .xx. Becas.

But the syfte bove of beastes that pertaine vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctify: whether it be ore or shepe, for they are the Lordes alreadye. If it be an vnclene beest, then let him redeme it as it is set, & geue the fyft part more thereto. If it be not redemed the let it be sold as it is rated.

Notwithstandyng no dedycated thyng that man dedicateth vnto the Lord of all hys good, whether it be manne or beest or land of his inheritaunce, shall be sold, or redemed: for al dedycate thynges are most holp vnto the Lord. No dedycate thyng therefore that is dedycate of man, may be redemed, but must needs dye.

All these tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of the feld or frute of the trees, shall be holpe vnto the Lord. If any man wyl redeme ought of his tythes, lette him adde the fyfte parte more thereto. And the tythes of oxen and shepe and of al that goth vnder the herde mans keepynge, shall be holp tythes vnto the Lord. Men shall not looke if it be good or badde nor shall change it. If any man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged wthall shall be holpe, and maye not be redemed.

The Prologe

A prologe in to the fourth booke of Moses called Nu merre.

In the second and thirde booke they receyved the law. And in this iii. they begynne to worke & to practyse. Of whiche practysynge ye see many good ensamples of unbelieve & what freewill doeth, when the law is in hande to kepe þe law of his own power without helpe of faith in the promyses of God: howe the leueth by masters carchades by the wage in the wyldernes, and byngeth them not into the lande of rest. Why coulde they not enter in? Because of theyr unbelieve Hebrewes. iii. For had they beleued, so had they bene vnder grace, and theyr old synnes had bene forgivenen them, and power shuld haue ben geuen them to haue fulfilled the lawe thenceforth, and they shuld haue bene kept from al temptacions that had bene to stronge for them. For it is wyrtten. Johan. i. He gaue them power to be the Sonnes of God, thow they beleuyng in his name.

Howe to be the Sonne of God is to loue God and his commaundementes and to walke in his waye after the ensample of his Sonne Christe. But these people loue vpon them to worke without faith as thou seest in the first of this booke, where they woulde fight and al so did without þe word of promise: euen whē they were warned that they shoulde not. And in the xvi. agayne they woulde please god with theyr holý sayntlike workes for where Gods woide is not, ther can be no faith, but the type of God consumed theyr holý workes, as it dyd Nadab & Abihu Leuit. x. And fro these unbelievers turne theyr eyes vnto the wharffes whiche before the comynge of Christe in his fleisch had layd the fundacion of freewill after the same example. Whereon they built holý workes after theyr owne imaginacion without faith of the woide, so seruentlye that for the greates sake of them they slew the king of al holý workes, and the Lorde of freewill whych onely thowme his grace maketh the will free and leueth his frende bondage of syn, and geueth his loue and lustes vnto the lawes of god, and power to fulfill them. And so thowme theyr holý workes done by the power of freewill, they excluded themselves out of the holi rest of forgiveness of sins by faith in þe blood of Christ.

And then loke on our hypocrites whiche in like maner folowynge the doctryne of Apystolic and other heathen paganes, haue agaynst al the scripture set by free will agayne, vnto whose power they ascribethe the keepynge of the commaundementes of God. For they haue sette by wilful poutte of another maner then anye is commaunded of God. And the chastite of matrimony utterly dysped, they haue set by another wilful chastite not requiered of God, whiche they sweare, vow and professe to geue god, whether he will geue them or no, and compel al their disciples therunto, sayng that it is in the power of every mans freewill to obserue it, contrary to Christe to his Apostle Paule.

And the obedience of God and maner extorted, they haue bowed another wilful obedience to becomed of al the scripture whiche they wil yet geue God whether he wil or wil not.

And what is become of theyr wilful poutte? hath it not robbed the whole woide, & brought all vnder them? Can there be anye kynge or Emperoure or of whatlocuer degree it be, except he will holde of them and be sworne vnto them to be theyr seruante, to go and come at theyr luste, and to defende theyr quarelles bee they false or true? Theyr wilful poutte hath alreadye eaten vpe the whole woide and is yet syl greabyr then euer it was, in so muche that ten worldes mo were not inough to satisfye the hunger thereof.

Wherfore besides dayly corrupcion of other mens wits and open whordom, vnto what abominacions to falshe to be spoken of hath their voluntary chastite brought them?

And as for theyr wilful obedience, what is it, but the disobedience and the detraunce, both of al the lawes of god and man in so muche that if anye synne begynne to execute anye lawe of man vpon them, they curse him vnto the bottome of hel, and proclame him no right kynge, and that his lordes ought no longer to obey him, & interbrete his communt people as they were heathen turkes or Saracyns. And if any man prech the Gods law, him they make an heretike & burne him to ashes. And in steede of Gods law & mans, they haue set by one of theyr owne imaginacions whiche they obserue with dispensacions.

And yet in these workes they haue so greates contydence that they not onelye truste to be saued thereby, and to be higher in heauen then they that be saued thowme Christe: but also promyse to al other forgiuenesse of theyr syns thowme the merites of the same. Wherin they rest and teach other to rest also, excludynge the whole woide from the rest of forgiveness of synnes thowme faith in Christes blood.

And nowe saynge that faith onely letteth a man in vnto rest, and unbelieve excludeth him, what is the cause of his unbelieve? hee cleve no synne that the woide seeth, but a pope holpnes and a rightuounes of their owne imaginacion as Paule saith Roma. x. They be ignorant of the rightuounes wherewith God iustifieth and haue set by a rightuounes of their owne making thowme hath they be obedient, vnto the rightuounes of god. And Christe rebuketh not þe ha- riles for grosse sins whiche the woide lawe, but for those holý dedes whiche so blearde the eyes of the woide that they were taken as gods: euen for long prayers, for fasting, for tithing so diligent ly that they left not so much as theyr herbes vntouchid: for theyr cleannesse in washing before meate and for washing of cuppes bythes, and all maner vessels, for buydyng the Prophets, Sepulchres, and for keepynge the holy daye, & for turnynge the heathen vnto the fayth, and for geuyng of almes.

For vnto suche holý dedes they ascribede rightuounes, & therfore when the rightuouness of god was preached vnto them, they could not but persecute it, the deuill was so stronge in them whiche thynge Christe well describeth Luke. xi. saynge that after the deuill is caste out, he cometh agayne and fyndeth his house swepte and made gay, and then taketh seven worse wyse hem selfe, and dwelleth therein, and so is the end of that man worse then the beginninge. That is, when they be a lytle cleansed frome Grosse synnes whiche the worlde seeth and then made gape in theyr owne lyghte with the ryghteousnes of tradicions, then cometh leuen that is to save the whole power of the Deuyll, for leuen with the Hebrewes signifieth a multitude with oute number and the extremite of a thing, and is a speache borrowed (I suppose) oute of Genesis where is so ofte mention made of leuen.

Where I woulde save: I wyl punishe the that all the worlde shall take an example of the: there the Jewe woulde save, I wyl circumcise the or baptise the leuen tymes. And so here by leuen is mente all the deuylls of hell and all the might and power of the Deuil. For vnto what further byndnes could all the deuylls in hell byynge them, to make them beleue that they were iudged thowre theyr owne good workes.

For when they once beleued that they were purged from theyr synnes and made righteous: howe theyr owne holpe workes, what rowme was there left for the ryghteousnesse that is in Chyistes bloude Meddyng? And therefore whē they be fallen into thys byndnes they can not but hate and persecute the lyghte. And the more cleare and euidently theyr deedes be rebuked, the furiouslyer and malyciouslyer bynde are they vntyl they breake out into open blasphemy and synnyng agaynst the holpe Wholpe, whiche is the malycyouse persecutynge of the cleare trowth so manifestly proued that they can not once hysse agaynst it. As the Pharises persecuted Chyist because he rebuked theyr holpe deedes. And when he proued hys Doctryne with the scrptures and miracles, yet thought they could not improue him nor reaso agaynst him they thought that the scrpture must haue some other meaning because hys interpretacion vndermynded theyr foundacion and plucked vp by the rootes the trees whiche they had planted, and they ascribed also hys myracles to the deuyll. And in lyke maner though oure hypocrites canne not deny but thys is the scrpture, yet because there can be none other sence gathered thereof, but that ouer thoweth theyr byldyngs, therefore they euer shyke that it hath some other meaning then as the woordes sounde and that no manne vnderstandeth it or bid vnderstand it sence the time of the Apostles.

Or if they thynke the same that wrote vpon it sence the Apostles vnderstoode it: they yet think that we in lyke maner as we vnderstand not the text it self, so we vnderstand not the meaning of the wordes of the doctoure.

For when thou layest the iustifyinge of holpe workes, and denyst the iustifyinge of faythe, howe canst thou vnderstande Sapientia, Peter, Ihon, and the Actes of the Apostles or anye scrpture at all, saynge the iustifyinge of faythe is almoste all that they entred to proue.

Finally, concernyng bowes wherof thou readest Chapter. xix. there maye be many questions, wherunto I answer thusly, that we oughte to putte salte to al oure offerynges: that is, we oughte to minister knowledge in all oure workes, and to do nothyng wherof we could not geue a reason of gods worde.

We be nowe in the daye lyghte, and al the secretes of God and all hys counsaile and wyl is opened vnto vs, and he that was promysed shoulde come and blesse vs, is come already and hath the Meddyngs bloude for vs, and hath the blessed vs with all manner blessinges and hath obtained all grace for vs, and in hym we haue al. Wherefore God heretofore wyl receyue no more sacrifice of beastes on vs, as thou readest. Hebrew. x. If thou burne vnto God the bloude or fatte of beastes, to obtayne forgiveness of synnes thereby, or that God shoulde the better heare thy request, then thou doest wrong vnto his bloude of Chyist, and Chyist vnto the is deade in vayne. For in hym God hath promysed not forgiveness of synnes onely, but also what socer we aske to kepe vs from synne and temptacion wythal. And what if thou burne frankensence vnto him what if thou burne a candle, what if thou burne thy chastyte or vyrgynyte vnto hym for the same purpose, doest thou not lyke rebuke vnto Chyistes bloude?

Moreover, if thou offer golde, syluer or anye other good for the same entent, is there any difference? And eue so, if thou go in pilgrimage or fastyst, or goest wolwarde, or spyghelst thy selfe with holpe water or els whatsoeuer dede it is, or obseruest what socer ceremonies it be, for lyke meaninge, then it is lyke abhomyntation. We must therefore bynge the salte of the knowledge of Goddes worde with all oure sacrifices, or else we shall make no swete sauour vnto God thereof. Thou wylt aske me, shall I bowe nothyng at all? Yes, Goddes commaundement whiche thou hast bowed in thy baptism. For what entente verely for the loue of Chyiste whiche hath boughte the with hys bloude, and made the sonne and heire of God with hym, that thou shouldest waite on his wil and commaundement and purify thy members accordyng to the same doctrine that hath purged thyne hearte, for if the knoweledge of gods worde haue not purified thyne hearte so that thou consentest vnto the lawe of God that it is righteous, and good, and lawefulle, that thy members moue the vnto the contrary, so hast thou no parte with Chyist.

For if thou repente not of thy synne, so it is impossible that thou shouldest becometh Chyist he had deliuered the from the daunger thereof. If thou beleue not that Chyiste hath deliuered the, so is it impossible that thou shouldest loue gods commaundement.

If thou loue not the commaundementes, so is Chyistes hope not in the, whiche is the earnest of forgiveness of synnes and of Saluation.

For scrpture teacheth, for thy repentance then sayth in Chyiste, that for hys sake shouldest thou be forgiven to them that repente: then good workes, whiche are nothyng save the commaundementes of God onely. And the commaundementes are nothyng elsse save the healyng of oure neyghbours at theyr neede and the coming of oure members that they myght be pure also as the hearte to pure thowre hate of vice and loue of vertue, as Goddes worde teacheth vs, whiche workes must procede oure of fayth: that is I must do them for the loue whiche I haue too God for that grente mercye whiche he hath shewed me in Chyiste, or elsse I doo them not in the syght of God. And that I cannt not in the pain of the slepyng of the synne that is in my fleshe, myne heale is the promyse of the assistance of the power of God, and the comforte of the reward too come whiche reward I ascribe vnto the goodnesse, mercye, and truthe of the promysor that hath choise me, called me, taught me and geuen me the earnest thereof, and not vnto the merites of my doynges or sufferynge. For all that I do and suffer it but the way to the reward, and not the deservynge thereof. As if the kynge's grace shoulde promysse me to defend me at home in myne owne reame: yet the waye ther is thowwe the sea, wherein I myghte have suffer na litle trouble. And yet for al that, if I myghte lyue in rest when I come thither, I woulde thynke and so woulde other saye, that my paynes were well rewarded, whiche reward and benefite I woulde not proude ascribe vnto the merites of my paynes, taking by the way, but vnto the goodnes, mercifulnes, and constant traueth of the kynge's grace whose gyfte it is, and to whome the p. aple, and thanke theys of belougeth of due and righte. So now as reward is a gyfte geuen feele of the goodnes of the geuer, and not of the deservynge of the receyuer. Thus it appereth, that if I bow what socer it be, for any other purpose then to tame my members and to be an ensample of vertue & edifyinge vnto mine neighbour, my sacrifice is falshe and cleane wythoute salte, and my Lampe wythoute oyle, and I one of the falshe byrnys, and shalbe shut out from the feare of the hydegrome when I thynke my selfe mooste sure to entre in.

If I bowe voluntarie powerie, this muste be my purpose, that I will be contente with a competent lypunge whiche cometh vnto me by succession of mine elders or whiche I gette truelye with my labour in mynysstryng and doyng service vnto the comune wealthe in one offyce or in an other, or in one occupacion or other, because that riches and honour shal not corrupte my mynde and drawe myne hearte from God, and to geue an ensample of vertue & edifyinge to other, and that my neighbour may have a living by me as well as if I make a cloke of dissimulation of my bow, laying a net of flattery and beggerie to catch a superfluous abundance of riches and hye degrees, and authoritye, and thowwe the estimation of false holynesse to fede and mynne myne scrupulous conscience with the sweate, labour, and bandes, and tentes of other men after the ensample of oure spiritualtye robbing them of theyr saythe, and God of his honoure tournynge vnto myne bypocrisye that confidence whiche shoulde be geuen vnto the promyses of God onely, am I not a wolfe fore, and ravenynge wolfe in a lambe skynne, and a painted sepulchre, saye wythoute and fylthy wythyn. In lyke manner though I seke no worldly promotion therby, yet if I do it to be iustified therewith & to get an hyer place in heauen, thynke that I do of myne owne natural strengthe and of the naturall power of my trewe and that euery man hathe myghte enen so to doo and that they doo it not is theyr faulte and negligence and so with the proud pharisee in comparison of my self, despie the synful publicans: what other thynge doo I, then eat the bloude and fat of my sacrifice deuourynge that my selfe whiche shoulde be offered vnto God alone and his Chylde. And shoulde whatsoeuer a man doeth of his natural gyftes or of his natural wit, wisdom, vnderstanding, reason, wyl, & good intent before he be otherwile & cleane contrary taught of gode spirit, and haue receiued other wyte, vnderstandinge, reason, and wyl, his fleshe, worldly, and wrought in abominable byndenes, with whiche a man can but sear him self, his own profit, glorie, and honoure, euen in very spiritual matters. So if I were alone in a wyldernesse wher no man were to see profite or paye of, yet if I woulde seke trauen of God there, I coulde of mine owne natural gyftes lacke it none other waye then for the merites and deservynge of my good works and to enter therein by an other waye then by the doore of Chylde, whiche were verie theste, for Chylde is Lord ouer al, and a haiforner any man wyl haue of God, he muste haue haue it geuen him selfe for Chylde's sake.

Nowe too haue heauen for myne owne deservynge, is myne owne praye, and not Chylde's. For I canne not haue it by fauoure and grace in Chylde and by myne owne merites also: for fre gyfynge and deservynge, canne not stande together.

If thou wilt bow of thy goodnes vnto God, thou must put salte vnto this sacrifice: that is, thou must minister knowlege in thy beede as Peter teacheth. i. i. Thou must put oyle of Gods word in thy lampe, and do it according to the knowlege, if thou wylte for the coming of the hydegrome too enter in with hym into his reke. Thou wylte hang it aboute the image to moue men to deuotion. Deuotion is a seruente vnto Goddes commaundmentes and a desyre to be with God, and with his euery lastynge promyses. Nowe shall the syght of such ryches as are shewed at saynte Thomas Myne or at Wallingham moue a man to loue the commaundmentes of God better, and to desyre too be loosed frome his fleshe and to be with God, or shall it not rather make his poxe better syghte because he hath no luche at home and too wythe parte of it in an other place.

The priest shall haue it in Gods reade.

Shall the priest haue it? If the priest be bought with Chylde's bloude, then he is Chylde's seruante, and not his own, and ought therefore to fede Chylde's flocke with Chylde's doctryne, & to minister Chylde's sacramentes vnto them purgynge for very lout, & not for fylthy lout's sake, or too be Lord ouer the as Peter teacheth. i. i. Paul. act. x. Besides this Chylde is oure & is a gyfte geuen vs, and we be heyes of Chylde, of al that is Chylde's. Wherfore the priest's doctryne is oure, & we heyes of it, it is the foode of oure soules. Wherfore if he men serue him truly and feele vnto vs wythoute sellynge, he is a thiefe and a soule murderer, and euen so is he if he take vpon him to fede vs & haue not wherewith. And for a lyke conclusion because we are so wyth al that we haue be Chylde's, therfore is the priest's heye wyth vs also, of al that we haue receiued of God, wherfore in as mouche as the priest wylte on the woorde of God, and is oure seruante therein, therfore of right we are betters and owe too hym a sufficient lypunge of oure goodnes, and euen therto a wife of oure Doughter owe we vnto hym if he requyre hye. And nowe when we haue appoynted hym a sufficient lypunge, whether in thynges, tentes in percy wages, he ought too be content to requyre no more, nor yet to receyue any more, but to be an example of sobernes & of despising worldly things to pensple of his parishioners.

Wylt thou bowe to offer vnto the poxe people that is pleasaunte in the syghte of God, for they be left here to do oure almes vpon in chylde's need, & they be the righte heyes of all oure abundance and ouerplus. Wherfore we muste haue a schole to teach Gods woode in (though it neded not to be so costly) and therfore it is lawful to bowe vnto the buydynge or mayntenance thereof, & vnto helpynge of all good works. And we oughte to bowe too paye custome, tolle, rent & al maner of duties and whatsoeuer

We owe for that is Gods commaundment.

If thou wilt come pylvgrimage, thou muste put salte thereto in like maner if it shal be accep- ted, if thou come to go and visit the poe or to heare Gods worde or whatsoever edifyeth thy soule unto love & good worke after knowledg, or whatsoever God commaundeth, it is well done and a happye that savoureth well: pe wilt happelye save, that pe wilt goo to thys or that place because God hath chosen one place more then another, and wilt heare youre petycon more in one place then in another. As for youre prayer it muste be accordyng to Gods worde.

Ye maye not despye God to take vengeance on hym whom Gods worde teacheth you to praye and to praye for. And as for that other gloie that god wilt heare you more in one place then in another. I suppose it, that in satisfaction, salt bnsauce, for if it were wyle done home coude be excuse the death of Steven. Act. vii. whiche dyed for the temple that God dwelleth not in temples made with handes. We that beleeve in god are the temple of god such Paul, if a man love God & kepe his worde he is the temple of God & hath p'sently dwelleth in hym, as we see with Christ. John. xiii. sayinge: If a manne love me he wilt kepe my word, & then my father wilt love hym and we wilt come unto hym and dwell with hym. And in the xv. he sayeth if ye abide in me and my wordes also abide in you, the more what ye wilt & pe shal have it.

If thou beleeve in Christ & hast the promyses whiche God hath made the in thys heret, then go on pylvgrimage unto thys owne heret and there praye, and God will heare the for his mercye and trouthes sake, and for hys love Christes sake, and not for a fewe bones, saies. What careth God for the temple? The very beastes in that they have lyfe in them be muche better, the an heape of stones couched together.

To speake of chastite, it is a grise not given unto al personnes, testifich boeth Christ and also hys Spoule Paule, wherfore all personnes maye not have it. Wherfore ther be causes wherfor manye persons maye better live chaste at one tyme the at another. Manye more live chaste at wyde & thys for certayne neddis as folowinge theyn, whiche at xl. when they heath is come, can not do so. Manye be occupied with wyld phantasies in theyr yowth, that they care not for mariage, which same when they be wakened shal be greatlye delirious, it is a daungerous thing to make spaine where none is, and to forswear the benefite of god and to bynde the selfe under payne of damnacion of the soule & thou wouldeste not be the remedye that God hath created if nede requyred.

In other thyng is thys, beware that thou get the not a false learned chastyte made with the ungodly perswasions of capric kytom or of Quene in hys synners boke of the remedye agaynste love, least when thou art suche imaginacions have utterly despised, desied, and at laste all woman kynde, thou come into suche case thou art the scarce waye of God, that thou callest neither live chaste, nor find in thy heret, so to be compelled to fall into the abhominacions of the pope against nature and kynde.

Wherfore God is a wylle father, & knoweth all the infymities of hys children, and also mercifull, and therfore hath created a remedye with oute spaine and given thereto hys fauoure and blessinge. Let us not be wiser then God with our imagination, nor tempt hym, for as godly chastite is not every mans gift: so he that hath it to day hath not power to continue in it at his owne pleasure, neyther hath God promysed to give it hym selfe & to cure hys infymities withoute hys naturall remedye, no more then he hath promysed to sticke hys long: & withoute meate, or thirst withoute drynke.

Wherfore other let al thyngs bide free and as God hath created them, and nother voue that whiche God requyred not, nor forswear that whiche God permitted the with hys fauoure and blessinge also: or els if thou wilt needes voue, then voue Godly & vnder a condicio, that thou wilt continue chaste, so long as God graceth the that gyfte, and as long as neyther thine owne necessitye, neyther charite towards thy neighbours, nor the authoritye of them vnder whose power thou art bound unto the contrarye.

The purpose of the voue muste be lated al- so with the wil dome of God. Thou muste not voue to be unlyfied thereby or to make saynt- faction for thy lyones or to wyne heauen nor an hys place: for then dydest thou wyng vnto the bloude of Christ & thy voue were playne Idolatry & abhominable in the sight of God. Thy voue must be only to the furtherance of the commaundments of god, whiche as I have sayd nothing but the taming of thy members & the fre- wyng of thy neighbours: that is if thou maye thy backe to weake for thy burthe of wylliche, that thou canst not rule thy wyll, thy chylde, thy seruantes, & make prouision for them godly & withoute ouermuche bulvynge and unquytinge thy selfe, and brownyng thy selfe in wylliche bulynesse unchristianly or that thou canst seeue thy neygh- boure in some office better beynge chaste then married. And then thy voue is good and lawefull. And thus must thou voue abstinence of meate and drynke so far to thys as it is prout- table unto thy neighbours and unto tanyng of thy selfe: But thou muste voue nys- ther of thys vnto the streng of thy bedde. As Paule commaundeth Timothe to be nys to wine and no more water because of hys dycaises.

Thou wilt say that Tymothe had not happye lyf forsworne wyne. I thanke the same and for the Spoules forsworne not wedlocke: though manye of them lyued chaste, nother yet anye waste of drynke, though they abstayned from them, and that it were good for vs to folowe their example. How be it though I do and swere, and thinke on none exception, yet is the by thyng of Gods commaundments except, and al chaunces that hang of God. As if I swere to be in a certayne place, at a certayne houre to make a lone daye withoute exception yet if the wyng in the meane tyme commaunde me any other waye, I muste go by Gods commaundment, and yet bryake not mine oth. And in thys case if my father and mother be syche and re- quyre my presence, or if my wyfe, chylde, or housholde be vnto, that my audience be re- quyred, or if my neyghbours house be a fyre at the same houre and a thousande suche chaunces: in whiche all I bryake myne oth and am not forsworne and so forth. And Gods word belyngent with a good herte and it shal teach y al thyngs.

The office of the Leuites, euery one after the Roche that he came of.

And when Aaron and his sonnes haue made an ende of couering the sanctuary & al the thynges of the sanctuary, against that the host remoue, then the sons of Cahath shal come in to beare, and so let them not touch the sanctuary lest they die. And this is the charge of the sons of Cahath in the tabernacle of wtnes. And Eleazar the sonne of Aarō the priest, shal haue the charge to prepare oyle for the lights and the vete sence, and the dayly meat offering and the amounting oyle, and the ouer syght of al the dwelling and of al that therein is, both ouer the sanctuary and of al that pertapneth thereto.

And the Lord spake to Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: Destroy not the trybe of the the kynreds of the Cahathites, from amonge the Leuites. But thus do vnto them that they maye lyue and not die, when they go vnto the most holp place. Aaron and hys sonnes shal go in and put them euery man vnto his serupce and vnto hys burthen. But let the not go in, to se when they couer the sanctuary, lest they dye.

And the Lord spake to Moyses, sayinge: Take the sum of the chyldren of Gerson, in the houses of theyr fathers and in theyr kyndreds: from thyrtye yere and aboue, til fiftie al that are able to go forth in war to do serupce in the tabernacle of wtnes. And this is the seruce of the kyndes of the Gersonites to serue and to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the tabernacle, & the coofe of the tabernacle of wtnes and hys couering, & the couering of taxus skynnes that is on high aboue vpon it, & the hanging of the doore of the tabernacle of wtnes & the hanging of the court, & the hanging of the gate of the court that is rounde about the dwelling, and the aulter, and the cords of them, and al the instrumentes that serue vnto theym, and al that is made for them

And at the mouth of Aarō and his sonnes, shall all the service of the chyldren of the Berfonites be done, in all their charges, & in all their serupce, and ye shall appoynte them vnto all their charges, that they shall waite vpon. And this is the serupce of the kyndred of the chyldren of the Berfonites in the tabernacle of witnes, and they shall be vnder the hand of Jthamar the sonne of Aaron the pnest.

And thou shalt numbre the sonnes of Merari in their kyndredes, and in the houses of their fathers, from thyrty yeres & aboue vnto fiftye: euen all that is able to go forth in warre, to do the serupce of the tabernacle of wptnesse.

D And this is the charge that they must waite vpon in al that they must serue in the tabernacle of wptnesse: The bordes of the tabernacle, and the barres, pylers and sockettes therof, and the pylers of the counte roundabout, and their sockettes, pinnes, and cordes, with all that pertapneth and serueth vnto them.

And by name ye shall reckon the thyngs that they must waite vpon to beare. This is the serupce of the kyndreds of the sonnes of Merari in all their service in the tabernacle of witnes vnder the hande of Jthamar the sonne of Aaron the pnest.

And Moyses and Aaron, and the prynces of the myltitude numbred the sons of the Cahathites in their kyndes and houses of their fathers, from thyrty yeres and aboue vnto fiftye, all that were able to go forth in the hoste, and to do service in the tabernacle of wptnes. And the numbre of them in their kyndredes, were two thousande, seven hundred, and fiftye. These are the numbres of the kyndredes of the Cahathites, of all that did service in the tabernacle of witnesse, which Moyses and Aarō did numbre at the commaundement of the lord by the hande of Moyses.

And the sonnes of Gerson were numbred in their kyndredes, and in the houses of their fathers, from thyrty yere vnto fiftye, al that were able to go forth in the hoste to do service in the tabernacle of wptnesse. And the numbre of them in their kyndredes, & in the houses of their fathers, was two thousande, syxe hundred, and thyrty. This is the numbre of the kyndreds of the sonnes of Gerson, of all that dōd serupce in the tabernacle of witnes, which Moyses and Aaron dōd numbre at the commaundement of the lord.

And the kyndredes of the sonnes of Merari were numbred in their kyndredes, and in the houses of their fathers, frō thyrty yere vnto fiftye, all that were able to go forth with the hoste, to do serupce in the tabernacle of witnes. And the numbre of them was in their kyndredes thre thousande and two. This is the numbre of the kyndredes of the sons of Merari, which Moyses & Aarō numbred at the cōmaundement of the lord, by the hand of Moyses.

The hole summe whiche Moyses, Aaron & the lordes of Israel numbred amonge the Levites in their kyndredes & householdes of their fathers, from xxx. yere vnto fiftye, euerie man to do his office and service, & to beare his burthen in the tabernacle of witnes, was eight thousand, siue hundred and foure score, which they numbred at the cōmaundement of the lord by the hand of Moyses, euerie man vnto his service and burthen: as the lord commaunded Moyses.

Who they be that ought to be cast out of the host. The knowledging of syn. The cleansing of synne done of ignorance. The lawe of the spyte frutes, and of gelousye.

A And the lord spake to Moyses, saying: I commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they put forth of the host, al lepers, and al that haue pssues, & al that are defiled vpon the dead, whether they be males or females: ye shall put them out of the host, & they defile not the tentes among which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dōd so, and put them out of the hoste, as the lord commaunded Moyses, so dōd the chyldren of Israel. And the lord spake to Moyses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be man or woman, whē they haue sinned any man are syn which a mā doth, wherewith a man's trespasseth against the lord: for the soule hath doone amysse: then they knowledge their synnes which they haue done, and restore againe the hurt that they haue done in the hole, and put the fiftie part of it more thereto, & giue it him who he hath trespassed against. But if he that maketh the amendes haue no man to do it to, then the amendes that is made shall be the lordes, and the pnestes, besyde the ram of the attone-ment offeryng, wherewith he maketh attone-ment for hym selfe. And al the frutes frutes whiche the chyldren of Israel brynge vnto the pnest, shall be the pnestes, & euerie mans halowed thynges shall be hys owne, but whatsoeuer any man gyueth the pnest, it shall be the pnestes.

And the Lord spake to Moyses, saying: 13 Speake to the chyldren of Israel, & shewe them. If any man inuies wife goo asyde and trespace against hym, so that another man lye with hir as wyfe, and the thyng be hēd from the eyes of hir husbāde, and is not come to light that she is defiled (for ther is no witnes agaynst hir) in as muche as she was not taken wpth the maner, and (b) the spirit of gelousie cometh vpon hym, and he is gelouse ouer his wife, and she defiled, or happely the spirit of gelousie cometh vpon hym, and he is gelouse ouer his wife, & she yet vndefiled. Then let hir husband bryng hir vnto the pnest, and brynge an offeringe for hir: the tenth part of an epha of barley meale, but he shall poure none oyle therinto, nor put frankensens thereon: for it is an offeryng of gelousie, and an offeringe that maketh remembrance of synne.

And let the priest bring hye and sette hit before the Lord, & let him take halfe water in an ethe vessel, & of the dust that is in the floure of the habitacio, and put it into the water. And the priest shal set þ wife before the lord, and uncover hir head, and put the memorial of the offering in hye hands whiche is the gelousye offering, and the priest shal haue bitter and cursing water in his hand, and he shal conuere hit, and shal saie vnto hir. If no man hath lpen with the, neither hast gone asyde and defiled thy self behynd thy husbände, then haue thou no harme of this bytter cursing water.

But if thou hast gone asyde behind thine husband, and art despyled, and some other mā hath lpen with the besidethine husbād (let the priest conuere hit with the conuersion of the curse, & saie vnto hir) the lord make the a curse & a conuersion amōg thy people: so that the lord make thy thyghs rotte, & thy bely swell, and this bitter cursing water go into the bowels of the, that thy belly swell, and thy thygh rotte, & the wyfe shal saie: (e) Amen, Amen.

D And the priest shal wyte this curse in a bill and waite it oute in the bitter water. And when the cursing water is in hir, then let the priest take the gelousye offering out of þ wifes hand, and waite it before the Lord, and bringe it vnto the altar: & he shal take an handfull of the memorial offering, and burne it vpon the aulter, and then make hir drinke the water: If she be defiled, and haue trespassed against hye husband, then shall the cursing water go into hir, & she shall rotte, and her belly shall swell, and she shall be a curse among hir people: That if she be not defiled but is cleane, then she shall haue no harme, but that she maye conceiue.

This is the law of gelousye, when a wife goeth asyde behind hir husband and is defiled, or when the spirit of gelousye cometh vpon a man, so that he is gelouse ouer hye wife, then he shal bring hir before the lord, and the priest shal minstre al this law vnto hir, and the man shal be guiltlesse, & the wife shall beare hye synne.

The Notes.

Trespace. (a) This trespace is wherewith we hurt oure neyghbour in woeldele goodes (as they call them) and therefore muste the hurte be redressed and the lyste parte made thereto. If the party repayed not, to whom the restitution was due, nor any of hye lawfull heyyes: then muste it be the priestes wages, whych at that tyme had non other lyeuolod.

Jealousye. (b) The whole lawe of gelousye seemeth to be a leace and a certayne nurture of wyues, that they shoulde be obedyente to thei husbādes, chaste, manerly, and saynfull, and such as giue none occasyon to be suspecte, and thereto serued this lawe whyle it kepte them vnder, and gaue them no lyceuce to goe at large, wherby they myght haue come in some suspicie, and so haue come to this great shame before the congrege.

(c) Amen is an Hebrew worde, and signifieth such to be it, or be it false and lye, approuynge and allowynge the sentence goynge before: and when it is doubled, it augmenteth the congrege, as in manye Psalmes, and John. v. and vi.

The vi. Chapter.

The law of the Nazarites that toke vpon them abstinence. The maner of blessing the people.

These are signifieth an absterner.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to vowe a vow of abstinence for to abstaine vnto the lord, he shal abstaine from wine and strong drinke, & shal drinke no vinegre of wine or of strong drinke, nor shal drinke whatsoever is pressed out of grapes: & shal eat no freshe grapes, neither yet dried as long as his abstinence endureth. Moreover he shal eat no thing þ is made of the vine tre, not so much as the kernels or the huske of the grape.

And as long as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasure or weeres come vpon hye head, vntil his daies be run out, which he fasted vnto the Lord, and he shall be holp, and shall let the lockes of his herte growe. As long as he abstaineth vnto the Lord, he shal come at no dead body: he shall not make hym self uncleane at the death of his father, mother, brother or sister: for the abstinence of his God is vpon hye head. And therefore as long as his abstinence lasteth, he shall be holpe vnto the Lord.

And if it fortune that any mā by chaunce dye sodenly before him, & despyle the head of his abstinence, then must he shawe his head the day of hye cleansing: euen the seuenth daye he shall shawe it. And the eighth daye he shall bringe two turtles, or two pong pigeons to the priest, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prieste shal offer thone for a synneoffering and thother for a burnt offering, and make attonement for hym in that he sinned vpon the dead: & shal also halowe his head the same daye, & shall absteyne vnto the lord the tyme of hye abstinence, and shal bringe a lambe of a yere old for a trespassoffering: but þ daies that were before are losse, because his abstinence was defiled.

This is the lawe of the absterner, when the tyme of hye abstinence is runne out he shall be brought vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bringe his offering vnto the Lord: an he lambe of a yere olde wpythout spotte for a burnt offering, and a she lambe of a yere old wpythout blemyshe for a synneoffering, a ram wpythout blemyshe also for a peaceoffering, and a baskette of swete bread of fyne floure myngled wpyth ople and waters of swete bread, appoynted wpyth ople, wpythincense, offeringes and drynke offeringes that be longe thereto.

Here it appereth that a vowe is after the olde testamente, which was a figure of the vowe þ a Christian man ought to doo, veyning & drinke at ag hym self vnto god, as it is spoken. Rom. xlii.

To haue abstinence of god vpon his head is a token of refusing the care of bodily thinges by þ he letta not be the heere of his head or by trimming of his bush or beard, which thing the world lo greatly esteemeth.

The offering. Numeri

And the priest shall bunge him before the lord, and offer his spnoffering & his burnt-offering, and shall offer that ramme for a peaceoffring vnto the Lord with a basket of sweete bread, and the priest shall offer also his meatoffring, & his drinkeoffring. And the absteiner shall haue his head in the dore of the tabernacle of witness, and shall take the herte of his sober head & putte it in that spye, which is vnder the peaceoffring.

Then the priest shall take the sobre Mulder, of the ramme and one sweete cake oute of the basket, and one sweete water also, & put them in the hande of the absteiner, after he hath shawen his abstinence of, and the priest shall waue them vnto the Lord, which offering shall be holp vnto the priest, with the wauebest and heue shoulder: and then the absteiner maye dryncke wine.

Whips is the lawe of the Nazaree, whiche hath vowed hys abstinence vnto the lord for his abstinence, besydes that hys hand can get. And accordyng to the bowe which he vowed, so he must do in the lawe of hys abstinence.

And the lord talked with Moyses, saying: speake to Aaron and his sons, saying: of this wise ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel, saying vnto them.

The Lord blesse the and kepe the.

The lord make his face shyne vpon the and be merciful vnto the.

The lord lyfte vp his countenance vpon the, and geue the peace. For ye shall put my name vpon the chyldren of Israel, that I maye blesse them.

The. viii. Chapter.

The disposition and order of the lamps. The forme of the candlestick. The cleanesongs and offeringe of the Leuites. The age of the same.

AND the lord spake unto Moses, saying: speake unto Aaron, and say vnto him: * when thou putteste on the lamps, let they lighte al seven upon the forefront of the candlestick. And Aaron did accordingly, & put the lamps upon the forefront of the candlestick, as the Lord commaunded Moses; and the worke of the can-delstick was of wythe golde, both the shaft and the floures thereof. And accordyng vnto the vision which the Lord hadde shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: take the Leuites forthe of the children of Israel, and cleanse them. And this do vnto the when thou clearest them, sprinkle water of purifyinge vpon them, and make a sacrifice to rume along vpon all the fleshy of them, and let them washe their clothes, and then they shall be cleane. And let them take a bullock, and his meat offering, fine flour mingled with oyle: and an other bullocke shalt thou take to be a synoffring.

Then bring the Leuites before the tabernacle of witness, and gather the hole mu-tude of the childre of Israel together. And bring the Leuites before the Lord, & lette the children of Israel, put their hands vnder the Leuites. And let Aaron beue the Leui-tes before the Lord for an heueoffring gi-uen of the children of Israel, and then let them be appoynted to waite vpon the seruice of the Lord.

And let the Leuites put their hands vnder the heads of the bullocks, & then offer the the one for a synoffring, and the other for a burnt offeringe before the lord, to make attonement for the Leuits. And make the Le-uites stand before Aaron and his sonnes, & beue them to be an heueoffring vnto the Lord. And thou shalt separate the Leuites from amonge the children of Israel, that they be myne: & after that let them go and do the seruyce of the tabernacle of witness.
Clenfethem, & hallow them, for they are gi-uen me from amonge the childre of Israel, for I haue taken them vnto me for al the firstborne that open the matrice amonge the children of Israel.

* For all the firstborne among the children of Israel are myne, both man & beast, because the same tyme that I smote the first borne in the land of Egypte, I sanctified them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Le-uites for all the firstborne among the children of Israel, and haue giuen them vnto Aaron and his sonnes forthe of the childre of Israel, to do the seruyce of the childre of Israel in the tabernacle of witness, and to make an attonement for the children of Israel, that ther be no plage among the children of Israel, if they come nye vnto the sanctuary.

And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacion of the childre of Israel dyd vnto the Leuites, accordyng vnto all that the Lord commaunded Moses. And the Leui-tes clenfed themselves, and washed their clothes. And Aaron offered them before the lord, and made an attonement for them to clense them. And after that, they went in to do their seruyce in the tabernacle of witnes, before Aaron and his sonnes. And according as the lord had comaunded Moses concernyng the Leuites, even so they dyd vnto them.

And the lord spake vnto Moses saying:
this shall be the maner of the Leuites: fro the second peare vwarde, they shall go in, to waite vpon the seruyce in the tabernacle of witnes, and at forty they shall cease waityng vpon the seruyce thereof, and shall labour no more, but shall minister vnto the chyldren in the tabernacle of witness, & there waite, but shall do no more seruyce. And see thou do after this maner vnto the Leuits, in their waityng tymes.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Easter or pasche offeringe of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerage the tabernacle leadeth the hoste.

AND the lord spake vnto Moses in the wildernesse of Sinai, in the first mo-neth of the second peare after they were come out of the land of Egypte, saying: let the childre of Israel offer pasche-ouer in his season, euē the. xiiii. daye of this moneth at euē, they shall kepe it in his season, according to the ordinances & maners thereof. And Moses bad the childre of Israel that they should offer pascheouer, & they offred pascheouer the. xiiii. daye of the first moneth at euē in the wildernesse of Sinai: and dyd accordyng to all that the lord commaunded Moses.

And it chaunced that certayn men whiche were defyled with a dead corse, so that they myghte not offer pascheouer the same daye, came before Moses & Aaron the same tyme & sayd: We are defyled vpon a dead corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offeringe vnto the lord in the due season, among the childre of Israel?
And Moses sayde vnto them: tarpe, that I maye heare what the lord wyl commaund you. And the lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the childre of Israel, & saye. If any man among you or your chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reason of a corse, or is in the way farre of, then let hym offer pascheouer vnto the Lord, the fourfourtene day of the second moneth at eue-and eat it with swete bread & soute herbes: let them leaue non of it vnto the morning, nor breake any bone of it. And accordyng to all the ordynance of the pasche lette them offre it.

But if a man be cleane and not let in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer (a) pasche: the same soule shall perishe from his people, because he brought not an offering vnto the lord in his due season: & he shall beare his synne. And when a straunger dwelleth among you, & will offre pas-che vnto the lord, accordyng to the ordy-nance of pasche & maner thereof shall he offre it. And ye shall haue one lawe both for the straunger, & for him that was borne at home in the land.

C And the same daye that the habitacion was reared vp, a cloud couered it on hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnes: and at eue ther was vpon the habitacion, as it were the likenes of fyre vntill the morninge. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by day, & the similitude of fyre by night. And when the cloud was taken vp from the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, & where the cloude abode, ther the chyldren of Israel pitched their tentes. At the mouth of the lord the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, & at the mouth of the lord they pitched.
And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye still, and when the cloud tarped still vpon the habitacion long tyme, the chyldren of Israel wailed vpon the lord and iourneyed not.

D If it chaunced that the cloud abode any space of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kept their tentes at the mouth of the lord: and they iourneyed also at the commaundement of the lord. And if it happened that the cloude was vpon the habitacion from euen vnto morninge, and was taken vp in that morninge, then they iourneyed.
Whether it was by daye or by night that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed.
But when the cloude tarped two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habi-tacion, as long as it tarped thereon, the chyldren of Israel kepte their tentes, and iourneyed not. And as sone as the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the lord they rested, and at the commaun-dement of the lord they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the lord, at the commaundement of the lord by the hand of Moyses.

The Notes.

(a) As it was with the Jewes for their easter lambe which was this pasche: so is it with vs in oure spirytual easter or pasche. Whoseuer doeth not reuerently beleue the redemp-cion of mankynde, whiche was thorowly spen-ded in offeringe of the true lambe Christ, and amendeth not his lyfe, nor turneth from vice to vertue in the tyme of this mortall lyfe: shall not belonge to the gloire of the resurrection, whiche shall be gyven to the true worshippers of Christ, but shall be tosed out from the companye of the sayntes.

The .x. Chapter.

The trumpettes of siluer and the vse thereof.
The Israelites departe from Sinai. The captaynes of the hoste are numbred. Moyses saith to go with Moyses.

A And the lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: Make the two trumpets of beaten siluer, that thou mayest vse them to call the company together, and when the host shall iourney. When they blowe with them, all the company shall resorte to the vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes. If but (a) one tropet blow only, then the princes which are heads ouer thousands of Israel shall come vnto the. And when ye trump the first tyme, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forwarde.

And when ye trump the seconde tyme, then the hostes þ lye on the south syde shall take their iourney: for they shall trope when they take their iourneys. And in gathering the congregacion together, ye shall (b) blow and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron, the priestes shall blow the trumpettes, and shall haue them, and it shall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and among your chyldren after you.

And when ye shall go to warre in your land agaynst your enemies that be ye, ye shall (c) trompe with the trumpets, and ye shall be remembred before the Lord your god, and saved from your enemies. Also when ye be met in your feast dayes, and in the first dayes of your monethes, ye shall blow the trumpets ouer your burnt sacrifices and peaceofferynges, that it maye be a remembraunce of you before your God. I am the lord your God.

And it came to passe the twentye daye of the second moneth in the second pere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke their iourney out of the wilderness of Sinai, and the cloude rested in the wildernes of pharan. And they firste toke their iourney at the mouth of the lord by the hand of Moyses: euen the standard of the hoste of Juda remoued with their armies, whose captayne was Nahason sonne of Amnadab. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Isachar, was Nathanael the son of zuar. And ouer the host of the trybe of the chyldren of zabulon was Eliab the son of Helon. And the habitacion was take doune: and the sonnes of Gerson & Merari went for to bearynge the tabernacle.

Then the standard of the hoste of Ruben went forth with their armies, whose captaine was Elizur the son of Sedeur. And ouer the host of the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samalie the sonne of Suri Saddai. And ouer the host of the trybe of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliasaph the son of Deguel. Then the Cahathites went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other dyd set by the habitation again their comynge.

A Then the standard of the host of the children of Ephraim went forth with their armies, whose captain was Elisama the son of Amud. And over the host of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Jedazur. And over the host of the tribe of the sonnes of Ben Jamin, was Abidan the sonne of Gedeon.

And hyndermost of all the host, came the standard of the host of the children of Dan with their armies whose capitayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And over the host of the tribe of the children of Aser, was *Hagael the sonne of Dehian. And over the host of the tribe of the children of Joseph, was Ahira the sonne of Enan: In this manner were the iourneies of the children of Israel with their armies when they removed.

D And Moses sayd vnto (a) Hobab the son of Raguel * the Arabian, Moses father in lawe: We go vnto the place of whiche the Lord sayd: I will geue it you. So with vs, and we will do the good: for the Lord hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he sayd vnto him: I will not, but wil goo to myne owne lande, and to my kynred. And Moses sayd: oh nape, leaue vs not, for thou knowest wher is best for vs to pitch in the wilderness, and thou shalt be our * guide. And if thou go with vs, loke what goodnes the Lord sheweth vpon vs, the same we will shewe vpon the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lord the dayes iourneie, and the arke of the testament of the Lord went before the in the the dayes iourneie, to searche out a resting place for them. And the cloud of the Lord was over them by day when they went forth of the tentes.

And when the Arcke went forth, Moses sayd: asple by Lord, and let thynne enemies be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the Arcke rested, he sayd: returne (lord) vnto the many thou sandes of Israel.

one trumpet. (a) To blowe one trumpet, is to shewe the voyce of health synglye, after the maner of the sayth.

The pyes (b) The common people must be plainly taught by the prestes, without curyosity.

As shall blowe. (c) In tyme of warre muste they trumpe with trumpetes, whiche sygnifyeth, that when most neede is, then muste sayeth, prayer, and lifynge vp of the mynde to God be chrefely exercised.

To trumpe agaynst enemies. (d) Hobab is the same, that before is called Jetho. Euen as Salomon in some places is Jotham, and as Moses is also Arias. He was the sonne of Raguel the father of Zephora, Moses wyfe: albeit that in the .ii. of Gen. Raguel be called by father, not because he was so in dede, but because he was his fathers father, whiche maner of speakynge is not a fewe tymes used in the scripture.

The people murmureth and is punished with fyre. They desire fleshe. The loth Māns. The murmuring and waucting sayth of Moyses. The Lord dyrbeth the burden of Moyses to leuente of the auncientes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad do also prophesie in the host. It rapeth quaples. The fleshe rautners are punished.

A And the people * complained, and it displeased the eares of the Lord. And when the lord heard it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lord burnt among the, & consumed the vttermost of the hoste. And the people cryed vnto Moyses, and he made sute vnto the Lord, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place, * Chabarah, because the fyre of the Lord burnt amonge them.

And the common sort of people that was among them, fell a lustynge. And the children of Israel also went to, and wept, and sayd: who shal geue vs fleshe to eat? we remember the fleshe, whiche we shoulde eate in Egypt for nought, and of the Cucumbers and melons, lekes, onyons, and garlyke. But nowe oure soules are dyed away, for our eyes loke on nothynge elles, saue vpon manna.

The Manna was as it had bene Corian det sede, and in appaiaunce lyke Bedellion. And the people went about and gathered it, and ground it in mplies, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And when the dewe fell aboute the host in the nyghte, the Manna fell therewith.

And when Moyses heard the people wepe in the thyr houholdes, euery man in the doore of hys tente, then the wrathe of the Lord waxed hote exceedingly: and it greued Moyses also. And Moyses sayd vnto the Lord: wherfore dealest thou so cruelly wth thy seruant? wherfore do I not fynd fauoure thy syght, sythens thou puttest the wighte of this people vpon me? Wane I conceived all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou shouldest sape vnto me, carpe the in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckynge chyld) vnto the land whiche thou swarest vnto the fathers? wher shulde I haue fleshe to geue vnto all this people? For they wepe vnto me, sayinge: geue vs fleshe that we may eate, I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is heauy for me. Wherfore if thou deale thus wth me, kyll me, I praye the, if I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, and let me not see my wretchednes.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: gather vnto me the score and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and officers over them, and brynge them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse. * let them stand ther with the. And I will * come doune and talke wth the, & take of the * spirit which is vpon the, & that is,

* of wazed discontente or dyd wye ledly.

* Chabarah signifieth hidding inflaminge or fyrenge.

and put vpon the and vpon them, and they shall beare with the in the burthen of the people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

And say vnto the people: halow your sel ues agaynst to morowe, that ye maye eat flesh, for ye haue whined in the eares of the lord, saying: who shall geue vs flesh to eat for we were happy whē we were in Egypt, therfore the lord will geue you flesh, and ye shall eat. Ye shall not eat one day onely, e ther two or thre daies, either ten or twenty daies: but euē a moneth long, and vntill it come out at the nostrils of you, that ye be reddy to perbake: because ye haue said that the Lord asped, which is among you, and haue wepte before hym, saying: why came we out of Egypt?

And Moses sayde: five hundred thousand foote men are there of the people, amonge whych I am. And thou hast said: I wil geue them flesh, and they shall eat a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the ox be slaine for them to fynde them? Either shall al the fyll of the sea be gathered together to serue them? And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: As the Lordes hand wared short: & thou shalt se whether my worde shall come to passe or not.

And Moses went forth, and tolde the peo ple the saying of the Lord, and gathered the thye scoze and ten elders of the people, and set them round aboute the tabernacle.
And the Lord came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto him, and toke of the spirit that was vpon hym, & put it vpon the thye scoze and ten elders. And as the spirit rested v pon them, they prophesied & dyd nought else. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste: the one called Eldad, and the o ther Medad. And the spirit rested vpon the for they were of them that were wyrtten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle:
and they prophesied in the hoste.

And ther ran a yonge man and told Mo ses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad doo pro phesie in the hoste. And Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruant of Moses, which he had chosen out, answered and sayd: Myghter Moses, forbyd them. And Moses sayd vn to him: enuieest thou for my sake? wold god that all the lordes people could prophesie, and that the Lord would put his spirite v pon them. And then bothe Moses and the elders of ysacl, gat them in to the hoste.

And there wente forth a winde from the lord, and broughte quayles fro the sea, and let the fall about the host, euē a daies iour ney round about on euery syde of the hoste.
And two cubites hye vpon the earthe. And the people stode vp al that day and all that night, and on the morow, & gathered quai les. And he that gathered leas, gathered x. homers full. And they killed them round a bout the hoste.

And while the flesh was yet betwene their teth, afore it was chewed vp, & wrath of the lord waxed hoate vpon the people, and the Lord slewe of the people an ex ding mighty slaughter. And they called the name of the place * Isphriath Bithaiah: be cause they buried the people that lusted there.

And the people toke their iourney from Isphriath Bithaiah vnto Hazeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

Mary was sephen with the leper and braied

Aaron and Mary spake agaynst Moses, because of his wyfe of Zende, the Lord speake onelye thorowe Moses? doth he not speake also by vs? And the Lord heard it. But Moses was a very meke man aboue all the menne of the earth. And the Lord spake at once vnto Moses, vnto Aa

The Notes.

Mouth to mouth.

(a) To speake mouth to mouth, is to shewe secretly by manifeste signes and tokens, so that thereby we be undoubtedly assured of the will of God. As for the bodie mouthe, here is no mention thereof.

To spyt in his face.

(b) If hy father had spyt in hy face, that is, if he hadde punyshed hy, and caused hy to see hy offence. The Lord is a father, and punysheth hye chosen not to dampne them, but to correcte them and feare them, and to bypse them to earnest repentaunce. After seven dayes was the receyued agayne into the hooke: so after repentaunce had must we be receyued into the congregacion.

The xiii. Chapter.

¶ Certayne are sente to searche the lande of Canaan. whych byngt with them a cluster of grapes for a signe of fruitfulnes.

And the Lord spake there vnto Moyses, saying: * Send me out to search the land of Canaan, whiche I gge vnto the chyldren of Israel: of every tyebe of their fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers among them. And Moyses at the commaundemente of the lord sent forth of the wilderness of Sharan, suche men as were al heades amonge the chyldren of Israel, whose names are these.

In the tyebe of Ruben: Sammua the sonne of zacur: In the tyebe of Simeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori: In the tribe of Iuda, Caleph the son of Iephune. In the tribe of Iachar, Igeal the son of Joseph. In the tribe of Ephraim, Hosea the sonne of Nun. In the tyebe of Ben Iamin, Iahthy the son of Iaphu. In the tyebe of Zabulon, Badiel the sonne of Sodi. In the tribe of Joseph & was of Manasse, Gaddi the sonne of Sufi. In the tyebe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. In the tribe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. In the tyebe of Iephthali, Rahebi the sonne of Iaphu. In the tribe of Gad, Guel the son of Machi: These are the names of the men whych Moyses sent to espye out the lande.

And Moyses called the name of * Hosea the sonne of Nun, Iosua.

And Moyses sent them forth to espye out the lande of Canaan, and said vnto them: get you Southward, & go vp into the hygh countrey, & se the land what maner thinge it is, and the people that dwell therein: whe ther they be stronge or weake, few or many and what the land is that they dwell in, whe ther it be good or bad, and what maner of cities they dwelle in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of land it is: whether fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. And be of good courage, and byng of the frutes of the land. And it was about the tyme that grapes are full ripe.

And they went vp & fetched out the lande from the wilderness of zin vnto Iachob, as men goo to Demath, & they ascended vnto the south & came vnto Hebron, where Abim was and Sefai, & Thalmam the sons of * Enack. Hebron was buyt seven yere before * Ioan in Egypt. And they came vnto the ruer of Escol, and they cut downe ther a brynche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe betwene twayne, & also of the pomegranates, & of the figges of the place. The ruer was called * Jechel Escol, because of & cluster of grapes whych the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

And they turned backe agayn from searching the lande at foure dayes end. And they went and came to Moyses and Aaron, and vnto all the companie of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wilderness of Sharan, even vnto Cades, and brought them word and also vnto all the congregacion, and shewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde him, sayinge: we came vnto the land whither thou sendest vs, and surely it is a land that floweth with mylke and honye, and here is of the frute of it. Neuer thelesse the people be stronge that dwell in the land, and the ctytes are walled and exceedinge greate, and moreouer we sawe the chyldren of Enack there.

The Amaleckes dwell in the south countrey, and the Bethytes, Jebusytes and the Amorites dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananites dwell by the sea, and a long by the coaste of Iordan.

And Caleb stilled the murmure of the people agayn Moyses, sayinge: let vs go by & conquere it, for we be able to overcome it. But the men that went vp with him, sayd: We be not able to go vp agaynst & people, for they are stronger then we: And they brought vp an euil reporte of the land whych they had searched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The land whych we haue gone thow to search it out, is a land that eateth vp the inhabytautes therof, and the people that we sawe in it, are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enack, whych are of the gyauntes. And we seemed in our sight as it were grasshoppers, and so we did in their sight.

The xiii. Chapter.

¶ The people despayre of conuynge to the land promysed, do murmure agaynst God, and would haue stoned Caleb and Iosua. The searchers of the land dye. Amalech kyllyth the Israelites.

And all the companie cryed out, & the people wept thowout that night, & all the people of Israel murmured agayn Moyses and Aaron, saying: Would God we had dyed in the land of Egypt, either we wold we had dyed in this wilderness. Wherefore hath the lord broughte vs vnto this land to fall vpon the sword, that both our wyues, & also our chyldren shul be a praye: is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayed one to another: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And

* Hosea or Osee, signifieth sauiour. Iosua or Iehosua, signifieth the saluacion of the Lord.

That is to say, plentiful wher shall plen be and comodities

That is to say, no straunger dwelleth there.

And Moses and Aaron hearing this fell on their faces before all the multitude of the children of Israel. And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephone which were of them that searched the land, rent their clothes and spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying: The land which we walked thither to search it, is a very good land. If the Lord have lust to us, he will bring us into this land, and give it us, which is a land that floweth with milk and honey. But in any wise rebel not against the Lord. For ever fear ye not the people of the land, for even as bread, so may we devour them. The people is departed from them, and the Lord is with us, fear them not therefore.

And all the people bad stone them with stones. But the glory of the Lord appeared in the tabernacle of witness unto all the children of Israel. And the Lord spake unto Moses. How long shall this people trouble me? for all my signs which I have showed amongst them, I will smite them with the pestilence and destroy them, and will make of them a greater nation, and a mightier than they.

And Moses said unto the Lord: then the Egyptians shall hear it, for thou broughtest this people with thy might from Egypt. And it will be told to the inhabitants of this land also, for they have heard speak that thou art with this people, and that thou art sent face to face, and that the cloud standeth over them, and that thou goest before them by day time in a pillar of a cloud, and in a pillar of fire by night.

If thou shalt afflict this people, as they were but one man, then the nations which have heard the fame of the Lord shall say: because the Lord was not able to bring in this people into the land which he swore unto them, therefore he slew them in the wilderness.

So now let the power of my Lord be great according as thou hast spoken, saying: the Lord is long er he be angry, and full of mercy, and suffereth sin and trespass, and leaveth no man innocent, and visiteth the iniquity of the fathers upon the children even upon the third and fourth generation, be merciful I beseeche thee therefore unto the sin of this people, according unto thy great mercy, and according as thou hast forgiven this people from Egypt, even unto this place.

And the Lord said: I have forgiven it, according to thy request. But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with my glory. For of all those men which have seen my glory, and my miracles which I did in Egypt, and in the wilderness, and yet have tempted me now these ten times, I have not hearkened unto my voice, there shall not one see the land which I swore unto them, saying: I will give it unto you. Neither shall any of them that sailed upon me, see it. But my servant Caleb: because he is an other manner spirit with him, and because he hath followed me: I will bring him into the land which he hath walked in, and his seed shall conquer it, and also the Amalekites and Canaanites which dwell in the low countries. To morrow turne you and get you into the wilderness: even the way toward the red sea.

And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying: how long shall this evil multitude murmur against me? I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel which they murmur against me. Yet thus saith the Lord: as truly as I live, I will do unto you even as ye have spoken in mine ears. Your carcasses shall lie in the wilderness: neither shall any of these numbers which were numbered from twenty years and above of you which have murmured against me come into the land over which I lifted mine hand to make you dwell therein. Save Caleb the son of Jephone, and Joshua the son of Nun.

And your children which ye say shall be a prey, them I will bring in, and they shall know the land which ye have refused, and your carcasses shall lie in this wilderness.

And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years, and suffer for you: whosoever shall see your carcasses be wasted in the wilderness, after the number of the days in which ye searched out the land, forty days, every day a year: so shall they bear your iniquity. And ye shall see my vengeance, for the Lord hath said that I will do it unto all this evil congregation that are gathered together against me: even in the wilderness ye shall be consumed, and here ye shall dye.

And the men which Moses set to search the land, and which (when they came again) made all the people to murmur against it in that they brought up a slander upon the land: dyed for their bringing up that evil slander upon it, and were plagued before the Lord. But Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephone which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still. And Moses tolde these sayings to all the children of Israel, and the people took great sorrow.

And they rose up early in the morning and gat them into the top of the mountaine, saying: lo we be here, and will go up unto the place of which the Lord said, for we have sinned. And Moses said: wherefore will ye go on this manner beyond the word of the Lord? it will not come well to passe, go not up (for the Lord is not among you) lest ye be slain before your enemies. For the Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and ye will fall upon the sword, because ye are turned away from the Lord, and therefore the Lord will not be with you.

The. xv. Chapter.

The hyman offerings of them that entre into the land, the punishment of him that synneth of arrogancy or pride. The man is stoned that gathered sheaves on the Sabbath. Gardes must be made vpon quarters of their garments.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speak vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: When ye be come into the land of your habitacion whiche I geue vnto you, and wyl offer an offering vpon the fire vnto the Lord, whether it be a burnt offering or a special bowe or strept offering, or it be in your principal feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lord, of the oxen or of the flocke.

Then let him that offered his offering vnto the Lord, bring also a meat offering of a tenth deale of floure, mingled with þ fourth part of an hin of oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wine for a drinke offering, & offer with the burnt offering or any other offering when it is a lamb. And vnto a ram thou shalt offer a meat offering of .ii. tenth deales of floure, mingled with the thyrde part of an hin of oyle, and to a drinke offering thou shalt offer the thyrde part of an hyne of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lord.

When thou offerest an oxe to a burnt offering or in any special vow or peace offering vnto the Lord, then thou shalt bring vnto an oxe, a meat offering of thre tenth deales of floure mingled with half an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bring for a drinke offering halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offering of a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. This is the maner that shalbe done vnto one oxe, one ramme a lambe or a kidde. And according to the numbre of such offerings, thou shalt encrease the meat offerings and the drinke offerings.

All that are of your selues shall do these thynges after this maner, when he offereth an offering of swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And if ther be a straunger with you or be among you in your generations, and wil offer an offering of a swete sauoure vnto þ Lord: euen as ye do, so he shal do. * One ordynance shall serue both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordynance for euer among your chyldren after you, that the straunger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lord. One law and one maner shal serue, both for you and for the straunger, that dwelleth wth you.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speak vnto the chyldren of Israel and say vnto them: When ye be come into the land whether I will bring you, then whē ye wil eate of the bread of the lande, ye shall geue an heue offering vnto the Lord. Ye shal geue a cake of þ first of your downto an heue offering: as ye do the heue offering of þ barne euen so ye shal heue it. Of the first of your downe ye muste geue vnto the Lord an heue offering, thoroughout your generations.

If ye ouersee your selues and obserue not all these commaundementes, whiche the Lord hath spoken vnto Moses, and all that the Lord hath commaunded you by þ hand of Moses, from the first day forward that the Lord commaunded among your generation: when oughte is comytted ignorauntly before the eyes of the congregacion, then all the multitude shal offer a calfe for a burnt offering to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lord, and the meat offering & drinke offering thereto, accordynge to the maner: & an he goate for a syn offering. And the priest shal make an attonement for al the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and it shalbe forgiven them for it was ignorance. And they shal bringe their giftes vnto the offering of the Lord, and they syn offeringe before the Lord for their ignorance. And it shalbe forgiven vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, & vnto the straunger that dwelleth amongs you: for the ignorance pertaineth vnto al the people.

If anye one soule synne thowhe ignorant, he shal bringe a she goate of a yeare olde for a synne offering. And the priest shal make an attonement for the soule that sinned unwittingly wth the syn offering before the Lord, and make him at one, and it shalbe forgiven hym. And both thou that art borne one of the chyldren of Israel, and the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue both one lawe, & ye syn unwittingly.

And the soule that doth ought presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same hath despyled the Lord.

And the soule shall be destroyed out of his people, because he hath despyled the worde of the Lord, and hath broken his commaundementes, that soule therfore shal perish and his synne shalbe vpon hym.

And whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man gathered sheaves vpon the Sabbath daye. And they that founde hym gathered sheaves, brought hym vnto Moses and Aaron, and vnto all the congregacion: and they putte hym inward, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto hym. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: lette all the multitude stone hym wth stones forth of the hoste. And all the multitude brought hym without the host, and stoned hym with stones, and he dyed as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speak to the chyldren of Israel, and byd them, they make them gardes on the quarters of their garments thoroughoute their generations, and lette them make the

And Moses waxed very angry and sayd vnto the Lord: These men haue not but other offer-ges. I haue not taken so muche as an asse

Moses sayde vnto Korah: Be thou and all vnto Moses and Aaron, saying. Seuer poure speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the priest and let him take up the censers out of the burning and scatter the fyre here & ther, for the censers of these spinners are allowed in the pyre beathes: and let they be beaten into thin plates and fastened upon the altar. For they offered them before the lord, and therefore they are holy & they shall be a signe unto the children of Israel.

And Eleazar the priest took the brasen censers, which they that were burnt had offered, and beat them & fastened them upon the altar, to be a remembrance unto the children of Israel, that no stranger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nigh to offer incense before the Lord, that he be not made like unto Corah and his company, as the Lord said unto him by the hand of Moses.

And on the morowe at the multitude of the children of Israel murmured against Moses & Aaron, saying: ye have killed the people of the Lord. And when the multitude was gathered against Moses & Aaron, they looked toward the tabernacle of witness.

And beholde, the cloude had covered it and the glory of the Lord appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of witness. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Get you from this congregation, that I may consume them quickly. And they fell upon their faces.

And Moses said unto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therein out of the altar, & powre on incense, & go quickly unto the congregation & make an attonement for them. For there is wrath gone out from the Lord: & there is a plague begun. And Aaron took as Moses commanded him, and ran unto the congregation, and beholde, the plague was begun among the people, and he put on incense, and made an attonement for the people. And he stood betwene the deade, & them that were alive, and the plague ceased: And the nombre of them that dyed in the plague, were twenty thousande and seven hundred: besyde them that died about the bulnes of Corah. And Aaron went again unto Moses unto the dore of the tabernacle of witness, and the plague ceased.

The xviii. Chapter.

Aaron's rod buddeth and beareth blossoms. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying. speake to the children of Israel and take of them, for every principal house a rod, of their prices over the houses of their fathers: even the rods, and wryte every mans name upon his rod. And wryte Aarons name upon the staffe of Levi: for everie headman over the houses of their fathers shall have a rod. And put them in the tabernacle of witness where I will meete you. And his rod which I chose, shall blossom: so I will make cease from me the grudginges of the children of Israel which they grudged against you.

And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and all the princes gave him for every prince over their fathers, even the rods: and the rods, & the rod of Aaron was among the rods. And Moses put the rods before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: & beholde, the rod of Aaron of the house of Levi was budded & bare blossomes and almondes. So Moses brought out all the rods which were before the Lord unto all the children of Israel, and they looked upon them, and tooke every man his rod.

And the Lord said unto Moses: bring Aarons rod againe before the witness to be kept for a token unto the children of rebellion, & their murmurings may cease from me, that they dye not. And Moses did as the Lord commanded him. And the children of Israel spake unto Moses, saying: beholde we are destroyed and all come to nought, for whosoever cometh nigh the dwelling of the Lord, dyeth. Shall we yett consume away? The xviii. Chapter.

The office of the Levites. The Levites and the Levites may be given them, Aarons heresage.

And the Lord said unto Aaron. Thou and thy sons and thy fathers house with the Levites shall beare the fault of that which is done in the holy place. And thou and thy sons with the Levites shall beare the fault of that which is done in your priesthode. And thy brethren also the Levites of Levi the tribe of thy father take with thee and let them be joined unto thee and minister unto thee. And thou and thy sons with the Levites shall minister before the tabernacle of witness. And let them waite upon thee and upon all the tabernacle, onely let them not come nigh the holy vessels and the altar that both they and ye also dye not. And let them be by thee, and wait on the tabernacle of witness, and on all the service of the tabernacle, and let no stranger come nigh unto you.

Waite therefore upon the holy place and upon the altar, that there fall no more wrath upon the children of Israel: beholde, I have taken your brethren the Levites for you, of the children of Israel, to be yours, as gifts given unto the Lord to do the service of the tabernacle of witness. And so that both thou and thy sonnes with thee take heed unto your priestes office in all things that pertayne unto the altar and within the wayle. And so ye serve, for I have given your priestes office unto you for a gift to do service, and the stranger that cometh nigh shall dye.

And the Lord spake unto Aaron: beholde I have given thee, the keeping of myne heve offerings in all the halowed things of the child of Israel. And unto the Levites I have given the unto an offering and to thy sonnes: to be a due for ever. This shall be thyne of most holy sacrifices. It is said that the censers were halowed in the death of these Isons because that by their death all of them were put in feare to presume to the office of the censers: to say to the commandment of God who appointed the office of the censers only.

And this shall be thyne, the heueoffringes of their giftes, thou shalt out all the waveoffringes of the childre of Israel, for I haue giuen them vnto the, and thy sonnes, and thy daughters with the to be a dutie for ever: and all that are cleane in thy house, shall eat of it, all the fat of the ople, of the wyne and of the corne: they first frutes whiche they giue vnto the Lorde, haue I giue vnto the. The first frutes of all that is in their landes, whiche they bring vnto the Lorde, shall be thyne: & all that are cleane in thine house, shall eat of it.

All dedicat things in Israel, shall be thine. All þ breaketh the matrice of all flesh, that men bring vnto the Lorde, bothe of man & beast, shall be thyne. Nevertheless the first borne of man shall be redeemed, and the first borne of vncleane beasts shall be redeemed. And they redempcions shall be at a moneth old, valued at five sicles of silver, of the holy sicle. A sicle maketh xx. Seras. But the first borne of oxen, shepe and goates shall not be redeemed. For they are holy, & thou shalt sprinkle their blood vpon the altare, and shalt burne their fatte to be a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

¶ And the flesh of them shall be thine, as the wavebread & all the right shoulder is thine: all the holy heueoffringes, which the childre of Israel haue vnto the Lorde, I giue the & thy sonnes, & thy daughters with the to be a dutie for ever. And it shall be a salted countaunce for ever, before the Lorde: vnto the and to thy seed with the.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: þ shalt haue none inheritaunce in their land, nor part among them. For I am thy part & thy inheritaunce among the childre of Israel. And behold, I haue giuen the childre of Levi, the tenth in Israel to inherit, for the scrupce whiche they serue in the tabernacle of witness, that the childre of Israel henceforth come not nigh the tabernacle of witness, and beare syn and dpe. And the Levites shall do the seruice in þ tabernacle of witness, and beare they syn, and it shall be a law for ever vnto your children after you: But among the childre of Israel they shall inherit none inheritaunce. For the tythes of the childre of Israel, whiche they haue vnto the Lorde, I haue giuen the Levites to inherit. Wherefore I haue said vnto them: Among the childre of Israel, ye shall inherit none inheritaunce.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the Levites, and say vnto the: when ye take of the childre of Israel the tythes, whiche I haue giuen you of the to your inheritaunce, ye shall take an heueoffring of þ same for the Lorde: euen the tenth of the tyth. And it shall be reckened vnto you for your heueoffring, euen as though ye giue corne out of the barre of a full offering from the wyne presse.

And in this maner ye shall haue an heueoffring vnto the Lorde, of all your tythes which ye receiue of the childre of Israel, and ye shall giue thereof the Lorde heueoffring vnto Aaron the priest. Of all your giftes, ye shall take out the Lorde heueoffring: euen the fat of all their halowed things.

And thou shalt say vnto them: when ye haue take away the fat of it from it, it shall be counted vnto the Levites, as þ increase of corne and wine. And ye shall eat it in all places, both ye and your households, for it is your reward for your seruice in the tabernacle of witness. And ye shall beare no syn by the reason of it, when ye haue taken from it the fat of it: neither shall ye vnhallow the halowed things of the childre of Israel, and so shall ye not dpe.

¶ Of the redde kowe. The lawe of hym that dyeth in the tabernacle: & of hym also that toucheth any vncleane thyng.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: this is the ordinaunce of the law, which the Lorde commaundeth, sayinge: speake vnto the childre of Israel, and let them take the a red kow without spot, which neuer bare pock vpon hyr. And ye shall giue hyr vnto Eleazar þ priest, and he shall bring hir without the host, and cause hyr to be slaine before him.

And Eleazar the priest shall take of hyr blood vpon his finger, & sprinkle it straight toward þ tabernacle of witness. vii. times. And he shall cause the kowe to be burnt in his sight: both skynne, flesh and bloude, with the dounge also. And lette the priest take Cedar woode, and flospe and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. And let the priest washe his clothes, and bath hyr flesh in water, & then come into the host, and the priest shall be vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth hir, shall wash hyr clothes in water, and bath hyr flesh also in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And one that is cleane, shall go and take by the ashes of the kowe, and put them withoute the host in a cleane place, where they shall be kept to make sprinkling water for the multitude of the childre of Israel: for it is a synneoffring. And let him that gathered the ashes of the kowe, washe his clothes, & remaine vncleane vntill euen. Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypte to

And Moses took the staffe from before the them, heare ye rebellions, must we fet you rocke two tymes, and the water came out

And the lord spake vnto Moses & Aaron

And Moses sent messengers from Cades hath happened vs, how our fathers wente downe into Egypte, & how we haue dwelt in Egypte a long tyme, and how the Egyphym: Se thou come not by me, lesse I come

And the children of Israel remoued from Cades, and went vnto mount Doz wth al the companye. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in mount Doz, whiche is vpon the borders of the land of Edom, say-

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: make the a serpente and hange it vp for a spgne, and let as many as are bitten loke vpon it, and they shall lpgue. And they remoued thence, and pitched vpon the ruer of Iarad. And Israel smote him with the edge of the sword, and conquered his land, from Arnon vnto Iabock: eue vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the childre of Ammon, are stronge. And Israel toke all these cities & dwelt in all the cities of the Amontes in Desbon & in all the townes that log thereto. For Desbon was the cite of Schob king of the Amontes whych Schon had fought before with the king of the Moabites, and had taken all his land out of his hand, euen vnto Arnon. Wherefore it is a prouerbe, go to Desbon & let the cite of Schon be built and made ready, for there is a fire gon out of Desbon & a flame from the cite of Schon hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the me of the hillies of Ar. The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ King Balac sendeth for Balam, to the intent that he should curse Israel but Balam can do nothing against the will of the Lord. Balam also speaketh to hym in the waye.

AND Balac the sonne of Ziphor sawe all that Israel had done to the Amorytes, and the Moabites were sore afraid of the people, because they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel. And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Moab, now shall this companye lycke vp all that are rounde aboute vs, as an oxe lycketh vp the grasse of the field. And Balac the son of Ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

B And he sente messengers vnto Balam the sonne of Beor, the interpreter which dwelt vpon the cuer of the land of the chalybis of hys folke, to call him, saying: behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which couereth the face of the earth, & I see them hard by me. Come now a fellowshipp and curse me this people. For they are to mighty for me, so peraduenture I might be able to smite them, & to driue them out of the lande. For I wote that whoso thou blest shall be blessed, and whom thou cursest shall be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Moabian, & the reward of the soothsaying in their hands. And they came vnto Balam, and told him the wordes of Balac. And he said vnto them: tary here al nyght, and I will bunge you wordes, euen as the Lord shall saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

E And God came vnto Balam & said: what men are these which are with thee? And Balam sayd vnto God: Balac the sonne of Ziphor, kynge of Moab, hath sente vnto me, saying: behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, and couereth the face of the earth: come nowe therefore and curse me them, that so peraduenture I maye be able to overcome them in battell, and to driue them out. And God said vnto Balam: thou shalt not go with them, neither curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balam rose vp in the morning, and said vnto the lordes of Balac: get you vnto your land, for the Lord wil not suffer me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayd. Balam wold not come with vs. And Balac sent again a greater companye of lordes & more honourable then they. And they came to Balam & tolde hym. Thus sayeth Balac the sonne of Ziphor: oh, let nothinge let the to come vnto me, for I will greatly promote the vnto great honour, and wil do whatsoeuer thou sayest vnto me, come therefore I praye the curse me this people.

And Balam answered and sayed vnto the seruants of Balac: It is the will of the Lord that I should curse you, but I can go no further then the word of the Lord my God, to do lesse or more. Henceforth I will tarye here al nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lord wil saye vnto me once more. And God came vnto Balam by nyght and sayd vnto him: if the men come to see the, saye vp and go with them: but what I saye vnto the, that thou shalt do.

And Balam rose vp earlye and saddled his asse, and wente with the Lordes of Moab. But God was angry because he went. And the angel of the Lord rode in the waye against him. And he roode vpon his asse. & two seruants with him. And whilste the asse saw the aungell of the Lord stand in the way, & hys sweard drawn in his hand, he turned a syde out of the waye, and wente out into the field. And Balam smote the asse, to turne him into the waye.

And the aungell of the Lord wente and rode in a path betwene two vineyards, where was a wall on the one side. and another on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord, he wrenched vnto the wall, & thruste Balam's fore vnto the wall. and he smote hys agayne. And the aungell of the Lord went further and rode in a narrow place, where was no waye to turne, eitherto the right hande or to the left. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord, he fell downe vnder Balam: and Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lord opened the mouth of the asse, & he sayd vnto Balam: what haue I done vnto the that thou smitest me thus many tymes? And Balam sayd vnto the asse: because thou hast mocked me. I wold that I had a sweard in myne hande, that I might now kill the. And the asse sayd vnto Balam, am I not thine asse, which thou hast ridde vpon, since thou wast borne vnto this daye? was I euer wont to do so vnto the? And he sayd. naye.

And the Lord opened the eyes of Balam that he sawe the angel of the Lord standing in the waye, with hys sweard drawn in hys hand. And he bowed hymselfe, and fell flat on hys face. And the aungell of the Lord sayed vnto him. Wherefore smitest thou thine asse thus thre tymes? behold I came out to respye the, for the waye is contrary vnto me, and the asse sawe me and avoided me thre tymes: or else (had he not turned from me) I had surelye slayne the, and saued hys aloue. And Balam sayd vnto the aungell of the Lord: I haue sinned, for I wist not that thou stoodst in the waye against me. Now therefore if it displease thine eyes, I will turne agayne. And the angel sayd vnto Balam, go with the me: but in any wise, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went with the lordes of Balac.

And when Balac hearde that Balam was come, he went out against him vnto a citty of Moab that is called in the booke of Amos, which is

And Balac said unto Balam: did I not send for thee, to call thee: wherefore camest thou not unto me? thinkest thou that I am not able to promote thee unto honour. And Balam said unto Balac: loo, I am come unto thee. But I can say nothing at all save what god putteth into my mouth: I must speak. And Balam went with Balac, & they came unto the large city. And Balac offered oxen and sheep, & sent for Balam & for the lords that were with him.

The xxii. Chapter.

Balam blesteth the people, where he was required to curse them, and prophesieth that they should be a great people.

AND on the morrow Balac took Balam and brought him by the way into the high place of Baal: and thence he sawe unto the utmost part of the people. And Balam said unto Balac: buyde me here seven altars and proude here seven bullockes and seven rammes. And Balac did as Balam sayde. And Balac and Balam offered on euery altar a bullocke and a ram.

And Balam said unto Balac: stand by the sacrifice while I go to wete whether the Lord wil come and mete me, & whatsoeuer he sheweth me, I will tel thee. And he went forth with him. And God came unto Balam, & Balam said unto him: I have prepared seven altars, & have offered upon euery altar, a bullocke and a ram. And the Lord put a saying in Balam's mouth, and said: go againe to Balac, & say on this wise. And he went againe unto him, and lo, he stood by his sacrifice, both he and all the lords of Moab.

And he began his parable, & said: Balac the king of Moab hath set me from Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes of the east, saying: come and curse me Jacob, come & bespe me Israel. How shall I curse whome god curseth not, and how shall I bespe whom the Lord desireth not? from the toppes of the rocks I see him, & from the hillies I behold him: loo, the people (a) shall dwell by him selfe, & shall not be reckened among other nations. Who can tel the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel? I pray God that my soul may die the death of righteousness, and that my last ende may be like his. And Balac sayde unto Balam, what hast thou done unto me? I set thee to curse mine enemies: and behold, thou blestest them. And he answered and said: must I not kepe that which I speak, whiche the Lord hath put in my mouth? And Balac sayde unto him: Come I pray thee with me to another place where thou shalt see them, & shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shall not see them all, and curse me them there. And he brought him in to a plaine field where men might see far even to the top of Phalgah, & built seven altars and offered a bullocke & a ram on euery altar. And he said unto Balac: stand here by the sacrifice while I go ponder. And the Lord met Balam and put wordes in his mouth, and said: go againe unto Balac and thus say. And when he came to him, behold, he stood by his sacrifice and the Lords of Moab with him. And Balac said unto him: what saith the Lord.

And he toke vp his parable and said, rise up Balac and heare, & hearken unto me thou sonne of yphor. The Lord is not a man, that he can lie, neither the son of man that he can repent. Should he say and not do, or should he speake and not make it good? behold, I have begun to blese and have blest, and cannot go backe thereto. He beheld (b) no wickednes in Jacob, nor saw he dolatry in Israel: the Lord his god is with him, and the triumphe of a king is among them. God hath brought thee out of Egypt, as the strength of an unicorn unto thee, for there is no sorcerer in Jacob, nor soothsayer in Israel. When the time cometh, it will be said of Jacob and of Israel, what god hath wrought. Behold the people shall rise up as a lionesse and heave up him selfe as a lion, & shall not lye downe againe, until he haue eaten of the pray and dronke of the bloude of them that are slain.

And Balac said unto Balam: neither curse thou, nor blese them. And Balam answered & said unto Balac: told not I thee, saying: all that the Lord biddeth me, that I must do? And Balac sayde unto Balam: come I pray thee, I will bring thee yet unto another place: so peradventure it shall please God, that thou mayst curse them there. And Balac brought Balam unto the top of Peor, that boweth toward the wilderness. And Balam said unto Balac: make me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven bullockes, and seven rammes. And Balac did as Balam had said, and offered a bullocke and a ram on euery altar.

(b) There is no people without synne, neyther yet Israel, but god looketh not on Israel as sinners, that is, he impureth not synners his cleere, neyther auengeth him on them for it, but geueth them grace to repent and hate their sinnes, and then he sheweth him selfe merciful unto them.

WHEN Balam saw it pleased the Lord that he should blese Israel, he wente not as he had twise before to set soothsaying, but set his face toward the wilderness, & lift up his eyes and looked upon Israel as he lay with his tribes, and the spirit of God came vpon him. But died in his owne sinne, and had no sonnes. Wherefore should the name of our fathers be taken away from among his kindred, because he had no sonne? Give vnto vs a possession among the brethren of our father. And Moses brought their cause before the Lord.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: The daughters of Zelaphead speake right thou shalt give them a possession to inherit among their fathers brethren, and shalt turne the inheritance of their father vnto them. And speake vnto the children of Israel, saying: If a man die, and have no sonne, ye shall turne his inheritance vnto his daughter. If he have no daughter, ye shall give his inheritance vnto his brethren. If he have no brethren, ye shall give his inheritance vnto his fathers brethren. If he have no fathers brethren, ye shall give his inheritance vnto him that is nexte to him of his kindred, and let him possess it. The. xxx. Chapter.

Of bowes when they shalbe kepte & when not.

And Moses spake vnto the heades of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the thyng whiche the lord commaundeth. (a) If a man bowe vnto the Lorde, of swete an oth, and bynde hys soule, he shal not go backe with hys worde: but shal fulfill al that pcedeth out of hys mouth.

If a damsell bow a vowe vnto the lord, and bynde hys selfe bynge in hys fathers house and unmarried. If hys father heare hys vowe, and bonde whiche she hath made vpon hir soule, and holde hys peace thereto: then all hir bowes and bondes, whiche she hath made vpon hir soule shal stonde in effecte. But and if hir father forbyd hys the same daye, þ he heareth it, none of hys vowe nor bondes, whiche she hath made vpon hys soule shalbe of valur, and the Lorde shall for forgeue her, because her father forbade her.

If she had an husbando when she vowed or pronounced oughte oute of her lyps wherewith she bound her soule, & her husband heard it, and helde bys peace thereat the same day he hearde it, then her vowes and her bondes wherewith she bound her soule shall stand in effecte: But and if her husband forbade her the same day that he heard it, then hath he made her vow wherewith she had upon her of none effecte, and that also which she pronounced with her lyps wherewith she bound her soule, and the lord shall forgeue her.

C The vow of a wyddow and of her that is denozced, & al that she haue bound thes soules whal, shall stand in effect with them.

If she vowed in her husbandes house or bound her soule with an oth, & her husband heard it and held his peace, and forbade her not: then al her vowes & bondes wherewith she bound her soule, shall stand. But if her husband disannulled them the same day that he heard them, then nothinge shall proceede out of her lippes in vowes & bondes wherewith she bounde her soule that shall stand in effect: for her husband hath lousyd her. And the lord shall forgeue her.

D All vowes and othes that bind to humble the soule, may her husbande stablyshe or breake. But if her husbande holde bys peace from one day unto another, then he shall stablyshe al her vowes and bondes which she had upon her, because he held his peace the same day that he heard them. And if he after ward breake them, he shall beate her smite him selfe.

These are the ordynances wherewith the lord commaunded Moyses, betwene a man and bys wyfe, and betwene the father and his daughter, beyng a damsel in her fathers house.

The Notes.

¶ A mannes vow. This vow here, is that which a man maketh for a certen space, whether it be to faste or to chaunce the body or any other thenge, as it is sayed in ier. vii. c. But marke this alwaye, gentle reader, that as it was not lawfull for the Jewes to vow the bychynge of goddes commandementes in any condition, so was it not lawfull for them nor is yet lawfull for vs, to breake goddes commandementes for anye worldly sake.

of Israel at the mouth of the Lorde, saying:
the tribe of the chyldren of Joseph haue sayde well. Whys therefore doth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of Zelaphead, sayinge: * let them be wyues to whiche they them selfe thynke beste, but in the kynged of the tribe of theyr father shal they mary, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel shal not come from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israel maye abyde, euery man in the enheritaunce of the tribe of his fathers. And euery daughter that posses-seth any enheritaunce amonge the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, shalbe wyfe vnto one of the kynged of the tribe of her father, & the chyldren of Israel maye enioy euery man the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce gonot from one tribe to another: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, maye abyde euery man in his owne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moyses euen so dyd the daughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Tirza, Hagla, Milcha and Noa and were maryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynged of the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Joseph: and so they had their enheritaunce in the tribe of the kynged of their father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded thowhe Moyses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the fieldes of Moab vpon Moza
da nyght vnto Jerico.

The ende of the. iiii. boke
of Moyses

This is a booke
worthy to be red both daye and nyght, and ne-
uer to be out of handes. For it is the most exel-lent of all the bo-
kes of Moyses.
It is calde also and lycht, and a very pure Gos-
pelle: that is to

wete, a preachinge of faith and loue: deducinge
the loue to God out of faith, and loue of a man neighbour out of the loue of God. Wherin also thou mayst lerne ryght meditation & contemplation, whiche is nothyng els save & cal-linge to mind and a repainge in the herte of the gloriouse and wonderfull deedes of God and of his terrible and longe of his enemies and myghty entreatyng of the & come when he callethe them whiche thynge this booke doth, and almost nothyng els.

In the. iiii. last chapters, he reherseth the benefites of God done vnto them, to prouoke the
to loue, and his myghty deedes done aboue all naturall power and beyonde all naturall capacite of faith, that they might beleue god & trust in hym and in his strenge. And thynke he re-herseth the spere plagis of God vpon his enemies and on them whiche thowhe impacense and rebelle fell from hym: partely to tame and abate the asperitee of the flesh whiche alway fight agaynst the spirite, and partly to byde the wilde ragynge lustes of them in whom was no spirite: & though they hadde no power to do good of loue, yet at the least waye they shoulde absteyne from outwarde euyl for fear of wrathe and cruell vngodlynes whiche shoulde fall vpon them and shoulde synne theym out, if they caste vp goddes noyce and turne at ryght beyonde his lawes and ordynances.
Wherfore he chargeth them to put nought to,
nor take ought awaye from Goddes wordes, but to be diligent only to kepe the in remembrance and in the herte, and to teache theyr chyldren, for feare of forgettyng. And to beware ether of makinge anagery or of bowyng theym selues vnto Images, sayinge: Ye sawe no image when God spake vnto you, but herd a voyce only, and that voyce kepe, and theres unto cleane, for it is your lyfe, and it shall save you. And finallye if (as the frailte of all fleche is) they shal haue fallen from God, and he haue broughte them into trouble, aduersitee, and con-fusioun, and at necessity, yet if they repente and turne, he promyseth them that God shall remember his mercy and receyue them to grace agayne.

In the. iiii. last chapters, he reherseth the. x. commaundemen-tes and that they myghte be a cause to doo them of loue, he byddeth theym remembre that they were bounde in Egypt and how God deliuered red them with a myghty hand & a stretched out arm to serue him and to kepe his commaundemen-tes: as Paul sayeth that we are boughte with Christe

Ex. xxi. l.

Ex. xxi. l.

Ex. vii. d.

And the auncient heades of the children of Galaad the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kyndred of the chyldren of Joseph came forth and spake before Moyses & the princes whiche were auncient heades amonge the chyldren of Israel; and sayed: * The Lorde commaunded my Lorde to geue the lande to enherit by lotte to the chyldren of Israel.
And then my Lorde commaunded in the name of the Lorde to geue the enheritaunce of Zelaphead our brother vnto his daughters. Nowe when any of the sonnes of the tribes of Israel take them to wyues, the shall their enheritaunce be taken from the enheritaunce of our fathers, and shalbe put to the enheritaunce of tribe in the whiche they are, and shalbe taken from the lotte of our enheritaunce. And when the yere of iubyle cometh vnto the chyldren of Israel, the shall their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wher in they are and so shall their enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the tribe of our fathers.

And Moyses commaunded the chyldren
of Israel at the mouth of the Lorde, saying:
the tribe of the chyldren of Joseph haue
sayde well. Whys therefore doth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of Zelaphead,
sayinge: * let them be wyues to whiche they them selfe thynke beste, but in the kyndred of the tribe of theyr father shal they marry, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel vnde not from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israel maye abyde, every man in the enheritaunce of the tribe of his fathers. And every daughter that posses-seth any enheritaunce amonge the tribes of
the chyldren of Israel, shalbe wyfe vnto one of the kyndred of the tribe of her father, & the chyldren of Israel maye enjoy every man
the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce gonor from one tribe to another: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, maye abyde every man in his owne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moyses
euen so dyd the daughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Tirza, Hogla, Milcha and Noa and were marryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kyndred of the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Joseph: and so they had their enheritaunce in the tribe of the kyndred of their father.

These are the commaundementes
and lawes whiche the Lorde com-
maunded thowhe Moyses,
vnto the chyldren of Israel in the fieldes of Moab vpon Moza
da nyte vnto
Jerico.

The ende of the. iiii. boke
of Moyses

This is a booke
worthy to be red
both daye and
nyght, and ne-
uer to be out of
handes. For it
is the most exel-
lent of all the bo-
kes of Moyses.
It is clere also and lyght, and a very pure Gos-
pelle: that is to

the loue to God out of faith, and loue of a man neighbour out of the loue of God. Wherin
also thou mayst lerne ryght meditation & contemplation, whiche is nothyng els save & cal-linge to mind and a reprimand in the herte of the gloriouse and wonderfull deedes of God
and of his terrible and longe of his enemies
and myghty entreatyng of the & come when he
almost nothyng els.

In the. iiii. last chapters, he reherseth the benefites of God done vnto them, to prouoke the
to loue, and his myghty deedes done aboue all
naturall power and beyonde all naturall capa-
cite of faith, that they might beleue god & trust in hym and in his strength. And thynke he re-herseth the spere plagis of God vpon his enemies and on them whiche thowhe impene-tence and rebelle felt from hym: partely to tame and abate the asperitee of the flesh whiche alway fight agaynst the spirite, and partly
to byde the wilde ragynge lustes of them in
whom was no spirite: & though they hadde no
power to do good of loue, yet at the least waye they shoulde absteyne from outwarde euyl for
fear of wrathe and cruell vngodlynes whiche shoulde fall vpon them and shoulde synde them out, if they caste vp goddes noyce and turne
at ryght beyonde his lawes and ordynances.
Wherfore he chargeth them to put nought to,
nor take ought awaye from Goddes wordes,
but to be diligent only to kepe the in remembrance and in the herte, and to teache theyr chyldren, for feare of forgettyng. And to beware ether of makinge anagery or of bowyng them selues vnto images, sayinge: Ye sawe
no image when God spake vnto you, but herd
a voyce only, and that voyce kepe, and theres vnto cleane, for it is your lyfe, and it shall saue
you. And finallye if (as the frailte of all fleche
is) they shal haue fallen from God, and he haue broughte them into trouble, aduersitee, and con-
fusioun, and at necessity, yet if they repente and
turne, he promyseth them that God shall remember his mercy and receyue them to grace agayne.

In the. l. he reherseth the. x. commaundemen-tes and that they myghte be a cause to doo them of loue, he byddeth them remembre that they were bounde in Egypt and how God deliuered
red them with a myghty hand & a stretched out
arm to serue him and to kepe his commaundemen-tes: as Paul sayeth that we are boughte with Christe

Christes bloude, and therefore are his seruantes and not our own, and oughte to like his will and honoure only, and to loue and serue one an other for his sake.

In the lyce he setteth oute the sommayne of all commandementes: that is, that they beleue howe that there is but one God that doeth all, and therefore oughte onely to be loued wth all the herte, all the soule, and all the myghte. For loue onely is the fulfilling of the commande-mentes, as Paul also saith vnto the Romaynes and Galatians likewise. He warneth them also that they forget not the commandementes but teach them the children and to shew their children also howe God deliuered them oute of the bondage of the Egyptians to serue him and his commandementes, that the children myghte see a cause to worke of loue, sperytually.

The seventh, is altogether of fayth the remouer of all occasions that myght wythstande them from the fayth, and pulleth them also from all confidence in them selues, and strereth them vp to trust in God bakely, and onely.

Of the eighth chapter, thou seest howe that the cause of all temptation is, that a man mighte se his owne hert. For when I am brought in to that extremite that I must either suffer or for-saue god, then I shal see howe muche I beleue and trust in him, and howe much I loue him. In like maner if my brother do me euill for my good euen if I loue him when there is no cause in him I se that my loue was of god, euen so if I then hate him, I see and perceiue that my loue was but worldly. And finally he strereth them to the fayth and loue of god, and dyuerteth them from all confidence of theyr owne serues.

In the ninth also, he moueth them vnto fayth and to put theyr trust in God, and diuerteth the from confidence of them selues by rehersynge all the wickednes which they had wroughte from the fyrste daye he knewe them vnto that same daye. And in the ende he expecteth howe he contured God in synes and ouercome hym wth synes, where thou mayest learn the right manner to praye.

In the tenth he rehermeth by the pith of all lawes and the keepinge of the law in the harte: whyche is to seece God, loue and serue hym, wth all theyr harte, soule and myghte and kepe his commandementes of loue. And he sheweth a reason whye they should that doo: euen because God is Lord of heauen and earth and hath also done all for them of his owne goodnesse wthoute theyr deservynge. And then out of the loue vnto God, he bringeth the loue vnto a mans neighbour, sayinge: God is Lord a ouer all Roydes and loueth all his seruantes indifferentlye, as well the poore feble, and the straunger, as the ryche and myghtye, and therefore wyl that we loue the poore and the straunger. And he addeth a cause, for ye were straungers and God deliuered you and hath brought you vnto a lande where ye be at home. Loue the straunger therefore for his sake.

In the xi. he exhorteth them to loue and fear God, and rehermeth the terrible deades of God vpon his enemies, and on them that rebelled agaynst hym. And he testifieth vnto the both what wyl folowe if they loue and feare God And what also if they dispise him & breake his commande ments.

In the xii. he commaundeth to put out of way all that myght be an occasion to hurte the fayth, and forbyddeth to be ouerly after theyr owne myndes, or to alter the wyse of God.

In the xiii. he forbyddeth to be vniought saue vnto goodes wordes although he which counselith contrary shuld come wth miracles, as paul doth vnto the Galatians.

In the xiiii. the bestes are forbydden, partely for the uncleannes of them, and partely to cause hate betwene the heathen and them, that they haue no conuersacion together, in that one abhorreth what the other eateth. Vnto this xv.

Chapter al pertaine vnto fayth and Loue chieflye. And in this xv. he begynneth too entreate more specciallye of thynges pertainynge vnto the common welthe and equitye and exhorteth vnto the loue of a mans neighbour. And in the xvi. a longe other he forgetteth not the same.
And in the xvii. he entreteith of right and equite chieflye, in so muche that when he looketh vnto fayth and vnto the punishment of idolaters, he yet endith in a lawe of loue and equite: forby-dyng to condemne any man vnder les then two witnesses at the leaste and commaundeth too dignify the trespassers vnto the open gate of the cite where al men go in and oute, that all men myghte heare the cause and se that he hadde but ryghte. But the pope hath founde a better waye euen to appose hym wthoute anye accusar, and that secretlye, that no man knowe whether hee haue ryghte or no, either here his articles or an-swereth: for feare lesse the people shoulde see the whether it were so or no.

In the xviii. he forbyddeth all falses & deuyllish craftes that hurt true fayth. Wherby because the people could not beare the voyce of a lawe spoken to the in syn, he promyseth them another prophet to bring the better tidings whiche was spoken of Christ our sauoure.

The xix. and so foryth vnto the end of the xxv. is almost altogether of loue vnto our neighbours and of lawes of equite, and honestly wth nows and then a respyce vnto fayth.

The xxvi. is a terrible chap, and to be trembled at: A chrysten mans heart might wel bleue for so lowe at the reuenge of it, for feare of the wyath that is lyke to come vpon be accordeynge vnto all the curses which thou ther readest. For acordeynge vnto these curses hath God deale wth al natyons, after theyr wer fallen into the abominacions of synnecesse.

The xxvii. is lyke terrible, wth a godly lesson in the ende that we shuld leane seching of gods secrettes and geue diligence to walch accordeyng to that he hath opened vnto vs. For the keeping of the commandementes of God teacheth wth some as thou mayest see in the same Chapter, where Moyses sayeth, kepe the commande-mentes, that ye maye vnderstand what ye oughte to doo. But too feareth Goddes secrettes blynd deith a maner as it wel proued by the swarmes of oure sophisters, whose wysdomes are nowe when we looke in the scripture, founde but full of folyshnes.

The fifte booke of Moses called Deutronomium.

The fyrste Chapter.

A brief rehearsal of thynges doone before, from the pryncing at Horeb until they came to Cades barni.

Letse bethe woꝝ des whiche Moses spake vnto al Israel on the other side Jordan in the wyldernes and in the felde by the red see, betwen pharan & Elphell, Laban, Bayeroth, and

Disahab. xi. daies iourney from Horeb vnto Cades barni. by the waye that leadeth to mount Seir. And it happened the first day of the xi moneth in the .xi. pere that Moses spake to the chyldren of Israel accord-yng vnto al that the Lord had geuen him in commaundmente vnto them after that he had smitten Schon the king of the Amorites which dwelt in Besbon & og king of Basan, which dwelt at Achoroth in Ebiai.

Ex. xxi. a.

On the otherside Jordan in the lande of Horeb, Moses began to declare this lawe, sayinge: the Lord our God spake vnto vs in Horeb, sayinge: ye haue dwelte long y-noughe in this mount: departe therefore and take youre iourneye and goo vnto the hilles of the Amontes, and vnto all places nye there vnto: bothe felde, Bylles and dales: and vnto the south and vnto the sea syde of the lande of Canaan, and vnto Ep-hanon euen vnto the great ruer Euphrates.
Beholde, I haue set the lande before you, goo in therfore and possesse the lande which the Lord swaie vnto your fathers. Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, to geue vnto the and theyr seede after them.

Horeb and Sinai are both one.

Behold, I haue set the lande before you,
goo in therfore and possesse the lande
which the Lord swaie vnto your fathers. Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, to geue vnto the
and theyr seede after them.

And I said vnto you the same season: I am not hable too beare my selfe alone. For the Lord your God hath multiplied you so that ye are this day as the sterres of heauen in number. the Lord God of your fathers make you a thousand tymes so ma-nye mo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath promysed you (howe) sayde I) can * I my self alone beare the accumbrance, charge & trawe that is amonges you: bringe therfore men of wysdome and of vnderstanding and of experiente, knowne among your tribes that I may make the rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and said, that whiche thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of your tribes, men of wisdom and experiente, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyfthe, and ouer x. and officers amonge your tribes.

Ex. x. xlii. c.

The ii. Chapter:

And I charged your Iudges the same time, saying: heare your brethren, and iudge righteously betwene euerye man and his brother and the straunger that is with him.
Se ye knowe no mans personage in iudgmente, * but heare the small as well as the greate, and bee astrapde of noo manne, for the iudgemente is Goddes. And the cause that is to hard for you, bring vnto me, and I wyl heare it. And I commaunded you same season all thynges whiche ye shulde doe. And then we departed from Horeb, and walched thowowe all that greate and terrible wildernes as ye haue sene along by the waye that leadeth vnto the hilles of the Amontes, as the Lord our God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barni. And there I said vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hilles of the Amontes which the Lord oure God dothe geue vs.

Judges.

Leuit. xxi. c.
Pro. xxiii. a Eccl. xlii. a.

Beholde, the Lord thy God hath set the lande before, go vp and conquere it, as the Lord God of thy fathers saythe vnto the: feare not: neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one, and said, Let vs send men before vs, to insearch out the land, and to bringe vs woordes agayne, bothe what waye we shall goo by, and vnto what ctytes we shall come. And the sayng pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euerye tribe one. And they departed and went vp into the hyghe coun-tre, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the fruite of the land in theyr handes, and brought it down vnto vs: and brought vs word agayne and said: It is a good land which the Lord our God dothe geue vs.

D

Notwithstanding ye wold not consente to goo by, but were disobediente vnto the pmouth of Lord your god, and murmured in your tentes, and sayd: because the Lord hateth vs, therfore he hath brought vs out of the lande of Egypte, too helyper vs into the hands of the Amontes, and to destroy vs.
Howe shal we goo by? Oute brethren haue discouraged out herts, sayinge: The people is greate and taller then we, and the ctyes are great and walled, euen vnto heauen. & moreouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I said vnto you: bried not, nether be afraid of them. The Lord your God which goth before you, he shal fight for you according to al that he did vnto you in Egypt, before your eyes in the wildernes, as thou hast sene how I lord thy God bare the as a man shuld beare his sonne thowowe oute all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for al this, ye did not beleue the Lord your God, whiche goth the waye before you, to searche you oute a place too ppyche your tentes in, * sye be-night, that ye might se what waye to go, and in a cloude by daye.

Exod. xxi. g

And the Lord hearde the voyce of your woordes, and was wrooth and swaie, sayng:

Num. xiii. d J sayinge, there shall not one of these menne of thys frowarde generacion se that good lande which I swaue to geue vnto poue fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune he shall se it, and to him wil I geue the lande whiche he hath walked in, and to his chyldren because he hath continuallie folowed the Lorde. Num. xxi. b J pkeuyle the Lorde was angre wth me: for poue sakes, sayinge: thou also shalt not goo in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun, whiche standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Bolden him therefore for he shall deupde the heritage vnto Israell.

Num. xlii. c. S * Moreouer pour chyldrene whiche ye sayde shoulde be a praye, and pour sonnes whiche knowe nether good nor bad thys day, they shal go in thither, and vnto them I wll geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for pou, turne backe and take pour iourne into the wilderness: euen the waye to the redde sea. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: We haue synned against the lord we wil go vp and fight, accordynge too all that the Lord our God commaunded vs. And when ye had gyde on every manne in weapons of war, and were redye to goo vp into the hilles, the Lord sayd vnto me: say vnto the, se ye go not vp, and that ye fight not, for I am not amog pou: lest ye be scouted before pour enemies. * And whē I told pou, ye woulde not heare: but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and wente presumptuously vp into hilles.

Then the Amontes which dwelt in these hilles, came out against pou and chased pou as bees do, & hewed pou in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye cam again and wept before the Lord: but the Lord wold not heare pour voice, nor geue pou audience. And so ye abode in Cadis alonge season.

The.ii. Chapter.

Deut. i. R eherfall of that whiche was done from the tyme that they departed frome Cadis borne, vnto the battell againste the kynges Schon and Og.

Deut. i. T hen we turned and toke oure iourney into the wilderness, euen the way to the red sea as the Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir a longe time. Then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue compassed thys mountaynes long enough, turn pou northwarde. And warne the people, sayinge: Ye shall go thorow the colles of pour brethren the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be a scapde of pou: But take good heede vnto poute selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I wll not geue pou of theyr land, no not so much as a fote bread: because I haue geuen mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall by meate of theym for monye to eate, and ye shall bye water of them for monye to dryncke. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed them in all thyr workes of thynne hande, and knewe the as thou wentest thorow his greete wilderness.

Moreouer the Lorde thy God hath bene with the this fourty yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothynge.

And when wee were departed from oure brethren the chyldren of Esau which dwell in Seir by the feilde waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we tourned and wente the waye to the wilderness of Moab. Then the Lorde saide vnto me, se that thou bere not the Moabites, nether prouoke them to batel: for I wil not geue the of theyr lande to possesse: because I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The Emmites dwell therein in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: which also were taken for gyautes as the Enakims. And the Moabites called them Emims.

In lyke maner the Doums dwell in Seir before them whiche the chyldrene of Esau caste oute, and destroyed them before them, and dwelte therein theyr tede: as Israel dyd in the lande of his possession which the Lorde gaue them. Nowe tye vp (sayd I) and get pou ouer the riuer zared, and we wente ouer the riuer zared. The space in whiche we came from Cadis Barne, vntill we were come ouer the riuer zared was xxxviii. yeres, vntill al the generacion of y me of warre were wasted oute of the hooite as the Lorde swaue vnto them. For in dedde the hande of the Lorde was againste them to destroye them oute of the hooite, till they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of war were consumed and dead forth of the people, the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thorow it at the cost of Moab this day, and shalt come nere vnto the chyldren of Ammon: se that thou bere them not, nor yet prouoke them. For I wil not geue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon too possesse, because I haue geuen it vnto the chyldre of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a lande of gyautes, and gyautes dwelte there in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them zanzumims. A people that was greete, manye and tall, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them before the Ammonites, and they call them onte, and they dwelte there in theyr seade as he dyd for the chyldrene of Esau, which dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, and they caste them oute and dwell in their seade vnto this day. And the Aums whiche dwelte in Bazan euen vnto Aza, the Capthorims which came of Capthor, destroyed them and dwelte in theyr towines.

Like vp, take pour iourney and goo ouer the riuer Arnon. Behold. * I haue geuen into thy hand Schon the Amorit, king of Schon and his Lande. Soo and conquere and prouoke him to battayle. The.iii. Chapter

Num. xxi. c. Then I sente messengers out of the wylternesse of the east vnto Sehon kyng of Desbon wth wordes of peace, sayinge: * Let me go thorowe thy lande. I wpll go alwayes alonge by the hye waye, and will neyther tourne vnto the ryghte hande nor to the left. Sel me meate for monye to eate, and geue me duncke for monye to drynke. I wpll goo thorowe by fote onelpe) as the children of Esau did vnto me whiche dwell in Seir, and the Moabites whiche dwell in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer Jordan into the land whiche the Lord our God geueth vs. But Sehon the kyng of Desbon wold not let vs pas by him, for the Lord thy god had hardened his sprite, & made his hert tough because he wold deliuer him into thy hand as it is come to passe this daye.

 At the comanderment. And the Lord sayde vnto me, behold, I haue begon to set Sehon and hys Lande before the go to and conquere, that thou mayest possesse hys lande. Then bothe Sehon and al his people came out againste vs vnto batapleat * Jahaz. And the Lord set him before vs, and wee smote him and his sonnes and al his people.

Deherwile Jafa And we tooke all his cities the same season and destroyed al hys ctyes, wth men womanne and chyldrene, and let nothinge remayne saue the castell onelpe we caught vnto oure selues, and the spole of the ctyes whiche we tooke, frome Aruer vppon the byrke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the ctye in the ryuer, vnto Galaad: there was not one ctye to stronge for vs. The Lord oure God deliuered all vnto vs: onelpe vnto the lande of the chyldrene of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto al the coste of the ryuer Jaboche, nor vnto the ctyes in the mountaynes, nor vnto whatsoeuer the Lord our God forbade vs.

Deherwile Jafa I reherstal of thyngs that chaunced from the victorie of the ii. kynges Sehon & Og, vnto the institution of Josua in Balcastrate.

Num. xxi. c. Deu. xxi. b. Then we turned and went by the way to Basan: * And Og the kyng of Basan came oute agaynst vs, bothe he and al his people to batel at Edrai. And the Lord sayde vnto me: feare him not: for I haue deliuered him and all hys people and his lnd into thy hande, and thou shalt deale with him as thou dealest with Sehon kyng of the Amorytes which dwelte at Desbon. And so the Lord our God deliuered in to our handes, Og also the kyng of Basan, and all his folke. And we smote hym, tpll noughte was lefte hym.

Num. xxi. c. And we toke al his cities the same season (for ther was not a ctye whiche we toke not fro them, euf thie score cities, al the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. Al these cities were made strong wth hye walles, Gates and barres, besyde vnto walled townes a greate meanpe. And wee utterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Desbon, byrnyng to noughte al the cities with menne, women, and children. But al the catel and the spole of the ctyes, we preserued for oure selues.

B And thus we toke the same season: the lande oute of the hande of the two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon, (whiche Hermon the Sidons cal Sirion, but the Amorytes call it Senir) al the ctyes in the playne, and all Galaad, and all Basan vnto Salecha and Edrai, ctyes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For on: ly Og kyng of Basan remyned of the rest of the graunts, behold his prion bed is yet at Rabah among the children of Ammon. x. cubites longe, and. iii. cubites brode, of the cubites of a manne.

And when we had conquered thys lande the same tyme, I gaue from Aruer, whiche is vpon the ryuer of Arnon, and half mount Galaad, and the cities therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and all Basan, the kyngdome of Og, I gaue vnto the halfe tribe of Manasse, al the region of Argob withal. Basan was called the Lande of graunters. For the sonne of Manasse tooke all the region of Argob vnto the cooles of Sesur and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan * Baath. For vnto thys daye. And I gaue half Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue from Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and half the valley and the cost, euen vnto the ryuer Jaboche, which is the border of the children of Ammon, and the felde & Jordan with the cost from Ceneroth vnto the sea in the feld, whiche is the salt sea vnder the springs of phasgah eastwarde.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lord your God hath geuen you this land to enioy it: se you go harnessed before your brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are men of war amonges you. Your wyues only, your chyldren and your catel: for I wot that pehaue much catel) shal abide in your cities which I haue geuen you, vntil the Lord haue geuen rest vnto your brethren as wel as vnto you, and vntil they also haue conquered the land which the Lord your God hath geuen them beyond Jordan: and then retorne agayne every man vnto his possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua the same time, sayinge: thynne eyes haue sene al that the Lord your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen soo the Lord wpll doo vnto all kyngdomes whither thou goeste. Feare them not, for the Lord your God it is, that fygtheth for you.

And I besought the Lord the same time sayinge: O Lord thy God, thou haste begun to shewe thy seruau: thy greatnes & thy myghte hande, for there is no God in heauen

I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded Kepe them therefore and do them. * for that is your wysdome and vnderstandyng in the syghte of the nations: whiche when they haue hearde all these ordinaunces, what nacyon is so great that hath the God so nye vnto hym: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thynges, when we cal vnto Lorde your God in Horeb when he sayde vnto me, gather me the people together, þ I may make them heare my wordes to thintest they myght learne to feare me as longe as they liue vpon the earth, and that they may teach thy chylde: ye came and stode also vnder the hyl, and the hyl burnte with fire euen vnto the midsof heauen and ther was darknes, clouds and mist. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye herde the voyce of the wordes: but saw no image, save herde a voyce onelye.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt whiche he commaunded you to do, euen ten sayings & wrot them in two tables of stone And the Lorde commaunded me that same season to teach you ordinaunces and lawes, for to do them in the land whether ye go to possesse it.

Take heede vnto your selues diligently manner of image the daye when the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb oute of the fyre, leaste you make your selues: and make you grauen ymages after what soeuer lykenes it be: whether after the likenesse of man or the earth, or of any manner fethered fowl that flieth in þ ayre, or of any maner wyrm that crepeth on the earth, or of anye maner dest bow thy selfe vnto them, & serue thinters of heauen.

For the Lorde toke you and broughte you oute of the prion fornaie of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enheritaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angry wyth me for your sakes and swaie, that I shuld not go ouer Jordan, and that I shoulde not go vnto that good Lande, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the to enheritaunce. For I must dye in this lande, and shall not go ouer Jordan. But ye shal go ouer and conquer that good lande.

Take heede vnto your selfe therefore that ye forget not the apoyntment of the Lord your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no graue image of what nesse of Whatsoeuer it be, and shalt worke wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke hym, I cal heauen and earth too recorde vnto you this daye, that ye shall shortlye perishe forthe of the Lande whether ye go ouer Jordan brynge you: and there ye shal serue goddes shal feke the Lord your God even there, and shal fonde hym, if thou feke him with al bulacion: and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the later daies, thou shalte tourne vnto the Lord thy God, and shalte hearken vnto his voyce. For the Lord thy god is a pitiful god: he wil not forsake the, nether destroy the, nor forgette the appointment made with thy fathers whiche he swore vnto them.

For aske I praye the, of the dayes that are passe whiche were before the, from the day that God created man vpon the earth and from the one syde of heauen vnto the other, whether anye thyng hath ben like vnto this greete thyng, or whether anye with his myghty power of Egypt: to thrust out nacions greter and mightier then thou before the, to brynge the, and to geue the

But thus ye shall deale with them: ouerthrowe their altars, breake downe their pillars, cut downe their groves, and burne their images with fire. For thou art an holy nation vnto the lord thy God, the lord thy god hath chosen thee, to be a seueral people vnto himselfe, of all nations that are vpon the earth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue all nations that þ Lord had lust vnto you, & chose you. For ye were fewest of all nations. But because the lord loued you, and because he wold kepe þ oath which he hadde sworn vnto your fathers, therefore he brought you out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and deliuered you forth of the house of bondage: even from the hand of pharaon, king of Egypt.

not differ þ time vnto him that hateth him: but will reward him before his face. sepe therefore the commaundementes, ordinances and laws, whiche I commaunde you this daye, that ye do them.

If ye shal hearken vnto these laws & shall fulfil and do them, then shall the lord thy God kepe appointment with the & the mercie which he swore vnto thy fathers, & will loue the, blisse the, and multiply the: he will blisse the fruit of thy wombe, & the fruit of thy fielde, thy corne, thy wine, & thine oyle, the fruite of thine oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe in the land, which he swore vnto thy fathers to giue the. Thou shalt be blessed aboue all nations, there shalbe neither man nor woman vnfruitful among you, nor any thing vnfruitfull amonges your cattel. Moreouer the Lord will turne fro the all manner infirmities, and will put none of the euill diseases of Egypt (which thou knowest) vpon the, but will sende them vpon them that hate the.

Exo. xiii. d.

Exo. xiii. d.

Thou shalt bring to nought all nations, which þ lord thy God deliuereth the, thine eye shall haue no pitie vpon them, neyther shalt thou serue their goddes, for that shall be thy decaye. If thou shalt saie in thine heart, these nations are more than I, howe can I cast them out? I eate them not, but remember, what the lord thy God did vnto pharaon, and vnto all Egypt, and the great temptations which thine eyes sawe, and the signes and wonders, and mighty hand & stretched arme, wherewith the Lord thy God, brought the out: euen so shall the Lord thy God do vnto all the nations of which thou art afraid.

Hereto, the lord thy God will send hornettes among them, but all they that are left and hide the selues from the, be destroyed. Se thou feare them not, for the Lord thy god is among you, a mighty god and a terrible. The Lord thy god will put out these nations before the by litle and litle, thou mayest not consume them at ones, least the beastes of the fielde encrease vpon the. And the lord thy God shall deliuer the vnto the and stirre vp a mighty tempest among the vntill they be broughte to nought. And he shall deliuer the: kinges into thine hand, & thou shalt destroye the: names away vnder heaven. Ther shall no man stand before the, but all thou haue destroyed them. The images of their goddes thou shalt burne with fire, and se thou count not the silver or gold, that is on the, nor take it vnto the, least thou be snared therewith. For it is an abominacion vnto the lord thy god. Bring not therefore the abominacion to thine house, least thou be accursed, as it is: but utterly despise it, and abhorre it, for it is a thinge that must be destroyed.

The. vii. Chapter.

Moses putteth þ Israelites in remembrance of the afflictions and benefites that they had þ fathers cl. pecc, whiche they were in the wilderness.

Al the commaundementes, whiche I commaunde the this daye, ye shall kepe to do them, that ye maye lyue & multiplye, and go & possesse the land which the Lord hath sayde vnto your fathers. And thynke on all the waye, which the Lord thy God led the this. xl. yere in the wilderness, for to humble the and to proue the, to wete what was in thine hert, whether thou woldest kepe his commaundementes or no. He humbled the and made the hungrye, & fed the with manna, which neither thou, nor what. xli. a thy father knewe of, to make the knowe, that a man must not liue by bread onely, but by all that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord must a man lyue. The rapinet warred not olde vpon the, neither didde thy fete Deute. xxi. swell this xl. yere.

Understand therfore in thine hert, that as a man noureteth his sonne, even so the Lord thy God noureteth the. Keep therfore the commaundementes of the Lord thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, & that thou feare him. For the Lord thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande of riuers of water, of fountaines, and of springs, that spraye oute both in balces and hilles: & land of wheate and of barley, of vines, figge trees and pomegranates, a lande of olpue trees of oyle, and of honny: a lande wherein thou shalt not eat bread in scarcenes, and where thou shalt lacke nothinge, a lande whose floones are pson, and oute of whose hilles thou shalt digge brasse. When thou hast eaten therfore and filled thy selfe, thou shalt blese the Lord for the good lande, which he hath giuen the.

But beware thou forget not the Lord thy God, that thou woldest not kepe his commaundementes, lawes and ordinaunces which I commaunde the this daye: yea and whiche thou hast eaten and filled thy selfe, and hast buylt goodly houses, and dwelt therein, and whiche thy beastes and thy shepe are watered in, and thy siluer & gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast increased, then beware least thyne hert tyle, and thou forgette the Lord thy God, which brought the out of the lande of Egypt the house of bondage, and which led the in the wilderness, both great & terrible with fierpe serpentes and scorpions, & drouth wher was no water, which brought the water out of the rocke of flint: whiche fed the in the wilderness with manna, whiche of thy fathers knew not, for to humble the and to proue the, that he mighte do good at thy latter ende.

And beware thou saye not in thyne hert, my power & the might of mine owne hande hath done me all these actes: But remembre the Lord thy God, that it is he which gaue the power to doo manfullye; for to make good the promise which he swaie vnto thy fathers, as it is come to passe this daye.

For if thou shalt forget the Lord thy God, and shalt walke after straunge Gods and serue them and worship them. I testify vnto you this daye, that ye shall surely perishe. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before the, so ye shall perishe, because ye woulde not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord your God.

The ix Chapter.

They are forbidden to trust in theyr owne strength. & rehearsal of certaine thinges that were done after the same waye, vnto the manner of the greuous of the laste.

Hear ye Israel, thou goest ouer Jordan this daye, to go & conquer nations greater and mightier then thy selfe, and cities great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall, euen the children of the Anakims, which thou knowest & of whom thou hast heard a say, who is able to stand before the children of Israel? But understand this daye, that the Lord thy God which goeth before the, a consuming fire, he shall destroy them, and shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, & spyng them forth, and destroy quickly as the Lord hath sayd vnto the.

Speake not in thine herte, after that the Lord thy God hath cast the out before the, saying: for my righteousness the Lord hath brought me in, to possesse this land. I saie, for the wickednes of these nations, & Lord doth cast them out before the. It is not for thy righteousness and right hert, that thou goest to possesse the land: But partly for the wickednesse of these nations, the Lord thy God doth cast them out before the, and partly to performe that the Lord thy God swaie vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understand therfore, that it is not for thy righteousness, that the Lord thy God doth giue the this good land to possesse, for thou art a stiffnecked people. Remembre & forget not, how thou prouokedst the Lord thy God in the wilderness: for sythens the daye that thou camest out of the land of Egypt vntill ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled agaynst the Lord. Also in Horeb ye angred the Lord, so that the Lord was wroth with you, eue to haue destroyed you, after that I was gone vnto the mount, to set the tables of stone, the tables of appointment, whiche the Lord made wpth you. And I abode in the hill. xl. dayes, and xl. nightes, & neither ate bread nor dranke water. And the Lord deliuered me two tables of stone written wpth the fynger of God, and in them was contained, accordyng to all the wordes, whiche the Lord sayd vnto you in the mount, out of the fire in the daye, when the people were gathered together.

And when xl. daies, and xl. nightes were ended, the Lord gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and I shewed vnto me. Arise, and get thee downe quickly from hence, for thy people which I haue brought out of Egypte, haue married them

selues. They are tourued att once out of the wape, which I commaunded them, & haue made them a wod of metall. Furthermore the lord spake vnto me, sayinge: A se the people, how it is a stifnecked people, lette me alone, that I maye destroye them, and putte out the name of them vnder heauen, and I will make of the, a nation both greater and more than they.

And I turned away and came downe fro the hylle (and the hylle burnt wth fyre) and had the two tables of the appointmente in my handes. And when I looked and sawe that pe had sinned against the lord your god, and had made you a calfe of metall, & had turned altogether out of þ wape which the lord had commaunded you. * Then I toke the two tables, and cast them oute of my two handes, and brake the before your eyes. * And I fell before the Lord: euen as at the first time xl. dayes and xl. nightes, & neither ate bread nor dranke water, ouer all your synnes, which pe had sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the Lord, and in prouokinge him. For I was afrayed of the wrath and fearefullnes, wherewith the Lord was angrye with you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the lord heard my petition at the tyme also.

The lord was very angry with Aaron also, euen for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercession for Aaron also the same tyme. And I toke your spy, the calf wherewith pe had made, & burnt him with fyre, and stamped him and ground him a good, euen vnto small dust. And I caste the dust thereof in the brooke that descended oute of the mount. Also at * Shaberah, and at * Esrah, and at the sepulchres of Iussye displeased the Lord, pe and when the Lord sente you from Cadis Barne, sayinge: go vp and conquere the lande whiche I haue gauen you, pe disobeyed the mouth of þ lord your God, and neyther beleued him, nor hearkened vnto his voice. Thus pe haue bene disobedient vnto the Lord, sythens the day that I knewe you.

And I fell before the lord xl. dayes and xl. nightes, wherewith I laue the, for the lord was minded to haue destroyed you. But I made intercession vnto the Lord, & sayde: * O Lord God, destroy not thy people and thine inheritance, which thou hast deuoted thow me thy greatnesse, and wherewith thou hast broughte oute of Egypte wth a mighty hande. Remembre thy seruaunts Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and loke not vnto the stubburnesse of this people, nor vnto their wickednes and synne: leasse the lande whence thou broughtest them, saye: Because the Lord was not able to bringe them into the lande, wherewith he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore he carryed them oute to destroye them in the wilderness. Moreouer they are thy people, and thine inheritance, whiche thou broughtest forth wth thy mighty power, and wth thy stretched arme.

The x. Chapter.

A repetition of some of the journeyes of þ Israelites. The remouing of the tables. An exhortacion to geue heede to the lawe.

I At the same season þ lord said vnto me: * Here the two tables of stone like vnto the first, & come vp vnto me into the mount and make the an arcke of wood, and I will wyte in the tables, the words that were in the first tables whiche thou brakest, & thou shalt put them in the arcke. And I made an arcke of Setim woode and hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the first, and wente vp into the mountaine, and the two tables in my hande.

And he wrote in the tables, according to the first writinge the ten wordes which the Lord spake vnto you in the mount of the syne in the daye when the people gathered togither, and gaue the vnto me. And I departed and came downe from the hylle, and put the tables in the arcke, wherewith I hadde made: and there they remayned, as the lord commaunded me.

And the chyldren of Israel toke their iourney from Bereth of the chyldren of Jakan to Mosera, wher Aaron died, and wher he was buried, and Eleazar his sonne became puerie in his stede. And from thence they departed vnto * Gadgad and from Gadgad to Jathbath a land of miers of water. And the same season the Lord seuered the tribbe of Leui to beare the arcke of the appointmente of the lord, and to stande before the Lord, and to ministrate vnto hym, & to blesse in his name vnto this day. Wherfore the Leuites haue no parte nor inheritance with their brethren. The lord, he is their inheritance, as the lord thy god hath promysed them.

And I staid in the mount, euen as at the first time xl. dayes and xl. nightes, and the lord hearkened vnto me at that tyme also, so þ the lord would not destroye the. And the lord said vnto me: Arise and go forth in the iourney before the people, and let them go in, and conquere the lande, which I sware vnto their fathers to geue them.

And now Israel, what is it that the lord thy God requyret of the, but to feare the Lord thy God, & to walke in all his wayes, and to * loue him, and to serue the lord thy God with all thine herse, and with all thy soule, that thou kepe the commaundementes of the lord and his ordinaunces, whiche I commaunde the this daye, for thy wealth. Behold, heauen and the heauen of heauens, is the Lordes thy God, and the earth with all that therein is: only the lord had a luste vnto thy fathers to loue the, and therfore chose you their sede after them of all nacjns, as it is come to passe this daye.

Circumcise therfore the foreskin of your hearts, and be no longer stifnecked. For the lord your God, he is God of waddes, and lord of lordes, a great God, a mighty, and or unto the iudge, shall dye, & so thou shalt put away evil from Israel. And all the people shall heare and shall feare, and shall do no more presumptuously.

When thou art come unto the land whiche the lord thy God giveth thee, and enioynest it and dwellest therein: Yet thou shalt say, I will set a king over me: like unto all the nations that are about me: Then thou shalt make him king over the whom the Lord thy God shall choose. One of thine brethren must thou make king over thee, and may not set a stranger over the which is not of thy brethren. But in any wise let him not hold to many horses, that he bringe not people against to Egypt: for as much as the multitude of horses, for as much as the Lord hath said unto paye: shall henceforth go no more against that wape. Also he shall not have to many wives lest his heart turne away, neyther shall he gather him silver and golde to much.

And when he is set upon the seate of his kingdome, he shall write him forth this second law in a booke, takinge a copie of the puddes the Levites. And it shall be with him, he shall rede therein all dayes of his life: that he may learne to feare the lord his God to keepe all the wordes of this law, & these or-dinaunces to do them. & his heart aske not about his brethren: that he turne not fro the commaundment: either to the right hand or to the left, that both he and his children may prolong their dayes in his kingdome in Israel.

The Levites may have no possessions. Jedusay must be fled. The prophet which is prophesied, & false prophet must be slayne, and howe he may be known.

The priestes, the Levites, all the tribe of Leuy shall have no part nor inheritaunce with Israel. The offerings of the Lord & his inheritance they shall eate, but shall have inheritance amonge the brethren: the lord is their inheritance, as he hath said unto them. And this is the du-tye of the priestes of the people and of the that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: they must give unto the priest, the shoulder and the two chekes and the mawe, the first frutes of the corne, wine and oyle, and a porcion of wol of the shepe: weeping muste thou give him. For the Lord thy God hath chosen him out of all the tribes to stand, and to minister in the name of the lord, both he him and his sonnes for ever. If a Leuite come forth of any of the cities or any place of Israel, wher he is a journeyer, and come with all the lust of his heart unto the place whiche the lord hath chosen: he shall there minister in the name of the Lord thy God, as all his brethren the Leuites do which stand ther before the lord. And they shall have like porcions to eate, besyde that cometh to them of the patrimony of his auncellours.

When thou art come into the land whiche the lord thy God giveth thee, see thou learne not to do after the abominations of these nations. Let there not be found among you that maketh his son or daughter to go thro rowe the fyre, or that sleeth wylchcraft, or a chooser out of dayes or that regardeth the springe of foules, or a sorcerer, or a charmat, or that counseleth wylchcraft, or a prophet, or that aske the aduise of a deade. For all that do such thynges are abomination unto the Lord: and because of these abominations the Lord thy God both cast them out before thee, & purge the land wylch the Lord thy God. For these nations whiche thou shalt conquer, hearken to choosers out of dayes and prophets.

But the Lord thy God promptly not that to thee.

The Lord thy God will send him a prophet amonges you: even of thy brethren like unto me: and vnto him ye shall hearken accor-dyng to all that he shall say in the name of the Lord thy God in those dayes when the people were gathered. Saying: Let us heare the voyce of my Lord God no more, nor let us have a grete speake more, that we dye not.

And the Lord sayde vnto me: they have well spoken, I will raise them up a pro-phete frome the myddes of their brethren unto thee, and will put my wordes into his mouth, and he shall commaunde hym. And whosoever wil not hearken vnto that word des whiche he shall speake in my name, I will requyte it of him.

But the prophet which shall presume to speake ought in my name which I commaunded not to speake, and he that speaketh in the name of strange gods, shall dye. And if thou saye in thine heart how shall I know the whiche the Lord hath not spoken?

When a prophete speaketh in the name of the lord, if the thyng folowe not nor come to passe, that is the thyng whiche the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously. be not aserde therfore of hym.

The frumchised townes. The punishment of hym that beareth false wynges.

When the Lord thy God hath destroyed the nations, whose land the Lord thy God giveth thee, and thou hast conquered them, and dwellest in the Cities and in their houses: thou shalt appointe three Cities in the myddes of the lande whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee to possesse: thou shalt prepare the way and deuyde the costes of thy land whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee too

And let the captaynes speake further vnto the people and saye. If any man feare and be fayne herted, let hym go and retourne to his house lest his brothers herte be made faint as wel as his. And whē the captaynes haue made an ende of speakynge vnto the people, euery standarde shall arraye hym selfe to fight.

When thou comest nyghe vnto a cytye to fight agaynst it, offer them peac. And if they answer the agayne peaceably, and open vnto the, then let all the people that is found therein be tributaries vnto the, and serue the. But if they wil make no peare w the, then make war agaynst the cytye and besiege it. The. xxi. Chapter.

The purgation of him that is found dead, and is not known how he was slayne. How we ought to take to wfe his that is taken in warre. The right of the first begotten. The punishment of the sonne that is disobedient to his father and mother.

Yf one be founde slayne in the lande which the Lord thy God giveth thee to possesse, and lyeth in the fieldes: & not known who hath slayne him: then let thine elders and thy iudges come forth, & measure the distance of the cities that are roundabout the slayne person. And let the elders of that cite, which is next unto the slaine man, take an heifer which hath not bene laboured, nor hath drawen in the yock, and let them bring hit unto a valeye where is neither eatinge nor sowing, and strike of his head there in the valeye.

When let the priestes the sonnes of Levi come forth: for the lord thy God hath chosen them to serue and too praise his name, and therfore at their mouth shall all strife and plage be tryed. And all the elders of the cite & is next to the slaine man, shall come forth to the corpes, and washe their hands ouer the heifer & is beheaded in & plaine. & shall answer & saye: our hands haue not shed this blood, neither haue our eyes sene it. Be mercifull lord vnto thy people Israel, which thou hast deliuered and put not innocent bloude vnto thy people Israel: & the blood shall be forgiven the. And so shalt thou put innocent bloude from the, when thou shalt haue done that is right in the sight of the lord.

When thou goest to warre against thine enemies, and the Lord thy God hath deliuered them into thine handes, & thou hast taken them prisoners, and seist amongst the captiues a beautiful womanne, and hast a loue vnto hir, that thou wouldest haue hir to thy wife. Bringing hir home to thine house and let hir haue hir head, and pare hir naries, and put hir raiment that she was taken from hir, and lette hir remaine in thine house and beweepe hir father & hir mother a moneth long, and after that go in vnto hir and marie hir, and let hir be thy wife. And if thou haue no fauoure vnto hir, then let hir go whether she lusteth: for thou mayest not sell hir for money, nor make cheefeauce of hir, because thou hast humbled hir. If a man haue two wifes, one loued and another hated, and they haue borne him children, both the loued & also the hated. If the first borne be the son of the hated: then when he disposeth his goodes amongst the children, he may not make the son of the beloved first borne, before the son of the hated, which is in dede the first borne: But he shall know the son of & hated for his first borne, & he giue him double of all that he hath. For he is the first of his strength, & to him belongeth the right of the first borneshippe.

If any man haue a son that is stubburne and disobedient, so that he wil not hearken to the voice of his father, and voice of his mother, & they haue taught him nought, but he would not hearken vnto them: then let his father and his mother take him, and bring him out vnto the elders of that cite, and vnto the gate of that same place, and saye vnto the elders of the cite. This our sonne is obstinate and disobedient, & will not hearken vnto our voice, he is a rebel & a bronckarde. Then let all the men of that cite stone him to death. And thou shalt put euill awaie from the, and all Israel shall heare and feare. * If a man haue committed a trespase worthy of death, and is put to death for it, and hanged on tre: lette not his body remaine al night vpon the tree, but burie him the same day. For the curse of God is on him that is hanged. Defile not thy land therefore, which the lord thy God giveth thee to inherite.

The. xxi. Chapter.

What thou oughtest to do when thou syndest thy neyghbours bras going astraye. A man shall not weare womens clothyng: & a woman mannes clothyng. As were a cote of wolle and of flaxe is also forbidden. The punishment of hym that accuseth a manne vnghtly: of an aduocater also, and of hym that sauyth a mayde.

If thou se thy brothers ox or shepe go astraye, thou shalt not withdraue thy selfe from them: But shalt bring them home agayne vnto thy brother. If thy brother be not nigh vnto the, or if thou knowe him not, bringe them vnto thine owne house, & let them be with the, till thy brother aske after them, and then deliuer him them agayne. In like manner shalt thou do with his asse, with his raiment, and with all losse thynges of thy brother which he hath lost, and thou shalt founde, and thou mayest not withdraue thy selfe.

If thou se that thy brothers asse or ox is fallen downe by the waye, thou shalt not withdraue thy selfe from them: but shalt helpe him to heue them vp agayne.

The woman shall not weare that pertaileth vnto the man, neither shall a man put on womans raiment. For all that do so, are abomination vnto the Lord thy God.

If thou chaunce vpon a byrdes nest by the waye, in whatsoever tree it be or on the ground whether they be pounges or egges, and the damme sitting vpon the pounges or vpon the egges: thou shalt not take the mother wth the pounges. But shalt in any wise let the damme go, and take the pounges, that thou mayest prospere and prolonge thy dayes.

If a man take a wife, and when he hath lyne wth her, hate her, and lape shamefull thynges vnto her charge, and brynge vppon an euill name vpon her, and saye: I toke this wife and when I came to her, I found her not a maide. Then lette the father of the damsell and the mother brynge forth the tokens of the damselfs bryngynge vnto the elders of the citty, euen to the gate. And let the damselfs father saye vnto the elders: I gaue my daughter vnto this man soo wyfe, and he hath hated her, and lo he lapyeth shamefull thynges vnto her charge, sayinge: I founde not thy daughter a maide. And yet these are the tokens of my daughters virginite. And lette them spreaue the besture before the elders of the citty.

Then lette the elders of that citty take that man, and chastise hym, and a merce hym in an hundred strokes of smiter, and giue them vnto the father of the damself, because he hath broughte by an euill report vpon a maide in Israhell. And she shall bee his wyfe, and he may not put her away all his daies. But if the charge be of a true the that the damself be not founde a virgin, let them brynge her to the doore of her fathers house, and let the menne of that citty stone her with stones to deathe, because she hath wrought folpe in Israhell, to play the whore in her fathers house, and so thou shalt put euill awaye from the.

There shall be no hire of the daughters of Israel, nor hiremenger of the sons of Israel. Thou shalt neither bring a hire of an hire, nor the price of a dogge into the house of the Lord thy God in no manner of hire, for both of them are an abomination unto the Lord thy God.

Thou shalt be no blater unto thy brother neither in money nor in fode, nor in any manner thinge that is lent upon usury. Into a stranger thou mayst lend upon usury, but not unto thy brother, for thou shalt lend him in hande, that the Lord thy God make bleste him in all thou sette thy hande to in the lande whither thou goest to conquer it.

When thou hast bailed a vail unto the Lord thy God, let thou be not slacke to paye it, for the Lord thy God require it of thee and it shall be laid unto thee. If thou shalt leave him, it shall be no sinne one to thee but that which is ones gone out of thy lippes, thou must kepe and do, according as thou hast vowed unto the Lord thy God of a free will whiche thou hast spoken with thy mouth.

When thou comest into thy neighbours bynes arde, thou muste care graze thy beeste full at thy pleasure: but thou shalt put none in thy bagge.

When thou goest into thy neighbours come, thou must plucke the eares with thy hand, but thou mayst not mowe a speere to thy neighbours come.

The xxiii. Chapter.

The punishment is permitted for that is newe: but the old shall not be compelled to goe to warre. The remnants of corn must be left in herdest for the poore.

When a man hath taken a wyfe and married her, if she finde no fauoure in his eyes, because he hath espied some uncleanness in her, then lette hym write her a bryll of dyuorcement & put it in her hande and sende her forth of his house.

If when she is departed out of his house she goo and be an other mannes wyfe and the second husband hate her and wyte her a lecher of dyuorcement and put it in her hand and sende her out of his house: or if the second man dye whiche took her to wyfe, her first husband which let her, a may may not take her agayne to be his wyfe, in as muche as she is defiled. For that is an abomination in the sight of the Lord: that thou doste not the land with synne whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee to inherite.

When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shall not go a warre, neither shall he charge with any busynesse: but shall be free at home one yere, and reioyce with his wyfe whiche he hath taken. A man shall take the netter or the upper millstone to pledge, for when he taketh a manns life to pledge, if any man be founde dealinge any of his brethren the children of Israel, and mankerh cherefaunce at hym or secretly hym the same shall dye, and thou shalt putte anpillawape from the. Take heed to thy self concerning the plague of leprose, that thou observe diligently to do accordinge too all that the priests and Leuites shall teach thee, even as I commaunded them. So shall thou observe to do. Remember what the Lord thy God did unto Mary by the way after that she were come out of Egypt.

If thou lend thy brother any manner summe, thou shalt not go in to his house to fetch a pledge, but thou shalt stand without, and the man to whom thou lendest shall bringe the pledge out at the doore. Further more if it be a poore body, go not to sleepe with his pledge, but deliuer hym the pledge agayne before the sun sette, and let hym sleepe in his raimente and bleste thee.

And it shall be thyghtfullnes unto the before the Lord thy God. If thou shalt not deliuer an hired seruante that is hebre and poore, whether he be of thy brethren, or a stranger that is in thy hande wryting thy optres. For he is thy brother like same, and lette not the sunne goe downe thereon, for he is hebre, and thou shalt see his life, lest he crye against thee unto the Lord, and it be sinne unto thee. The hire shall not dye for the children, nor the children for the fathers, but every man shall dye for his owne synne.

Remember not the right of the stranger, nor of the fatherles, nor take widows raiment to pledge, but remember thou wast a seruant in Egypt, and howe the Lord thy God deliuered thee thence. Wherefore I commaunde thee to do this thinge.

When thou cuttest downe thine harvest in the fildes, thou shalt not go agayne and set it. But it shall be for the stranger, the fatherles and the widowe that the Lord thy God make bleste thee in all the workes of thy hande. When thou beatest downe thine olive trees, thou shalt not make cleane olivdauce after thee, but it shall be for the stranger, the fatherles, and the widowe. And when thou gatherest thy vineyard, thou shalt not gather cleane after thee, but it shall be for the stranger, the fatherles, and the widowe. And remember thou wast a seruant in the land of Egypt: wherefore I commaunde thee to do this thinge.

Deut. xlii. a * Ye stand here thys day every one of you before the Lord your God, both the heads of your tribes of your elders, your officers and al the men of Israell: your chyldrene, your wyues and the straungers that are in thine host, from the hewer of the wodde vnto the drawer of thy water: that thou shuldest come vnder the apoyntment of þ Lord thy God. vnder his oth which the Lord the god maketh with the thys dai. For to make the a people vnto him self, and that ye may be vnto the a God, as he hath saide to the, & he hath sworn vnto thy fathers Abraham

Gen. xlii. a Isaac and Jacob.
D Also I make not thys bond and this oth wth you only: but both with him that standeth here with vs thys day before the Lord our god, and also with him that is not here with vs thys dai. For ye know how we haue dwelt in the lande of Egypt, and howe we came thorow the mids of the nations whiche we passed by. And ye haue sene theyr abhomynacions and theyr idoles: wod: stone, siluer and gold whiche they had.

Let there be among you man or woman kinted of tribe, þ turneth away in his heart this day from the Lord our God, to go and serue the gods of these nacions: and lest they be amonge you some rote that beareth gal and wormwod, so that when he heareth the wordes of this curse, he blesse him self in hys hearte sayinge: þ shal haue peace.

Deut. xli. b. I wyl therefore woike after the luste of myne owne hearte, that the drunken maye perpe the with the thysie. And so the Lord wil not be merciful vnto hym, but then the wrath of the Lord and his gelousie, smoke against that man. and al the curles that are wrytten in this boke light vpon him, and the Lord do out his name from vnder heauen and separate him vnto euil out of al the tribes of Israell according vnto al the curles of the appoyntment that is wrytten in the boke of this lawe.

D So that the generation to come of your chyldren that shal rise vp after you and the straunger that shal come from a far lande, say when they se the plages of that land, & the diseases wherewith the Lord hath smitē it, howe all the lande is burnt vp with brimstone & salt, & þ it is neither sowne nor beareth, nor any grasse groweth therein, after þ ouerthrowing of Sodom, Gomor, Adama and zeboim: which the Lord ouerthrowe in hys wrath and anger.

And then shal al nacions also say: þ wherfore hath the Lord don of thys facion vnto this lād? how feare is this great wrath. And men shal saye: because they left the testament of the Lord God of theyr fathers which he made with them. whē he brought the out of the land of Egypt. And they wēt and serued straunge goddes, and worshipp-

ped theym: goddes which they knewe not and whiche hadde geuen them naughte. And therefore the wrath of the Lord waxed whote vpon that lande to bringe vpon it al the curles that are wrytten in this boke. And the Lord cast them oute of their land in anger, wrath and great furiosnes, and caste them into a straunge lande, as it is come too passe thys daye. The secretes of the Lord our God (a) are opened vnto vs and our children for ever, that we do all the wordes of this lawe.

The.iii. Chapter

D The woide of God is not farre from them that seeke for it, but in theyr mouthes and hartes.

V When al these wordes are come vpon the whether it be the blessinge or the curse whiche I haue set before the, yet if thou turne vnto thine hearte among al the nacions whither the Lord thy God hath fruste the, and come agayne vnto the Lord thy God and herken vnto his voyce accordyng to all that I commaunde the thys day: bothe thou and thy chyldrene wth all thynne herte and all thy soule:

Then the Lord thy God wil turne thy captiuitie and haue compassion vpon the, and go and set the agayne from al the nacions, amonge which the Lord thy God shal haue scattered the, though thou wast cast vnto þ extreme partes of heauen: euen from thence wyl the Lord thy God gether and frome thence set the and bringe the into the lande which thy fathers possessed, & thou shalt enioie it, And he wyl shew the kyndnesse and multiplye the aboue thy fathers. * And the Lord thy God wyl circumsise thine hert & the herte of thy seede for to loue the Lord thy God wth all thynne herte and all thy soule, that thou mayest lue. * And the Lord thy God wyl put al these curles vpon thynne enemyes and on them that hate and persecute the.

But thou shalt tounne and herken vnto the voyce of the Lord and do all his commaundementes which I commaunded the thys daye. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plenteous in all thy woikes of thynne hande and in the frute of thy bodie, in the frute of thy cattell and frute of thy lande, and in thy ches. For the Lord wil turne agayne and reioyce ouer the to do the good as he reioiced ouer thy fathers: If thou herken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God to kepe his commaundements and ordinaunces whiche are wrytten in the boke of thys lawe, if thou turne vnto the Lord thy God with al thine hert, and al thy soule.

* For the commaundement which I commaund the this day, is not separated from the, neyther far of. It is not in heauen that thou needest to saye: who shal go vp for vs to heauen, and set it vs, that we may heare it, and do it, & whether is it beyonde the sea þ that thou shouldest say: who shal go oversea for vs and set it vs that we maye heare it, Gen. iii. b. and thou louest the Lord thy God, hearkenest vnto hys

And Moyses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes of this songe, vnto the ende of them.

The xxxii. Chapter.

The song of Moyses. he goth vp to the top of Abarim to see the lande of promise.

Hate O heauen, what I shall speak and heare O earth, the wordes of my mouth. My doctrine droppes as both the rain, and my speech flowe as both the dewe, as the miselung vpon the herbes, and as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wil callen the name of the Lorde: Magnify the myghte of our God.

He is a rocke and perfect at his dedes for all his waies are with descrecyon God is faithful, and withoute wickednes, bothe ryghteous and iust is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwart generation hath marred them selues to himward, and are not his sonnes for theyr desoyntes sake. Dost thou so rewarde the Lord thy father and thyne owner? hath he not made the and ordeined the? Remember the dayes that are past: consider the yeres from tyme to tyme. Aske thy father, and he wyl shewe the, thy elders and they wyl tell the. When the mooste higheste gaue the nacion an inheritaunce, and deuided the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nations, east by the multitudo of the children of Israel.

For the Lordes part is his folke & c. Jacob is the porcion of his inheritaunce.

He found him in a desert land, in a voyde ground, and a roving wilderness He led him aboute, and gaue him vnderstandinge and kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an Eagle that searcheth by her nestle and fluteth ouer the pounge, he stretched out his wynges and tooke him vpe, and bare him on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was his guyde, & ther was no straunge God with him.

He set him vpon an hie lande: and he ate the increase of the fieldes. And he gaue him honp to sucke oute of the rocke, & ople out of the hard stone. With butter of kine and milke of the shepe, with fat of pylabes and fat rammes and he gotes with fat and neis with wheate And of the bloude of grapes thou drunkest wine.

And Israel waxed fat and heked. Thou wast fat, thicke and smoth. And he let god go that made him & despised the rocke that saued him. Ther angered him with straunge gods, and with abhominations prouoked him. & they offered vnto feldes deuils & not to God, and to Goddess whiche they knew not, and two newe Goddest hat came new by whiche they fathers feared not. Of the rocke he begat the, thou art unmyndful and haste forgote God that made the. And when the Lorde sawe it, he was angry because of the prouokynge of his sonnes and daughters.

And he sayde: I wyl hide my face from them and wyl see what they ende shal be. For they are a frowarde generacion and chylidren in whom is no fapth. They haue angered me with that whiche is no God, and prouoked me with theyr vanities.

* And I agayn wil anger them with them whiche are no people, and wyl prouoke them with a folyshe nacpon. * For spye is kindledde in my wiathe, and shal burne vnto the bottome of hell. And shal consume the earth with hye increase and set a spye vnto the bottomes of the mountaynes. I wyl heape vnto mischeues vpon them and wyl spende all myne arrowes at them.

Furnt with hunger and consumed with heate and with bytter pestilence. * I wyl also sende the teethe of beastes vpon them and popson serpentes. Without forth, the frowarde shal robbe them of theyr chylidren and wylthin in the chamber, feare: bothe ponge menne and ponge womenne, and the suckelinges with the menne of grape heades. I haue determyned too scatter them thorowoute the world, and to make awaye the remembraunce of them frome amonge menne. Were it not that I feared the raylinge of our ennemys, leaue theyr aduersaries woulde be proude and say: our hie hande hath done all these workes and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacion that hath an unhapp forcast, and hath no vnderstanding in them, wold they were wise and vnderstod this, and woulde consider this later ende.

Howe it cometh that one shall chace a thousande, and two putte tenne. Thou sande of them to flight, except theyr rocke had solde them, and because the Lorde had despised them.

For our rocke is not theyr rocke, no thoughte our ennemys be iudge. But theyr vyces are of the vyces of Sodome, and of the fieldes of Gomorra. Theyr grapes are grapes of Gall, and theyr clusters be bitter.

Theyr wyne is the popson of Dragons, and the cruell gall of aspes. Are not suche thynges layde in Roie with me, and sealed

And behold the land of Canaan whiche I giue vnto the children of Israel to possesse. And doe in the mount whiche thou goest vpon and be gathered vnto thy people: As Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Hor: & was gathered to his people. Thou shalt see the land before thee, but shalt not go thither vnto the land whiche I giue the children of Israel.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moses being blessed al the tribes of Israel

This is the blessing wherewith Moses the Goddes man blessed the children of Israel before his death, saying: The Lord came from Sinai, and shewed his beames from Seir vnto them, and appeared gloriously from mount Paran, and came with thousands of saintes and in his right hand a lawe of fire for them. Howe loued he the people: All his Saints are in his hande. They ioynded them selves vnto thy foote, and receyued thy wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe whiche is the entrance of the congregacion of Jacob. And he was in Israel long when he gathered the heades of the people, and tribes of Israel together.

Ruben shall lye and shall not dye: but his people shall be fewe in number. This is the blessing of Juda. And he sayde: heare the voice of Juda, and bring him vnto his people: let his handes fight for him: but bee thou his helpe against his enemies. And vnto Leui he sayde: thy perfectnes and thy lighte be after thy merciful ma: whō thou temptedst at Masah with whom thou stridedst at the water of strife. Be that faith vnto his father & mother. I saw him not, and vnto his brethren, I knewe not, and vnto his son I wot not, for they haue observed thy worde and kept thy testament. They shall teach Jacob thy iudgements: & Israel thy lawes. They shall putte cens before thy nose & whole sacrifices vpon thine altar. Bless the Lord then power and accept the workes of thier handes smyte the backes of them that rise against them: & of them that hate them: they rise not agayne.

Vnto Ben Iamin he sayde. The Lordes deareling shall dwell in safety by him & keepe him selfe in the heauen by hym continually, and shall dwell betwene his shoulders:

And vnto Joseph he sayde: blessed of the Lord is his hand with the goodly frutes of heauen, with dewe and with springes that lie beneath: & with frutes of the increase of sun & with ripe fruite of the monethes, & with the toppes of moist iuns that wet from the beginning & with the saintes of hills that last euer & with goodly fruite of the earth, and of the fulnes thereof. And the good wil of hym that dwelleth in the bush shall come vpon the head of Joseph and vpon the top of the head of him that was separated frō among his brethren, his beutye is as a spytte borne oxe and his hornes as the hornes of an unicorn. And with the, he shall crush the nations together, euen vnto the endes of the world.

These are the many thousands of Ephraim and the thousands of Manasses. And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioise zabulon in thy going out, and thou Issachar in thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto the hill, & they shall offer offerings of righteousness. For they shall sucke of the abundance of the sea and of treasure hid in the lande.

And vnto Gad he sayde: blessed is the town

The first Chapter.

The Lorde courageously Josua to invade the land of promys, & commaunded hym continually to read Deuteronomie.

After the death of Moyses the servant of the Lord, the Lorde spake to Josua the sonne of Nun Moyses mynister, saying: Moyses my servant is deade. Nowe therefore take uppe and go over Jordan, boote thou and all this people, unto the lande the which I geue unto the children of Israel. All the places that the soles of your feete shall tread upon, have I geuen you as (I sayde unto Moyses) fro the wylernes and this Libanon, to the great river Euphrates: and * all the land of the Eethites, even unto the great sea, toward the going downe of the sunne shall be your coastes. There shall not a man be able to withstand the all the dayes of thy lyfe. For as I was with Moyses, so will I be with the * and will neither leave the nor forsake the. * Be strong and bold: for unto this people shalt thou divide the land whiche I sware unto thy fathers to geue them.

Above all thyng be stronge and harden thy selfe, to observe and to do according to all the lawes which Moyses my servant commaunded the. * Touche there from, neither to the right hand nor to the lefte: that thou mayest have understanding in all thou takest in hande * let not the booke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth: but recorde therein darc and nyght, that thou mayest be circumspecte to doo according to all that is witten therein.

For then shalt thou make thy waie prosperous, and thou shalt have understanding. Beholde I have sayd unto the, be strong and bolde: neyther feare, nor drede. For the Lord thy God is with the, whither so ever thou goest. Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, saying: Go thoughe the myddell of the hoste & commaunde a people saying, prepare you up to pass over this Jordan, to go & enioye the land which the Lorde your God geueth you to possesse it.

And unto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Josua saying: Remember that whiche Moyses the servant of the Lord commaunded you saying: The Lorde your god hath geuen you this land, and hath geuen you this land.

Let your wives, your children, and your cattell remain in the lande whiche Moyses gave you in this syde Jordan:

The ii. Chapter. Fol. ii.

* But go ye before your brethren armed: all that be men of waire, and helpe them: but the Lorde hath geuen your brethren rest, as he hath you, and until they also have obtained the lande whiche the Lorde your God geueth them. And then returne unto the land of your possession and enioye it, whiche land Moyses the Lordes servant gave you on this syde Jordan toward the sunne rising. And they answered Josua, saying: All that thou biddest us, we will do, and whither so ever thou sendest us, we will go. According as we obeyed Moyses in all thynges, so we will obey the, only the Lord thy god be with the as he was with Moyses. And whosoever disobey thy mouth, and will not hearken unto thy wordes in all that thou commaundest hym, let hym dye. Only be stronge and of good courage.

The ii. Chapter.

Josua sendeth searchers or spies to Jericho, which were led of Rahab, and so escaped the handes of the pursuers. Rahab beleueth, and confesseth the God of Israel.

Then Josua the sonne of Nun sent out of Seppim two spies secretly, saying: go and viewe the land and also Jericho. And they went and came into a harlots house named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was told the king of Jericho, saying: Behold, there came in hither to night of the children of Israel, to spy out the countrey. And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying: bring forth the men that are come to the, whiche are entered into thyne house: for they be come to searche out all the land. And the woman took the two men and hid them, and sayed: in dede there came men unto me but, I wote not whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shutting of the gate, when it was dark, they went out, whither they went I wote not but folowe after them quickly, and ye shall take them. And she brought them by vppon the rooofe of the house, and hidde them under flaxe pet in the stalkes, whiche shee had lyege a brode vpon the rooofe. And the men pursued after them, the way to Jordan, even unto the passage. And as soone as they whiche pursued after them were gone out, they shutte the gates immediatly. And of ever they were asleepe, she came by unto them vpon the rooofe, and sayd unto the men. I knowe that the Lorde hath geuen you the land, both because that the fear of you is fallen vpon us, and because that the inhabitants of the land saynt at home comming. For we have heard how the Lorde dyed vpon the water of the red sea before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd unto the two kings of the Amorites on the other syde Jordan: * Sehon, and Og, whiche he utterly destroyed. And as soone as we had heard

The .ii. Chapter.

TWELVE stones are reared up for a remembrance that Jordan was dryed, and it returned agayne to hys course.

AND as soon as the people were all gone ouer Jordan, the lord spake to Josua, sayinge. Take thou twelve men out of the people, of euery tribe a man. And commaund thou theym sayinge: take you hence out of the myddeste of Jordan, euen oute of the place where the priestes stood in redynesse, twelve stones. And take ye them awaye wth you, and put theym in the place where you lodge at nyght.

And Josua called vnto the twelve men whiche he had prepared of the chyldren of Israell, of euery tribe a man, and said vnto theym: get you before the arcke of the Lord your God, euen into the myds of Jordan, and take vp euery man a stone vpon hys shoulde, accordynge vnto the numbre of the tribes of the chyldrene of Israell, that this may be a spgne among you. And when your chyldren aske theym fathers in tyme to come, sayinge: what meane ye wth these stones? then say vnto theym: howe that the water of Jordan deuyded at the ptesence of the arcke of the Lord: euen whyle it wente ouer Jordan, the water of Jordā deuyded. And these stones shal be a memoriall vnto the chyldren of Israell for euer.

B And the chyldren of Israell dyd euen so as Josua commaunded, and toke vp xii. stones oute of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lord sayd vnto Josua, accordynge to the numbre of the tribes of the chyldren of Israell, and caried theym awaye with them vnto the place where they lodged, and layed theym downe there. And thereto Josua set vp twelve stones in the myddest of Jordan in the place where the fete of the priestes whiche bare the arcke of the testament, stode.

And therethey be euen (a) vnto this day. For the priestes whiche bare the arcke stode in the myddest of Jordan, vntill all was dryed, and they spynshed that the Lord commaunded Josua to saye vnto the people, accordynge to all that Moses charged Josua. And the people hailed and wente ouer. When all the people were cleane ouer, then wente ouer the arcke of the Lord, and also the priestes before the people.

And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasse went before the chyldren of Israell as Moses charged theym. Upon a forty thousand trimmed for warre, went before the Lord vnto battell, euen vnto the wylde fylde of Jericho. That daye the Lord magnified Josua in the syght of all Israell: & they feared hym as they feared Moses all the dayes of hys lyfe.

And the Lord spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commaunde the priestes that beare the arcke of wytnesse to come out of Jordan. And Josua commaunded the priestes sayinge: Ascende by oute of Jordan. And when the priestes that bare the Arcke of the appoyntemente of the Lord were ascended out of Jordan as soon as the soles of the priestes fete were broughte to drye Lande, the water of Jordan returned agayne vnto hys place, and went ouer all hys bankes as he dyd before. And the people came out of Jordan the tenth daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Balgal en in the east borders of Jericho. And the xii. stones whiche they toke oute of Jordan, Josua pitched in c. Balgal. And spake to the chyldren of Israell sayinge: when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come sayinge: what meane these stones? shew you chyldren and say, Israell came ouer this Jordan on drye lande. For by the Lord your God dyed by the water of Jordan before you, vntill we were ouer, as the Lord your God did vnto the red sea, whiche he dyed by before vs till we were ouer: that all the people of the world may knowe the hande of the Lord how myghty it is, and that ye myghte feare the Lord your God for euer.

The .v. Chapter.

The Canaanites are afraied. The second circumcison vnder Josua.

AND when all the kinges of the Amontes wchare on this syde Jordan to the seaward, & all the kinges of the Canaanites which lye on the sea, heard howe the Lord had dyed by the water of Jordan before the chyldren of Israell, vntill they were ouer, their hertes faunted in the. And there was no spirite in them any more, for feare of the coming of the chyldren of Israell.

That same tyme the Lord sayd vnto Josua: Make the kniues of stone, and go to agayne & circumsise the chyldren of Israell the second tyme. And Josua made hym kniues of stone and circumsised the chyldren of Israell in the hyl of foreskynnes. And this is the cause why Josua circumsised them. All the people that came oute of Egypte that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in the wylernes by the waye after they came out of Egypte. Howe all the people that came out were circumsised: But all the people that were borne in the wylernes by the waye after they came out of Egypt they circumsised not. For the chyldren of Israell walked forty peres in the wylernes, till all the people of menne of warre that came oute of Egypte, were consumed, whiche herkened not vnto the voyce of the Lord, so that the Lord sware, that he woulde not shewe theym the Lande whiche the Lord sware vnto theym fathers, that he woulde geue vs, euen a Land that floweth with mylke and honye. And the chyldren he set by in theym steade. Then Josua

The vi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

And Jericho shutte in her people, and was shut for feare of the children of Israel, so that no manne wente oute nor in. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hande Jericho and her kyng, and the menne of warre. And ye shal compasse the whole cite, all that be menne of warre, and go rounde about it once: and so shal you do fyve dayes. And the seven puestes shal beate seven trumpets of rammes hornes before the arke. And the * seventh dape ye shal compass the cite seven times, and the puestes shal blowe wth their tru-pettes. And when there is a longe blas-blowne with the rammes home, as soone as ye heare the sounde of the home, lette all the people shoute a myghty shoute.
And then shal the walles of the cite fall downe, and the people shal ascende by e-uerie manne straghte before hym. And Josua the sonne of Nun called vnto the puestes, and sayde vnto them: take vp the arke of the appoyntemente, and lette seuen puestes beate seven trumpettes of rammes hornes before the arke of the Lorde.
And he saide vnto the people, go and compasse the cite, and lette the menne of armes go before the Arcke of the Lorde.

And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seven puestes that bare the seuen trumpettes of rammes hornes before the Arcke of the Lorde, wente forth and blewe wth the hornes, and the Arcke of the Testamente of the Lorde folowed after them. And the men of armes wente before the puestes that blew with the horns, and the common people came after the Arcke: and as they wente, they blew with the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge: shoute not, nor lette your voyce be heard, or anye worde procede out of your mouthes, vntill the dape I bid you shoute: and then shoute.

And so the Arcke of the Lorde compassed the cite, and went aboute it once, and then they retourned into the hoste, and lodged there. And Josua rose earlye in the mornynge, and the puestes toke vpp the Arcke of the Lorde, and seven puestes bare seven trumpettes of rammes hornes before the Arcke of the Lorde. and as they wente, they blew wth the hornes. And the menne of armes wente before them, & the common people came after the Arcke of the Lorde, and as they wente, they blew wth the hornes. And the seconde dape they compassed the cite once, and retou-ned agayne into the hoste, and so they did sixe dayes longe.

And the seventh dape they arose earlye, euen wth the dawninge of the dape and compassed the cite after that same manner seven tymes onely, so that they com-passed the cite seventen times.

And at the seventh tyme, the puestes blewe wth the hornes, and Josua sayed vnto the people: shoute, for the Lorde hath geuen you the cite. But the cite shal be excommunicate, both it and all that is therein, vnto the Lorde, onely Rahab the harlote shal lue, both she and all that is wth her in the house, because she * had the messengers that we sent. And in anye wise beware of the excommunicate things, lea-pe make your selues excommunicate. For if you take of the excommunicate things, so shal you make the hoste of Israel excommunicate, and shal trouble it. But of the silver, golde, vesselles of brasse and iron shalbe holt vnto the Lorde, and shal go into his treasure.

And the people cryed, and blew wth hornes: for when the people hearde the sounde of the hornes, they shouted a great shoute: and the * walles fell downe, and the people wente vpp into the cite, euery manne straghte before hym, and toke the cite. And they vtterly destroyed all that was in the cite, both manne and woman, younge and olde, oxe, sheepe and Josua sayde vnto the two menne that wente to spy the countrey: * go into

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of Zareth, and the syluer, and the garmente; and the tóg of golde; and hys sonnes and his daughters, hys open, asses, sheepe, his tente and all that he had, and all Israel wpth hpm, and broughte thepm vnto the dayle of Acor. The viii. Chapter.

The siege and wynnynge of Ai. The kynge therof is hanged. Josua setteth vp an altar on whiche is written the boke of Deuteronomie. He blesseth the people.

And the Lorde sayed vnto Josua: feare not, nor dreade: but take all the menne of warre with the, and vp and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue geuen into thy hande, the kynge of Ai, and hys people, hys cite, and hys lande. And thou shalt do to Ai and hys kynge, as thou dydest vnto Jericho and hys kynge. Neuer theles the spole, and cattel therof, ye shal take pour selues. But lay a watch vnto the towne on the backside thereof.

And then Josua arose, and all the men of warre to go vp to Ai. And Josua chose out xxx. thousand men of warre, and sente them by nyght. And he commaunded them saynge. Se that ye lye awayte vnto the towne, on the backe syde thereof. So not farre from the cite, and se that ye be all readye. And I and all the people that are wpth me, wyl appoche vnto the cite.

And when they come oute agaynst vs as at the fyrste tyme: then wyl we fle before thepm. And they wyl come oute after vs, vntill we haue plucked thepm awaye from the cite. For they wyl saye: they fle vs at the fyrste tyme, for we wyl fle before them. When shal ye rylse vp from lynging awayte, and destroy the cite: for the lord your God wyl deliuer it into your handes. Asone therefore as ye haue taken the cite, se that ye set it on fyre. Accordynge to the commaundement of the lord se that ye do, beholde I haue charged you.

And Josua sente thepm forth, and they wente to lye awayte, and laye betwene Bethell and Ai, on the west syde of Ai. But Josua lodged that nyght among the people. And he rose vpearlye in the mornynge & numbred the people & wente vp boeth he and the elders of Israel before the people, to Ai. And all the men of war that were wpth hpm, wente vp and drew nye, & came before the cite, and pitched on the north syde of Ai, a valley beyng betwene thepm and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousand men and put the to lye in warre betwene Bethell and Ai, on the west syde of the cite. And he put the people euen all the host on the north syde of the cite, and the lyars awayte on the weste. And Josua wente the same nyght into the myddes of the wape.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that they halted and rose vp earlye, then the people of the cite wente out agaynst Israel to battell, boeth the kynge and all hys people, at a tyme appoynted, euen before the plaine, & wyl not that there were lyars awayte on the backside of the cite.

And Josua and Israel were put to the worse before thepm, and fledde towarde the myddernes. And all the people of the towne cried to folowe after thepm. And they folowed after Josua tyll they were drawen awaye from the cite: so that there was not a man leste in Ai, or in Bethel, that wente not out after Israel. And they leste the cite open and folowed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayed vnto Josua: stretch forth the buckeler that is in thy hande toward Ai, for I haue geuen the it. And Josua stretched oute the buckeler that was in hys hande toward the cite. And the lyars awayte rose vp quykelye oute of thepm places, and came, asone as Josua had stretched out his hand, and they entred into the cite, and toke it, and burned and set it on fyre. And when the men of Ai looked backe after thepm and sawe, Beholde the smoke of the cite ascended vp to heauen. And they hadde no place to fle, eyther thys way or that, for the people fled to the myddernes touned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

And when Josua and all Israel sawe that the lyars awayte had taken the cite and that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne, and layed on the men of Ai. And the other issued out of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in the myddes of Israel, these beyng on the one syde of thepm, and the reste on the other. And they layed vpon thepm, so that they leste none eyther remayne or scape. And the kynge of Ai they toke alpye, & broughte hpm to Josua. And when Israel hadde made an ende of sleynge all the enbaptizers of Ai in the feldes, and in the myddernes, by whiche they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde vntill they were all wasted: Then all Israel returned vnto Ai, and smote it wpth the swerde. And all that fell that dape boeth of men and women, were xii. thousand. euen all the men of Ai.

destroyed it, and how that *as he hadde done to Jericho and her kyng, even so he had done to Ai and her kyng, and howe the inhabitants of Babaon hadde made peace with Ysraell, and did remayne amonge them, then they feared exceedingly, for Babaon was a greate cite, as anye cite of the kingdome, and thereto greater then Ai, and all her menne were mightie. Wherefore Adonize-dec kyng of Yerusalem sent vnto Hoham kyng of Hebron, and vnto Iharan kyng of Jeremoth, and vnto Iaphia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kyng of Eglon, sayinge: Come vp vnto me and helpe me, that we maye smite Babaon, for they haue themselves together both they and all their vp to vs, for all the kynges of the Amouascended from Balgail, both he and all his people of war with hym, & al & me of might, and the Lord sayd vnto Josua: feare them

Josua vnto the Lord, that day when the Lord deliuered the Amontes before the chyldren of Ysraell, and he said in the sight of all Ysraell: Sunne stand thou still vpon Babaon, and thou Moone in the valley of

And Iosua smote them Deut. xii. c. from Lades barne vnto Asaph, and all the countrey of Golan, euen vnto Gabaon. And all those kynges and theyr lande, Iosua toke at one tyme; because the Lorde God of Israel foughte for Israel. And then Iosua returned and all Israel with hym, vnto the hoste to Balgall.

The .xv. Chapter.
The battelle of Iosua with dyuers kynges whiche God geueth into his handes.

And when Habor kynge of Gazor hadde hearde that, he sent to Jobab kynge of Gaddom, and to the kynge of Sumeron, and to the kynge of Asaph. And to the kynges that are by the syde in the mountaynes and playnes, on the southside of Ceneroth, and in the lowe countryes, and in the reayons of Dor, vpon the sea, and vnto the Cananytes both by east and west: and vnto the Amorytes, Hethytes, Iebusytes, and Iebusytes in the mountaynes, and vnto the Beabrytes vnder Hermon in the lande of Gazaph, whiche came oute, and all theyr hostes with them, a myltitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the sea in number, with horses and charrettes exceeding manie. And all these kynges mette together, and came and pitched together, vpon the water of Merom, to fyghte with Israel.

Ios. x. i.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: be not afrayed of them, for to morrow about this tyme, I will deliuer them all vnto thee, before all Israel, and thou shalt bough their horses, & burne their charrettes with fyre. And Iosua came, and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them, vnto the water of Merom sodayne, and fell vpon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Israel, and they smote them, and chased them vnto grete Sydon, and vnto Bethshalem, and vnto the valey of Gazaph, & afterward, and smote them vntill they had none remaynyng of them. And Iosua serued them as the Lorde had hym, boughed theyr horses, and burne theyr charrettes with fyre.

Then Iosua at that tyme turned backe, and toke Habor and smote her kynge with the sworde. For Habor before tyme was the heade of all those kyngedomes. And smote all the soules that were therein with the edge of the swerde, utterly destroyinge them, that no breathe was left remayne. And bouente Habor with fyre, and all the ctytes of those kynges, with all the kynges of them, Iosua toke and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and utterly destroyed them.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Iosua is commaunded to deuyde the land to the chylidren of Iſraell.

When Iosua was woren old, and stricken in yeares, the Lorde said vnto him: thou art olde, and stricken in yeres, and there remayneth yett excedyng muche Lande to be possessed: Thys is the Lande that remayneth: all the coastes of the Iherusalem and all the Gilyptes from Aplus in Egypte: vnto the borders of Akaron north-warde, whiche Lande was counted to pectayne vnto the Cananites, euen of the true Lordes of the Iherusalem, the A-sathites, the Asdathites, Ascalonites Bethites

thites, Abaconites, with the Gyrtes, from the South. All the lands of the Canaanites and Ganaan, that pertaineth to the Sidons, even unto Tybes, and to the borders of the Amorites. And the land of the Gyrtes, and all Libanon, toward the Sunne rising, from Baal Sab, under mount Hermon, until it come to Hemath, all the inhabitants of the hill countrey, from Libanon unto the * where waters even all the Sidons. I will cast them out from before the children of Israel, and so that thou in any wise deuyde it by lot unto the children of Israel, to inherite, as I have commaunded the. Nowe therefore deuyde this Lande to inherite, unto the nyne tribes, & the halfe tribe of Manasse. For the other halfe with the Rubenites, and the Gadites have receyved their inheritaunce already * whiche Moyses gave them beyond Jordan eastward even as Moyses the servaunte of the Lord gave them, from Aroer that lyeth on the bym of the ryver Arnon, with the ctyte in the myddeste of the ryver. And all the playne of Gidda unto Dibon and all the ctytes of Sebon, kynge of the Amorites, whiche rayned in Hesbon, even unto the borders of the children of Ammon, and Salead, and the Landes that border upon the Gilytites, and the Gachabites and all mount Hermon, and all Basan unto Salead: even all the kyngedome of Og in Basan, whiche rayned in Ashtaroth and Edray, whiche same remayned yet of the reste of the * Raphaites. But Moyses smote them & destroyed them. He that he left the children of Israel expelled not the Gilytites nor the Gachabites: But the Gilytites and the Gachabites dwelt amonge the Israelites even unto this day. Only to the tribe of Leuy he gave none inheritaunce, * for the offeringe of the Lord God of Israel is their inheritaunce, as he said to them. And Moyses gave unto the tribe of the children of Ruben by their kynredes. And their coastes were from Aroer that lyeth on the bancke of the ryver Arnon, and the ctyte that lyeth in the clute, and all the playne aboute Madua, Hesbon and all her townes that lye in the playne Dibon * Bomothybaal, and Bethbaalmecoon, Hahazab, Kedemoth, and Gilybat, Kariathaym, Zabamath, and Zarah, Zarah in mount Eriak, and Beth Sheor, & the springes of Phagab, and Bethphesymoth, and all the ctytes in the playne. And all the kyngdome of Sebon, kynge of the Amorites, whiche rayned in Hesbon, whom Moyses smote * with the Lordes of Gadyan, Gai, Rechem, Zur, Dur, and Enea, the Lordes of Sebon, and the inhabitants of the countrey. And Balam also the Sonne of Beor the Southayer, the children of Israel slew with the sword amonge other that were slayne. And the borders of the children of Sebon, Moyses gave unto the children of Gad, he gave by kynredes. And their coastes were Jazer, & all the ctytes of Salead, & half the land of the childre of Ammon, to Aroer that lyeth before Hahab: And from Hesbon to Ramoth Gazyb, and Betonim, and from Mahanaim unto the borders of Eabie. And in the valleie they had Berhatam, Bethnymta, Socoth, and Zaphon, the reste of the kyngedome of Sebon kynge of Hesbon, and Jordan, and the coastes that lye thereon, even unto the edge of the Sea of Tengerth, on the other syde Jordane eastward. This is the inheritaunce of the children of Gad in their kynredes, the ctytes with their byllages. And Moyses gave unto the halfe tribe of Manasse. And the halfe tribe of Manasse had their parte by their kynredes. And their coastes were from Mahanaim, east to Baasan the kyngdome of Og, kynge of Basan, & all the townes of Hapi, whiche lye in Basan, even the scoze ctytes, and halfe Salead, and Ashtaroth, and Edray, ctytes of the kyngedome of Og in Basan, * whiche pertaine unto the children of Gachib the sonne of Manasse, and that unto halfe the children of Gachib, by their kynredes. These are they to the which Moyses gave inheritaunce in the felde of Moab on the other side Jordan by Jerico eastward. But unto the tribe of Leui, Moyses gave none inheritaunce, for the Lord god of Israel is their inheritaunce * as he said vnto the, The xiiii. Chapter. Caled requirith the inheritaunce that was promysed him, & Hebron was geuen hym. And these are the contreries whiche the children inherited in the Lande of Canaan, unto whiche Eleazar the priesse, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the aunciente heades of the tribes of the children of Israel gave them their inheritaunce by lot, as the Lord commaunded by the hande of Moyses to give unto the nyne tribes, and unto the halfe tribe of Manasse. For Moyses had geuen inheritaunce unto two tribes and an halfe, on the other side Jordan: But unto the Leuites he gave none inheritaunce amonges them. For the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasse and Ephraym. And therefore they gave no part unto the Leuites in the land, save cities to dwelle in, and the suburbs of the same, for their beastes & cattle. As the Lord commaunded Moyses: even so the children of Israel dyd, when they deuyded the lande. And the children of Juda cam unto Josua in Belegall. And

The .xv. Chapter.

The lot of the chyldren of Iuda, & the names of p. Cities & villages of the same.

And the lotte of the tpe of the chyldren of Iuda in theyr kntredes was the wyldernes of syn that stretcheth to the coastes of Edome Southwarde, and is the uttermoste parte of the South coastes. And their Southcoastes were from the brinke of the salt sea, and from a certayn point of the sea, that leaneth southward. And it went oute on the Southside of the gorynge vnto Acrabym and went along to zimma, and ascended vnto the Southside of Cades barne, and went along to Hebron, and wente vnto Adar, and set a compasse to Karca, and wente alonge to Azmon, and it went out to the riuer of Egypt: so that the ende of that coaste is the sea. And these are the south coastes. And their East coastes are the salt sea euen vnto the edge of Jordan.
And their borders in the Northquarter were to an other popule of the sea where

Jordan endeth. And wente vnto Bechhagla, and went alonge by the northside of Berharabab and wente vnto the stone of Bohen the sonne of Ruben. And then wente vnto Dabit from the valleye of A-cor, and so northwarde, turning towards Balgall, that lyeth before the gorynge vnto Adonim, whiche is of the Southside of the riuer. And then wente alonge to the water of Ensemes, and ended at the well of Rogell. And then wente vnto the valley of the sonnes of Benon, euen vnto the Southside of the Jebusites the inhabyters of Ierusalem. And then wente vnto the toppe of the hille that lyeth before the valleye of Benon, Westwarde, and by the edge of the valleye of Raphai-im northward: And then it diuerth from the sand hille vnto the fountayne of water called Septhoab, and goeth oute at the cittes of mounte Ephron: and diuerth to Balab, otherwyle called Karpachiatym: and then it compasseth from Balab westwarde vnto Ezy, and then goeth alonge vnto the side of mounte Hartim, otherwyle called Chesalon on the Northside thereof. And cometh downe to Berthames, and goeth to Edmuth, and goeth oute on the side of Akaton northwarde: And then diuerth to Secron, and goeth alonge to mounte Balab, and goeth oute to Nabul, and the ende of the borders is the Sea.
And the west borders are the greate Sea and the coastes that lye thereon. And these are the coastes of the chyldren of Iuda, round about in their kntredes. * And vnto Caleb the sonne of Iephune was there a parte allotted amonge the chyldren of Iuda, by the mouthe of the Lorde to Josua, euen the ctye of Cariatharbe father of Enacke, whiche ctye is called Hebron.
And Caleb droue thence the three sonnes of Enacke: Hesai, Azmon, and Thaimay, the sonnes begotten of Enacke. And he wente vnto thence, to the inhabytours of Dabit, whose name in the old tyme was Kariath Sepher. And Caleb sayde, * he that smyteth Kariath Sepher and taketh it, to hym w. I geue Asah my daughter to wyfe. Orhimell the sonne of Senes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue hym Asah his daughter to wyfe. And as he went, he moued hym to aske of her father a feld. And * he alighted of her asse.
And Caleb saide vnto her: what aileth the?
And she sayde, geue me a blessing: for thou hast geuen me a southward and drye land: geue me also springes of water. Then he gaue her springes of water bothe aboue and benethe. This is the inheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldren of Iuda in their kntredes. And the cittes of the tribe of the chyldren of Iuda in all quarters, to-warde the coastes of Edom southwarde, were Kabzel, Eder, and Jagur: Kynah, Dimonah, and Adada: Kedesh, Bazar,

The xvi. Chapter.

The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of the chyldren of Joseph fel from Jordan by Jericho vnto the water of Jericho eastwarde, and the wylder-nesse that goeth by from Jericho thouroughe mounte Bethell, and then goeth oute from Bethel to Lus, and turneth a longe vnto the borders of Artiatath: and goeth downe westwarde, to the coastes of Japhletih, and vnto the coastes of Bethhoran the nether, and goeth by

by the sea syde so Bafor, and the endes of thei coastes came to the greateser. And so the chyldren of Joseph, Manasses, and Ephraim toke their inheritaunce. And the chyldren of Ephraim toke their coastes by kyndes. And the coastes of their inheritaunce Estewarde were, Acroth, Ador, euen vnto Bethhoran the upper and their marches went out Westwarde, to Machmathah that lieth on the north side and fet a compas estward vnto Thaanah Siloh, and passeth from the east syde vnto Jonoah and went downe from Jonoah to Ataroth and Aarath, and met at Jericho and wente oute at Jordan. And their borders went from Thaphuah westward vnto the riuier Banah, and the endes were the salte sea. This is the inheritaunce of the tybe of the chyldren of Ephraim by thei householdes. The chyldren of Ephraim had their cities and villages scattered amonge the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Manasses: notwithstandinge the chyldren of Ephraim slew not the Cananites that dwelt in Bafor: but the Cananites dwelt amonge the Ephraimites to this dai, and pay tribute.

The xvi. Chapter.

The lot of parte of the halfe tybe of Manasse. The Cananites become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses & Ephraim require a greater portion of heritage.

And the tybe of Manasses which was the eldest sonne of Joseph, receiued a Lotte. And Machir the eldest sonne of Manasses which was the father of Gadiad (and a man of warre) had for his inheritaunce Galaad and Basan. And the rest of the chyldren of Manasses receiued by thei kyndes, which were the chyldren of Abiezer the chyldren of Gilek, the chyldren of Asriel, the chyldren of Sichem, the chyldren of Ephraim: the chyldren of Semeda. These are the male chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph by thei kyndes. But Zelaph had the sonne of Ephraim, the sonne of Galaad, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasses had no sonnes, but onely daughters. And these are the names of his Daughters: Gabela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha, & Thirsa whiche came before Eliazar the prieste, and before Joshua the sonne of Nun, and before the Lordes. sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded Moses to giue vs an inheritaunce, amonge oure bretheren. And he gaue them at the mouth of the Lorde, an inheritaunce among the bretheren, of their fathers. And ther fel ten portions to Manasses beside the Land of Galaad, & Basan which are on the other side Jordan: because the daughters of Manasses dyd inherite amonge by sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes had the Lande of Galaad.

And the borders of Manasses reached from Aser to Machmathah that lieth before Sichem, and wente alonge on the right hande, even unto the inhabitants of the fountaine Thaphnah, and the Lande of Thaphuah belonged vnto Manasses, whiche Thaphuah laye in the borders betwene Manasses and the chyldren of Ephraim. And the coastes descended vnto the ruer of Kebe, on whose southsyde Ephraim hath cities that lye amonge the cities of Manasses. For the coastes of Manasses were on the northe syde of the ruer, and the endes of them was the Sea: so that the southie pertained to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the sea is bothe their borders. And they meete together in Aser northwarde, and in Issacar eastwarde. And Manasses had his inheritance in Issacar, Aser, Bethsean, and her townes, and Zebulun and her townes, and the inhabitants of Dor, wth the townes perteyninge to the same: and the inhabitants of Endor, wth the townes of the same: and the inhabitants of Thaanah, wth her townes, and the inhabitants of Gagedo, wth the townes of the same: and the thirde parte of the cite Joseph, yet the chyldren of Manasses coulde not overcome those ctytes: But the Canaanites beganne to dwell in the same land. Neuer theles as soone as the chyldren of Israel were waxed stronge, they putte the Canaanites to tribute, but they due them not.

And the chyldren of Joseph spake vnto Josua sayinge: Why haste thou geuen vs but one lotte, and one portion to inheritance, seynge we be much people, and for as much as the Lorde hath blessed vs so? And Josua answered the: if ye be much people, then get you vp to the wood countrie, and prepare for youre selues there in the Land of the Jebusites, and of the *Iaphathites, if mounte Ephraim be too narrow for you. The the chyldren of Joseph sayed agayne, the hill wyl not be gotten of vs: for all the Canaanites that dwell in the lowe countrie, haue charrettes of Iron, and so haue they that inhabyte Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valey of Jezreel. And Josua answered the house of Joseph Ephraim, and Manasses, sayinge: ye be much people and haue greare power, and shal not therefore haue one lot. But the hills shalbe yours, thou shalt bewe dome the wood, and make a space to buyde vpon, for it shal be pures, even vnto the endes of it, ye shal be able to caste out the Canaanites, for all their yron charers, and for al they be so strong.

Certaine are sente to deuide the land to the other seven tribes. The lotte of the chyldren of Beniamin.

And the whole congregacion of the chyldren of Israel came together at Siloh, and set vp the Tabernacle of witness there, and the

For Judah shal abide by their coastes in the south and the house of Joseph shal stande to their coastes in the North. Describe ye the land therefore into seven partes, and bring the description to me hyther, that I may caste lottes for you here before the Lorde our God. And the men departed and walked thorow the lande, and described it by ctytes into seven partes in a booke, and returned to Josua into the booke at Siloh. the Canaanites dwelte still in Gazer amōg them. Nepther dpyd Zabulon expell the enhabptours of Betron, nepther the enhabptours of Nahalol. But the Canaanites dwelt amōg the & became theyr tributaries

Nepther dpyd Aser caste oute the enhabi-tours of Achis, nepther the enhabptours ofidon, of Ahalab, Acub, Balhah, Sphet nor of Kohob, but p Aserites dwelt amōg the Canaanites the enhabitours of the land, and drave them not oute.

Nepther dpyd Replithaim drue out the enhabitours of Bethsames, nor the enhabitours of Bethanath, but dwelt amōg the Canaanites the enhabptours of the lande. Nevert heles the enhabitours of Bethsames and of Bethanath became tributaries vnto them.

And the Amontes kepte the children of Dan in the moūtaines, and suffered them not to come downe too the vailles. And so the Amontes went to and dwelled in most Deres, that is to saye a witnes, in Hailon and in Salabim. Nevert he later the hande of Joseph waxed heaup vpon them, so that they became tributaries. And the colles of the Amontes was from the gopnge to A-crabim, from the rocke by warde.

The.ii. Chapter.

The aungell rebuketh the people because they made peace wpth the Canaanites. Adolators are punished, but yet leue not theyr inuasions. God sendeth them iudges to deliuer them.

As the aungell of the Lorde came by from Balgail to Bocim, and sayde: I broughte you oute of Egypte, and haue broughte you vnto the lande whiche I sware vnto your fathers. And I sayed that I woulde neuer breake myne appoyntment wpth you so that ye shoulde make no couenaunte wth the enhabitours of this lande, but breake downe there altars: But ye haue not obeyed my voyce, wher haue ye this done? wherefore I haue lyke wyse determined that I wpll not caste them oute before you, but they shall be your enemies, and their goddes shall be your destruction. And when the aungell of the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the children of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte. And called the name of the sayde place Bocim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sente the people awake, the children of Israell wente eue-ry man into hys enheritaunce to possesse the lande. And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that outelued Josua, and had sene all the greare woorkes of the Lorde that he dpyd to Israell. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruante of the Lorde dpyd when he was an hundred and tenne yeres old, wher they buried in the coastes of his inheytance: euen in Thānah Bares in mounte Ephraim, on the northsyde of the byll Baas. And euen so all that generations wer put vnto their fathers, and ther arose an other generation after them whiche nerber knewe the Lorde, nor yet the woorkes wher he dpyd in Israell.

E And then the children of Israel dyd worke in the sight of the Lord and served Baalim. And in those dayes of their fathers, when he broughte them out of the land of Egypt, and followed strange goddesses, each of the goddesses of the nations that were round about them, and bowed them selves unto them, and angered the Lord. And so they forsoke the Lord, and served Baal, and Ashtaroth.
Wherefore the Lord wared angrie wth Israel, and deliuered them into the han-des of raueners to spoyle them, and solde them into the handes of theyr enemies rounde aboute them, so that they hadde no power anye longer to stand before theyr enemies, but vnto what soeuer theyng they wente, the hande of the Lord was vpon them with euell lucke, eue as he promised them. And as he saide vnto them, And they were sore oppressed.

Nevertheless the Lord raised vp Judges whiche deliuered them out of the handes of theyr oppressors, and yet for all that, they would not hearken vnto theyr Judges: But wente a whoringe after strange goddesses, and bowed them selves, and turned quickele out of the waye, whiche theyr fathers walked, in obe-yunge the commaundementes of the Lord, and dyd not so.

And when the Lord raised them vpp Judges in theyr dayes, he had compassion of them, and hearde the lamentacion of the oppressed and deliuered them out of the handes of theyr enemies: yet for all that, as sone as the Judge was deade, they turned, and dyd worse then theyr fathers in folowynge strange goddesses, and in scrupynge them, and ceased not from theyr inuentions, nor from theyr maliciouse wayes.

Wherefore the Lord was angrie wth Israel, and sayed: because this people hath transgressed my couenaunte whiche I made wth theyr fathers, and haue not obeyed my voyce, therefore henceforth I wyl not callye oute one man of the natyons whiche Iosua leste when he dyed, and that to proue Israel thorowe them whether they wyl kepe the waye of the Lord to walke therein, as theyr fathers dyd or not. And so the Lord leste those natyons alone, and droue them not im-mediatly, neyther deliuered them into the handes of Iosua.

The.iii. Chapter.

Certaine natyons are leste amonge the Israelites to the intent to bere and afflict them. Othoniell deliuereth Israel. Iud hilleth kynge Eglon. Samgar killeth the Philistine.

THese are the natyons whiche the Lord leste to scourge Israel: euen as manpe of Israel as hadde not knowen the wayes of Canaan, only for the scrupynge of the generacion of the children of Israel, which before knewe nothinge of warre, he leste the kyng Loides of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, the Sidonites, the Beutes that dwelte in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baal Hermon, to Hamoth.

Those God suffered to remaine to proue Israel by, and wete whether they would hearken vnto the commaundementes of the Lord, whiche he commaunded theyre fathers by the hande of Moses or no. And as the children of Israel dwelte amonge the Canaanites, Bethites, Amorites, Philistines, Beutes, and Jebusites, they tooke the daughters of them too be theyr wyues, and gaue theyr owne daughters to theyr Sonnes, and serued theyr God-des. And so the children of Israel dyd wyckedlye in the sight of the Lord, and forgat the Lord theyr God, and ser-ued Baalim, and Ashtaroth. Therefore the Lord was angrie wth Israel, and deli-uered them into the handes of Chusan Rasathum kynge of Mesopotamia, so that the children of Israel serued Chusan Rasathum eyght yeres.

And then the children of Israel cryed vnto the Lord. And the Lord stirred them vp a sauer, and saued them: one Otho-niel, the sonne of Benes, and Calebs poiger brother. And the spirit of the Lord came vpon him, and he iudged Israel, and wente oute to warre. And the Lord soide Chusan Rasathum kynge of Siria into hys hande, so that hys hand was myghty ouer Chusan Rasathum, and the lande had rest fourty yeres. And Othoniell the sonne of Benes dyed. And then the children of Israel went to agayne, and comit-ted wyckednes in the sight of the Lord.
And the Lord hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites agaynst the children of Israel, because they hadde comypted wyckednesse before the Lord. And thys Eglon gathered vnto hym the children of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and wente and smote the children of Israel, and conquered the cite of palme trees. And the children of Israel serued Eglon the kynge of the Moabites fouertye yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lord, and the Lord stirred them vp a sauer, and the sonne of Beas-sonne of Iamun, a man that coulde do nothyng hadsomly wth hys ryghte hande.

By whom the children of Israel sente a present to Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Iud made hym a dagger with two edges, of a cubite lengthe, and he dyd gyde it vnder hys coote vpon hys ryghte thigh, and caried the present vnto Eglon the kynge of Moabites, which Eglon was a very fat man. And whiche he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it away, but he himself turned againe from the pols by Bethgal, and said: I haue a secret to tell the kynge, & the kynge commaunded him to holde hys peace, vntill al that stode aboute hym were gon out from hym.

And he arose oute of hys seate, and Abud put for the hys lesse hande, and toke the dagger from hys ryght thyghe, and thrust it so harde into hys bealpe, so that the harte wente in after the blade. And the harte stopped in the fat, for he dyewe not the dagger oute, but as he stroke hym so lesse he the dagger in the wounde, til that by the pryupc partes of nature, the dyte came oute. And Abud gatte hym oute at a postene dore, and shutte the doores of the parloure vpon hym, and locked them. The kynges seruauntes came and looked, and se, the doores of the parloure were locked, they sayed: A, he is a dorynge of hys casyment in his semmer chamber. And when they had ratped tyll they were ashamed, for no man did the doores of the parloure open, then they tooke a keye and opened them. And beholde, there the Lorde was fallen downe dead vnto the earth. But Abud escaped while they ratped, and was gone beyond the quaries, and escaped into Seacah. And when he was come he blew a trompet in mount Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israell went down wth hym, and he befoze them, and sayed vnto them: followe me, for the Lorde hath deliuered poue enemies the Moabites into your handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the ferres of Iordane from the Moabites, and suffered not a manne to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites the same tyme vpon a ten thousand men, al fat, and men of myghte, that there escaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdewd that daye vnder the handes of Israell, and the lande had rest foure score yeres. And after hym came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of Philistynes ffre hundred men wth an oxe gode, and deliuered Israell also.

The.iii.Chapter.

Israil is commytted into the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatry. Deborah and Barak deliuer them. Sisara is kyled of Jaell.

* That is deliuered as above ch. i. b.

And the chyldren of Israell began againe to do wickedly in sight of the Lorde, when Abud was deade. And the Lorde sold them into the handes of Jabin king of Canaan that rayned in Habor, whose captayne of war was Sisara, whiche dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israell coted vnto the Lorde, for he had nine hundred charettes of yron, he oppressed the chyldren of Israell with power twenty yeres. And Deborah a prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israell the same tyme and dwelt vnder the palme tree of Deborah, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mount Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israell came to her for iudgement. And she sente and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam out of Kedesh Nephtalim and sayed vnto hym. The Lorde God of Israell commaundeth the that thou go and leade an host vnto mount Thabor, and take wth the ten thousand men, of the chyldren of Nephtalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll byng vnto the at the ryuer of Kysou, Sisara the Captayne of warre vnto Jabin, wth his charets and hys people, and wyll deliuer them into thy handes. And Barak sayed vnto her, if thou wilt go with me, I wyll go: but and if thou wilt not go wth me, then I wyl not go. And she answered, I wyll surely go with the, but then the praise shal not be thine in the way whych thou goest: for the Lorde shal deliuer Sisara into the handes of a woman. And she arose and wente with Barak to Kedesh, and Barak called Zabulon and Nephtalim, wente by wth x. th. men: and Deborah went wth hym. But Haber the Kenyte went out of kind from the other Kenytes hys brethren, the chyldren of Hobab who was father to Moyses wyfe, and pitched his tent vntill he was come to the oke of zaanym, by Kedesh. And then it was shewed vnto Sisara howe that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone by to mount Thabor. And Sisara called for al hys charets, euen. ix. c. charets of yron and all for the people that he had from Harosheth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kysou. Then said Deborah vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath deliuered Sisara into thine handes, for the Lorde is gone out befoze the. And so Barak went downe from mount Thabor, and x. th. men after hym. But the Lorde crounsed Sisara and all hys Charettes, and all hys hoste wth the edge of the sword befoze Barak. And Sisara lighted downe of his charette, and fled a fote. But Barak folowed after the charets, and after the host, euen vnto Harosheth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man left. Howbeit Sisara fled a fote to the tente of Jaell the wyfe of Haber the Kenite, for there was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Habor, and the householde of Haber the Kenyte. And Israell went out agaynst Sisara and sayed vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, turne into me, and feare not. And he turned into her tente: and she covered him wth a mantle. And he sayd vnto her: geue me a lyttle water to dryncke, for I am thirstie. And she opened a bottell of milke, and gaue hym drynke and covered him. And he sayed vnto her, stande in the doore of thy tente, and if anye man come aske the, or enquire of the whether there be anye man here, say nay.

Then Jaell Habers wyfe toke a nagle of the tente, and an hammer in her hand, and went softly vnto him, and smote the nape wth the hammer throughe the temples of hys head into the ground, and as he slombred beynge weete he dyed. And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael cam oute agaynst hym, and sayde vnto hym: come, and I wyl shewe the the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tente: Beholde Sisara lape dead, and the nape thowhe hys temples. And so God broughte Iabben the kynge of Canaan into subieccion that dape before the chyldren of Israell. And the hande of the chyldren of Israell prospered, and was sore vpon Iabben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they had brought him to naught.

The .v. Chapter.

The songe and thanks geuing of Deboia and Barak after the victorie.

AND Deboia and Barak the sone of Abinoam, sang the same day, sayinge: Because he hath auenged the vengeance done to Israell, the people offering them selves wyllynglye, prayse ye the Lorde. Heare kyniges and hearken Lords, I am she. I am she that wyllyng, and geue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israell. Lorde when thou departedst out of Seir, and camest through the countreies of Edome, the earth trembled, and the heauē rained, and the cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde. euen mounte Synai before the Lorde god of Israell. In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anah, and in the dayes of Jael, the byr wayes were vnoccupied, and they that walked by pathes went by wayes that fer compasses aboute. The championys of Israell were discomfited and fawnt hearted, vntyll I Deboia arose, vntyll I rose a mother in Israell.

God chose oute of Myrons of war: for when they had warre at their gates, there was not sene amonge. xl. either shewe of valoure in Israell. As the beate loueth the mainetrects of the law in Israell: so that willingly haue put yowre selues in aduenture, blesse ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell besyde Gaddyn. And ye that walke by the wayes, make dytches. Where as the charrettes were broken in peeces, where the hooke of oute aduersaries was choaked, there shal they tell of the glorye of the Lorde, and howe gracious was the stronge God of Israell: then the people of the Lorde, wente downe vnto the gates, and wauld the maynteyn. Up by Deboia, up by and sing a song, up Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped vnder Israell capned ouer the proudeste of the people. The Lorde foughte amonge the stronge. Ephraim was the firste that destroyed Amalek. And after hym Beniamyn, amonge the people. Of Gachon came leareued men in the lame, and of Jabulon that well coude conueye an host to warre. The Lordes of Issakar were wth Deboia. And as Barak, euen so was Issakar sent into the halley of foot, and put hys lyfe in aventure. But in the (b) deuisions of Iabben were greaue imaginations of heart. Wherfore abodest thou among the sheepe foldes, to hear the bleatings of the flockes? In the deuisions of Iabben greaue were the imaginations of heart. Galaad abode on the other side Jordan, and carped Dan in Wypps. And Aser sate in the hauens of the sea, and abode styl in hys owne coastes. But Jabulon is a people that put their lyues in jeopardy of death, and Ephraim in lyke maner euen vnto the top of the freldes. (c) Iuon ges came and foughte. Then foughte the kynge of Canaan at Ebanach, vpon the water of Megiddo. But the sylence that they cousted they carped not awaye.

From heauen came battaile: for the sterres beynge in their course, foughte agaynst Sisara. The riuier of Kish caughte them away: that auerent riuier, the ryuer Arson. O my soule, tread thou the myghty vnder foot. Then their hordes stoumbled as they fled, that their myghtye counters least praunsinge. Cursse ye Merot, bydde the sunge of the Lorde curse: curse the inhabitours therof, because they came not forth to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde among the myghtye. Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite, aboue other women, aboue other women blessed be she in the tente.

She asked water, but she gaue hym mylke, and broughte butter in a goodly dysh. She caughte a nape in her left hande, and a workinge hammer in her ryghte, and napped Sisara and wounded hys heade, and pearced and wente throughe hys temples. Betwene her feete be bowed hym selfe, fell downe and lape styl: Betwene her feete be spawled, and lay dead lyke a wretche.

Throughe a wydowe looked Sisaraes mother, and howled oute of her chambere, why abidest hys charrette so longe that it cometh not? why tarre the wheles of hys waggans? The myfete of hys wyues answered her, yea, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, happily they haue founde, and deuide the spoyle. A mayed, yett no maydes for a piece, a spoyle of dyuers coloures for Sisara, a spoyle of dyuers colours wth dyedged workes, dyuers coloured dyedged workes for the necke for a pray. So pety she al thynne enemyes lord, but they that loue the, lette them be as the sunne ryng in his myghte. And the lande had rest fortye yeres.

And the children of Israel committed wickednes in the sight of the Lorde. And the Lorde delivered them into the handes of the madianites seven yeres. And when the hand of the Madianites was sore upon Israel, the childre of Israel made them dens in the mountaynes, and caves, and strong holdes. For when Israel had sown, then came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Gasse countrey upon them, and pitched theyr tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, even unto Arab, and left no sustenance in Israel, neyther shepe, ore, or asse: for they came with theyr cartell, and householdes, even as grechoppers in multitude, so that boeth they, and also theyr Camels were withoutre numbre, and wasted all that ever they layed handes on. And they entered the lande to destroye it, And so was Israel exceedingelye impoverished by the Madianites, and cryed unto the Lorde. And when the childre of Israel cryed unto the Lorde, because of the Madianites, the Lorde sente a prophete unto them, and sayed unto theym. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I set you from Egypte, and broughte you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and out of the handes of all that oppressed you, and caste them oute before you, and gave you theyr Landes. And I sayed unto you: I am the Lorde your God, and therefore feare not the Goddesses of the Amozites in whose lande you dwelle. But you would not obey my voyce. And the aungell of the Lorde came and sat under an oke in Ephrah that pertained to Joas the father of the Clerkes. And his sonne Gedeon pressed oute wheate oute of eares in a presse, for to get from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared unto hym and sayed: the Lorde is with the thou ma of mighte. And Gedeon answered hym: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be with vs, whye is all this come upon vs, yee and where be his miracles whiche our fathers tolde vs of, and sayed: the Lord brought vs out of Egypte. But now the Lord hath forsaken vs, and delivered vs into the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde looked upon hym and sayed: Go hence in this thy mighte, and deliver Israel oute of the handes of the Madianites: Beholde, I have sente the. And he answered hym. Oh Lorde, wherewith should I save Israel? Beholde my kynred is the poorest in Manasses, and I am the leaste in my fathers house. But then the Lorde sayed unto hym: I will be with the, and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one manne. And he answered hym: If I have founde grace in thy sight, then shewe me a signe, that thou art the Lord that talkest with me.

Depart not hence, untill I come agayne unto the, and byrge myne offeringe, and have set it before the.

And he sayed, I will tarry untill thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente & made ready a kydde, & fower cakes of an Ephah of flour, & put the flesch in a basket, and the broth in a pot, & brought it oute unto hym under the oke, and presented it. And the aungell of God said to hym: take the flesch and the fower cakes, and putte them upon this rocke, and powre oute the broth. And he dyd so. Then the aungell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hande, & touched the flesch and the cakes. And there arose by fyre oute of the rocke, and consumed the flesch and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lorde banished oute of his sight. And when Gedeon perceyved that it was an aungell, he sayed: alas my Lorde almighty, that I have seene an aungell of the Lorde face to face. And the Lorde sayed unto hym: peace be with the, and feare not, for thou shalt not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there unto the Lorde, and called it * Jehouab Salom, whiche unto this daye is yet in Ephrah that pertaineth unto the father of the Clerkes. And the same nyghte the Lorde sayed to hym: take an ore of thy fathers and another of seven yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baalle that belongeth unto thy father, and cutte downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter unto the Lorde thy God upon the top of this rocke, & stablish it. And take the if ore and offer burnt sacrifice with the wood of the groue which thou shalt have cutte downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his servants, and did as the Lorde had hym. But because he durste not do it by day, for feare of his fathers household, and of the men of the cite, he did it by nyght.

When the menne of the cite were by earlye in the morninge: Beholde, the aulter of Baalle was broken, and the groue that stode aboute it cutte downe. And the seconde ore offered upon the aulter that was made. And they said one to another: Who hath done this thinge? and they enquired and asked for hym that shoulde have done the dede. It was tolde theym that Gedeon the sonne of Joas had done it. Then the menne of the cite sayed unto Joas: byrge out thy sonne, that he maye dye, because he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cutt downe the groue that was aboute it. And Joas sayed unto all that stode by hym: will ye fyghte for Baal, or will ye be his defenders? he that standeth for hym shall dye before to morow. If he be a God let hym reufge his quarel upon hym that hath done his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same tyme sayinge: let Baal requite him because he hath broken downe his aulter.

And he blew a trumpet: and called together the house of Abiezer to follow him, and sent messengers throughout all Manasse, & called them up to follow him also. And he sent other messengers unto Aser, Zabulon, & Naphtali, which came also to meet him.

And Gideon said unto God, if thou wilt save Israel by my hand as thou hast said, Behold, I will put a fleece of woolle in the threshynge place. And if the dew be on the fleece onely, and drye upon all the earth besyde: then I shall be sure that thou wilt save Israel by my hand, as thou hast said. And it came so to passe. And he rose up early on the morrow, and he pressed the fleece together, and wronge the dew therout, and fylled a dyshe full of water. And Gideon said unto God, be not angry with me that I speke once more, let me proue onely once againe to the fleece. Let it be dry only upon the fleece, and dry upon all the ground about. And God dyd so that same night that it was dry upon the fleece only, & upon all the ground about dewe.

The. vii. Chapter.

The sounde was that should go with Gideon to battle are proued by takinge them by water. Gideon with .x. hundred men overcometh the Madianites. And, and they are slaine.

When Jerobaal otherwyse called Gideon to the care, and all the people that were with him, and pitched besyde the well of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a valleye on the northsyde of the hille Bamozeh. And the Lord said unto Gideon: the people that are with thee, are to manye for me to geue the Madianites into thy hande, lest Israel make theyr vaunte to my dishonoure and fame, out of my hande hath saved us. Nowe therefore make a proclamation in the eares of the people and saye: if any man dread or be afraid, let him returne, and get him home from mounte Baalad, and there departed and returned of the people, xii. thousand, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Lord sayde unto Gideon: the people are yet to manye, bringe them downe unto the water, and I will trye them unto the there. And of whom I save unto the, they shall go with me, the same shall go with me. And whosoever I save unto the, they shall not go with me, the same shall not go. And when he had brought downe the people to the water, the Lord said unto Gideon: as many as lappe the water with theyr tongues as dogges doo, them put by them selves, and so do they that kysse the water upon theyr knees to drinke. And the number of they that put theyr handes to theyr mouthes & lapped, were iii. C. men, & all the residue of the people kneled downe upon theyr knees to drinke water. And the Lord sayed unto Gideon, with the three hundred men that lapped water, will I save you, and deliuer the Madianites into thyne hande, and all the other people shall go euery man to his owne home.

And they toke lyttles with them for the folke, and theyr trumpettes, and he sent all the residue of Israel, euery man unto his tent, and kepte the three hundred with him: and the hoste of Madian was beneth him in a valleye. And the same nyght the Lord sayed unto him, vp and go downe unto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thyne hande. But and if thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe unto the hoste, and shalabbe, and hearken what they saye, and so shall thine handes be strong, and then thou shalt safely go downe unto the hoste.

Then he went downe with shalabbe his ladde, and he came to the watchmen of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, & all they of the east laye alonge in the valleye lyke to greshoppers in multitude, & theyr Camels were withoute number, euen as the sande by the sea syde. And when Gideon was come, Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayed on this maner: Beholde, I haue dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that a batte baked lofe of barleye breade tumbled into the booste of Madian, and came vnto a tent, and smote it that it fell, and ouertourned it, and the tente laye along. And his felowe answered and sayed: this is no brunge else save the swerde of Gideon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel, into whose handes the Lord hath deliuered Madian, and all the hoste.

When Gideon heard the tillinge of the dreame, and the meanynge thereof, he bowed hym selfe to the carthe, and returned vnto the booste of Israel, and sayed: vp for the Lord hath deliuered into your handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he deuided the three hundred men into three companies, and gaue euery man a trumpet in his hande, with an enemye pitcher and lampes therein, and sayed vnto them: take on me, and do lyke wyse, and beholde when I come to the syde of the boost, euen as I do, so do you. And when I blowe with a trumpet, and all that are with me, blowe with trumpettes also on euery syde the host, & saye: here be the Lord and Gideon.

And so Gideon and the three hundred men that were with him, came vnto the syde of the booste, in the begynnyng of the middle watche, and cryed by the watchmen. And they blew with theyr trumpets, and brake theyr pitchers that were in theyr handes. And all the companies blew with trumpettes, and brake theyr

And as the thre hundred blew wryth trumpettes, the Lorde ſente hys ſwerde thoww al the hooſe, ſo þeuerie ons ſawe other. And the hooſe ſed vntyl they came to Beethſurab, to zeretah, and to the edge of Abelmeholah, beſyde Tabar.

And the men of Iſraell gathered together of the trybe of Repehbalym, of Aſer and of Manaffes, and folowed after the Gadianites. For Gedeon had ſente meſſengers thowwoute all mounte Ephraim, ſaying: come downe agaynſte the Gadyanites, and take from them the waters both of Beethbarath, and alſo of Jor dane.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together, and came downe and toke the waters both of Beethbarath, and alſo of Jor dane. And they toke two captaynes of the Gadyanites, Hozeb, & zeb, and ſewe Hozeb vpon the rocke Hozeb, and zeb at the preſſe zeb, and folowed after Gadia, & brought þe heads of Dieb & zeb to Gedeon, on the other ſyde Jor dane.

The viii. Chapter.

Ephraim maketh inſurreccion agaynſte Gedeon, but is ſone pacified. The inhabytours of Socoth reſuſe to gyue Gedeon and hys armye bycade. The tower Isha-nuell is deſtroyed. Gedeon is conſtitute ruler ouer the Iſraelites. He hath thre ſoyes and ten ſonnes. He dyeth.

And the menne of Ephraim ſayed vnto hym. Why haſte thou ſerued vs thus, that þe calledest vs not wgen thou wenteſt to ſygge wryth the Gadianites? and they chode wryth hym a good, and were welluygh at daggers drawynge. And he ſayed to them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto you: are not the (a) cluſters of Ephraim better then the wyne vauſſe of Abiezre? God hath deliuered in to your handes the Lordes of Gadian. Dieb, and zeb. And what was I able to do like as you haue done? And then theyr ſpyrites were pacified, and they were content wryth hym, when he had ſaid that. And then Gedeon came to Jor dan and paſſed ouer. both he and the thre hundred men that were wryth hym verie ſapne, and yet folowed he the chace.

And he ſaid vnto the menne of Socoth: Gyue I praye pon cakes of breade vnto the people that folowe me: for they be ſapne, that I maye folowe after zebah and zalmoua, Arnges of Gadyan. And the Lordes of Socoth ſayed: are the handes of zebah and zalmoua nome in thour handes, that we ſhoulde gyue breade vnto thy companye? And Gedeon ſayed: therefore when the Lorde hath deſpue-

ted zebah and zalmoua into myne hande I wyl teare the ſkethe of you wryth the doryes of the wyldecnes, and wryth byers. And he wente thence to Iſhanuell, and ſpake vnto them lyke wyſe. And the men of Iſhanuel answered, as dyd the men of Socoth. And he ſayed alſo vnto the men of Iſhanuell, when I come agayne in peace I wyl breake downe this tower. zebah and zalmou were in Achar, and theyr hoſtes wryth them, vpon a ſpyene thouſande, whiche were all that were leſte of all the hoſtes of them of the Eaſte. And they that were ſapne, were a hundred and twenty thouſande men that drew ſwerde.

And Gedeon wente thoww them þe dwel in the tabernacle on the eaſt ſyde of Iſhar and Iſchabab, & ſmore the hoſte, for the hoſt dyd caſte no perils. zebah, and zalmoua ſed. But he folowed after them, and toke the ii. kinges of þe Gadianites zebah and zalmoua, & diſcoſored the hoſt.

And Gedeon the ſonne of Joas returned from battell the ſunne beyng vpon, and caughte a ladde of the men of Socoth, and enquired of hym the names of the chyefe lordes and elders of Socoth. And he wrote the I O R D E S and elders of Socoth, thre ſcore and ſeuenteene menne. Then he came vnto the men of Socoth and ſayed: Behold zebah and zalmoua, wryth whom ye caſte me in the reb, ſaying: are the handes of zebah and zalmoua alcedye in thine handes, that we ſhoulde gyue breade vnto thy ſapne men? And he toke the elders of the city, and thornes of the wyldecnes and byers, and all to tate them therwryth. And he brake downe the tower of Iſhanuell, and ſewe the men of the City.

And then he ſayed vnto zebah, and zalmoua, what maner men were they whiche ye ſewe at Chabor? and they answered, they were murde lyke the in ſauoure, and one of them euen as he were a kynges ſonne. And he ſayed, they were my bychren, euen my mothers chyldren, and as culpe as the Lorde ſpueth, if ye hadde ſaued theyr lyues, I woulde not ſea you. And he ſaide vnto Jether his eldeſt ſonne, by and ſley them, but the ladde drew not hys ſwerde, for he feared becauſe he was yet pong. Then zebah and zalmoua ſaid, wyſe thou and ſal vpon vs, for as the man is, ſo is hys ſtrengthe, and Gedeon aroſe and ſewe them, and he tooke awape the trapperie and chapnes that were on theyr Camelles neckes.

Then the menne of Iſraell ſayde vnto Gedeon. Raygne ouer vs, both thou, thy ſonne, and alſo thy ſonnes ſonne, for thou haſte deliuered vs oute of the handes of the Gadianites. And Gedeon ſayde vnto them: I wyl not raigne ouer you, neyther my childe n raygne ouer you, but the Lorde ſhall raigne ouer you.

After theſe ſayde Gedeon to them, I woulde deſyre a certeyne requelte of went to Beer and dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech hys brother. When Abimelech hadde rapned the peres, God sente a spite full malysce betwene Abimelech and the citizens of Sichem.

And the citizens of Sichem beganne to despye Abimeleche and wyshed that the wyckednesse done vnto the .ix. Sonnes of Jerobaall myghte come vppon hym and laped the bloude of them too Abimeleche thei brother, whiche slewe them, and vnto the other citizens of Sichem, whiche apded hym in the kyllinge of his brethren. And the ctyzens of Sichem sette menne to lye awapte for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes, and whyles they awapted hys commynge, they robbed all that came alonge the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimeleche.

D And Baal the sonne of Obed and hys brethren wente and gatte them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem putt thei confydence in hym. And they wente out into the fields and gathered in their grapes. And trod them, and made methe: and wente into the house of theyi God, and byd eate and dryncke, and cursed Abimelech. And Baal the sonne of Obed saied, what is Abimeleche? and what is Sichem? that we should serue hym? is he not the son of Jerobaall? and zebul hys offspr: serue suche as come of Bemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we should serue hym? woulde God thys people were vnder myne hande, then I woulde putte downe Abimeleche. And one sayde vnto Abimeleche make thynne hoolle greater, and goooute. And when zebul the ruler of the ctye hearde the words of Baal the sonne of Obed, he was wrothe, and sente messengers vnto Abimelech ppyeue, sayinge Behold, Baal the sonne of Obed, and hys brethren are come to Sichem, and beholde, they set the ctye agaynst the. Howe therefore arysse by nyghte bothe thou and all the people that is wyth the, and lye in waite in the feldes. And rise earlye in the mornynge as sone as the sunne is vppe, and come vpon the ctye. And when he and the people that is wyth hym come forth agaynst the, do to hym what thine handes shalbe able. And Abimeleche rose vppe, and all the people wyth hym by nyghte. And they laped awayte to the Ctye in foure compaynes. And Baal the sonne of Obed wente oute, and stode in the entre of the gate of the ctye. And Abimelech rose vp and the folke that were wyth hym from lpyng awayte. Now when Baal sawe the people, he sayd to zebul: Beholde there come people from the top of the mountaynes: And zebul sayed vnto hym: the shadowe of the hylles seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceptued. And Baal answered agayne, and sayde: See, there come folke downe by the middle of the Lande, and an other compayn come alonge by the Wytchooke.

Then sayde zebul vnto hym: Where is nowe thy mouth that sayed, what felowe is Abimelech that we should serue hym? These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go out now and fyght wyth them. And Baal wente forth before the citizens of Sichem, and foughte wyth Abimelech. And Abimelech chased hym so that he fled before hym, and manye were ouerthrowen and slayne even vntyll they came vnto the enterpyng of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelte at Arumah. And then zebul thrust oute Baal and hys brethren and woulde not suffer them too dwell in Sichem. And on the morrowe the people went forth into the feldes. And it was told Abimelech. And he took his people & deuided them into thre compaynes, and laye awapte in the feldes. And when he sawe that the people were come oute of the ctye, he ranne vppon them, and laped vpon them.

And Abimelech and the compaynes that were wyth hym ranne and stode in the enterpyng of the gate of the ctye. And the two other compaynes ranne vppon all the people that were in the feldes, and slewe them. And then Abimelech foughte agaynst the ctye al that daye, and tooke it, and slewe the people that was therein and destroyed the ctye, and sowed salte in the place. And when al the menne of the towre of Sichem hearde that, they entered into a strong hold of the house of their God Baal Beth, when they made a couenaunte to hym, and the place had Bethel the name. And it was strongly fenced.

And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of Sichem were gathered together, he gat hym to mount zelmon, both he and all that were wyth hym, and tooke axes wyth hym, and cutte downe an arme of a tree, and tooke it vp, and put it on hys shoulder, and sayde vnto the folke that were wyth hym: whatsoeuer ye se me do, speede your selues, and do lykewyse. And all the people cut downe also euery man a bough and folowed Abimelech, and put them in to the holde, and set the holde a fyre vpon them: so that al the menne of the towre of Sichem were slayne, aboute a thousande persons, what of men and women.

Then wente Abimelech to Thebez and beleged it, and toke it. But there was a stronge tower in the myddes of the ctye, and thither ranne all the menne and women, and all the citizens of the ctye, and shut it to them, and gotte them vppon the battelmentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the tower, and foughte agaynst it, and wente harde vnto the enterpyng of the gate to set it on fyre. But a womanne cast a pece of a wylstone vpon hys heade and all to brake hys brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hys helpe vnto the yonge manne that bare hys harness, and sayde vnto hym: drawe thy swearde, and slewe me, that menne saye not of me, a woman slewe hym. And hys ladde thruste hym thorowe, and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was dead, they departed euery man vnto hys owne house.

And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech, whiche he dyd vnto hys father in leunge hys lxx brethren, and thereto all the wyckednes of the menne of Sichem. God dyd bynge vpon thei heades. And vpon them came the curse of Joatham the sonne of Jerobaal.

The .i. Chapter.

Abola and Tair Judges of Israel, Israel synneth, and after cryeth on God for redemption.

After Abimeleche, arose to defend Israel one Abola, the sonne of Ihuah, the sonne of Dodo a ma of Isaker, whiche dwelte in Samit, in mounte Ephraim, who iudged Israel the and twente yere, and then dyed and was buried in Samit. And after hym arose Tair a Galaadite, who iudged Israel xii yere. And he hadde, xxx. sonnes that rode on thyrte asse coltes, and hadde thyrte cytes for them, whiche are called the townes of Tair vnto this day, and are in the land of Galaad. And Tair dyed, and was buried in Ramon.

And the chyldren of Israel wroughte wyckednesse yet agayne in the sighte of the Lord, and serued Baalim & Ashtaroth and the Gods of Syria, and the Gods of Sidon, the Gods of Moab, the Gods of the chyldren of Ammon, and the goddes of the Philistines, and forsoke the Lord and serued hym not, wherefore the Lord was wroth wth Israel, and gaue them vp into the handes of the Philistines, and into the handes of the chyldren of Ammon: whiche priled and oppressed the chyldren of Israel in those dayes egyptene yere, all that were on the other syde Iordane, in the lande of the Amorites in Galaad.

Moreouer the chyldren of Ammon wente ouer Iordan to fighte agaynst Juda, Ben Jamin, and the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was sore encombred. Then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lord, sayinge: We haue synned agaynst the: for we haue forsaken oure owne God and serued Baalim. And the Lord sayed vnto the chyldrene of Israel: dyd not the Egyptians the Amorites, the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Madianites, oppress you? And ye cryed too me, and I deliuered you forth of their handes. And thus not wthstandynge ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge Goddes, wherefore I will helpe you no more.

But god and crye vnto the Gods whiche ye haue chosen, and lette them saue you in the tyme of your affliction. But the chyldren of Israel sayed vnto the Lord, we haue synned, doo thou vnto vs what so euer please the, and deliuer vs onely at this tyme. And they put away the straunge gods from them, & serued the Lord. And he was sorrowful for the miserie of Israel.

Then the chyldren of Ammon assembled and pitched in Galaad, and the chyldren of Israel gathered them together, and pitched in Mizpah. And the compaigne of the Lordes of Galaad sayd, whosoever wil be gonne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ammon shall be heade ouer all the inhabitants of Galaad.

The .ii. Chapter.

Jephthah the sonne of an harlotte deliuereth Israel from the Ammonites, after they asked forgiuenesse of the bowe of Jephthah.

And there was one Jephthah a Galaadite, a stronge manne, who was the sonne of an harlotte. Howe be it Galaad begat Jephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare hym sonnes, whiche when they were come to age, thruste oute Jephthah, and sayed to hym thou shalt not inherite in oure fathers house, for thou arte the sonne of a straunge womanne. Then Jephthah fled from hys brethren, and dwelte in the Lande of Geb.

And able people and robbers assembled themselves to Jephthah, and wente oute wth hym. But it chaunced in proceste of tyme, that the chyldrene of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel: then the elders of Galaad wente and sette Jephthah oute of the Lande of Geb, and sayed vnto hym come and be oure captayne, and lette vs fighte wth the chyldren of Ammon. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, and chased me out of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then, that you come vnto me now in tyme of your tribulacion? And the elders of Galaad answered Jephthah. Wherefore wee turne agayne to thee now, that thou go wth vs, and fighte agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and be oure heade, ouer all the inhabitants of Galaad. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. If ye bringe me home agayne to fighte wth the chyldren of Ammon, then if the Lord deliuer them before me, I shall be your heade.

And the elders of Galaad sayd to Jephthah: the Lord that heareth these wordes be wytnesse betwene vs, if wee do not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went wth the elders of Galaad. And the people made hym head and ruler ouer the. And Jephthah rehearsed all hys wordes before the Lord in Mizpah.

Then Jephthah sente messengers vnto the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, sayinge: What ayleth the wth me, that thou comest vpon me to fighte agaynst my lande? And the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon answered the messengers of Jephthah Jephthah, because Israel took away my Land: when they came forth of Egypt: euen from Arnon vnto Iabok, and from thence vnto Jordan. Nowe therefore, re-A rose these Landes againe by sapre meanes. And Jephthah sente messengers agayne vnto the chydrene of Ammon and sayde vnto hym: thus saythe Jephthah.

Deut. ii. a. Israel took not away the Lande of Moab, nor the Lande of the chydren of Ammon. But when Israel came forth of Egypt, they walked thorow the wilderness euen vnto the redde sea, and came too Cadres, and sente messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, sayinge: lette vs we praye the) go thorow thy Lande. But the kynge of Edom would not assente thereto. And in lyke manner they sente too the kynge of Moab, but he would not consente. And so Israel thode still in Cadres. And then they wente alonge thorow the wyldernesse, and compassed the Lande of Edom and the lande of Moab, and came alonge by the easte syde of Moab, & pitched their tentes on the other side & tuer of Arnon, & came not within the coastes of the Moabites for Arnon was their furthest border.

Am. ix. b

D And then Israel sente messengers too Sehon kynge of the Amorytes, and kynge of Basan, and sayed vnto hym. Lette vs passe thorow thy lande, vnto oure contrie. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorow his coastes, but gathered all his people together, and pitched in Iasah, and fought wth Israel. But the lord God of Israel deliuered Sehon & all his folke into the hands of Israel. And so Israel smot them, and conquered all the Lande of the Amorytes, the inhabitants of the said contrie.

And they conquered all the coastes of the Amorytes, from Arnon vnto Iabok, and from the wilderness vnto Iordan.

So nowe for as muche as the Lorde God of Israel hathe caste out the Amorytes before his people, shouldest thou enioye the Lande? I saye, but what people Camos the God dyueth oute, that lande possesse thou. But what soeuer nation the Lorde oure God chaseth oute, that lande oughte we to enioy.

And thereto, art thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor king of Moab: because thou shewe vs that he dyd streue wth Israel, or fyghte agaynst the) ; all the whyle Israel dwelte in Basan, and his townes, in Aroer and his townes, and in all the ctytes that bee a longe by the sea coastes of Arnon, thre hundred peres: whype dyddest thou not recouer them in all that space: wherfore I haue not offended agaynst the, but thou doest me wronge too warre vpon me.

Deut. xlii. a

The Lorde therefore be iudge thys daye betwene the chydren of Israel, and the chydren of Ammon. Neuerthelesse the kynge of the chydren of Ammon hearkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, whi che he sente hym.

Then the spyrte of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer Galaad and Ganiasses, & came to Gazphah that lieth in Galaad, and from thence vnto the chydren of Ammon. And Jephthah bowed a bow vnto the Lorde & said: If thou shalt deliuer the chydren of Ammon into my handes, then that thing that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I come home in peace from the chydren of Ammon shall be the Lords: and I wil offer it vp for a burnt offering. And so Jephthah wente vnto the chydren of Ammon, too fyghte wth them. And the Lorde deliuered them into his handes. And he smote them from Aroer vnto Menith, twentye ctytes. And so forth to the playne of the vineyardes, and made an exceeding greate slaughter. And thus the chydren of Ammon were brought vnder, before the chydren of Israel.

Jephthah boweth.

Then Jephthah came to Gazphah, to his house. And behold his daughter came oute agaynst hym wth tymbrelles, and daunces whiche was his onely childe. So that besyde her, he had nether sonne, nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rente his clothes, and sayde: Alas my daughter thou hast made me stoupe, and arte one of them that were me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and canne not go backe. And she sayde vnto hym: my father, if thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde, then do wth me accordyng to that proceeded oute of thy mouth, for as muche as the Lorde hathe aduenged the of thyn enemies the chydren of Ammon. And she sayd vnto her father, do thys much for me: let me alone for the space of ii. monethes, that I may go down to the mountaynes, and bewaile my virginyte wth my felowes. And he sayde, goo: and so he sente her awaye for two monethes.

And she wente wth her companions, and lamented her maiden head vpon the mountaynes. And after two monethes, she turned again vnto her father, which did wth her accordyng to her bowe, which he had bowed, and so she knew no mā. And it became a custome in Israel yere by yere, that the daughters of Israel shoulde goo and lamente the daughter of Jephthah the Galaadite, four dayes in a yere.

The .xii. Chapter.

E The first of Jephthah agaynst Ephraim. After the death of Jephthah succeeded Elon. After Elon Abdon.

E And the me of Ephraim made an insurrection, and wente northward, and sayd to Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fyghte wth the chydren of Ammon, and dyddest not call vs to goo wth the: we wil therfore burne thy house vpon the wth spie. And Jephthah sayde vnto them: I and my people were at great

Wherefore then are ye come vpon me to fpyghte wylth me? And Jephthah gathered together all the me of Galaad, and fought wylth the Ephraimites. And the men of Galaad smote the Ephraimites because they sayde: Ye Galaadites are but runagates of Ephraim, amonge the Ephraimites, & the Gassaites. Agoreouer the me of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan, where the Ephraimites shuld come homeward. And whē those

Ephraimites that were escaped, sayd let vs go ouer. Then the men of Galaad said vnto them: Ye are Ephraimites, and they sayde naue. Then the other answered: Then Iape Siboleth. And they sayde Siboleth and coude not so pronounce, where vpon the other toke them and slewe them at the passages of Jordan. And there were ouer-

The. xiii. Chapter.

Judi. 3. 9 Israell beyng an Idolater, is oppressed of the Philistines. The byrth of Samson. The sacrifice of Samsons father.

And the chyldren of Israell began agayn to do wickednes in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord deliuered them into the handes of the philistines fortye pere. And there was a man in zaraah of the kindred of the Danites, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren, and bare not. And the aungell of the Lord appeared vnto hys wyfe, and sayde vnto hyr: Beholde, thou arte barren, and bearest not. But thou shalt conceue and beare a sonne. And now beware, and dunke no wyne, ne stronge dryncke, neyther eate any vncleane thyng: for so, thou shalt conceue and beare a sonne. And there maye

1. Reg. 1. 6 no traser nor sheres come on hys heade.

For the chyld shall be a Nazare vnto God, euen from the tyme of hys byrthe.

And he shall begynne too deliuer Israell oute of the handes of the philistines. The wyfe wente and tolde her husbunde, sayinge: A man of God came vnto me, and the fashion of hym was lyke the fashion of an angell of God excedynge fearefull. But I asked hym not whence he was neyther tolde he me hys name. And he sayde to me: Beholde thou shalt be wylth chyldre and beare a sonne, and nowe dryncke no wyne nor stronge dryncke, neyther eate any vncleane thyng: for the chyld shall be an abstainer to God, euen from his byrth to the daye of hys deathe.

Then Manoah made intercessyon to the Lord, and sayde: I praye the my Lord let the manne of God whiche thou sendest come once more vnto vs, & teache vs what we shal do vnto the chylde, when he is borne. And God hearde the voyce of Manoah, & the aungell of God came agayne too the wyfe as he sate in the feldes. But Manoah hit husbunde was not wylth her. When the wyfe made haist, and ran & shewed hit husbunde, & sayd to hym: Behold, the man hath appeared vnto me, that came the other daye vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after hys wyfe, and came to the man, and sayde vnto hym: Art thou the manne that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayed, yea. The Manoah sayed, nowe when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the manner of the chyldre, and what shall he do? And the aungell of the Lord sayed vnto Manoah, thy wyfe must abstaine from al that I sayed vnto hyr: We maye eate of nothyng that cometh of the vyne tree, nor dryncke wyne or stronge dryncke, nor eate any vncleane thyng: but must obserue all that I bade hyr. Then sayde Manoah vnto the aungell of the Lord: Braunte vs to tarye tyll we haue made ready a kydde, and haue sett it before the. And the aungell of the Lord sayde vnto Manoah: though thou make me abide, I wyl not eate of thy meate. And moreover if thou wylte prepare a burnt offering, that thou must offer vnto the lord. For Manoah wiste not that it was an aungell of the Lord. And Manoah sayd vnto the angel of the Lord: What is thy name, & when thy saying is come to passe, we maye do the some worship? And the angel of the Lord sayd vnto hym: wher askest thou after my name seing it is maruelous.

And Manoah toke a kydde wylth a meate offering, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lord whiche worketh wonders. Manoah and hys wyfe looked vpon. And when the flame came oute of the aulter, the angel of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aulter.

And Manoah & hys wyfe looked thereon, and fell flatte on their faces vnto the ground: But the angel of the Lord dyd no more.

The xiiii. Chapter.

The marriage of Samson. He killeth a lion. He propoundeth a riddle. He killeth thyrty men. Hys wyfe forsaketh hym and taketh an other.

Deut. xxi. a A Samson wente downe to Thamnath and sawe a woman in Thamnath of daughters of the Philistines: and came and tolde hys father and mother, and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And nowe geue her me to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayd vnto hym: is there neuer a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, amonge all my people, but that thou must goo and get a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistynes? And Samson sayde to hys father, geue me this womanne for she pleaseth me well. Howe hys father and mother wyfte not that it was the Lordes working and that he sought occasion of the Philistines, whyche at that tyme ragged ouer Israell.

B Then wente Samson, and hys father and mother downe too Thamnath: So when they came to the vineyards of Thamnath, Beholde a ponge Lion rored vpon hym. And the spyrte of the Lord came vppon Samson. And he tare hym, as a manne woulde rente a kyd, and yet had nothynge in hys hande. Neuerthelesse he tolde not hys father and mother, what he had done, but wente downe and talked wpth the womanne whyche seemed beautifull in sight of Samson.

And wpythin thorte space after, as he repayed thither agayne, too take hit too wyfe, he tourned out of the wape, to se the carcasse of the Lion. And behoulde, there was a swarme of Bees in the carcasse of the Lion, and honye: and he tooke of the honye in hys handes, and wente eatynge and came too hys father and mother, and gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them that he had taken the honye forthe of the carcasse of the Lion. And when hys father was come to the woman, Samson made there a feaste, for so bled the pong me to do. And whiche hit frends sawe him, they broughte thyrtye companions to beate hym compayne. And Samson sayde to them: I wyl put forthe a riddle vnto pou. And if ye can declare it wthyn seven dayes of the feaste, and fynde it oute, I wyl geue pou thyrtye Martes, and thyrtye chaunge of garmentes. But if ye can not declare it me, then shal ye geue me thyrtye Martes, and thyrtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered hym, put forth thy riddle, and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Oute of the eater came meate: and oute of the stronge came sweetenes.

And they coulde not in thre dayes expound the riddle. So when the seventh daye was come, they sayde vnto Sampsons wyfe.

Flater thy husband, that he maye declare vs the riddle, or else we wyl burne the and thy fathers house wpth fyre: haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Sampsons wyfe wepte vnto hym, and sayde: it can not be but that thou hatest me, and lovest me not, syth thou haste putte forthe a riddle vnto the chyldren of my folke, and wylte not tell me why it is meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father, nor yet my mother, and shulde I tell it the? And she wept vnto hym seven daies while the feaste lasted. So the seventh day he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon hym. And she agayne tolde it to the chyldren of her folke. And then the men of the cite sayde vnto hym the seventh daye before the sunne wente downe. What is sweeter then honye, and what is stronger then a Lion? Then sayde he vnto them: If ye had not plowed with my oxen, ye hadde not founde oute my riddle. Then the spyrte of the Lord came vpon hym, and he went downe to Askalon, and slewe thyrtye men of them, and despoiled the, and gaue their garmentes to them whiche expounded the riddle. And he was wroth, and went by to his fathers house. But Sams wife was geuen in marriage to one of hys companions that accompanied hym.

The xv. Chapter.

Samson killeth thyrtye bandes in fore sayles, and teteeth them runne into the corn, with the jawbone of an Ass he killeth a thousand. Oute of a greete crotche in the iawe, God geueth hym water.

A At it chaunced wpythin a whyle after, in the tyme of wheate harvest, that Samson visited his wife wpythin a kyd. And whiche he thought to haue gon in to hys wyfe, into the chambre, hys father wold not suffer hym to go in, But sayde: I thoughte thou haddest hated hit, and therefore I gaue hyr to one of thy companions. Howe be it hyr ponger spylle is faster then she Take hyr in dede of the other. Then said Samson vnto the. Now am I blameles concernyng the Philistines, though I do them displeasures.

And Samson wente forth and caughte thre hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes and fastened sayle too sayle, and putte a fyre brande in the myddeste betwene two tailyes. And he sette the fyre brande on fyre and put them into the corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp both the reaped corne and also the standinge, wpth bynes and o-lives. Then the Philistines asked who had done that dede. And it was tolde the that Sampson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnute, because he had bereaued hym of hys wyfe, and geuen her to one of hys companions. And the Philistines came, & burnt both her, and her father wpth fyre.

And Sampson sayd vnto them: Shoulde ye do so? I wyl surely be aduenged of you, and then I wyl cease. And he smote them legge and thpygh wpth a myghtie plage. And then he went and dwelte in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp, and pet thed agaynst Juda, and laye in Lehi. And the men of Juda sayde: Why are ye come agaynst vs, and they answered: to bynde Samson are we come, euen to do to hym, as he hath done to vs. Then the thousande men of Juda wente vp to the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Sampson: wotest thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherefore then hast thou han-deled vs thus? And he answered them: as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they to hym: we are come to bynde the, and to deliuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Sampson sayd vnto them: Sware vnto me, that ye shal not hurte me pour selues. And they sayde, wee wyl not hurte the, saue only bynde the, & de-liuer the into theyr handes. But wee wyl not kyll the. And so they bounde hym wpth two newe cordes, and brought hym doune from the rocke.

And when he came vnto Lehi, the Philistines bowted agaynst hym. And the spyte of the Lord came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon hys armes beame as flaxe that was burnt wpth fyre, and the bandes lowled from hys handes. And he founde a Jawe bone of a rotten Ass, and putte forth the hys hande and caught it, and slewe a thousande menne therewith. And Sampson sayde, wpth the Jawe of an asse haue I putte them backe: wpth the Jawe of an Ass, haue I slayne a thousand men. And when he had leste speakynge, he caste awaye the Jawe out of hys hand, and cal-led the place Ramath Lehi. But he was sore a thyrt, and called on the Lord, and sayde Thou Lord haue geuen thys great victorie, thowme the hand of thy seruante. And now I must dye for thysse, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a greate tothe that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had dronken, hys spyte came agayn, she was refreshed, wher-fore the name therof was called, the well of the caller on, which is in Lehi to this day. And he iudged Israel in the dayes of the Philistines. xx. yeres.

carpeth them vp into the mountaynes. He was deceiued by Daliah and made blinde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines, and dieth with them.

Then wente Sampson too Gaza and sawe there an harlotte and laye wpth hyr. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Sampson was come thither.

And they wente aboute, and layed awaye for hym all nyghte in the gate of the ctyte, and were still abydinge for hym all the nyghte, sayinge: tarve till the mornynge that it be daye, and then lette vs kyll hym as he cometh forth of the ctyte. And Sampson toke hys rest till mydnyghte, and arose at mydnyghte and toke the boores of the gate of the Ctyte, and the two syde pooles, and rente them of, barres and all, and put them vpon hys shoulders, and carryed them vp to the top of the hyl, that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that he loued a woman vpon the ruer of Goren, called Daliah, vnto Daliah, whome came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto hyr. Flatter hym, and se wherein hys greate strengthe lyeth, and by what meanes wee haue power ouer him that we maye bynde hym, and bynge hym vnder, and eche of vs shal giue the. x. hundred spluckynge.

And Daliah sayed to Sampson. Oh tell me where thy greate strengthe lyeth, and what it is wherwpyth menne myghte binde the, and beate the. And Sampson sayde vnto hyr: If menne bounde me wpth seven grene wythes, that were neuer dyed, I shoulde be weake, and as an other manne. And then the Lordes of the Philistines broughte hyr vii. grene wythes, that were yet grene and neuer dyed. And she bounde hym with them. Notwithstanding she had men lying in wait wpth hyr in the chabre. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Sampson. And he broke 6 cordes as a thred of towne breaketh, when it selethe fyre. And so it was not knowen wherein hys strength laye.

Then sayd Daliah to Sampson: Se, thou haste mocked me, and tolde me lies. Nowe yet tell me I praye the, where wpth thou myghtest be bound: And he sayd: If I wer bounde wpth newe ropes, that neuer were occupied, then shoulde I be weake and as an other man.

And Daliah toke new ropes, and bound hym therewith, and sayed vnto hym, the Philistines be vpon the Sampson. And they were lyers awaye in the chabre, and he brake them from of hys armes, as they hadde bene but a threade. And Daliah sayde vnto Sampson, hither too thou haste mocked me, and tolde lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewpyth menne maye bynde the. And he sayde vnto hyr. If thou bynde seven lockes of my heade with an heare lace, and fallen them wpth a naile I shall be weake. And Daliah dyd so, and sayde vnto unto hym: the philistines be upon the Saron. But he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked, and went awake wth the naple that was in the plastyng, & wth the herlace.

Then she sayde unto hym: Howe canst thou saye thou louest me, when thyne hert is not wth me: for thou haste mocked me thus thre tymes, and hast not told wherein thy chiefe strength lyeth. And as she laye vpon hym wth her wordes continuallpe verpunge hym, hys soule was encombrd euen vnto the death. And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: There neuer came raser nor sheres vpon my head, for I haue bene a Nazareto God, euen from my mothers wombe. If myne herte were cutte of, my strength woulde go from me, and I woulde become, and be like all other men. And when Daliah sawe he had vttered to hir al his vere, she set for the shilystnes, sayinge: come vppet this once, for he hath betwixt me all hys vere.

Then the Lordes of the philistynes came and broughte the moueys in theryr handes. And she made hym slepe vpon hir lappe, and sente for a barber, and cutte of the seuen lockes of his heade, and begonne to vere hym, and to thruste hym from hyr, for by and by his strength was gone from hym. And she sayde: the philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of hys slepe, and thoughte to goo oute as at other tymes before, and shoke hym selfe, & wote not that the Lorde was departed from hym. And the philistines toke hym, and put out hys eyes, & broughte hym downe to Gaza, and bounde hym wth fetters. And he was made to grinde in the pylson house: al be it the heare of hys heade began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. Then the Lordes of the philistynes gathered them together to offer a solemne offerynge vnto Bagon theryr God and to reioyce, for they sayed: oute God hath betaken Samson oute enemye into oute handes. And when the people sawe hym, they magnified theryr God: for they sayed, oute God hath geuen into our handes oute enemye, whiche destroyed oute contrey, and slewe many of vs. And when theyr herres were met, they sayed: sende for Samson, and lette hym play before vs. So they sette Samson oute of the pylson house, who played before theym, and they set hym betwene the pylles. And Samson sayed vnto the ladde that ledde hym by the hande: set me whar I maye touche the pylles that the house standes vpon. And that I maye leane to them. And the house was full furnished wth menne and women: And there were all the Lordes of the philistynes, and vppon the rouse there were aboute thre thousand men and women that beheld how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayed: my Lorde almyghtye thynke on me, and restore me myne olde strengthe at thys tyme O God, that I maye be aduised of the philistines for my .ii. eyes. And Samson caughte the two myddle pylles on whych his house stode, the one in hys ryghte hande, and the other in hys lefte, and sayed: my lyfe yett is wth the philistines, and botwed the wth myghte. And the house fell vpon the Lordes, and vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deade whiche he slewe at hys death, wear mo then they whiche he slew in hys lyfe. And then hys byrthzen, and all the house of hys father came downe, and toke him, and brought him, and buryed hym, betwene zarab and Elhaol, in the burying place of Manoah hys father. And he iudged Israell twenty yeres.

The .xvii. Chapter.

Of Michas whose mother made hym an ydole of siluer. Michas was priest of the image of Leui of Bethlehem.

There was a mā in moſte Ephraim named Michas, whiche ſaid vnto hys mother: the .xii. hundred ſyluer ſplices that were taken from the, aboute whiche thou curſedſt in myne eares: Beholde, the ſyluer is wth me, for I toke it awaye. Then ſayed hys mother: bleſſed be thou my ſonne in the Lorde. And ſo he reſtored the .xii. hundred ſyluer ſplices to hys mother agayne.

And hys mother ſayed: I haue botwed the ſyluer vnto the Lorde, that my ſonne ſhoulde take it of myne hande, to make a grauen Image, and a Image of metall. Some therefore I reuider it the agayne. And he reſtored the monere agayne to hys mother. Then hys mother toke two hundred ſyluer ſplices, and put them to a gold ſmythe, to make thereof a grauen Image and a molten Image, whiche remayned in the houſe of Michas, who alſo made a chappell of Goddes, and made an Ephod, and Images, and fylled the hande of one of hys ſounes whiche became hys prieſte. For in thoſe dayes ther was no king in Iſrael, but euery man did as he thought beſt.

And there was alſo an other, a younge man of Bethlehem Iuda, among the kithredes of Iuda, and he was a Leuite, and ſoiourned there. And the younge man departed out of the city of Bethlehem Iuda, to goo dwell where myghte be moſte commodouſe for hym. And he came to moſte Ephraym, and to the houſe of Michas as he ſourneled. And Michas ſaid vnto him: Whence commeſt thou? and the Leuite answered hym: I am of Bethlehem Iuda, and goo to dwell where I maye fynde a moſte mete place.

And Michas ſayed vnto hym: dwell wth me, and be vnto me a father & a prieſt. And I wyll gyue the ten ſyluer ſplices by the yere, and double apparell and meate and dryncke.

So the Leuite went and dwelled wth the man, and was vnto hym as deare as

The children of Danne take the Goddess and the Prieste of Michas awaie. They destroye Laish, and burye it agayne, and name it Dan.

In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan soughte them an inheritaunce to dwell in, for tyll that tyme there fell no inheritaunce vnto them amonge the tribes of Israel. And the children of Dan sente forth of theyr kynnedes fyue men of acrypte, out of theyr coastes, euen out of Zorah, and Eshtaol to vewe the Lande, and searche it oute, and sayed vnto them: goo and searche oute the Lande. And they came to mounte Ephraim, vnto the house of Michas, and lodged there. And when they were come to hys house, they knewe the voyce of the yonge man the Leuite, whose lodgyng they vsed, and sayde vnto him: Who broughte the hither? what makest thou in this place? whype arte thou come hither? And he sayed vnto them: Thus and thus dealeth Michas wth me, and hath hired me to be hys prieste. And they sayde vnto hym. Aske of God wee praye the, that wee maye knowe whether the way we go be prosperous, & whether the thing that take effect. And he priest sayd vnto them: go in peace, the Lorde regardeth your waye, and the iourney whych ye go.

Then the fyue men departed and came to Laish, and sawe the people there dwelling careles, and after the maner of Sydonis, & that no man made anye trouble in the Land, or vsurped anye domynion, and howe they were farre from the Sydons, and had no medlyng wth anye nacion. And they came vnto theyr brethren to Zorah, and Eshtaol. And theyr brethren sayd vnto the: what tidynge bringe you?

And they sayd, arise and let vs go vnto them. for we haue seene the Lande, and it is very good. Hasten you therefore, and be not shewdesfull to departe, and to come and conquere the Lande: ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no perils, and vnto a large contrey: for God hath geuen into your handes a place wher is no lacke of any thyng in the worlde.

Then departed thence of the kynnedes of the Danites, out of Zorah and Eshtaol fyue hundred men appoynted wth abymentes of warre. And they wente and pitched in Batiab Jarim in Iuda.

Wherefore the place is called Mahanah Danne vnto this daye, whiche is on the backe syde of Batiab Jarim. So they wente thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to Michas house. Then answered the fyue men that wente to spye oute the contrey of Laish, and sayed to theyr brethren: wotte ye not that there is in these houses an Ephode, and Images, and a grauen Image, and a moultren Image? Nowe therefore consydre, what ye haue to do. And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite, and saluted him peaceably. And the fyue hundred men well fyled wth weapons of war whych were of the children of Dan stode in the enterpyge of the gate.

And the fyue menne that wente to spye oute the Lande, wente in thither, and toke the kerued Image, and the Ephode, and the moultren Image. And the prieste stode in the enterpyge of the gate wth the fyue hundred menne, that were armed vnto battell, whyle the other went to Michas house, and fet the kerued Image, the Ephode the kerued Image, and the Image of metall.

Then sayed the prieste vnto them: what do ye? and they answered hym, keepe silence, and putte thynne hande vpon thy mouth, and come wth vs, and be vnto vs a sarver and a priest. Whether is it better for the to be a prieste to the house of one man, or to be prieste to a tribes kynned of Israel? And the priest was glad and toke the Ephode, and the Images, & the grauen Image, and wente wth the people. And they turned and departed, and putte their children, the castell and theyr costly thynges before them.

When they were a good waye frome the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses, that were by Michas house, made an outcrys, and pursued after the children of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces and sayed to Michas, what ayleth the that thou makest this outcrys? And he sayed, ye haue taken away my Goddess, whych I made, and also the prieste, and goo yowte wayes wth them. And what haue I more, howe then saie you vnto me, what ayleth the?

And the children of Danne sayed vnto hym, let not thy voyce be heard amonge vs, least angrie felowes runne vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, wth the lyues of al thine householde also. And so the children of Dan wente their wayes.

And when Michas sawe they were so strong for hym, he returned vnto hys house agayne. And they toke the thynge whiche Michas hadde made, and the prieste whiche he hadde, and wente vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were at ease, and wthout mistrust, and smote them wth the edge of the swearde, and burnt the cite wth fyre. And there was no manne to helpe, because it was farre froe Sidon, & they hadde none affayres wth any other nacion. And the cite stode in

And his Lord arose vp in the moynge, and opened the doores of the house, and came forth to goo bys waye. And he holde, his concubynne laye alonge before the doore of the house, and hit hande vpon the threshoulde. And he sayed vnto hyr: a-ryse and let vs be goynge. But she answered not. Then he toke hit vp vpon an asse, & rode by, & gate hym to his owne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a thiespyng knyfe, and caughte his concubynne, and deuyded hyr thorowe the bones into xii. peces, and sente hit vnto all quarters of Israell.

And all that sawe it sayed: there was no such dede done or sene sithen the chyldren of Israell came out of Egypt vnto this day: consider the matter and geue counsell, and save poure aduysers.

The .xx. Chapter.

The battell of the Israellytes agaynst the tyebe of Ben Jamin for the Leuites wyfe killed.

What is all of one conscent, or generally, as he writeth in this chap. v

When all the chyldren of Israell wente oute, and there gathered a companye togyther, as it had bene but * one man, euen from Dan to Berseba, and oute of the Lande of Galaad vnto the Lande of Mezphad, and there rode folke oute of all quarters of all the tyebes of Israell, in the assemble of the people of God, four hundred thousand fore men that drewe sweardes. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israell were gone vp to Agar-phad. Then sayed the chyldren of Israell: tell vs botre thys wyckednes happened. And the Leuite the flayne womannes housbande, answered and sayed: I came into Gabaab in Ben Jamin with my concubynne to lodge all nyght. And the crypzens of Gabaab arose agaynst me, and besette the house rounde aboute me by nyghte, and thoughte to haue slayne me, but they caughte my concubine, and forsed hyr that she dyed. Wherefore I toke my concubynne and cut hit in peces, and sente hit thorowe oute all the Landes of the enherptaunce of Israell, for they haue done abhominacion and folye in Israell. Beholde, ye are all the chyldren of Israell. Consider therefore, and geue poure aduise in the case. Then all the people arose as it had bene one manne, sayinge: there shall not one of vs goo to his sente, nor tourne into his house. And nowe thys is it that we wyl do to Gabaab, and caste lottes agaynst it. And we wyl take ten men of the hundred thorowe oute all the tyebes of Israell, and an hundred of the thousande, and a thousande of ten thousande, to sette bytaye for the people, to make that they maye goo agaynst Gabaab Ben Jamin, accordynge to all the saye that they haue wrought in Israell. And so all the men of Israell assembled vnto Gabaab, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Israell sent men thorowoute all the tyebe of Ben Jamin, sayng: What wyckednes is thys, that is happened amonge you? Nowe therefore deliuer vs them, those wycked wyretches of Gabaab to the ende we maye slea them, and putte awaye euill from Israell.

Nevertheless the chylde of Ben Jamin woulde not hearken vnto the voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israell: but mustered oute in battell agaynst the chyldren of Israell. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin were recounted at that tyme oute of the ctytes. xxi. thousande men that drewe sweardes besyde the enherptaunces of Gabaab whiche were numbred seven hundred picked men. And amonge al these folkes were seven hundred nymphe handed men, whiche euery one coulde synge songs at an herre breade, and not myste. And the chylde of Israell beside the chyldren of Ben Jamin, were numbred at four hundred thousande men that drewe sweardes, and all men of warre.

A And the chyldren of Israell arose and wente vpp to Bethell, and asked of God who shoulde begynne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin: and the Lord sayed, Juda shall be poure captayne. And the chyldren of Israell rode vp eatepe and besieged Gabaab.

And the men of Israell wente oute to battell agaynst Ben Jamin, and putte them selues in a raye agaynst them, to fyghe agaynst Gabaab. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came oute of Gabaab and destroyed in Israell that daye. xxi. thousande men, and broughte them to the grounde. And the folke of the chylde of Israell plucked vp theyr herres and perestefones made battell in the same place wher they dyd the first day: but they wente sit vp and wepte before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lord, sayinge: Shall we go agayne to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin our brethren?

And the Lord sayed: goo vp vnto them. When the chyldren of Israell were come to the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde daye, the chyldren of Ben Jamin wente agaynst them oute of Gabaab, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the earthe of the chylde of Israell once agayne, eightene thousande men that drewe sweardes euery manne of them. Then the chylde of Israell and all the people, wente vp and came to Gabbas house, and wepte, and saue there before the Lord, and fasted the same daye vnto the euen, and offered burnt offeringes, and peace offeringes before

Jos. xix. d

And they built the citi and dwelt therein * and called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father, wherby he was sonne vnto Israel. Howbeit it in dede the name of the citie was Laish at the begynnyng.

And the children of Dan set them by the greuen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Betson, the sonne of Asanath and his sonnes were pyrestes vnto the tyepe of the Danites, tyll they were caryed awaye out of the Lande prissoners. And they set them by the carued Image whiche Asychas made, all the while that the house of God was in Siloh. In those dayes was no spage in Israel.

The .xix. Chapter,

Of the Leuite whose wife was villanously abused in Gabaab. She is darred into synners, and of her sent to eary tribe of Israel a p. re.

 As a certayne Leuite dwellynge on the syde of mount Ephraim, took to myse a concubine oute of Bethlehem Juda: whiche concubyne played the whoze in his house, and wente away from hym, vnto his fathers house to Bethleem Juda; and there continued foure monethes. And his husbunde arose and went after hyr, to speake frendly vnto hyr, and to brynge hyr home agayne, and his ladde wyth hym; and a couple of asses. And she broughte hym to his fathers house: And when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioyced at his commynge. And the Leuite abode wyth his father in lawe thre dayes, and so they eate and drinke, and lodged there.

The foureth daye the younge man arose earlye in the mornynge, and woulde haue departed. But the damiselles father sayed vnto his sonne in lawe: conforte thyne herte wyth a morsell of breade, and then go poure to we. And they satte downe, and dyd eate and dryncke boeth of them together. Then sayed the damiselles father vnto the man: goo to I praye the, and staye all nyghte, and let thyne herte be meryed. Howbeit the man stode vp to departe: but his father in lawe compelled hym to turre agayne, and to tarre all nyghte there. And he arose vp earlye the f. daye to departe. Then sayed the damiselles father: conforte thyne herte: and so made hym tarre tyll after myddaye, and they dyd eate boeth of them together.

And the m. arose to departe wyth his wife and his lad. But his father in lawe. The damiselles father sayd vnto hym: beholde, the day goeth fast awaye and draweth toward nyghte, tarre all nyghte, at leaste tarre thys daye here, and let thyne herte be meryed.

And to morowe gette you earlye on your waye; and get the to thy tente. Nevertheless the man woulde not tarre, but arose and departed, and came as farre as Jebus whiche is Ierusalem and his asses laden, and his concubyne, and his lad wyth him. And when they were fast by Jebus, the daye was sore sprewe, and the yongeman sayd vnto his maister: come I praye the, and lette vs turre into the cite of the Jebusites, and lodge all nyghte there. But his maister sayd vnto him: Wee wil not turre into a strange cite, that are not of the children of Israel: we will goo forth to Gabaab, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyghte in Gabaab, or in Ramab.

And they wente forth on their iourneys, and the sun went downe vpon them, wher they were faste by Gabaab, whiche is in Beniamin. So they turned thitherward to go and lodge all nyghte in Gabaab.

And when they came in, they satte downe in a streete of the cite, for no man woulde take them in to lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man from his worke, oute of the sepides at euen, whiche was also of mount Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gabaab: for the men of the place were of the children of Iemini.

And when he hadde litted by his eyen and sawe a wayfarynge man in the streetes of the Cytie, he sayed: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? And the other answered him, we come fro Bethlehem Juda, toward the syde of mount Ephraim: fro thence am I, and wente to Bethleem Juda, & go nowe to the house of God.

But there is no manne that receyuethe me to house, and yet I haue strawe and prouender for oure asses, and brade and wyne for me and thy hande maped, and the Ladde that are wyth thy seruaut, and lacke nothyng but lodgyng.

The olde manne sayed: peace be wyth the, al that thou lackest, shalte thou fynde wyth me: ouerpe remaine not in the streetes all nyghte, and be broughte hym into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their feete, and dyd eate and dryncke.

And as they were makynge good chere, the menne of the cite whiche were wyted, sette the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the doore, and spake to the good manne of the house, sayinge: brynge forth the man that came into thyne house, that we maye playe buggery wyth hym.

But the manne of the house wente oute to them, and sayed vnto them: Oo, haue my brethren do not so wyckedlye, for myne maune is come into myne house, doo not thys abhomyne upon. Beholde, my Daughtre a mayden, and thys mannes Concubine, theym I wyll brynge oute vnto you, and thowwe them downe, and take your pleasure of them, but vnto thys man, doo not thys folp agaynst nature, I beseech you. But the men woulde not hearken to hym. Nevertheless the manne toke his concubyne, and broughte hyr forth vnto them, and they had to do wyth hir, and

And the men of Israell fledde in the battell. And Ben-Jamyn beganne to smyte deade of the chyldren of Israell aboute thirte persons, for they supposed that the other had here put to the worke before them, as in the fyrste battell. Then beganne to arise oute of the cytye a poller of smoke: And the Beniaminites looked backe, and beholde, the wastynge of the whole cytye began to ascend to beauchy.

Then the menne of Israell turned agayne, and the men of Ben-Jamyn were abashed, for they sawe that euill approched them. And they fled before the men of Israell, vnto the waye that leaderly vnto the wyldernes, the other folowynge them at the harde helles. And besyde that thirte partakers of theyr spyres aboute them, were slayne in the same place. And they compassed Ben-Jamyn and chased them to Genaah, and overcame them before Gabaath on the East syde, and there was slayne of Ben-Jamyn, xxi. thousande, and all men of myght. And they turned and fled towarde the wyldernes, and vnto the rocke of Somgranettes. there came none of the inhabytauntes of Jabez Galaad vnto the congregacon. So when the people were bewed, beholde, there were none of the inhabytauntes of Jabez Galaad there. And they brought them vnto the hoste to Siloh, whiche is in the Lande of Canaan. The .ii. Chapter.

Ruth le. Ruth cometh in the felde of Booz and findeth fauoure in hys syghte.

AND Noemi hadde a kynsman of her husbandes, a manne of might of the kindred of Elimelec named Booz. And Ruth the Moabites sayde unto Noemi: lette me goo too the feld and leaze and gather eares, after whō I shal fynde grace in hys syghte. And she sayde unto her: goo my doughter. And she went, and came and gathered after the haruest men. And her chauce was to gather in the feld that pertained unto Booz, which she was of the kindred of Elimelec.

And beholde, Booz came frome Bethlehem and sayde unto the haruest menne, the Lord be wth you. And they answered hym, the Lord blesse the. Then sayde Booz unto the ponge man that hadde the ouersyghte of the haruest menne: Whose damosell is thys? And the ponge man that was sette to ouerse the haruest menne answered and sayde: It is the Moabytthe damosell that came wth Noemi oute of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde, let me I praye the leaze and gather after the haruest menne the eares that remaine. And so she came and hath continued even from the mornynge untill now, and went not once home.

Then sayde Booz unto Ruth: hearest thou my Doughter: goo too none other feld to gather, neythir goo from thence, but abyde by my maydens. Thyne eyes are on a feld that shal be reaped: go after the maidens therefore, for I have charged the ponge men, that they touche the not. Moreover, when thou arte a thyrt, go vnto the vessels and drinke of that which the laddes haue drawne. Then she fell on hyr face, * and bowed hys to the grounde and sayde unto hym: howe is it that I have founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, sythens I am an Aliaunte?

And Booz answered and sayd unto hys: al is tolde me that thou haste done too thy mother in lawe, sence the deathe of thyne husbande, howe thou haste left thy father and thy mother, and the lande where thou was born, and art come vnto a nation which thou knewest not in tymes passed. The Lord reacquite thy worke, and a full reward be geuen the of the Lord God of Israel, vnto whome thou arte come to trauell vnder hys wynges.

Then she sayde unto hym: lette me fynde fauour in thy sight my Lord: for thou hast comforted me, and haste spoken hertelpe vnto thy mayde, whiche yet canne not be lyke one of thy maydes. And Booz when the tyme of repaste was come, sayde vnto her, come hithe and eate of the bread, and drinke the soppe in the vineger. And she sat downe by the reapers, and he taughte hys * parched corne. And so she drinke & was fylled and lette parte. And when she was risen vp to gather, Booz spake to the ponge men, sayynge: let her gather the eares that remaine, and do hys no despite. And they to pull oute of the sheues for hys, and let it lye that she maye gather it by, and rebuke hys not. And so she gathered till even, and then she shewed that she hadde gathered, and it was an Ephah of barley, and she tooke it vnye and wente to the cite, and shewed hys mother in lawe what she had gathered, and thereto she plucked out, and gaue too hys that she had reserved when she had eaten ynough.

Then sayde hys mother in law vnto her: where gatheredst thou to day? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed hys mother in lawe with whō she had wrought. & sayd: I mane name with whom I wrought to day, is Booz. Then sayde Noemi vnto her doughter in law, blessed be he, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnes to the deade, that he did to the lyvyng. And Noemi sayde vnto hys: the manne is nye vnto vs, even of oure nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabite sayd:

he bademe also that I should continue with the ponge men, until they had ended all the harvest he hath. Then sayd Boemi unto Ruth her daughter in lawe: it is best my daughter, that thou go out with his mapdens and that thou inuete the in anye other fiede. And so he kepte her by the mapdens of Booz, to gather unto the ende of barley harvest, and of wheat harvest also, and returned to her mother in lawe.

The.iii. Chapter.

Ruth depeth at Booz fete, and is knowne bys kynswoman.

A When Boemi hit mother in lawe sayde unto her: my daughter I wyl seeke rest for the, that thou mayste be in better case. For nowe this Booz oure kinsmanne with whose mapdens thou wast, wynneth bys barley too nyghte in the threshynge floure: wylste thy selfe therefore and anoynte the, and putte thy raimente vpon the, and get the to the threshynge floure. But let not the manne beware of the, till he haue leste eatynge, and drynckynge. And when he goeth too slepe, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vpp the clothes that are on his feete, & lape the downe, and so shall he tell the what thou shalte do. And she answered hir: all thou bydest me, I wyl do. So she wente vnto the floure, and byd all that her mother in lawe baded her. And when Booz hadde eaten and drunken and made hym merie, he wente and lape downe by the syde of the heape, and she came softlye and lyfte vpp the clothes at his feete, and layed her downe. And at midnyghte the man was awaked and groped, and beholde, a woman lape at his feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? she answered, I am Ruth thine handmaid, spied thy mantel ouer thine handmaide, for thou art the nexte of kynne.

And then he sayde: blessed be thou in the Lorde my daughter, for thou haste shewed more goodnes in the latter ende, then at the begynnyng, in as muche as thou followedest not ponge men, whether they were pore or ryche. And nowe my daughter feare not, I wyl doe too the all that thou requierest: for all within the gates of this cite knowe that thou arte a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nexte kyn, howbeit there is one nether then I.

Take all nyghte and when mornynge is come, if he wyl marry the, well and good lette hym so do. But if he will not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth, I wyl haue the: Ipe still till the mornynge. And so she laye at his feete till the mornynge. And she arose vpp before one coulde knowe an other. And he sayde, let no manne knowe that there came anye womanne into the threshynge floure. And he sayed, bynge the mantell that thou haste vpon the, and holde it vp. And she held it vpp, and he mette in sixe measures of barley, and lap

ed it on her, and she gate her into the cite, and came vnto her mother in lawe whiche sayde: what thynges my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And sayde moreover: these sixe measures of barley gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalte not go emptye vnto thy mother in lawe. Then sayd she my daughter, Ipe still vntill thou knowe howe the matter wyl procede. For the man wyl not be in reast till he haue ended his matter this same day.

The.iii. Chapter.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whom he beggeth Obed.

Then wente Booz to the gate, & sate him downe there: and beholde the kinsmanne of whiche Booz spake, came by. Vnto whome he said: come and sitte downe here, and called hym by his name, and he returned in & sate downe. Then he tooke ten men of the elders of the cite, and sayde: Ipe ye downe here. And then sate downe. Then he sayde vnto the kinsman: Boemi that is come agayne oute of the contrey of Moab, wyl sell a parcell of lande whiche was oure brother Elimelecs. And I thought to be the to wete, and byd the bye it before the inhabitoures and elders of my people, if thou be disposed to challenge it, for thou arte nexte of kynne: but if thou wylste not purchase it, then tell me that I may wete it. For there is none to challenge it save thou, and I next the. And the other answered: I wyl purchase it.

Then sayde Booz, what day thou byest the fiede of thy hand of Boemi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabite, the wyfe of the dead, to stee by the name of thy deade kinsman vpp his inheritaunce. The said kinsman, I can not purchase it for marriage of myne owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to leste my ryghte here. Nowe this was the manner of old tyme in Israel concerning purchase and chaungynge, for to stablyshe all thyng that a manne muste plucke of his sho, and geue it his neyghboure, and this was a wptnesse in Israel.

And the kinsman sayde to Booz, bye it thou: and so drewe of his sho. Then sayd Booz vnto the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wptnesse this dape, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilion and Mahelon, of the hande of Boemi. And moreover Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahelon, do I take to me to wife, to stee vpp the name of the deade vpon his inheritaunce that his name be not putte forth amongs his brethren, and from the gate of this cite: ye are wptnesse this dape.

And all the people that were in the gate, and all the elders sayed, we are wptnesse: the Lorde make the womanne that is come into thyne house, lyke Rachel and Lea, whiche twayne did buylde the house of Israel, that she maye do vertuouslye in Ephrayah, and be famous in Beth-

Then sayd Elkanah her husband to her: Hannah, why wepest thou, and why eatest thou not? and whye is thyne herte so sore troubled? am not I better to the, then ten sonnes? Then Hannah rose vnto after they had eaten and dronk in Siloh. And she the prieste late vpon a stole vpon one of the fynde postes of the temple of the Lorde.

And she was troubled in hys sprytes, and prayed vnto the Lorde, and wepte sore, and bowed a bowe, and sayde: Lorde of hoodes, if thou wylte loke vpon the wretchednes of thyne handmayde, and shalte remembre me, and not forget thyne handmayde, and shalte geue vnto thyne handmayde a manne chyldre, I wll geue hym vnto the Lorde all the daye of hys lyfe. and there shall neyther raser nor sheares come vpon hys heade. And she continued prayinge before the Lorde. Ek marked hys mouth. For Hannah, she spake in hys herte, and hys lippes dyd but moue onely, but hys voyce was not hearde. And therefore Eli toke hys for dronken, & said vnto hys: howe longe wylte thou be dronken? putte awaye from the, the wyne that thou hast. Hannah answered and sayde: not so my Lorde, I am a woman sorrowfull in myne herte, and haue droncke neyther wyne, nor anye stronge dryncke: but I haue poured oute my soule before the Lorde. Counte not thyne handmaid to be lyke a daughter of vntirytynes, for oute of the aboundaunce of my medytacion and grief, haue I spoken hys herto.

To power out her soul to the we al her heart and affects on, & declare her mind of fecundity, to praye earnestly, & gently to utter her whole entes & thoughts. ad. pl. a. 1. 1.

Eli answered and sayde: go in peace. the God of Israell shall graunte thy petition that thou hast asked of hym. Then she sayde, let thyne handmayde find grace in thy sight. And so the woman wente hert wape, and dyd eate, and looked no more so sad. And they rose vnto early, and bowed themselves before the Lorde, and then returned and went to their house to Ramah. And Elkanah lape by hys wyfe Hannah, and the Lorde remembred her, and in processe of tyme she conceived and bare a sonne, and called his name Samuel, because she had asked him of the Lorde. And Elkanah and all hys house wente by to offer vnto the Lorde, both the offeryngs due for the feast, and also his bowes: but Hannah went not by, for she sayde vnto her husband: I wll tarpe vntill the chyldre be weaned, and then I wll bynge hym that he maye appeare before the Lorde, and there abyde for euer. And Elkanah her husbande sayde to her: do what semeth the best, for thyne herte hath weaned hym, onely the Lorde make good hys saying. And so the woman abode, and gaue her sonne sucke till she weaned hym.

And

And then he took hym wth her, when she had weaned hym, wth three bullockes, and an Ephod of flour, and a bottel of wine, and broughte hym vnto the house of the Lorde in Siloh, howebeit the chyld was yet ponge. And they slewe the bullockes, and broughten the chyld to Eli, and the she sayde: Oh my Lorde as trulpe as thy soule liueth my Lorde, I am the womanne that stode by the here prapinge vnto the Lorde, and for this chyld I praped, & the Lorde hath geuen me my desyre, whiche I asked of hym, and therefore I also lend hym the Lorde, as long as he maye bee lente the Lorde. And so they praped there vnto the Lorde.

The.ii. Chapter.

The sonne of Hannah. The offence of the sonnes of Eli. Eli is rebuked for the vniuersible sufferance of his chyldren.

And Hannah praped and sayde: Mine heart reioyseth in the Lorde, my home is hygh in the Lorde, and my mouth is wyde open ouer my enemies, for I reioyce in that thou haste deliuered me. There is none so hope as the Lorde: noo, there is none saue thou. Repther is there anye strengthe lyke vnto our God. Talke not to muche proudelye, let olde thynges departe out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowlege, and he setteth forth the workes. The bowes of the strouge is broken: & the weake are endued wth strength. They that were full, haue bene gladd to serue for breade, and they that were hongry be satisfied, in so muche that the barren hath borne seuen, and she that hadde manie chyldren is waxed feble. The Lord killeth and maketh alieue, byngeth downe to hell, and fetcheth vp agayne.

Of these bowes is spoken. Psal. x. 10

But the Lorde maketh poore, and maketh riche, bringeth lowe, and heaueth vppon hye. He taketh vppon the poore out of the duste, and lyfteth vp the begger frome the donge hyll, to sette them amonge princes, and to inherite them wth the state of gloire.

For the pylers of the earth are the Lordes, and he hath set the round world vpon them. He wyl kepe the fete of * his holpe, but the wycked shall kepe spience in darkenesse. For in his owne myghte shall no manne be stronge. The Lordes aduersaries shall be made to feare hym, and out of heauen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall iudge the borders of the wolde, and shall geue myghte vnto his knyghte, and ete the hoine of his anointed. And Elkanah went to Ramath to his house, and the chyld dyd mynyster vnto the Lorde before Eli the pnest.

Behall is as muche to saye as vniuersal, or toward, or wycked.

But the sonnes of Eli were the sonnes Behall, and knew not the Lorde. For the manner of the pnestes wth the people was, whensoever anye manne offered any offeringes, the pnestes ladde came whyle the fleshe was sethyng, and a fleshe hoke wth the tette in his hande, and thruste it into the panne, kettle, caldren, or pottle. And all that the fleshe hoke broughte vppon the pnestes toke awape. And so they dyd vnto all Israel that came thither to Siloh. Yea and mozeouer before they hadde offered the fatte, the pnestes ladde came and sayde to the manne that offered: geue fleshe to roste for the pnest, for he wyl not haue sodden fleshe of the but rawe. And if anye man sayde vnto hym, lette the fatte be offered accordyng to the custome of the daye, and then take as muche as thyne herte despyeth. The lad wold answer him, thou shalt geue it me now or els I wyl take it perforce. And the spyn of the pong men was verie great before the Lorde. For they hyndred the peoples deuocion, frome offeringe vnto the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuell ministered before the Lorde gyded aboute wth a linnen Ephod. Mozeouer his mother made hym a litle cote, and broughte it to hym frome lease to lease when she came vppon wth her husbnde to offer the offeringe of the sayed feast. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seede of this womanne, for that she hath lente the Lorde. And they wente vnto theirowne house. And the Lorde blessed Hannah, so that she conceived and bare the sonnes and two daughters. But the chyld Samuell grew, dwellinge wth the Lorde.

Eli was verie olde, and hearde all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and howe they slepte wth the women that * wape in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, and sayde vnto them: why do ye suche thynges? For I heare pouce wycked dedes of all these people. Oh nap my sonnes for it is no good reaporte that I heare, howe ye make the Lordes people too trespass. If one manne synne agaynst another * dayesmenne maye make his peace, but if a manne synne agaynst the Lorde, who can be his dayesman? Notwithstandyng they hearkened not vnto the voyce of thei father, because the Lorde wold slea them. The chyld Samuell prospered and grew, and was in fauoure bothe wth the Lorde, and also wth men.

Some read came to.

* Ther that synne to god for hym.

And there came a manne of God from Eli, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth the Lorde: I appeared vnto the house of thy fathers when they were in Egypt in pharaos house. And I chose thy father for the of all the tribes of Israel, to be my pnest for to offer vpon myne altare, and to burne incense, and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the offeringes of the chyldren of Israel. Wherfore kepe ye agaynst my sacrifice, and agaynst myne offeringe whiche I commaunde in the tabernacle, and honour thy chyldren aboue me, and make your selues fatte of the fyne frutes of all the offeringes of Israel my people: Wherfore fore the Lord God of Israel saith: I said that thine house & the house of thy father shoulde haue walked before me for ever.

But nowe the Lorde sayeth, that be farre from me, for them that worshyppe me I will worshyppe, and they that despyse me, shall be despyed. * Beholde the dayes will come that I will cut of thyne ayme of thy fathers house, that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalt see thyne enemy in the tabernacle, in all that shall please Israel: and there shall not be an elder in thyne house while the world standeth. Nevertheless I will not destroy all thy males from my altar, to cause thy sight withal, and to make thine heart melt. And all the multitude of thyne house shall be poyge.

And thys shall be a signe vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes, Hophni & Phinches: euen in one daye either of them shall dye. And I will steepe me by a faithful priest that shall do after myne herte: and after my mynde. And I will build hym a sure house, and he shall walke before myne appointed for ever.

And they that are left in thyne house shall come and crouche to hym for a little peece of syluer, and a cake of breade, & shall saye: put me & praye the in one office or other amonge the priestes, that I maye eate a morsell of breade.

The.iii. Chapter.

After the Lorde hadde lette to appeare by open vision in Siloh for a longe tyme, he yett calleth Samuel four tymes, and sheweth hym what shoulde befall on Heli.

AND the childe Samuel ministered vnto the Lorde before Heli, and the woordes of the Lorde was depntye in those dayes, for there was no open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme, that Heli lay in hys place, & hys eyes began to waxe dymme, that he could not see. And erre the lampe of God wente oute, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the temple of the Lorde, where the arche of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel: and he sayed here am I, and he ranne vnto Heli, and said: here am I, for thou callest me. But he saide: I called the not: go agayne and slepe. And he wente and layde hym downe to slepe.

And the Lorde called once agayne Samuel, and Samuel arose, and wente to Heli and sayed, I am here, thou dydest call me. And he answered, I called the not my son, go agayne and take thy rest: but as yett Samuel knewe not the Lorde, neyther was the woorde of the Lorde opened vnto him. And the Lorde proceeded and called Samuel the third tyme. And he arose, and wet to Heli and saide: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Heli perceyued that the Lorde called the childe, and sayd vnto him: go and lye downe, and if he call the againe, then saye: speake on Lorde, for thy seruante heareth. And Samuel wente and layde hym downe in hys place. And the Lorde came and stode and called as afore, Samuel. Samuel. And Samuel sayde, speake on for thy seruante heareth the. And the Lorde saide to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thyng in Israel, that the eares of as manye as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye, I will performe to Heli, all that I haue spoken concerning hys house. I will begynne it, and ende it. For I haue tolde hym that I will Iudge hys house for ever. For the wyckednesse whiche he knoweth howe hys sonnes are vngracious, and he chastised them not. And therefore I haue sworn vnto the house of Heli, that the wyckednes of his house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering while the world standeth. And Samuel layt vnto the morninge, and then opened the doores of the house of the Lorde.

But Samuel feared to shewe Heli the vision. The Heli called Samuel, and sayd: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here am I. And he said: what is it that the Lorde sayd vnto thee? See thou lydest it not from me. * The Lorde do so, and so to the, if thou hide any thyng from me, of all that he said vnto the. And Samuel tolde hym euery thinge whipt, and hysd it not from hym. And he answered: it is the Lorde, let hym do what seemeth him good. And Samuel grewe, and the Lorde was with hym, and he lette none of hys wordes vnperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersabe wist that the faithful Samuel was trulye made the Lordes prophet. And the Lorde appeared agayne in Siloh, for the Lorde opened hym selfe to Samuel in Siloh, thowhe the woordes of the Lorde.

The.iii. Chapter.

The battell of the Philistines. Israel synneth. The arch of the Lorde is taken. Eli's childe dyeth, and he hym selfe also.

AND Samuel spake vnto all Israel, and Israel wente oute agaynst the Philistines to battell, and pitched beside the help stone. But the Philistines pitched in Aphek, and put them selues in aray agaynst Israel. And in that batle Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines, for the Philistines flew along by the fieldes, about .iij. mylles.

And when the people were come into theyr tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherefore hath the Lorde beaten vs this daye before the Philistines? lette vs sette the Arche of the appoyntment of the lord, oute of Siloh vnto vs, and lette it come amonge vs, and saue vs oute of the handes of our enemyes.

And the people sente to Siloh, and sette from thence the Arche of the appoyntment of the Lorde of hostes, whiche dwelleth betwene the Cherubins. And there were the two sons of Heli, Hophni, and Phinches, with the arche of the appoyntment of god. And when the Arche of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the hooste, al Israel shouted a myghty shoute so that the earth rang agayne.

When the philistines hearde the noyse of the shoute, they saide: what meaneth the sounde of this myghty shoute in the hooste of the Hebrues? And they vnderstode that the arcke of the Lorde was come into the hooste. And the philistines were afrayed, when it was tolde that God was come into the hooste, and sayed: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this. Wo vnto vs, who shall deliuer vs out of the hand of this myghty God? This is the God that smote the Egyptians wth all manner of plagues in the wyldernesse. Be stronge and quyt your selues lyke men philistines, that ye be not seruaunts vnto the Hebrues, as they haue ben to you. Be men therfore and fyghte. And the philistines fought, and Israel was put to the wyse, and fled euery man into his tente.

And there was a myghty great slaughter, so that there were overthrowne of Israel threty thousande footemen. And the arcke of God was taken, and the two sonnes of Eli, Hophny and Phinies we, deade. And ther ranne a manne of Beniamin out of the arape, and came to Sploh the same dape, wth his clothes rent, and earlie vpon his head. And when the man came in, Eli sat vpon a stole by the waies syde lookinge: for his hearte feared for the arcke of God. And the manne came in, tolde in the cytye, and all the cytye cryed. When Eli heard the noyse of the cryinge, he aroose what the noise of the tumulte. And the man hasted, and came in, and tolde Eli. Eli was irremediablelye olde, and his syghte failed hym that he coulde not se. And the man sayde to Eli, I am he that ranne forth from the arape, and fledde out of the hooste this dape.

And he sayd: how is it fortunied my sonne? And the messenger answered and sayd: Israel is fled before the philistines, and there is a greates slaughter chaunced among the people, and thy two sonnes Hophny and Phinies are ded, and thereto the arcke of God is taken. And when he had once named the arcke of God, Eli fell from his stole backward toward y gate, and his necke brake, and he dyed: for he was old and vnsounde, and he iudged Israel forty yeres.

And his daughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was wth childe, and nre the birth. And when she hearde these tydynges of the takinge of the arcke of God, and that her father in lawe and hir husbunde were deade, she bowed her selfe and traupled, for her paynes came vpon her. And aboute the tyme of her deathe, the womenne stode about her, and sayed vnto her, feare not, for thou haste borne a sonne. But she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the childe Ichabod, sayinge: honoure is departed frome Israel. Because the arcke of God was taken, and her father in lawe and her husbunde were deade. And therfore she sayde: Israel hath losse his honoure, because the arcke of God was taken.

The. v. Chapter.

¶ Wagon the God of the philistines to rest it before the arcke. The philistines are placed in the secret places. The enchaunters of Akaron refuse to receiue the Arcke.

And the philistines toke the arcke of God, and carped it frome the hely stone vnto Asdod, and brought it vnto the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And when they of Asdod were risen in the morninge beholde, Dagon laye grouelinge vpon the earthe before the arcke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon and sette hym in his place agayne. And when they rose vp earlie in the nexte morninge, behoulde Dagon laye grouelinge vpon the grounde before the arcke of the Lorde, and his heade and his two handes cutte off vpon the thretholde, that the bodie onelye was lefte on hym. Wherefore neyther the yuelles of Dagon, nor anye man that cometh into Dagon's house mighte treade on the thretholde of Dagon in Asdod vnto this dape.

But the hande of the Lorde was heauy vpon them of Asdod, and he despoiled them and smote them wth emerodes, bothe Asdod, and all the coastes thereof. And when the men of Asdod sawe that so, they sayed: the Arcke of the God of Israel shall not abyde here wth vs, for his hande is sore vpon vs, and vpon Dagon ouer God. And so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the philistines vnto them, and sayde: what shall we doo wth the arcke of the God of Israel? Then sayd they of Beth: let the arcke of the God of Israel be carped aboute. And they carped the arcke of the God of Israel aboute. And when they hadde caried it aboute, the hande of the Lorde was in the citie wth a myghty great plage, and he smote the me of the citie, bothe small and greates, and they were smitten in their secret places wth the emerodes. Then they sente the arcke of God to Akaron, and as soone as the Arke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed oute, sayinge: They haue brought the arcke of the God of Israel to vs to sea us a out people. Then they sente and sette all the Lordes of the philistines vnto them, and sayde: sende away the arcke of the God of Israel, and lette it go home agayne into his owne place, that it bea not vs wth our people. For there was a plage of deathe thowroughe all the cytye, and the hande of God was exceedinge sore there, in so muche that they whych dyed not, were smitten wth the emerodes: so that the crye of the cytye reached vp to heauen.

The. vi. Chapter.

The heifers leare home the arke with the rewardes. The Philistines were plaged after they had lost the arke.

AND so when the Arke of the Lord hadde bene in the countrey seven monethes, the Philistines called for the Diviners and the Soothsayers. saying: what shall we doo with the arke of the Lord: tel us in her myght we shall sende it home agayne? They answered: if you sende the arke of the God of Israel home agayne sende it not emptye: But reward it with a trespass offering, and then ye shall be whole, and it shall be knowne to you why his have departed not from you.

Then sayd they, what shall be the trespass offering. wherche he answered: true golden arkes with Emrodos, and true golden myce, accordynge to the number of the Lords of the Philistines. For it was one manner of plague that was on you al and on your Lordes to.

Wherefore ye shall make images lyke to your arkes with Emrodos, and images lyke to your myce & destroyed your Land, and shall give glorie unto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from your Gods, and from your Land. Wherefore should ye have your vertes, as the Egyptians and Chanaan had bened their heires? wherfor al that (whiche he was well scourged) was saide to let the people go, and departe.

Nowe therefore make a newe carre and take two mylche kene, on whose necke newe came yoke. And tie the kene in the cart and keepe the Calves at home from them. Then take the Arke of the Lord, and put it in the carre, and put the Jewels of golde wherche ye reward hym with, for a trespass offering, in a forest by the syde of the oke, and sende it awaye, and let it goo. And marche, if he goeth up by the way that leaeth unto his owne coaste to Bethsames, then it is he that dyd vs this greave curll. But if he do not, then it is not bys hande that smote vs, but it was a chaunce that hapned vs. And the men dyd euil: they toke two kene that gaue mylche, and sped them in the carre, and kepte the calves at home, and they laied the arke of the Lord upon the Carre, and the fenne with the myce of golde, and the Images of theyr arkes with Emrodos.

And the kene toke the straite waye to Bethsames, bothe one waye: and as they went they cryed. turnynge neither to the ryght hand, nor to the lefte. And the lord of the Philistines wente after them, till they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reappynge their inbeate in the vallye. So they lyfte up their eyes and espyed the Arke, and crieped when they sawe it. And the carre came into the groue of one Josua a Bethsamyte, and stode styll ther. Ther was there also a greave Stone. And they laide the wood of the carre, and offered the kyne in a burnt offering unto the Lord. And the Leuites toke downe the arke of the Lord, and the fozet that was there, wherein the Jewels of golde were, and put them on the greave Stone.

And the men of Bethsames sacryficed burnt sacryfice, and offered offerings that same daye unto the Lord, and when the true Lordes of the Philistines hadde sene it, they returned to Akaton that same daye. These are the golden arkes with Emrodos, wherche the Philistines gaue to amendes for a trespass offering, to the Lord: for Ashdod one, for Gaza one, for Ashalon one, for Bethone, and for Akaton one. And the golden myce were accordynge to the number of all the cities of the Philistines, bothe the true Lordes myces, bothe of walled towncs, & of towncs unwallid even unto the great Stone where on they set downe the Arke of the Lord: wherche remaineth unto this daye in the freide of Josua the Bethsamyte. And the Lord plagued the menne of Bethsames because they had sene the Jewelles that were in the Arke of the Lord. And he slew of the people, fifty thousand, and thye score and ten persons.

And the people lamented because the Lord had made so great a slaughter of them, and the men of Bethsames sayed: who is habile to stand before the Lord, so help a God, and to whom shal he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Gath Fathim: saying. The Philistines haue brought home agayne the arke of the Lord come downe and set it up to you.

The. vii. Chapter.

The arke is brought to Bariatbatim. The people wepe, for which Samuel made intercession to the lord. The Philistines are smitten.

AND the menne of Bariatbatim came and sette up the arke of the Lord. And brought it into the house of one Abynadab in Gabaah, and sanctified Eleazer his sounne, to attend upon the arke of the Lord. And while the Arke abode in Bariatbatim the daies grew so, that it was twenty yeres and all Israel lamented after the lord.

And Samuel spake unto all Israel, saying: If ye be come agayne unto the Lord with all your herres, then I will putte awaye the straunge Gods from you, Balaam, and Gubator, and prepare your herres unto the Lord, and sette hym alone, and so shall he erde you out of the handes of the Philistines. And then the chyldren of Israel dyd put awaye Balaam and Gubator, and setted the Lord alone. Then sayd Samuel. gather all Israel to Mizpah, that I maye praye for you.

you vnto the Lorde. And they assembled at Mizpah and drew water, and poured it out before the Lorde, and said the same day, and sayed there: we haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Samuel iudged the cause of the chyldren of Israel in Mizpah. When the Philistynes heard that the chyldren of Israel were assembled at Mizpah, the Lordes of the Philistynes went by agaynst Israel: whych when the chyldren of Israel heard, they were afrayed of the Philistynes, and sayed to Samuel: cease not to cry vnto the Lorde our God for vs, that he maye kepe vs out of the bandes of the Philistynes. And Samuel took a suckynge Lambe, and offered it whole for a bounteoofferynge vnto the Lorde. and cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel: and the Lorde hearde hym. And as Samuel offered the bounteoofferynge, the Philistynes came to fight agaynst Israel. But the Lord thounded a great thonder that same day vpon the Philistynes, and turmpled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued out of Mizpah and pursued the Philistynes and slew them tyll they came vnder Berhear.

And then Samuel took a stone, and pitched it betwene Mizpah and Sen, and called the name thereof the Stone of helpe, sayinge, thus farre hath the Lord holpen vs. And so the Philistynes were broughte vnder, that they came no more into the coastes of Israel, for the hande of the Lorde was vpon the Philistynes all the dayes of Samuel. Then the cityes whych the Philistynes had taken fro Israel came agayne to Israel, frome Akaron to Berh, with the coastes of the same: whych Israel plucked out of the bandes of the Philistynes. For there was peace betwene Israel and the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went aboute pere by pere to Berhel, Balgal, and Mizpah, and iudged Israel, in all those places, and came agayne to Ramath, for there was hys house, and there he iudged Israel, and there he baptyse an auilace vnto the Lorde.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Because Samuels sonnes byd manyrer evil, The people require a kynge: and to them is rescribbed the maner of a kynge.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes Judges ouer Israel. The name of hys eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abiah, whiche were Judges in Bersabe. Neuertheles hys sonnes folowed not hys steps, but turned asyde after lute, and took remarces, and peruerred iudgemente. When all the elders of Israel gathered them together and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and sayed vnto hym: beholde, thou arte olde, and thy sonnes folowe not thy wayes. Nowe therefore make vs a kynge to Iudge vs, as other nacyons haue. But that thynge displeased Samuel, whiche they sayed: Spue vs a kynge to Iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lord saide vnto Samuel, heare the voyce of the people in al that they saye vnto the. For they haue not caste the awaye, but me: that I shoulde not raygne ouer them. And as they haue euer done sythens I broughte them out of Egypte vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other Goddes, euen so do they vnto the. Nowe therefore hearken vnto their voyce, howebeit yet respyre vnto them, and shewe them the power of the kynge that shall raygne ouer them. And Samuel tolde al the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people, that asked a kynge of hym, and he sayed: this shall be the power of the kynge that shall raygne ouer you: he shall take your sonnes and putte them to hys charrettes and make hys horse men of them, and they muste runne before hys charette, and shall make hym captaynes of them ouer thousands and ouer hundredes, and will sette them to eate hys grounde, and to gather in hys barueste, and to make ordynance of warre, and apparell for hys charettes, And he will take your daughters and make them the dyers of hys oynementes, and his cokes and bakers. And he shall take the best of your freldes, and of your vineyardes, and of your olue trees, & geue them to hys seruauntes. And he shall take the tenth of your shepe, and of your bynes and geue it to hys Lordes, and to hys seruauntes. And he shall take the best of your men seruauntes, and maid seruauntes, and ponge men, and of your asses, and do hys worke with them. And he shall take the tenth of your shepe, and ye shall be hys seruantes. And when ye crye out at that tyme vpon your kynge, whiche ye shall haue chosen vnto you, the Lorde shall not heare you at that daye. Neuertheles the people would not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd say, not so: But there shall be a kynge ouer vs, and we wil helpe all other nacyons. And our kynge shall iudge vs, and goode before vs, and fighte ouer battels for vs. And Samuel hearde al the wordes of the people and rehersed them in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lord saide to Samuel: hearken to their voyce and make them a kynge. Then sayde Samuel to the men of Israel, go euery man vnto hys cite.

And it chaunced that the asses of thys Kis Sauls father were strayed. The sayseruautes wyth the, and go thy way and seeke the asses. And they wente thowwe mounte Ephraim, and thowwe the lande of Salisa, and founde them not. The they wente thowwe the lande of Salym, and there they were not. Then they went also thowwe the lande of Jemphre, and they founde them not.

Then when they were come to the land of zuph, Saul said to the young man that was wyth him: come lette vs retorne, lest my father seue carying for the asses, & take thought for vs. And he answered hym: behold, ther is in this citty a worshipful man of god, & al that he sayth cometh to pas.
Nowe then, let vs go thither, peraduen-ture he shall shewe vs what waye we shall go. Then sayed Saul to bys seruante:
if we goo, what shall we bynge the man?
For our breade is al spent out of our hampers, and there is none other presente to bynge the manne of God, what haue we?
And the younge man answered to Saul agayne and sayed. I haue founde aboute me the fourth parte of a spyle, that wyll we gyue the man of God to tell vs the waye.

Before tyme in Israel, when a manne wente to seeke an answer of God, thus wyse he spake: come and lette vs go to the * Seer. For he that is now called a pro-phete, was in the olde tyme called a Sear. Then sayed Saul to bys younge man, wel sayd of the, come let vs go. And so they went vnto the citty wher the man of God was. And as they were gonyng by into the citty, they met wyth damosels that came out to drawe water, and sayd vnto them: is there here a Seer? And the maydens answered them, yea: beholde he goeth before you. Make hast now, for he came this daye to the citty, for the people must offer this day in the hye place. When ye be come vnto the citty, incontinent ye shall spyde him, ere he goo vp vnto the hylle to eate:

for the people wyl not eate, vntyll he come because he muste blesse the offeringe. And then eate they that be readye to the feaste.
Nowe therefore get you vp, for euen now shall ye fynde him. And they wente vp into the citty, and when they were come into the myddes of the citty, behold Samuel came out agaynst them, to goo vp to the hye place. But the Lorde hadde tolde Samuell the daye before Saul came, sayinge: to morowe thys tyme, I wyll sende the a man oute of the land of Beniamyn, whom shalt thou annointe captayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people from the handes of the Philistines for I haue looked vppon my people, and they crye is come vnto me. When Samuell sawe Saul, the Lorde sayed vnto hym: se, thys is the man whome I spake to the of. Thys same shall raygne ouer my people. Then wente Saul to Samuel in the myddes of the gale, and sayed: tell me I praye the where is the Seers house?

And Samuel answered Saul, and sayed: I am the Seer, goo vp before me vnto the hylle, for ye shall eate wyth me to-daye. And to morowe I wyll let the goo early, and wyll tell the all that is in thyn berte, and as concernynge thynne Asses that were loste thre dayes ago, care not for them, for they are founde. And moze ouer, who shall haue the deutyfull thyn-ges of Israel? belonge they not to the,
and to all thy fathers house? But Saul answered, and sayed, am not I the sonne of a Leminus, of the smallest tyebe of Israel, and my kynred the leaste of all the kynredes of the tribe of Benjamin: wherfore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and bys seruaunte, and broughte them into the parloure, and made them sit in the chief place amonge them that were bydden, whiche were vpon a thyrtye personnes.

Then sayed Samuel vnto the cook Ephraim: loke that meesse whiche I gaue the, and of whiche I sayed reserue thys to an other tyme. And the cooke toke up the shoulde and broughte it, and sette it before Saul. And Samuel sayed: Be-holde, what is left, sette it before the, and eate, for I kepte it for the vnto thys tyme, when I called the people. And so Saul byd eate wyth Samuel that daye. And when they were come downe from the hylle into the citty. Samuel communed wyth Saul in the gallarpe: and they arose earlye. And aboute the spryng of the day, Samuel called Saul in the gallarpe sayng: aryse that I maye sente the a way.
And Saul arose. And they wente oute at the doores, both he & Samuel. And when they were come to the townes ende, Samuell said to Saul, byd thy seruante go before vs, & he went, but stand thou still a lytle space, & I may know what god sayeth.

And there shalt thou meete three men goinge to God to Bethell, one carryinge three kyddes, and the other three loaves of breade, and the thyrde a buttell of wine. And they shall greete thee, & give thee the two loaves of breade, which I shalt receiue at their handes. After this thou shalt come to the hill of God, where the Philistynes kepe their marche. And when thou arte come thither to the city, thou shalt meete a companye of Prophetes, cominge home from the hill, with a psalter, a tymbrill, & a pipe, & a harpe before them, & they prophesye. And the spyrte of the Lord shall rest vpon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be turned into another manne. And when these signes are chaunced thee, then do what thou hast to do, for God is with thee. And thou shalt also go before me to Balaiz. And behold, I will come vnto thee, for thou shalt sacrifice burnt sacrifice, and peace offerings. * Take for me seven dayes till I come, and shewe me what thou shalt doo. And as sone as he hadde returned bys shoulder to go from Samuel, God gaue hym, an other maner of beere, and all those tokens toke effecte that same day. When they came to the hill, beholde the company of prophetes mette him, & the spyrte of God came vpon hym, and he prophesied amonge them. And all that knewe hym before, when they sawe he prophesied amonge the prophetes, sayd eche to other, what is happened vnto the sonne of Cys? Is Saule also amonge the prophetes? And one of the same place answered and sayd: why is they farther? And thereof sprang a prouerbe: Is Saule also amonge the prophetes? And when he had made an ende of prophesyinge, he came to the hill. Saules vncle said to him and to bys seruante: whither wente ye? And he answered, to seeke the alles, and when we sawe them no where, we wente to Samuel. Then sayd Saules vncle, tell me what Samuel sayd to you. And Saule answered bys vncle, he tolde vs the alles were found. But of the kingdome whereof Samuel spake, tolde he hym not. After that Samuel called the people together vnto the Lord to Mizpah, and sayd vnto the chyldren of Israell: thus sayeth the Lord God of Israell, I brought you out of Egypte, and deliuered you from the hande of the Egyptians, and from the handes of all kyngedomes that oppressed you. And ye haue this daye cast away youre Lord God that by hym selfe hath holpe you out of all youre aduersities, and tribulacions, and ye haue sayd vnto hym: * make a kynge out of vs. Some therefore stande before the Lord by youre rybes and your houses. And whi

Samuell hadde broughte all the rybes of Israell, the rybe of Beniamyn was taken forth by lot. When he hadde broughte the rybe of Beniamyn by theys kynreds the lotte fell vpon the kynred of Micah, and so wente the lot thorow, vntill it came to Saule the sonne of Cis. And he sought hym, but he coulde not be founde. Then they asked the Lord further, whether the man shoulde come thither or no. And the Lord answered, beholde, he hath byd hym selfe amonge the stuffe. And they ran and fownd hym thence. And when he stode amonge the people he was hygher then anye of the people from the shoulders vwarde. And Samuel sayd to all the people: se ye, whome the Lord hath chosyn, and howe there is none like hym amonge all the companye. And the people shouted and sayd, God sende the kynge lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the lawe of the realme, and wrote it in a booke, and layd it by before the Lord, & so sente all the people away, euery manne to bys house. And Saule also went home to Gabaah, and there went with hym an hoste such as God had touched theyr hearts. But the chyldren of vnbysynes sayd: howe shall he saue vs? and despised hym, & broughte hym not presents. And he made as though he had not hearde it.

The. xi. Chapter.

The people beinge deliuered from the tyranny of Abas, reneweth the kingdome of Saul.

WHEN Abas the Ammonyte came and besieged Iabes in Galaad. And all the people of Israhel sayd vnto Abas: make a couenaunte with vs, and we will be thy seruantes. And Abas the Ammonyte sayd: to this will I make a couenaunte with you, eue to thrust out al youre eyght eyes, that I maye make al Israhel ashamed of you. The said the elders of Iabes: Spue vs seven dayes respyre, that we maye sende messengers vnto all the coastes of Israhel. And if there come no man to helpe vs, we will come out to the. Then came the messengers to Gabaah, where Saule dwelt, and tolde thes rydynge in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfe by theyr voices and wept. And beholde Saule came followinge bys oren from the felde & asked what aileth I people to wepe. And they tolde him the rydynge of the men of Iabes. Then came the spyrte of God vpon Saule, when he heard those rydynge, and he was exceedingly angrie. And toke a yoke of oxen and bemed them in yokes, and sent them thorowout al the coastes of Israhel, by the handes of messengers, sayinge: whosoever commeth not forth after Saule and after Samuel, so shall bys oren be searued. Then the feare of the Lord fell on the people, and they came out as it had bene but one man. And when they were numbyed in Bezek, the chyldren of

Behold, here I am: answer me before the all that, when ye sawe that Nabas the

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Philistines are smitten of Saule and Jonathan. Saule being disobedient to Goddes commandement is thewed of Samuell that he shall not raygne.

AND WAS NOWE AN HOLE YERE AFTER THAT SAULE BEGANNE TO RAYGNE. AND WHEN HE HAD RAYGNED TWO YERS OUER ISRAELL, HE CHOSE HYM THE THOUSANDE MEN OUT OF ISRAELL. TWO THOUSANDE WERE WYTH SAULE IN GACHMAS AND MOUNTE BETHELL, AND A THOUSAND WYTH JONATHAS IN GABAAB BEN JAMPN. AND THE RESTE OF THE PEOPLE HE SENTE HOME EUEY MAN TO HIS HOUSE.

AND JONATHAS CAME THE PHILISTINES IN AN HOLE THAT THEY HADDE IN GABAAB, AND IT CAME TO THE PHILISTINES EARES. AND SAULE CAUSED THE TROMPET TO BE BLOWEN THROWE OURE ALL THE LANDE, SAYINGE, LET THE EBZUES HEARE. AND ALL ISRAEL HEARDE SAY HOW THAT SAULE HAD DESTROYED AN HOLE OF THE PHILISTINES, & HOW THAT ISRAELL SHAKTE AFORE PHILISTINES. AND ALL THE PEOPLE CRYED AFTER SAULE TO GALLGALL.

WHEN THE PHILISTINES GATHERED THEM SELUES TOGETHER TO FIGHTE WYTH ISRAELL THIRTY THOUSAND CHARETTES, & .vi. AND THE EBZUES WENTE OUER FORDANE, VNTO THE LAND OF GAD AND GALAAD. BUT SAULE WAS YET IN GALLGALL, AND ALL THE PEOPLE THAT FOLLOVED HYM WERE DYSCOMFED. AND HE TARRIED SEVEN DAYES, AS SAMUELL * HAD APPOYNED. BUT SAMUELL CAME NOT TO GALLGALL, AND THE PEOPLE SCATTERED FROM HYM. WHEREFORE SAULE SAYED: BYNGE ME BURNT SACRIFYCE AND PEACE OFFERYNGES. AND HE OFFERED BURNT SACRIFYCE. AND AS SOON AS HE HAD ENDED HIS BURNT OFFERYNGES, BEHOLDE SAMUELL CAME. AND SAULE WENTE AGAYNE HYM TO TETE HYM. THEN SAYED SAMUELL TO SAULE, WHAT HAST THOU DONE? AND SAULE SAYD, BECAUSE I SAWE THAT THY PEOPLE SCATTERED FROM ME, AND THAT THOU CAMEST NOT WYTHIN THE DAYES APPOYNED AND THAT THE PHILISTINES GATHERED THEYM SELUES TOGETHER TO GACHMAS: THEN SAYD I, THE PHILISTINES SHALL COME DOWNE VPPON ME TO GALLGALL, BECAUSE I HAUE MADE MY PRAYER VNTO THE LORD. AND THEREFORE WHEN THEY ENFORCED ME, I TOOK A COURAGE, AND OFFERED BURNT OFFERYNGES. THEN SAYED SAMUELL TO SAULE: THOU HAST DONE SOLEMPNLY, AND HAST NOT KEPT THE COMMANDEMENTE OF GOD

WHICHE HE COMMANDED THEE. FOR AT THYSE TYME WOULD THE LORD HAUE STABLISHED THY KYNGDOME VPPON ISRAEL FOR EUEY. BUT NOWE THY KYNGDOME SHAL NEUER FLOWE AGAYNE. THE LORD HATH * SOUGHTE A MAN AFTER HYS OWNE HEART AND HATH COMMANDED HYM TO BE A CAPTAYNE OUER HIS PEOPLE BECAUSE THOU HAST NOT KEPT THAT THE LORD COMMANDED THEE. AND SAMUELL AROSE AND GOT HYM FROM GALLGALL TO GABAAB BEN JAMPN.

AND SAULE NUMBERED THE PEOPLE, AND THE PEOPLE THAT WERE FOUNDE WYTH HYM, WERE ABOUTE A .vi. HUNDRED MEN. AND SAUL AND JONATHAS HYS SONNE, AND THE PEOPLE THAT WERE FOUNDE WYTH THYXIM, HAD THEIR ABBYDING IN GABAAB BEN JAMPN. BUT THE PHILISTINES HAD PITCHED IN GACHMAS.

AND THEN CAME OURE OF THE HOUSE OF THE PHILISTINES THRE COMPANYES TO DESTROYE: ONE COMPANIE TURNED TO THE WAY THAT LEADETH TO EPHRAIM VNTO THE LANDE OF SAULE AN OTHER COMPANIE TURNED THE WAY TO BETHOZON, AND THE THIRDE COMPANIE TURNED THE WAY OF THE COASTE THAT TURNETH TO THE VALLEY OF ZEBOIM TOWARDE THE WYLDENESSE. BUT THERE WAS NO SMYTHE THROWE OURE ALL THE LANDE OF ISRAEL.

FOR THE PHILISTINES WERE WARE THAT THE EBZUES SHOULDE NOT MAKE THEM SELUES NEYTHE SWEARDES AND SPEARES. AND THEREFORE MUSTE ALL ISRAELL GOO DOWNE TO THE PHILISTINES TO MEND EUEY MAN HYS SHARE, HYS MATTOCKE, HYS AKE, OR HYS SYCKLE, AS OFT AS THE EDGES OF THE SICKLES, MATTOCKES, DONGFORKES, AND ARES WERE BLUNTE, AND MUSTE BE HADDE VNTO THE SMITHES TO BE AMENDED. AND SO IN TIME OF BATTAYLE, THERE WAS NEYTHE SWEARDE NOR SPERE FOUNDE IN THE HANDS OF ANYE OF THE PEOPLE THAT WERE WYTH SAUL & JONATHAS, SAUE FOR SAULE & JONATHAS HIS SONE WAS THERE SOMWHAT SOLDE. AND THE ARMY OF THE PHILISTINES CAME OURE AND STODE ON THE OTHER SIDE BEFORE GACHMAS.

The. xiii. Chapter.

JONATHAS COMPANIED WYTH HIS ESCUYER PUTTETH THE PHILISTINES TO FIGHT. HE TALKETH THE BONY WHICH HIS FATHER VNTOWNGE TO HIM HAD FORBIDDEN & HOLE HOST, FOR WHICH HE SHULDE HAUE BEENE SLAYNE, BUT & PEOPLE DELIVERED HIM.

AND IT FELL ON A DAIE THAT JONATHAS THE SONNE OF SAULE SAYDE VNTO HYS YONG MANNE THAT BARE HIS HARNESE: COME AND LETTE VS GO OURE TO THE WATCHEMENNE OF THE PHILISTINES THAT ARE PONDER ON THE OTHER SYDE, AND TOLDE NOT HYS FATHER.

BUT SAUL TARPED IN THE VTTERMOSTE PART OF GABAAB VNDER A SOMEGRANET TREE THAT WAS IN MAGRON, AND THE PEOPLE THAT WERE WYTH HYM, WERE ABOUT FORTY HUNDRED MEN.

AND ALNAH THE SONNE OF ALNOD JEHABODES BROTHER, THE SONNE OF SHINELIES, THE SONNE OF HELP WAS THE LORDES PRIESTE IN SILAH, AND BARE AN EPHOD. BUT THE PEOPLE WYSTE NOT THAT JONATHAS WAS GONE.

Jud. xlii. d

And the watch menne of Saule in Gabaah Ben Jamin sawe. And beholde, the people scattered, and ranne hither and thither. Then sayde Saule vnto the people that were wth hym: number and se who is gone awaye frome vs. And when they hadde tolde: behoulde Jonathas and hys harnes bearer were not there. And then Saule sayed vnto Ahia: Bryng hither the arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme wth the chyldren of Israell. And whyle Saule talked vnto the priest, a lowde skympe beganne in the hooft of the Philistines, and it encreased and was hearde wth a greate noyse. And Saule sayde to the priest, withdraw thynne hand.

And Saule assembled all the people that were wth hym, and wente to the holde. And se, euery mannes sword was agaynst hys felowe, and there was greate slaughter done. Moreover the Hebrewes that were wth the Philistines before that tyme, and were come wth them in all partes of the host, turned to the chyldren of Israell that were with Saule and Jonathas. And they also whiche hadde bydde them selues in mounte Ephraim, hearpyng that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in presse wth Saules men, and pursued the Philistines, and so God holpe Israell that daye. And the battell continued tyll they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israell ioyned them selues together that daye: and Saule adured the people sayinge. Cursed be he that eateth anye fode vntil night, that I maye be aduenged of myne enemies. And so there was none of the people that tasted anye fode. And all the lande came to a wood where honye lay vpon the grounde. And when the people were come into the wood: Behoulde, the honye dropped. Howebeit, there was no manne that moueth hys hande to his mouth, because the people feared the curse. But Jonathas hearde not when that hys father adured the people: wherefore he put forth the end of the staffe that was in hys hande, & bypte it in an honye combe, and putte hys hande to hys mouth, and so forthewth. & hys eies receiued their olde vertue and courage.

Adiuration

All the lande for all the people of the land.

Thus spake the Hebrewes, for we saye he recouered his strengthe was more chearfull. Troubled the lande is a manner of speech vnto among the Hebrewes, for we saye he troubled the people of the host as a house.

Then spake one of the people and sayde, thy father adured the people sayinge: Cursed be the manne that eateth anye fode this daye, and yet the people were saynt. Then sayed Jonathas: my father hath troubled the Land: for beholde, my eies haue recouered thir power and strengthe, because I tasted a lytle of thys hony: how then if all the people hadde eaten of the spoyles of thyr enemies which they found, hadde there not bene then a muche greater slaughter amonge the Philistines? And they layed on the Philistines that daye, from Machmas to Aialon. But the people were exceeding saynt. Then the people gate them to the spoyles, and toke shepe oren, and calues, and slewe them on the grounde, and byd eate wth the bloude.

Then men tolde Saul sayinge: Behoulde the people synne agaynst the Lord, in that they eate wth the bloude. And he sayde ye haue trespassed. Wnt rowle a greate stone vnto me now, and goo abrode amonge the people, and bydde them bypge euery manne hys ore, and euery man hys shepe, and slayethem here and synne not agaynst the Lorde, in eatpyng wth the bloude. And the people broughte euery manne hys ore in hys hande by nyght, and slewe them there.

And Saule made an aultare vnto the Lorde. And that was the first aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saule sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght, and let vs make hauoke amonge them tyll it be daye in the mornynge, and let vs not leaue one of the. And the people answered, do what soeuer thou thyntest best.

Then

Then sayde the p̄ciste: Let vs come hither vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shal I go downe after the Philistines, and wilt thou geue them into myne handes? But he answered him not at þe tyme. Then sayde Saule, lette the people come hither out of all quarters, and knowe and see, in whom thys spynne is chaunced thys daie, for as trulpe as the Lorde spueth, whiche hathe saued Israell, though he it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered hym of all the people. Then he sayd vnto al Israell: Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyl be on an o ther. And then the people sayd vnto Saul: What thou thikest best, that do. And Saul and Jonathas were apprehended by þe lot, and al the people escaped free.

Then sayd Saul, caste lots betwene me and Jonathas my sonne, and Jonathas was taken by the lot. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tel me what thou hast done. And Jonathas tolde hym and sayde: I tasted a litle honp vpon the ende of the staffe that was in my hande, and se, I must dye. Then sayd Saul: God deale so and so wyth me, but if thou dye Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shall Jonathas dye, whiche so myghty holpe Israell? God forbid. As trulpe as the Lorde spueth, ther shal not one heate of hys heade fall to the grounde for he hathe wroughte with God thys daie.

And so þe people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saule ceased frome folowinge the Philistines. And the Philistines returned to their own place. And so Saul toke the kyngdome ouer Israell, and foughte agaynst al their enemyes on euery syde: agaynst the Moabites, agaynst the chyldren of Ammō, agaynst the Edomites, agaynst the kynges of Zobah, and agaynst the Philistines. And whither so euer he turned hym selfe, there he wanne, and demeaned hym selfe valeauntly, and slewe the Amalekites, and cōquered Israell oute of the handes of them that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul wer Jonathas, Mersai, and Melchisua. And hys two daughters were thus named: the elder Merob, and the yonger Michol. And the name of Saules wyfe was Ahinoam, þe daughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of the chiefe captaine was Abner the son of Ner Saules vncle. * And Ner was Saules father.

Nowe therfore go and smite the Amaleckites, and destroye only al that pertaineth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them. But spare manne and womanne, infante, and suckelyng, ore, shepe, camel, and asse. And Saul assembled the people, and numbred them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footemen, and ten thousand men of Juda. And Saule came vnto a cite of the Amalekites, and foughte in a vale. But Saule sayde vnto the Benites: go and departe, and get you awaye from the Amalekites, lest I destroye you wyth them, for ye shewed merce vnto Israell when they came oute of Egypte. And the Benites departed from the Amalekites. And Saule slewe the Amalekites from Beula to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, and tooke Agag the kyng of the Amalekites alque, and vtterly destroyed all the people wyth the edge of the swearde. But Saule and the people spared Agag, and they leste of the sheepe, and of the oren, and fatte * thynges, and the lambes, and al that was good and wolde not destroye them. But all that was naughte and flaggge, that they destroyed vterly. Then came the woordes of the Lorde vnto Samuel, saying: it is a forthinketh me that I haue made Saul king. For he is turned from me, and hath not fulfilled my commaundements. Wherefore Samuel was euell apayd, and crept vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel arose early to meete Saul in the mornynge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel and hadde sette hym vp a pillar of triumphe. And was tourned, and departed, and gone to Baigall.

* To be lyke in his owne sight is, to sette naughte by hym selfe.

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saule sayde vnto hym: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue done the commaundement of the Lorde. And Samuel answered: What meaneth then the bleasynge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oren whiche I heare? And Saule sayd: they haue broughte them from the Amalekites. For the people spared the best of the shepe, and of the oren, to sacrifice too the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel said to Saule: cease, and let me tell the what the Lorde hathe sayd to me thys nyght. And he sayde vnto hym: sape on. And Samuel said: when thou wast a litle in thine owne sight, wast thou not made the heade of the thynges of Israell? And the lord anointed þe king ouer Israell. And then the Lorde sente thee on a biage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vtterly destroye those spynners the Amalekites and spighte agaynst them, tyll ye haue vtterly destroyed them: wherefore then hast thou not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde? But didst turne to the pray, and haste wroughte wyckedwychednesse in the spght of the Lorde?

And Saule sayed to Samuel: I have obeyed the voyce of the Lord, and went the way whiche the Lorde sente me, and have broughte Agag kynge of the Amalekites. And haue viterly destroyed the Amalekites. And the people tooke of the spoyle, shepe, oxen, and the chiefeste of the thynge whiche shoulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lord thy God in Gilgal.

Then sayed Samuel requirith the Lorde burne sacrifice, and offeringes, and not rather þ thou wilt offer hys vnto? Be- hold to obey is better then offering, and to giue hede is better then the fat of rams.

For rebelliousnes is as the spynne of wythcraft, and subburnes is wychednes and dolatrye. Because therefore thou hast caste awaye the woorde of the Lorde, therefore hath he the Lorde caste awaye the also, from bepyge kynge. Then sayde Saule to Samuel: I haue sinned. for I haue offended the mouth of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people, and they obeyed the voyce. But now take awaye my spynne, and turne agayne wth me, that I maye worshippe the Lord. Then sayd Samuel vnto Saul: I will not retorne wth thee, for thou hast cast awaye the commaundemente of God and therefore the Lorde hath caste awaye the also, that thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israel.

And as Samuel turned to goo awaye he caughte the lappe of hys coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayed, the Lord hath rent the kingdome of Israel from thee, this day, and hath geuen it to a neyghbour of thynne that is better then thou. And there- to, he that geueth by force to Israel, wyl not begyle nor repente, for he is not a man, that canne repente. Then he sayde: I haue sinned. But yet honour me before the el- ders of my people, and before Israel, and turne agayne wth me, that I maye praye to the Lorde thy God. And Samuel tour- ned agayne and folowed Saule. And Saul prayed to the Lorde. Then sayed Samuel: Bynge pe hyther to me Agag the kynge of the Amalekites. And Agag came vnto him delicatly. And Agag sayed: truly the bit- ternesse of death cometh on. And Samuel sayd: As the sword hath in the women child lesse, so shall thy mother be childles among her women. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peaces before the Lorde in Gilgal. And then Samuel departed to Ramath.

And Saul went home to his house to Ba- beth Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul: till the day of his death. Reuerthe- les Samuel mourned for Saule, because the Lord repented that he had made hym kynge ouer Israel.

The xvi. Chapter.

David is anointed by Samuel and receiveth the holy ghost. An euill spirit cometh vpon Saul which departed wher David playeth.

And then the Lorde sayd vnto Sa- muell: Howe longe wilt thou mourne for Saul sithens I haue cast hym awaye from captyngge ouer Israel? For an home wth ointment, and come: I wyl send thee to Israel the Beth lehemite: for I haue espyed me a kynge amonge hys sonnes. But Samuel answered: howe shall I go? For Saule shall heare it and wil kyll me. And the Lord sayd: Take an heifer wth thee and saye, thou goest to offer vnto the Lord. And cal Isai to the offer- ring, & I wyl shew thee what I shall do: And thou shalt anoint hym in whome I shall as- signe the. And Samuel dyd as the Lorde bade him. And when he came to Bethlehem the elders of the town were astonied at hys comyng and sayd: Betokeneth thy com- ming peace? and he said yea for I am come to offer vnto the Lord. * Cense pour sel- ues and come wth me to the offering. And he purified Isai and hys sonnes and bade them to the offering.

And when they were come, he looked on Eliab, and sayd: the Lordes anointed is be- fore hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Sa- muell: Looke not on his facion, nor on the length of hys stature, for I haue refused hym because it is not as man seeth. For I loketh on the out ward apperance, but the Lord beholdeth the heart. Then Isai cal- led Abinabab, and made hym come before Samuel. And he sayde: Rept her hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then Isai made Sa- mah come, & he sayde: neither yet hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then made Isai seue of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Sa- muell said: the Lord hath chose none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Isai: Are here all thy chyldren? And he sayde: The yong- est is yet behynde. Beholde, he kepeth the shepe. Then Samuel sayd vnto Isai: send, and fet hym, for we wyl not spt downe to meate tyl he be come hyther. And he sente and brought hym in. And he was ruddy & a goodly creature of makynge, and of a plea- sant countenance. And then the Lord said: aryse and anoint him, for thys is he. And Samuel toke the horne with the ointment and anointed him in the presence of hys brethren. And the spirit of the Lorde came vpon David from that day forward. Then Samuel arose vp and went to Ramath.

But the spirit of the lord departed from Saul, and an euill spirit sent of the Lord bered him. Then sayd his seruantes vnto him beholde an euill spirit sent from god bereth thee, let our Lorde therefore comande hys seruantes to seeke a man that is a cunning player wth an harpe. And then wher the euill spryte sente of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe with his hande, and thou shalt be eased.

And Saul sayd vnto hys seruantes: seeke me a man that can well playe, and brynge hym to me. Then answered one of hys ser- uantes and sayd: Beholde I haue sene a deuyd in

The battell of the Philistines agaynst Isra el. And Dauid ouercometh great Goliath.

And the Philistines gathered they r best to battell, and assembled at Socoh in Iuda, and Azekah in the ende of Demin. And Saule and the men of Israell came and pyched in Ockedale: and putte them selues in arape to fyghte agaynst the philistines, and the philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israell on an hyl on the other syde, and a balpe betwene them. And then came a manne and stode in the middes, oute of the tentes of the phi listines named Goliath of Beth, five cu bites, and an hande breath longe, and had an helmette of brasle vpon hys heape, and a cote of male aboute hym. And the wey ghte of hys cote of male was spue thou sande pces of brasle.

And he had harness of brasle vpon hys ledges, & a shylde of brasle vpon his shoul ders. And the wast of his spere was lyke a a weuers beame. And hys spere head waide spre hundred sicles of prou. And one beryng a shilde wente before hym.

And he stode and called vnto the hooste of Israell and sayde vnto them: what rea deth that ye shoulde come oute in arape to battell: am not I a philistine, and pou set vauntes to Saul: chose pou a manne, and let hym come downe vnto me, if he be able to fyghte wryth me, and to beate me, then we wyll be your seruantes. But if I can ouere come hym and beate hym: ye shall be our seruantes and serue vs. And the phi listine sayde: I haue de ied the hooste of Is raell this daye, geue me a man, and let vs fyghte together. When Saule and all Is raell hearde those wordes of the philistine they were discouraged & greatly afrayde.

Nowe Dauid was the son of an Ephra thite of Bethleheme in Iuda named Isai, whi che Isai had epytles. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul among the peo ple. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai went and folowed Saul to battell.

And the names of hys thre sonnes that wente to battell were: Elab the eldest, and the myddle moste Abinadab, and the thirde Samah, and Dauid was the yongest. And when the iii. eldest were gone after Saul, Dauid wente and departed from Saul to kepe hys fathers shepe at Bethleheme. And the philistine came forth the euerye mor nyng and euening, and contynued thus fourte dayes, and Isai sayd to Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren this Ephra of parched corne, and these ten loues, and ri to the hoost to thy brethren, and carry these ten freshe chekes vnto the captayne & loke howe thy brethren fare, and set oute theyr pledges. And Saule and they and all the menne of Israell were in a balpe fyghtyng wryth the philistines. And Dauid arose vp ealye in the mornynge: and leste the shepe wryth a keeper, and toke and wente as Isai had commaunded hym, and came wher the hoost laye. And the hooste was gopyng oute in arape, and shonted in the battell, for Is raell and the philistines hadde put them selues in arape, the one agaynst the o ther. Then Dauid put the panier sed hym vnto the handes of the keeper of the bes sels, and ranne into the hooste, and came and greted hys brethren. And as he tau ked wryth them, Behoulde, there stode a manne in the middes, Goliath the philis tine by name, of Beth, whiche came oute of the arape of the philistines, and spake in the manne caboue rehearsed, that Da uid hearde it. And all the men of Israell, when they sawe the manne, ranne a wape frome hym, and were sore afrayed. And e uerye manne of Israell sayde: Se ye this manne that is come forth, euen to teuple Israell is he come. And to vs hym that bea teth hym will the kynge geue greate re cheffe, and wyll geue hym hys doughter thereto: pea, and make hys fathers house free in Israell. Then spake Dauid to the manne that stode by and sayed: What shal the manne haue that beateh this philis tine, and taketh awape the shame frome Israell: for what is this breuemented philistine, that he shoulde reule the hoost of the lpyng God? And the people aun swered as is rehearsed, sayinge Thus shal he be rewarded, that can vanquise him.
And Elab his eldest brother hearde, when he spake vnto the manne, and was angrye wryth Dauid and sayde: Why camest thou awape: and wryth whome haste thou leste those fewe shepe in the wylde nesse? I knowe thy pynde, and the malpce of thyne herte, that thou arte come to se the battell.
And Dauid answered, what haue I nowe done: is there anye more saue a woorde? and departed from hym to an other front, and spake in the same maner, and the peo ple answered hym agayne, as before. And they that hearde the woordes whiche Da uid spake, rehearsed them before Saule, whiche caused hym too be set: And Dauid Sayde to Saule: Lette no mannes hearte fapne for drede of hym. Thy seruaunte wyl go and fyghte wpth thys Philistine.

And Saule sayde to Dauid agayne, thou arte not able to go vnto thys Philistine to fyghte wpth hym. For thou art but a child, and he hath bene a man of warre euen fro hys yowthe. Then sayd Dauid vnto Saul: as thy seruaunte kepte hys fathers shepe, there came a Lion, and ykewyle a Beare, and toke a shepe oute of the flocke. And I wente oute after hym and smote hym, and toke it oute of hys mouth. And when he arose agaynst me, I caughte hym by the bearde, and smote hym, and slew hym. For bothe a Lion and also a Beare hath thy seruaunte slayne. And thys vncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, for hys tarynge on the hoste of the lypunge God.
And Dauid spake moreover, the Lord that deliuered me oute of the handes of the Lion, & out of the handes of the beare, shal deli-uer me also out of þ hands of þ Philistine.

Then sayde Saule to Dauid, go: and the Lord be wpth the. And Saule put hys raymente vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon hys head, and put a coate of mayle vpon hym, and girded Dauid with hys owne sword vpon hys raymente. And he assayed howe he coulde go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saule: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene used thereto, and put them of hym, and toke hys staffe in hys hand, and chose hym fyue smothe stones oute of a broke, and put the in a shepherdes bagge whiche he had, and toke hys spyge in hys hande, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drewe nere vnto Dauid, wpth the manne that bare a shilde before hym. And when the Philis-tine looked and sawe Dauid, he dysdained hym, for he was but a yonglyng, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayd vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me & wpth a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of hys Goddes. And he sayed vnto Dauid: come to me, and I wyl gyue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the feldes.
Then sayde Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me wpth a sword, a speere, and a shilde: But I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hostes, the God of the host of Israel on whome thou haste rayled.
Thys daye shall the Lord gyue the into myne hande, and I shall smyte the, and take thyne heade frome the, and I wyl gyue the carcases of the hoste of the Philistines this daye to the fowles of the ayre and to the beastes of the earth. And all the worlde shall knowe that there is a God in Israel. And all thys compaigne shall knowe that the Lord saueyth not wpth the sword and speere. For the battell is the Lordes, and he shall gyue you into oure handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and drewe nye vnto Dauid. Dauid hasted and ranne to fyghte agaynst the Philis-tine. And Dauid put hys hand in hys poke and toke oute a stone in hys hande and launce it, and smote the Philistine in hys foreheade, that the stone sank into hys forehed, and he fel grouelpye to the earth.

And so Dauid ouercam the Philistine with a lunge and a stone, and smote the Philis-tine, and slew hym.

And because Dauid hadde no swerde in hys hande, he ranne and stode vpon the Philistine, and toke hys swerde, and drewe it out of his sheath, and slew hym, and cut of hys heade therwpth. And when the Philistines sawe theyr champion deade, they fled. And the menne of Israel and of Juda arose, and howted and folowed after the Philistines tyll they came to the balye, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe deade by the waye to Samraim, euen vnto Beth, and Akaron.
And then the chyldren of Israel returned fro chasyng the Philistines & spoyled theyr tentres. And Dauid toke the heade of þ Philis-tine & brought it to Ierusalem. But he put hys armour in hys tente. But when Saul sawe Dauid issue forth agaynst the Philistyne, he sayde vnto Abner the chiefe captaine of hys hoste: Abner, whose sonne is thys yong manne? And Abner answered:

thou, if he be some noble mannes son. And so when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him and broughte hym before Saul, wpth the heade of the Philistine in hys hande. And Saule sayde vnto hym: Whose sonne arte thou, thou yong manne? And Dauid answered, the sonne of thy seruaunt Isai, the Bethlehemite.

of the Philistines. that womē came out of all cities of Israel syngyng and dauncyng ag. ynst Saul wpth tymbrels, wpth rope, and wpth fydels. And the women that play ed. sange thereto, and sayde: Saule hath slayne hys thousand. and Dauid hys tenne thousande. Then was Saule exceddyng wrothe and the sayngs displeased hym, & he sayde: They haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousand and to me but a thousand, & what can he doe more?

What can he haile more laethe kingdome? wherefore Saul looked awyre on Dauid fro that daye forward And it happened on the morowe that the euyl * spirit sent of God came vpon Saule so that he prophesied in the middes of the house And Dauid playd wth the instrument wth his hand as he was daylye wonte. And Saul had a speare in his hand & ruled it, intending to haue hapned Dauid to the wal But Dauid auoided oute of his presence two times.

For Saul was afraid of David because the Lord was with him: and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put David from him, and made him a captain over a thousand, and he went out & * in before the people. And David was wise in all his doings, and the Lord was with him. Wherefore when Saul saw that he was so exceedingly wise, he was afraid of him.

But all Iſrael and Iuda loued Dauid, becauſe he wente oute and in before them. Then ſayed Saule to Dauid. Beholde my eldeſt daughter Merob, he: I wyll geue her to wyfe. Onlye playe the inanne, and ſight the lords battels. For Saul thought myne hande ſhall not be vpon him, but the handes of the Philiftines. And Dauid answered Saule: what am I, & what is my wyfe, or the kynted of my father in Iſrael, had I ſhould be ſonne in law to the king? But when the tyme was come that Merob Saules daughter ſhould haue bene geuen to Dauid, ſhe was geuen to Adriel a Bethlethite to wyfe. Howbeit Michol another of Saules daughters loued Danid.

And when it was shewed Saule, & thynge pleased hym wel. And he sayde: I will geue hym hie: & He maye be a snare to hym, to bring the hand of & Iherusalem vpon hym. And Saul said to Dauid: & Wilt thys day be my son in law agayn. And Saul commaunded hys seruantes to comen wpth Dauid secretlye, and saye: Behoulde the kynge hath a fauoure too the, and all hys seruantes loue the, be therefore the Wynges sonne in lawe.

And Saules seruantes spake those woꝛdes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a lpghte thyng to be the kpinges sonne in lawe, when I am a pore man of smal reputaeson? And Saules seruantes told him agayn saying: in this maner answered Dauid: Then said Saul this wyle say to Dauid: þ kping careth for none other dowene, but for an hundred forskins of the ishylyngnes to be aduꝛged of þ kpinges enemies. For Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. Then his seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, and it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges son in law. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and wente and slew of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte thep; foreskinnes, and numbred them vnto the kyng for too become his sonne in law. * And so Saul gaue him Michol his daughter to wyfe. And when Saule sawe and vnderstode that the Lord was with Dauid, & that Michol his daughter loued him, he was the more afrayde of Dauid, and became Dauides enemye for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued hym selfe more to his owne helpe then all the seruantes of Saule: and his name was muche set by.

The .xii. Chapter.

Saul commaundeth to Uria David, Micholl hys wife saith him by a proper feate, and deceaueth his father. Saule is also amonge the Prophets.

12 Then Saule communed wth Jonathas hys sonne, and wth all hys seruauntes, that they shuld kill Dauid. But Jonathas Saules sonne had a greates fauour to Da-uid and tolde Dauid, sayng: Saule my father goeth aboute to slep the. Nowe therefore take hede to thy selfe in season, and a-byde in some secret place, and hyde thy self.
And I wyl go out and stande by my father in the feld wher thou art, and wyl commen with my father of the: and if I caⁿ perceiue oughte, I wyl tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto to Saule hys father, and sayed vnto hym: let not the kynge synne agaynste hys seruaunte Dauid: for he hathe not synned a-gaynste the, and hys woordes are towards the verie good. For he did putte hys speere in his hande, and slew the Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a greate victorie vnto all Israell. And thou sawest it; and thou re-ioysedest, wherefore then shouldest thou synne agaynste innocent bloude, and sleie Dauid for nought? And Saule hearkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas, and swate: as truile as the Lord lyueth, he shall not dye.
Then Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed hym all those wordes, and broughte hym to Saul. And he was in hys presence as in tymes past. And the warre beganne again and Dauid wente oute and foughte wth the Philistines, and made a great slaughter, and put them to flyght. And the euill spirit of the Lorde was vpon Saule as he sat in hys house, hauynge a pautynge in hys hand. & Dauid played wth hys hand.
And Saule entended to haue napled Da-uid to the wall wth the pautynge: But Dauid ridde hym selfe oute of Saules presence, and so he smote the sprete in too the wall. But Dauid fled and sayed hym selfe that nyght. Then Saule sente messengers

gers to Dauid's house, to lye in wayte for hym, and to slep hym in the morning. But Michol his wyfe tolde it hym, sayinge, If thou saue not thy selfe this nyght, to morrow thou arte but a deade man. And so Michol let Dauid downe the roome a way downe, & he went and hidde, and saved himselfe. And then he toke an image, and layed it in the bedde, and put a pillowe stuffed with Goates beate vnder the heade of it, & couered it with a cloth. And whē Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid, he said that he was sicke: Then Saul sente the messengers to se Dauid sayinge: bynge hym to me bedde and all that he maye be slayne. And when the messengers were come in, beholde, there laye an image in the bed, wth the pillowe of goates beate vnder the head of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: Why hast thou mocked me so, and sente away myne euillie that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: He sayde vnto me: let me go, or els I wyl kill the. And so Dauid fled, and escaped and went to Samuel to Ramath, and tolde hym all that Saul had done to hym. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Ramath.

D And it was tolde Saul sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Ramath in Ramath: then Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid, and when they sawe a compaignie of Prophetes & prophesyinge, and Samuel teachinge them, the spirit of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, and they prophesied to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. And Saul sent messengers yet the thirde tyme, which prophesied also. Then went he hym selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greete well that is in Socoh, he aske and sayde:

Where are Samuel and Dauid? And they sayde: Se they be at Ramath in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Ramath in Ramath the spirit of God came vpon hym also, and he wente prophesyinge, tyll he came to Ramath in Ramath.

And he wrote of his clothes & prophesied before Samuel in lyke maner, and fel naked all the day and all the nyght. wherefore it is a commune saying: As Saul also amonge the Prophetes.

The .xx. Chapter.

D Dauid beyng in scoparde complayneth vnto Jonathan. Jonathan deliuereth hym. A policy deuised betwene the: by which Dauid shuld know the intent of Saul.

A And Dauid fled fro Ramath in Ramath & wet before Jonathan, & said. What haue I done? where am I faulte? what is the spynne that I haue committed against thy father & he sekerh my lyfe? And Jonathan answered him: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. For se my father wyl do nothyng, neyther greete nor smalle, but that he wyl helpe me: For why shoulde my father

hyde this thyng from me? I knowe not. And Dauid swaie agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therefore he hath sent Jonathan that he knowe it, lest he be forspoke. For in dede, as trulpe as the Lord liueth, and as trulpe as thy soule lyueth, there is but a steppe betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathan to Dauid, whatsoeuer thy soule despereth, I wyl do vnto the.

And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathan. Beholde to morrowe is the kalendes and I shoulde sytte wth the kynge at meate.

But let me go that I maye hyde my selfe in the fieldes, vnto this daye thre dayes at euē. If thy father misse me, saye: Dauid asked leaue of me that he myghte go to Berlehem to his owne cytye, for there is holden a petye feast for all his kyn. And if thy father saye thus: It is well done, then thy seruante shall haue peace. But if he be angrie: be sure, wth chekednes he receiue concluded of hym. And then thou shalt see me vnto thy seruante, for thou hast made wth me thy seruante a bonde in the Lorde. And wth standynge there be wth me anye trespasse, let me see thy selfe, for what shaldest thou to bynge me to thy father? And Jonathan answered: God kepe from the that I shoulde knowe, that wickednes were concluded of my father to come vpon the: and shoulde not tell it the. Then sayde Dauid, who shall telle if thy father answereth cruelly? Jonathan sayde to Dauid: Come and let vs go forth into the fieldes. And they went both of the into the fieldes. Then Jonathan sayde vnto Dauid: O Lorde God of Israel, when I haue staped my fathers mynde, at one tyme or other, wthin this thre dayes that it stande well wth Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the, and shewe it the, the Lorde do so and so vnto Jonathan.

And in lyke maner, if enyll towarde the be appoynted of my father, I wyl shewe the and sende the awaye, that thou mayest go in peace. And the Lorde be wth the, as he hath bene wth my father. And thou shalt persoume vnto me the mercye of the Lorde, nor onely while I lyue, but also when I am deade, placke not thy mercye awaye from my house for euer: So, not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid euery one, from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathan made a bonde wth the house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde seeke oute of the handes of Dauid's enemyes they wth chekednes. And wth other wordes Jonathan aduised Dauid, because he loued hym. For as his owne soule he loued hym. Then sayde Jonathan to Dauid: To morrowe shall bee the kalendes. And thou shalt be missed because the place shall appeare emptye. But on the thirde daye come in anye wyse vnto the place where thou shalt

And I will shote thee arrowes by the one syde thereof, as though I shote at a marcke, and will sende after a ladde, and byd hym goo seeke the arrowes. If I saye vnto the ladde: See the arrowes are on thy syde the, dyngge them: then come thou, for it is peace, and nothyng to do, as sure as the Lord lyueth. But if I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde the arrowes are bepynde the, then see, for the Lord hath sent the away. And of thys whiche thou and I haue spoken, beholde: the Lord is witness betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid bid him selfe in the felde. And when the Kalendes came, the kynge sate hym downe at meat, to the currence to eate. And the kynge sate him downe after the accustomed manner, in hys seate by the wal. And Jonathan arose and Abner sate by Saules syde, and Dauides place was empty, but yet Saul sayd nothyng at all that daye. For he thoughte same thyng had chaused hym, wherby he was not cleane. But on the morrowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye. Saule sayd vnto Jonathan his sonne: wherfore cometh not the sonne of Isai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to daye? And Jonathan answered vnto Saule: Dauid asked licence of me to go to Bethlehem sayinge, lette me goo I praye the, for outpyured holde an offeringe in the crite, and my brother hath sente for me. Nowe therefore, if I haue founde fauoure in thyne eyes, let me goo and see my brethren. And for thys cause he cometh not vnto the kynges table.

¶ When was Saule angrye wyth Jonathan, and sayde vnto hym: O forward and rebellious childe, thinkest thou I knowe not howe thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thyne owne rebuke, & vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as long as the sonne of Isai liueth vpon the earth, I shall not be established nor yet thy kyngdome: wherfore nowe send, and sette hym vnto me, for he is the chyld of death.

¶ But Jonathan answered Saule hys father, and sayd vnto hym: wherfore should he dye? What hath he done? When Saule caste a spere at hym to dysse hym, wherby Jonathan wyte well, that it was bitterlye determyned of his father to slea Dauid. When Jonathan arose from the table in a greete anger, and byd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes for he was sorre for Dauid, because hys father had done hym shame. On the nexte mornynge Jonathan wente oute into the felde at the tyme appointed wyth Dauid, and a lyttle ladde wyth hym. And he sayd vnto the boye, runne and fynde out myne arrowes whiche I shoute. And as the boye ranne, he shote an arrowe bepynde hym. And when the lad was come to the place whither Jonathan had shote the arrowe, Jonathan cryed after hym, and sayd, the arrowe is bepynde the. And he cryed after the lad, haste, make speede and stande not still. And Jonathan ladde gathered vp the arrowe and came to hys maister. But the ladde wyte nothyng of the matter: Only Jonathan and Dauid wyte it. Then Jonathan gaue hys weapons vnto the ladde, and sayd vnto hym: goo and carpe theym to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kissed eyther other and wepte togyther, but Dauid moze aboundauntlye. And Jonathan sayde to Dauid: go in peace of suche thynges we haue. Sworne eyther of vs in the name of the Lord, sayinge: The Lord be betwene the and me, and betwene thy seide and myne for euer. And he rose and departed. And Jonathan wente into the towne.

The.xxi. Chapter.

¶ Dauid spake into Rob to Achimelech the priest, and getteth newe breade to satisfye hunger. After he getteth to hys Achis, and cher spaketh him selfe mad.

¶ Then came Dauid to Rob to Achimelech the priest: And Achimelech was affoured at his comynge, and wente to mete Dauid, and sayd vnto hym: Why comest thou the selfe alone, and no man with thee? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech the priest: the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certeyne thyng and sayde vnto me: lette no man knowe wherabout I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to doo. And therefore I haue appoynted my seruantes to suebe and suebe places. And now what haste thou vnder thyne hande? gyue me spue lous of bread or what cummeth to hand. And the priest answered Dauid and sayd: Ther is no comel bread vnder myne hand, but ther is halowed breade, if the younge menne haue abstayned onelye from women. And Dauid answered the priest and said vnto him: O if a truerh we men hath bene locked vp from vs aboute a thre dayes, when we came oute. And the vessels of the younge men were vpon the bodies. I praye the, if we haue taken any vncleynnesse by the wayes, this daye it shall be halowed in the vessels. And so the priest gaue hym halowed breade, for there was none other breade there save thre breades that were taken frome before the Lord to put freche breade there.

¶ And ther was the same daye a certeyne manne of the seruantes of Saule wyth him the tabernacle of the Lord, named Doeg an Edomite. the chiefeste of Saules heard by Dauid sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyne hande, eyther speare or swerde? the seruantes of Achis sayed of hym: Is

The .xxii. Chapter.

Dauid fled into the caue Adullam, and then into Masphah to the kyng of Moab. And thence into Gath. Doeg the Edomite Achimelech is accused of treason and treason pteit & mo wryth him because they recey-ued Dauid. Rob is destroyed of Saul. Abiathar fleeth to Dauid.

A Dauid departed thence and escaped, and came vnto the caue Adullam, whiche when his brethren and all his fathers house hearde of, they wente thither to hym. And there resorted vnto hym all such as were in distress, and in darre and troubled in their hertes, and he was made their ca-ptayne, and there were wryth hym aboute xiiij. hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Masphah in the land of Moab, & sayde vnto the kyng of Moab: Lette my father and mother (I praye the) haue their abiding with you, till I knowe what God wyl do with me. And he broughte them afore the kyng of Moab, and they dwelle wryth hym all the while that Dauid kept him self in holdes. And the prophete Gad sayed vnto Dauid: Abide not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Iuda: Then Dauid departed and came into the forest Hareb. And Saul hearde of it: for Dauid was knowne, and also the me that were with him. And as Saul satte in Ga-hah vnder a groue vpon an hygh bancke with his spere in his hande, & all his men rounde aboute hym, he sayde vnto his ser-uantes that were about hym. Heare me ye sonnes of Femur: Wil the sonne of Isai also geue enerye one of you speldes & vnt-pardes, and make you el ground capytai-nes and pety capytaynes, that ye haue all conspired agaynst me, so that there is none that wyl shewe me any thyng, in so much that my sonne hath made a confederacie wryth the sonne of Isai: There is none of you that bewapleth my chaunce, or sheweth it in mine eare: because my sonne hath set bp my seruant to lye in a wayte agaynst me, as appeareth this daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, whych was chief of the seruantes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Isai when he came to Rob to Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, whych soughte counsell of the Lorde for hym, and gaue hym vitalles, and the swearde of Goliath the Philistine also.

Then the kyng sent to call Achime-lech the priest the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye, the priestes that were in Rob. And they came all to the kyng. Then Saul sayde: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayed: Yete I am my Lorde: Then sayde Saul vnto him: why haue ye conspired agaynst me, thou and the sonne of Isai, in so much that thou hast geuen him vnto a sweerde, & hast soughte coucel of God for hym, that he should arise agaynst me, and lie in wait as appeared this daye? And Achimelech answered the kyng and sayd: who is amonge al thy seruants as the falschful Dauid and the kynges sonne in lawe, and goth at thy bidding, & is had in honour in thine house? haue I this daye begon spyt to aske counsel of God for hym? be this sure from me: let not the kyng suspect agaynst his seruant any such thyng in all the house of my father. For thy seruant knoweth no thyng of all this eyther litle or muche.

But the kyng sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kyng vnto his soterne that stode about hym: turyng and slew the priestes of the Lorde, both because their hande is wryth Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fledde and shewed it not to me. But the seruantes of the kyng would not moue their bondes to turre vpon the priestes of the Lorde. The priest Then sayed the kyng to Doeg: turre he slayne thou and smyte the priestes. And Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the priestes and slewe that same daye foure eche man a lynnen Ephod. And Rob the city of the priestes he smote wryth the edge of the swearde, both man and woman, childe and suckylinge, wryth ore alle and wepe.

Yet one of the sounes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar escaped & fled to Dauid, and shewed hym that Saul had slayne the Lordes priestes. Then Dauid said to Abiathar: It is it the same day, that whē Doeg the Edomite was ther

The. xxi. Chapter.

David deliuereth Keilah, and flieth into the wilderness of Ziph. He is comforted of Jonathan. The Ziphites would have betrayed him.

And they tolde Dauid sayinge: Behold, the Philistines fight against Keilah and spoile the barnes. Dauid therfore asked the Lordes aduise, saying: Shall I go and smite the Philistines? and the Lord said vnto Dauid: So and smite the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayed Dauids men vnto hym: See we be betrayed here in Iuda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? The Dauid asked the Lord agayne. And the Lord answered hym and sayde: arise, and go to Keilah, for I will geue the Philistines into thyne handes. So Dauid and his men went to Keilah, & fought with the Philistines, & drone awaye their cartel, and made a great slaughter of the. And so Dauid saued the inheritance of Keilah. Now it chafed when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech, had fled to Dauid to Keilah, & he broughte an Ephod in his hande.

B And it was tolde Saule that Dauid was come to Keilah, then said Saul: God hath geuen hym iurymyne bande. For he is shutte in sythe he is come into a towne where he hath gates and barres. And Saule called al his people to warre, for to goe to Keilah to besiege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledge that Saul pryncely imagined myschance agaynst hym and sayde to Abiathar the pnyet: * Wyngye the Ephod. Then sayed Dauid. O Lord God of Israel, thy seruante heareth that Saule is aboute to come to Keilah to destroye the cytye for my sake: wyl the elders of Keilah deliuer me into his hande? or wyl Saule come as thy seruante beareth saye? Lord God of Israel tell thy seruante. And the Lord said: He wil come. Then sayed Dauid: Wyl the men of Keilah deliuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? and the Lord sayd: they wil deliuer you. Then Dauid and his men whiche were vpon a. vi. C. arose and departed out of Keilah, and wente here & there they knew not whether. And whil it was tolde Saul & Dauid was fled fro Keilah, and so in safeguarde, he let the iourney alone. And Dauid abode in the wilderness in stronge holdes, and in a mountayne in the wilderness of Zeph. And Saule soughte hym all his life. But God deliuered hym not into his hand. And Dauid saw that Saul was come out to seke his lyfe, but Dauid was in the wilderness of Ziph in a couerte. And Jonathan Saules sone arose & went to Dauid to the couerte, and strengethed hym in God, and said vnto hym: Feare not, for the hande of Saule my father shall not fynde the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, and I must be next vnto the. Then came the Zephites to Saule vnto Gabaah, sayinge: Dauid hath hym selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes that are in a couerte in the hylle of Bachylah on the ryghte syde of the wilderness. Nowe therfore sye kynge, come downe with all the luste that thy soule hath to come. And it shall be out partes to deliuer hym into the handes of the kynge. Then sayed Saule: Blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue compassion on me. So I praye you, and make moze narrowlye, and knowe and se his haunte, where his forepart bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolose me he is very well. Se therfore and knowe all the lurking places wher he lurketh, and come agayne to me with the certenty. And I wyl goo with you. Yea and if he wyl hyde hym selfe in the grounde, yet I wyl hunt him oute, with all the thousandes of Iuda. And they arose and wente to Ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesses of Gaaon, in the wyldesse feldes, on the right hande of the wilderness. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he went vnto a rocke & dwelte in the wildernesses of Gaaon. whych whil Saul hearde he pursued after Dauid into the wildernesses of Gaaon. But Saul & his men wente on the one syde of the mountayne, & Dauid & his men on the other. And Dauid as a man amazed, made haste to get from Saul. For Saul and his men had compassed Dauid and his men rounde about, to take them. Then there came a messenger to Saule, sayinge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue invaded and doo byspoyle the lande. Wherfore Saule returned from persecutinge Dauid, and made agaynst the Philistines. And therfore the place is called * Sela Mahalechoth. And then Dauid went thence & dwelt in strong holdes at Engaddye.

And thou hast shewed this day how louing Ie thou hast deale wth me, that when the Lorde had locked me in thyne handes, thou hast me not. The. xrb. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth Dauid dyeth in the wilderness of Ibaran. He is angry with Abigail: but is pacified by the wysdom of Abigail. Abail dyeth and Dauid marryeth Abigail.

When Samuel dyed and al Israel assembled and lamented hym & buried hym in his own house at Ramath. But Dauid arose and gat him to the wilderness of Ibaran. And there was a man in Ibaran, whose carell was in Carmel, and the man was exceeding myghty, and had thie thousand shepe, and a thousand goates. And he was shepyng his shepe in Carmel. The name of the man was Abail, and the name of hys wyfe was Abigail, and was a woman of good wysdome and beutifull. But the man was churlysh and of shrewde condicions, and was a Calchite. And when Dauid berde in the wilderness, that Abail ware hys shepe, he sent oute ten of hys ponge men, and sayde vnto them: get you vp to Carmel, and go to Abail and greete hym in myne name. And thus wyl say vnto my sypende: peace be to the, peace be to thine house, and peace be vnto al that thou hast. I haue hearde saye thou hast shepers. Now thy shepheardes were wth us & we did them no despite ne villanny, neyther was there ought murther vnto them al the whyle they were wth vs in Carmel: aske thy seruantes, and they wyl shew the. Wherefore let these pong men fynd sa- noute in thyne eyes (for we come in a good season) and glue (I pray the) whatsoener cometh to thyne hande vnto thy seruantes, and to thy sone Dauid. So Dauides pong men came and tolde Abail al those wordes in the be alse of Dauid, and then stoyed. Then Abail answered, Dauides seruantes and sayde: what is Dauid? and what is s sonne of Israel? there is plenty of seruantes now & dayes, that breake away from their masters. Shoulde I take my breade, my water, and my fleshe that I haue killed for my shepers, and glue it vnto men which I wot not whence they be? Then Dauides seruantes turned their way, and wth agayne. and came and tolde him accordynge to al those sayinges. When Dauid sayed vnto hys men: gyde euery man his sword about him. And they gyded euery man his sword on him, and Dauid thereto gyde on hys swearde. And so there folowed Dauid about foure hundred men, and two hundred adobe by the staffe. But one of the seruantes tolde Abigail Abails wyfe, sayenge: Se, Dauid sent messengers vnto oure master out of the wilderness to salute him, & he curld the. And yet the men were verie good vnto us, and d^r vs no displeasure neyther myssewde any thyng, as longe as we were con-

 Nowe take heede and se, what thou haste to do, for mischief is concluded to be done vnto our master and to all hys householde.
 And he is vngaruous to speake to. Then Abigail made haste and tooke two hun-fyue shryve readye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred budles of fygges, and laded them on asses, and sayed vnto her younge men: go before me, and so I come after you, and tolde her husrode on her asse, and was comyng doune a shawe of the hylle, Dauid, and hys menne saw Dauid, she hastened and did alote of her bowed her selfe to the ground, and fell at his feete and sayed: Let this vnhappy dede be accompted mine, my Lord, and let thine hand mayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wordes of thy handmayde. Lette not my Lord regard this vntidiffyrian.

 Abal, for as his name is, so is he. Abal is hys name, and folly is wyth him. But I thynke hande made sawe not the pounge men of my Lord wher thou sendest.
 And nowe my Lord as truly as the Lord truerh, and as thy soule spuerh, the Lord hath withholden the from comyng to shedde bloude, and from auengynge thy selfe wyth thine owne hand. Furthermore I praye God that thyne enemies, and they that intende to do my Lord euill, may be as Abal. And nowe take * this bles-syng whiche thyn handmayde hath brought to the my Lord, let it be geuen to the younge men that folowe my Lord.
 Forgyt the trespass of thyn handmayde that the Lord maye make my Lord a safe house, because my Lord fighteth the battelles of the Lord, and there could none euill be founde in the, in all thy lyfe.
 And if any man ryse to persecute the, and to seeke thy soule, the soule of my Lord myght be preserved as it were in a bundell of fuyng thinges, wyth the Lord thy God. And the soules of thyn enemies be shounged in the myddes of a fonge. And when the Lord shall haue done to my Lord all the good that he hath promy-sed the and shall haue made the ruler over Istraell: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the for the outage of herse vnto my Lord. I. I thou sendest I loude causeles, and diddest auenge thy selfe.

 And when the Lord shall haue deale well wyth my Lord, thynke on thyn hadmayde. Then sayde Dauid to Abigail: blessed be the Lord God of Istraell, whiche sente the this day to mete me. And blessed be thy behaueour, and blessed be thou whiche haste kepte me this dawe from bloud-shedpynge, and from auengynge my selfe wyth myne owne hande. For in very dede as surely as the Lord God of Istraell lyueth, who hath kepte me backe from hurt-yng the, except thou haddest hastened and met me, there had not bene lette vnto Izabael by the dampnye of the dawe, a pisset agaynst the wall.
 And so Dauid receyued of hys hande that she brought, and sayed to hys go: in peace to thyn house. Lo I haue obeyed thy voyce, & haue receyued the to grace.
 And when Abigail returned to Abal beholde, he had a sea in hys house lyke the feast of a kynge, and Abals herte was mery wyth in hym, for he hadde well dyoncke. Wherefore he coude hym neythere lytle nor muche tyll the morowe.
 But in the morynge when Abal had dygested the wyne, hys wyfe tolde hym these wordes: and hys herte dyed wythin hym, and he became as a stoue, and vpon a tennedayes after the Lord smote Abal that he dyed. Wherby when Da-uid heard that Abal was dead, he sayd: Blessed be the Lord that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the banog of A-bal, & hath kept his seruante from euill, & hath turned the wyckednes of Abal vpon hys owne heade. So Dauid sente to comynge wyth Abigail, to the intente to take hys wyfe. And when the ser-uantes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto hys, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the to take the to hys wyfe. And she arose and fel on hys face to the earth, and sayed: Beholde thy handemayde be a seruante to * make the feete of Dauid and was hys wyfe. Dauid also the wilderness of ziph, and thre thousande chosen menne of Israell with him, to seke Dauid in the wilderness of ziph.

And Saul pitched in the hill of Achilah, whiche lyeth before the wilderness, by the waye syde. But Dauid dwelte in the wilderness. And when he saw that Saule pursued hym in the wilderness, he sente forth spyes and understode that Saul was come in dede.

Wherefore Dauid arose, and wente to the place, where Saul hadde pitched, and behelde the place where Saule laye wth Abner the sonne of Ner, his chiefe captayne. For Saule laye wthyn a rounde bancke, and the people pitched rounde aboute hym. Then answered Dauid and spake too Abimelech the Dethite, and too Abisai the sonne of Zaruah, and brother to Joab, sayinge: Who wyl goo downe wth me too Saule too the heeste? And Abisai sayde, I wyl goo downe wth the.

And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyghte. And behoulde, Saule laye sleppinge wthyn a rounde bancke, and his speare pitched in the grounde at his heade, Abner and the people lying round aboute hym. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thine enemy into thine hande this daye. Nowe therefore lette me smyte hym. I praye the wth my speare to the earthe, but one stroke, and it shall nede no more. But Dauid sayde too Abisai: de- strope hym not, for who can laye his hand vpon the Lordes anointed and be guiltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: As trulpe as the Lord spueeth, onles the Lord shall smyte hym, or his daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battell and there perishe: the Lord kepe me from layinge myne hande vpon the Lordes anointed. Nowe then take his speare that is at his head, and the cruse of water, and lette vs go. And Dauid toke the speare, and the cruse of water that was at Saules heade, and they gate them awaye, and no manne sawe or wote it or awoke. For they wer at a slepe, because the Lord hadde sente a stumbe vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to the other syde, and rode on the top of an hill a farre off (a greate space between them) and cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner sayinge: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayde: What arte thou that cryest too the kynge? and Dauid sayde to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Israell?

What is thy voyce awakest the kynge.

But wherefore haste thou not kepte thy Lord the kynge? For there came one of thy folke too destroye the kynge thy Lord. It is not good that thou haste done. As trulpe as the Lord spueeth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue not kepte the Lordes anointed. And nowe se where the kynges speare is, and the cruse of water þ was at his heade.

Then Saule knewe Dauids voyce, and sayde: sthy thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lord kynge. And he sayde further, wherefore doesthy my Lord pursue thy seruante? for what haue I done? or what euill is in mine hande? Nowe heate therefore (my Lord kynge, the woozoes of thy seruante. If the Lord haue spered the by agaynst me, let hym * smell the sacrifice. But if they be the chyldrene of menne, cursed be they before the Lord. For they haue caste me oute, so that I canne not dwell in the inheritance of the Lord, sayinge: hence and go and serue other Gods: And yet I hope my bloude shal not fall to the earthe before the face of the Lord, though the kynge of Israell become oute to hunte one fle, as men hunte the partyges in the mountaynes. Then saied Saule: I haue sinned, come agayne my sonne Dauid, for I wyl do the no more harm, because my soul was precious in thy syghte this daye. Behold I haue played the foile, and haue erred exceedinglye muche.

* That is, he shall be a sacrifice. W an open sacrifice of Cain. Gen. xii. 8.

And Dauid answered and sayde: Behold the kynges speare, let one of the pong men come ouer and fet it. The Lord reward euerye mannes ryghtuousnes and sayth, for the Lord deliuered the into my hand this daye, but I woulde not laye my hande vpon the Lordes anointed. And as thy lye was muche set by thy tyme in myne eyes: so be my life set by in the eyes of the Lord, that he deliuer me oute of al tribulacions.

And Saul sayd vnto Dauid: Blessed art thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a * doer, and also able to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his way and Saul turned to his place agayne.

* Chaid. Thou shalt caryne and prosper.

The xviij. Chapter.

Dauid flieth to Achis kynge of Geth which geueth hym sheltre to dwell in the hillith of Philistines. And Achis demaunded agaynst whom he had roused, he geueth hym a subtyl answere, and deceyueh hym properlye.

IF I thoughte Dauid in his herte: I maye perishe at one daye or other by the handes of Saule. There is no better thyng for me then to fle in to the land of the philistines, that Saul of verye dispaire to finde me, may cease seekynge me anye more in all the coastes of Israell: for so I maye escape his hand. And so Dauid arose, and he and the syxe hundred menne that were wth hym wente vnto Achis the sonne of Maachy kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelt wth Achis at Geth, both he and his men, euerye man wth his howshold, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jezrachite, and Abigail Rabais wyfe of Carmel.

So when it is tolde Saule that Dauid was fledde to Geth, he sought no more for hym. And Dauid sayde vnto Achis: If I haue found grace in thine eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the fieldes that I maye dwell there. For what shuld thy seruthe Lorde wpll rente the kyngdome oute of thy hande, and gyue it thy neyghboure Dauid, because thou obeyedst not the voyce of thy Lorde, nor executedst hys fearce hathe the Lorde done thys vnto thys dape.

And further the Lorde wpll deliuer the m-rael into the handes of the Philistines.

Then Saul fel flat on the earth, and was fore adied of the wordes of Samuell. And thereto there was no strengthe in hym, for he hadde not eaten all the dape before. And the woman came to Saul, and saw he was fore troubled, and said vnto hym. Se, thine handmayde hathe obeyed thy voyce: and hearken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne

And so he arose from the earth, and sate hym on a bed. And the woman had a fatte calfe in the house, and that she haded and killed, and toke flour and kneaded it, and did bake hym swete cakes, and broughte them before Saul, & before his seruauntes: when they had eaten, they sode by & went awaye the same nyghte.

The .xxx. Chapter.

David goynge wth kynge Achis to fyghte agaynst Saule, is sente agayne by the men of the Lordes of the Philistines.

The Philistines gathered all thei hostes together vnto Aphek, and Israel pitched by a fountayne in Jezrahell. And the Lordes of the Philistines went forth by hundreds, and by thousandes. But David and hys men came behynde wth Achis. Then sayd the Lordes of the Philistines: what wil ponder Hebrues? And Achis sayde vnto the Lordes of the Philistines: Is not this David the seruaunte of Saul the king of Israel, whiche hath bene wth me dayes and yeres, and I haue founde no faulte in hym. For then he fled to me vnto this daye? Neuer theles the Lordes of the Philistines were wrothe wth hym, and sayde vnto hym:

Make this felowe returne and lette hym go agayne to hys place whiche thou haste appoynted hym. For he shall not goo wth vs to battell, leaste he be an aduersary vnto vs in the battayle when we begynne to fyghte. For wherewith coude he better obtayne the fauoure of hys master, then vpon the heades of our men? Is not this David to whome they sange in daunces:

* Saule slewe hys thousande, but David hys ten thousande?

Then Achis called David, and sayde vnto hym. As trulpe as the Lorde spuech thou arte honest, and it pleasech me well thou shouldest accompanie me in the hoste, for I haue found none euyl wth the from the tyme that thou cammest vnto me, vnto this daye. Neuerthelesse the Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not: wherfore returne, and goo in peace, that thou displease not the Lordes of the Philistines.

And David sayde agayne to Achis. Whype: what haue I done? And what haste thou founde in thy seruaunte as long as I haue bene wth the vnto this daye: that I may not go fyghte agaynst the ennemyes of my Lorde the kynge.

Achis answered and sayde to David: I wot well. thou pleasest me as it wer an angel of God. Not wthstandyng the Lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, & thou shalt not go wth them to battayle. Wherfore aryse earlye in the mornynge wth thy maisters seruauntes that are come wth the. And when ye be vyppre earlye, as sone as it begynneth to be day, depart. And so David and hys menne arose earlye too departe in the mornynge, and to returne into the land of the Philistines. And the Philistines wente by to Jezrahell.

The .xxx. Chapter.

David returnyng from kynge Achis, findeth sikeleg burnt by the pursueth after & burneth therof & killeth them & recouereth the praye.

The David and hys menne were come to sikeleg the thyrde daye, the Amalekites had made assault in the southe parte vpon sikeleg, and had smitten sikeleg and burnt it wth fyre, and hadde taken the women there prysoners, bothe smal and great, but sone not a man, but caried them wth them, and departed. When David and hys men came to the cite, beheld it was burnt wth fyre, and thei wyues, their sonnes, & their daughters were taken prysoners. Then David and the people that was wth hym lyste by their voyces and wepte, tyll they could wepe no more. And Davids two wyues were taken prysoners also. Amnon the Tetrachite, and Abigail the wyfe of Abai the Carmelite. And David was sore troubled, for the people entended to stone hym. because the hertes of all the people were bered for their sonnes & their daughters. But David tooke a good herte to hym in the Lorde his God, and sayde to Abiathar the priest, Achimelechs sonne: bringe me hither & Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to David. And David asked the Lorde, sayyng: What I pursue this companye: and shall I ouertake them? And he sayde to hym: folowe, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye. So he went, and the sixe hundred menne that were wth hym, and they came to the river Besor, where a parte of them abode. Neuertheles David and .iii. C. men folowed, but .ii. hundred men abode behynde, beinge to werpe to go ouer Besor. Then they found an Egyptian in the feld, and broughte him to David and gaue him breade to eate, and water to drynke, and gaue hym a few figs, and two clusters of reaspnges, and when he had eaten, hys sprytes came agayne to hym, for he had eaten no bread, nor drynck water in thre dayes, and thre nightes. The David sayde vnto hym, to whome belongeth thou, and whence arte thou? And the lad answered: I am an Egyptian, and seruaunt to an Amalekite: and my master left me behynde because it is thre dayes agone that I fell speke, we came a rounge vpon the south of Cerethis, and byd them of Iuda, and on & south of Caleb. And we burnt sikeleg wth fyre.

And David sayde vnto hym: Canst thou bringe me to this companye? And he said, I sweare vnto me by God, that thou wylt neyther kyll me, nor deliuer me into the handes of my master. And I wyl bring the vnto them. And when he had brought hym, se, they laye all scattered vpon the earth, eatynge and drynkyng and trumping

Then sayde David: ye shall not do so they shall parte it alpyke. And so from that

The. xxi. Chapter

The battell betwene the philistines and Israel. Saule killeth him selfe, and hys children are slayne in the battell.

The. xxi. Chapter:

As as the philistines foughte agaynste Israel, the menne of Israel fledde awaye from the philistines, and fel downe dead in mounte Gelboe. And the philistines made after Saule and hys sonnes, and slew Jonathas, Abinadab, and Melchi-sua, Saules sonne. And the battell wente soote agaynste Saule, in so muche that shooters wth bowes hadde founde hym, and he was sore wounded of the shooters.
Then sayde Saule vnto hys harneyberer * drawe oute thy swerde, and thurst me therowen therewyth, leaste these vncircumcised come, and thurst me therowen, and make a mockynge stocke of me. But hys harneyberer woulde not, for he was sore afraid. Wherfore Saule toke a swerde, and fell vpon it.

And when hys harneyberer sawe that Saule was deade, he fell sphe wse vpon hys swerde, and dyed wth hym. And soo Saule dyed and hys thre sonnes, and hys harneyberer, and all hys menne that same daye together. When the menne of Israel that wer of the other syde the valle, and they of the other syde Jordan heard that the men of Israel were put to flight, and that Saule and hys sonnes were deade, they lette the cytres, and ranne away, and the philistines came and dwelte in them.

On the morowe when the philistines were come to styppe them that were slayne, they founde Saule and hys thre sonnes lpyng in mounte Gelboe. And they cutte of hys heade, and stopped hym oute of hys har-neys, and sente it to the Lande of the philistines euerye where to publish in the houses of theyr goddes, and to the people. And they hanged vpe hys harneys in the house of Asaroth, but they hanged vpe his car-kele on the walles of Bethsan. When the inhabytours of Jabes in Galaad heard what the philistines had done to Saule, they arose, as many as were men of warre, and went to take the corpe of Saule, and the corpe of hys sonnes from the walles of Bethsan and broughte them to Jabes, and burnt them there, and toke theyr bones and buried them vnder a tree at Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

And Saule and Ionathas hys sonne are deade thereto. And Dauid sayde vnto the ponge manne that tolde hym, howe knowest thou that Saule and Ionathas hys sonne bee deade? And the ponge manne that tolde hym, sayde: I was by chaunce in mounte Belboe. And see, Saule leaped vppon hys speare, and the charrettes and horse menne folowed hym at the heles. And Saule looked backe and called me: And I answered, here am I. And he sayde vnto me: what art thou? And I sayed vnto hym: I am an Amalekite.

Hebron. And so David wente thither with his two wyues also, Ahinoam the Jezra-

And Abner had communicaciō with the eldets of Israel, saying: Ye haue longe gone aboute that Dauid shoulde be kyng ouer you. Now the do it: for the Lord hath sayd of Dauid: by the hand of my seruante Dauid, I will saue my people Israel out of the handes of the Philistynes, and out of the hande of all theyr enemyes.

D And semblable wordes had he with Ben Hamin, and then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron all that Israel was content with, and the whole house of Ben Hamin. So whē Abner was come to Dauid in Hebron, and twenty men with hym Dauid made him and the menne that were with hym a feaste.

Then Abner sayd vnto Dauid: I will arise, & go gather al Israel to my Lord the kyng, that they maye make a bonde with the, that thou mayst be a kyng ouer al that thyne bett deserveth: and so Dauid let Abner depart, and he wente in peace.

And loo the seruantes of Dauid and Joab came from chasunge robbers, and broughte a greate horre with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron for he hadde sente him awayne in peace.

E When Joab and all the hooste with hym were come, men tolde Joab, saying: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng in Hebron he hath sent awayne in peace. The wēt Joab to the kyng and sayd: What hast thou don? See Abner came to the, why haste thou sente hym awayne that he shuld scape free? Thou righte knowe Abner the sonne of Ner: that he came to flatter the and knowe thy conuersacion and behauiour, and to knowe all thy dornges. And when Joab was come oute from the kyng, he sente messengers after Abner, to bringe hym agayne from the well of Sozath vnto Dauid.

So when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab take hym a syde in the gate to speake with him gylefully, & the smote him vnder the most ribbes that he had, for the bloud of Asabel hym brother.

And when it afterwarde came to Dauid's eare, he sayd: I and my kyngedome are gylelesse before the Lord for euer, conceyning the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner. It fall therefore vpon the heade of Joab, and vpon al his fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer withoute one or other that hath cunnynge issues, or with out lepers or goets vpon crouches, & that fall on the swerde, or that lacke bread. And the cause why Joab and Abisape Actue Abner, was that Abner hadde slayne theyr brother Asabel at Gabaon in battel. And Dauid sayd to Joab, and to all the people that were with hym: tence your clothes, and put on sacke clothe and mourne before Abner. And kyng Dauid hym selfe folowed the bere. And when they had buryed Abner in Hebron, the kyng lyfte vp hym voice and wept ouer the graue of Abner and so dyd all the people.

11. Reg. 11.4

And the kyng bewayled Abner and sayd: Abner dyeth not as a wretchē dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled nor thy fete shackled, but as men falle before wycked children, so feldest thou, and all the people wept yet more ouer hym.

And when all the people came to cate meate with Dauid, while it was yet day, Dauid swate, saying: so do God to me, and so, if I taste breade or ougbre els, tyll the sunne be downe. And the people wyte it, & it plesed them, as wel as al other good thynges, which the kyng dyd in the syght of the people. And al Israel vnderstode that dauid, howe it was not the kynges mynde to slea Abner the sonne of Ner.

And the kyng sayd vnto his seruantes: know ye not there is a Lord, and that a great, fallen this day in Israel? And I am this day tender, though I be annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Israhel, be to good for me to rule? But the Lord remembre the doer of euill accordyng to his wyckednesse.

The.iii.chapter.

B Baanah and Rechab sepyth Ishboeth the sonne of Saule.

V When Sauls sonne heard that Abner was deade in Hebron, hym bette sapnted, and all Israel was troumbled. Nowe thes Saules sonne hadde two mē that were become Captaynes ouer the Souldyours, the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab the sonnes of Rimmon a Berobite, and of the thyldryne of Ben Hamin: for Berob was refened to appertayne to Ben Hamin.

And these Berobites fledde to Bethaym and Abinadab. Ozab is strike and dyeth because he touched the arke. & he arke is broughte in to the house of Obed Edom, and fro thence into Hierusalem. & a yd eunuch before it, & is therfore despyled of hys wif Michol.

After this, Dauid chose out all the chief yong men in Israel to the tune of thyrty thousande, and arose, and wente, and all the folke that were wth hym of the men of Juda to set awaye the arke of God, vpon whiche is called the name of the Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth betwene the Cherubins. And they put the arke of God on a newe carre, and brought it forth of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabah. And Ozab, and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab draue the newe carre. And when they brought it out of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabah with the arke of God, Ahio wente before the arke, & Dauid & al þ house of Israel plaid before the Lord with al maner instrumentes of fyre wood, with harpes, psalteries, tymbrels, fidels andymbals.

And whē they came to Achons chertynge house, Ozab put his hand to þ arke of God and helde it, for the oxen stumbled. And the Lorde was wrothe wth Ozab, and God smote him in the same place for his faulte, and there he dyed by the arke of God. And Dauid was dyspleased because the Lorde had rente Ozab. And the name of the place was called Beres Ozab epl this day. And Dauid was then asayed of the Lorde and said: how shuld the arke of the Lord come to my house? And so Dauid wold not hyngre the arke of the Lord wth hym into the cite of Dauid, but carryd it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arke of the Lorde consyned in the house of Obed Edom the Gethite thre monethes, and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom, and all hys housholde. And when it was toulde kynge Dauid that the Lorde hadde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and all that belouged vnto hym, because of the arke of God, he went and broughte the arke of God from the house of Obed Edom, vnto the cite of Dauid wth gladnes. And euer whē they bare the arke of the Lorde hadde gon, sixe paces, he offered an ore and a fatte shepe. And Dauid danced before the Lord wth al his myght in a lynnē & ydod gyde vnto hym. And Dauid and all the house of Israel broughte the arke of the Lord wth shouting and trompet blowpge.

And as the arke of the Lorde came into the cite of Dauid, Michol Sauls daughter looked thorow a wyndow & sawe kynge Dauid spring and dancc before the Lord, and therfore dyspleid him in her heart. And when they had broughte in the arke of the Lorde, and had set it in hys place, euen in the tabernacle that Dauid hadde prepared for it: Dauid offered burntofferpuges and peace offerpuges before the Lorde. And as sone as Dauid hadde made an ende of offeryng burntofferpuges and peace offerpuges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the whole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, euerie one a cake of breade, and a piece of fleshe, and a flasket of wyne. And so the people departed euerie man to hys house. Then Dauid retouened to salure hys housholde. And Michol the daughter of Saul came out agaynst hym and sayed: Whom glorious was the kynge of Israel to daye, which scipe him selfe thys daye before the eyes of the maydens of hys seruantes, as a lyghte brayned selowe is wont to scipe hym selfe? But Dauid sayde agayne to Michol: I wyl make spoote before the Lord, to whiche chose me before thy father, and before all hys kynne, commaundyng me to be ruler ouer all hys people Israel. And I wyl be yet more vble then so, and wyl be meke in myne owne syghte: and shall neuer belesse of the very same mayde seruantes to whiche thou speakest of, he hadde in honoure. But the saide Michol daughter to Saul, hadde no chyldre vnto the daye of her death.

The. vii. Chapter.

Dauid of a good purpose cōmēding to build an house to the Lord, is forbyddē of god. & he prayeth þ the promyses of god may be fulfilled.

AND in proceſſe as the kynge dwelte in hys fathers house, after that the Lorde had geuen him reste rounde aboute from all hys enemies, he said vnto Nathā the prophet: beholde, I dwelle in an house of Cedar trees, but the arke of God dwelleth in the middes of tereapnes. The said Nathā vnto the kynge: go and do all that is in thyne verte, for the Lorde is wth thee. But that same nyght the word of the Lord came vnto Nathā, sayinge: go and telle my seruant Dauid, thus saith the Lord: Wilt thou go build me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye house sythens the tyme I broughte the chyldren of Israel out of Egypt, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In anye ware where I wente amonge all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one worde wth anye of the knyghtes of Israel, to whiche I commaunded to fede my people Israel, sayinge: why buyde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore so say vnto my seruant Dauid: thus saith the Lorde of hostes, I toke the oute of a shepe core fro solowpynge shepe, to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was wth the in all thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne enemies oute of thy syghte, & haue made the a greates name, lyke vnto the renowne of the greates men of the world. And I wyl appoynt a place for my people Israel, and wyl plante it, and they shall continue in one place & shall moue no more, neyther shall wycked people trou-

The .ix. Chapter.

Dauid restorery all the tribes of Israhel to Gyphibosech the sonne of Ionathas.

When sayde Dauid: is there anye manlette of the house of Saule that I make Gewe hym merce for Ionathas sake? And there was one of the household of Saule a ser-uaunt named Iabab who was called unto Dauid. And the kynge sayde vnto him: acret thou Iabab? And he sayd: thy seruante is he. Then sayde the kynge: remapnerh yet any man of the kyned of Saule, whom I make Gewe the merce of Gode vpon?
And Iabab sayde vnto the kynge: Iona-thas hath yet a sonne whiche is lame on both seere. And the kynge sayde vnto him: wher is he? And Iabab said vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Achis the sonne of Amell in Gubab: Then kynge Dauid sent and ferre hym out of the house of Achis the sonne of Amell out of Lodaber. Nowe when Gyphibosech the son of Ionathas the sonne of Saule was come to Dauid, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on hys face. The sayd Dauid: Gyphibosech?
And he answered. Beholde thy seruante.
And Dauid sayd: feare not. For I wyl suer ly Gewe the kyndenes for Ionathas sake, and wyl restore the al the landes of Saule thy father, and thou shalt eate meate on myne owne table alwaye. And the other bowed hym selfe and sayde: what is thy seruant, that thou shouldest vouchsafe to take vpon such a dead dog as I am? Then the kynge called Iabab Saules young man sayinge vnto hym: I geue vnto thy masters sonne all that pertayned to Saule, and to al his kynne. & therefore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruantes sylle the lande for him, and byng in that thy masters sonne may haue foode to eate. For Gyphibosech thy masters sonne shall eate meate alwaye vpon my table. For this Iabab hadde syluene sonnes, and twenty ser-uantes. Then sayd Iabab vnto the kynge: All that my Lorde hath sayde vnto hys ser-uaunt thy seruante shall do. For (sayde the kynge) Gyphibosech muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes.
This Gyphibosech had a sonne that was pouge, named Micah, and al that dwelled in the house of Iabab, were seruantes vnto Gyphibosech. So Gyphibosech dwelle in Ierusalem. for he eate euer at the kyngs table, & was therto halt on both legges.

The tenth Chapter.

The messengers of Dauid are spittfully enterated of the kyng of Moab: whiche thing Dauid auengeth.

It happened after this, that the kyng of the children of Ammon died, & Hanon hys sonne reppre-ned in his seide. The sayd Da-uid: I wyl Gewe kyndnes vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, as hys father Gewe-ed kyndnes vnto me. And thereupon Da-uid sent to comforte hym by the hande of hys seruantes ouer the deathe of hys father. Nowe, when Dauids seruantes were come into the lande of the children of Ammon, the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde vnto Hanon the kyng: Thynkest thou that Dauid doth honoure thy father, because he hath sente to com-forte the? Maye he rather sente hys seruantes vnto the to searche the cypre, and to cpye it oute, to thyntente to ouerthrowe it. Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruantes, and haue of the one halfe of of euery mans berde, and cut of theyr garmentes euen in the myddle berde by the butterkes of theyr and sente them awaye.

Whiche thing when it was told Dauid, he sent agaynst them (for they were men exceedingly aghaid) and sayde: cry at Jericho tyl you berdes be growen, and then returue. And when the children of Ammon sawe that, they wzonged Dauid, they sent and byied the sonnes of Bethshob, and of the Sittians of Iobab, .xx. thousand lodemen, and of the kyng Maacah a thousande men, and of Ishob twelve thousand men: and when Dauid herde of it, he sente Joab and all the hoste of strong men. And the children of Ammon came oute & gaue battyle before the gate, & the Sittians of Iobab Ishob, Ishob, and Maacah, wete themselues in the felde. When Joab sawe that the fronte of the battayle was before and after, he chose of al the beste of Israell and put them in araye agaynst the Sittians.
And the reste of the people he deliuered in to the hande of Abisai his brother, whiche put them in araye agaynst the children of Ammon. And he sayd: if the Syrians ouer-come me, then succout me. But if the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyl come and succoute the, quite the lyse a ma and let vs fight lustely for our people, and for the cyres of oure God. And the Lorde do what semeth best in his eyes. And forthwith Joab proceeded and the people that were with him into battayle agaynst the Sittians, which fled before hym. Whiche when the children of Ammon sawe that the Sittians were fledde, then fledde they also before Abisai, and entered into the cy-pre. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Ierusalem. And when the Sittians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israell, they gathered themselves together. And Hadadezer sente and broughte oute the Assirians that were beyonde the ryuer, and the hoste of them came, and Sobab captayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.

And when it was telled Dauid, he gathered all Israell, and passed ouer For-done, and came to Belam, where the Syrians put them selues in araye agaynst Dauid.

Gyphibosech
sayd.

4. Mat. 23. a

ii. Kinges.

Dauid, and foughte wpyth hym: ho webett the Syrians fledde before Isaacell. And Dauid destroyed foun hundred charrets of the and fourty thousand horsmen, and smot So- bati the captaine of his host, for that he thee dyed. And when all the kynge's that were seruantes to Hadadezer sawe they were put to the worlde before Is- ael, they made peace wpyth them, and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon anye further.

The. xi. Chapter.

The aduouthe of Dauid wpyth Bersabe the wyfe of Urias. Urias is falsly name. After that Dauid taketh Bersabe to wyfe.

It came to passe in the begyn- nyng of a newe yere, in the tyme when kynge's are wonte to goo to battayle, that Dauid sente Joab, and hys seruantes wpyth hym, and Isaacell. And they destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and beseged Rabab. But Dauid taryed apyll at Ierusalem. And it chawnced in an eueninge that Dauid arose from hys couche, and walched vpon the roule of the kynge's palace, and from the roule sawe a depe beautifull woman washyng hys selfe. And he sente to en- quyre what womanne it shoulde be. And it was answered agayne, that shee was Bersabe the daughter of Eliam, & wyfe to Urias the Hethite.

And Dauid sente messengers and sette hys, and she came vnto hym, and he laye wpyth hys. And she was forthwpyth clea- ned from hys vncleanesse, and returned vnto his house. And when the woman per- ceued that she had conceived, she sente and tolde Dauid, and sayed: I am wpyth chyld. Then Dauid sent to Joab to sende vnto hym Urias the Hethite. And Joab sente Urias to Dauid. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded, howe Joab dyd, and howe the people fared, and howe the warre prospered. And Dauid sayed moreouer to Urias: goo downe to thy house, and wash thy feete. And Urias departed oute of the kynge's palace, and there folowed hym a securre frome the kynge's table. But Urias slepe at the doore of the kynge's palace wpyth all the ser- uantes of his Lord, and went not downe to hys house. When they told Dauid say- ing: Urias went not into hys house. Then sayde Dauid vnto Urias: For as muche as thou art come from Iourneyng, why dost thou not goo downe to thyne house?

And Urias sayed to Dauid: the arcke and Isaacell, and Juda, dwell in paupers: and my Lord Joab & the seruantes of my Lord lye in tentes vpon the floure earth, and shoulde I goo into myne house to eat, and dryncke, and to lye wpyth my wyfe? * By thy lyfe and as sure as thy soule luerth, I wyl not doo that thyng. Then sayed Dauid vnto Urias: tarye here thys day also, & to morowe I wyl let the depart. And so Urias abode in Ierusalem that daye. And on the morowe, Dauid called hym, & he came & drank before hym, and he made hym dryncke. And at eueninge wet oute to lye on his couche wpyth the ser- uantes of his Lord, & went not downe to his house. Wherefore on the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, & sente it by Urias. And he wrote in the letter saying: put Urias in the forefronte of the battell where it is most stronge, & come backe fro hym, & he may be syncke to death. So when Joab beseged the cite, he appoynted Urias to a place where he wylde the stronge men were. And the men of the cite came out & fought wpyth Joab. And there were certayne ouer- throwe of the people, & of the seruantes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also. Then Joab sente and tolde Dauid all the proceedynges of warre, and charged the messenger, saying: When thou hast made an ende of tellinge the thynges of warre vnto the kynge, if he begynne to fume, and saye vnto the: wherefore appro- ched ye so nye to the cite to fyghte: wylste ye not that men would hurle a shute from the wals? Who is not Abimelech sonne of Jerobabel? Did not a woman cast a peece of a myllstone vpon hym from of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nie the walles? The say thou: thy seruant Urias the Hethite is deade also.

Jud. 11. 19

dion, other

Jerobabel.

And the messengers wente and came and shewed Dauid all that Joab hadde sente hym wpyth, and sayed vnto Dauid: the men preuailed agaynst vs, & came forth vnto vs in the feild, and we facke vnto the vnto the enterpyng of the gate, and thou- rets wor from the walles, and some of the seruantes of the kynge be deade. And thy seruant Urias the Hethite is deade also.

Then sayed Dauid vnto the messen- ger: thys wyse saye vnto Joab, lette not the thyng trouble the. For the swerde de- uoureth one as wel as an order: make thy battell more stronge agaynst the cite, and beset it, and let thou encourage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias heard that hys husbanc was deade, she mouined for hym: and as soone as the morowyng was ended, Dauid sente, and sette hys to hys house, and she was hys wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid had committed, dyspleased the Lord.

The. xii. Chapter.

Dauid is reproveth for the daughter of Ury- as, and then repenteth. The chyldre conceived in aduouthe, dyeth. After it Salomo is born.

And the Lord sente Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto him and said vnto him: ther were two menne in one cite, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche had exceedyng greete abundaunce of shepe & oxen, but the poore had nothyng save onle one litle lambe, whych he bought and noyded by. And it grew wpyth hym and hys chyldren, and did ate of his owne meate, and dranke of hys owne cuppe, and slept in hys bosome, and was as deare vnto hym as hys daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the kyche man. And he could not find in hys herte, to take of his own shepe, nor of his beastes to prepare for the straunger that was come vnto hym. But toke the pore mans Lambe, & dressed it for the man that was come vnto hym. And Dauid was exceedinge wrothe with the man, and said to Nathan: as sure I ye as the Lord liveth, the fellow that hath done this thyng is worthy of death, and shall restore the Lamb four fold, because he hath done this thyng, and had no pite.

When Nathan sayde vnto Dauid: thou arte the selfe man. Thus saythe the Lord God of Israel. I anointed the kyng ouer Israel, and toke the oute of the handes of Saule: And I gaue þe thy masters house and thy masters wiues into thy bosome, & gaue the the house of Israel, and of Iuda, and woulde if that had bene to litle, haue geuen the twyse so muche more. Wherefore hast thou despised the commaundement of the Lord to do wickednesse in his sight? thou hast kyled Urias the Bethite with the swerde, and hast taken his wife to thy wife, and hast slain him with the swerde of the chyldren of Ammon.

Howe therefore the swerde shall neuer departe from thy house, because I sayeth the Lord: thou hast despised me, and taken the wife of Urias þe Bethite to be thy wyfe. Thus sayth the Lord. beholde I will stirre vp euil agaynst the of thyne owne house, and will take thy wyues before thine eyes and giue them vnto thy neyghbour, which shall sleepe with them in the sight of the sunne. And thou hiddest it secretly, yet will I laye the day I do this thyng before all Israel, and in the open sunne sight.

Ex. xlii. b. Then said Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue sinned agaynst the Lord. And Nathan sayed agayne to Dauid: the Lord hath put away thy sinne, thou shalt not dye. Howbeit because in doing this dede thou hast geuen the enemyes of the Lord a cause to rale, the childe that is borne the shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto hys house. When the Lord stroke the childe that Urias wife bare Dauid, and it sickened. Dauid besoughte God for the childe, and fasted, and wente and laye all nyghte vpon the earth: And the elders of hys house arose and wente to hym, to take hym vp from the earth. But he would not, neyther eate meate with the. It happened the seventh day that the childe died. But þe seruaunts of Dauid durst not tel him that the childe was deade.

E For they sayde: se, whyle the childe was yet aloue, we spake vnto hym, and he wold not hearken to our voyce. Howe much more wold he here hym selfe, if wee tell hym the childe is deade? But Dauid sawe hys seruaunts whispering, and thereby percey-ued that the childe was deade, and sayd to hys seruautes, is the childe deade? And they sayde: yea.

Then Dauid arose from the earth, and washed, and annointed hym selfe, and chaunged hys apparell, and wente into the house of the Lord and prayed, and after came to hys owne house, and badde they shoulde sette meate before hym, and he dyde eate.

Then sayde hys seruautes vnto hym: what is this that thou hast done? Thou fastedst and wepest for the childe whyle it was aloue, but as sone as it was deade thou dydeste asyle vypp and eate meate. And he answered: whyle the childe was aloue, I fasted & wept. For I thus thought who can tel me whether God wil haue mercy vpon me, that the childe may liue? But now sith it is deade, wherefore shoulde I faste? can I bringe him agayne any more? I shall go to hym, but he shall not come agayne vnto me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe hys wyfe, and wente in vnto hyr, and laye with hyr, and she bare a sonne, whose name was called Salomon, and the Lord loued hym. And he sente by the hande of Nathan the prophet, and called his name Jediah, on the Lords behalfe. And as Joab foughte agaynst Abiah, the ctye of the chyldren of Ammon, he toke the kings tower, and sente messengers to Dauid sayinge: I haue made assaulte to Abiah, and also haue taken the Castell from whence they had their water. Howe therefore gather the rest of thy people and come and besiege the cite and take it, lest I take it, the victorie be ascribed vnto me.

And then Dauid gathered all the people together, and went to Abiah and assaulted it, and gat it. And he toke the kynges crowne from his head, which was of gold, & died waight of gold, and Dauid ware it on hys head. And he brought out the spoyle of the cite in exceedinge greake abundance. And he broughte out the people that was therein, and sawed them and drue harrowes of iron vpon the, and shied some of them with shieding knives of iron, and thruste some into fornares. And so he serued al the cities of the chyldren of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people returned vnto Ierusalem.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Ammon Dauides sonne defyleth hys syster Thamar. Absalom therfore killeth Ammon after sith for feare of his father Dauid.

A D it chaunced that Absalom Dauides sonne hadde a fayre sister named Thamar, whome afterwarde Ammon an other son of Dauid loued. And this Ammon was so bered that he fell speke for the loue of hys syster Thamar: for he thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, sith she was yet a virgin. But Ammon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah

the brother of David, which Jonadab was a very wise man. And he sayde vnto hym: howe commeth it that thou being the kinges sonne arte thus consumed euerye morning? make thou not tel me? And Ammon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absolons sister. Then sayd Jonadab vnto hym: lie on thy bedde, and laine thy self sicke, and when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: let my sister Thamar come and geue me meate, and dyes it in my sight that I may see it, and may eate it of hyr hand.

So Ammon laye downe, and made hym self sicke, and when the kyng was come to se him, Ammon sayed to hym: lette Thamar my sister come and make me a couple of fritters in my syghte that I may eate of hir hande. Then David sente home too Thamar, saying: go to thy brother Ammons house, and dresse hym meate. When Thamar came to hyr brothers Ammons house, he laye, and he toke flowre and made past and made fritters in hyr syghte, and dyd bake them, and toke a platter and poured them oute before hym. And Ammon would not eate, but commaunded to haue oute all menne frome hym, and they wente all oute frome hym.

Then sayde Ammon to Thamar, bringe the meate into the chambie, that I may eate of thy hande. And Thamar tooke the fritters which she had made, and brought them into the chambie of Ammon hyr brother, and sette them before hym to eate. And he toke hyr, and sayed vnto hyr: Come lye wth me my sister.

And she answered hym: naye my brother do not inforce me. For it oughte not too be so in Israel, do not this folie. * For whither shal I go wth my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the folies of Israel. But speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denie me vnto the. Howebeit he woulde not hearken vnto hyr voyce, but was so stronge for hyr, and * forced hyr, and laye with hyr. And then Ammon hated hyr exceedingly: so that the hate wherewith he hated her was greater then the loue with which he before loued hyr. And he sayed vnto hyr, a couple, and a wape.

Then she sayde vnto hym: this greates cruelly that thou puttest me away, passeth the other that thou diddest vnto me. Neuer thelesse he woulde not heare hyr, but called hyr ladd that waped vpon him, and saide put he oute of the doores from me, and bolt the doore after hyr. And she had a kittle of diuers coulours vpon hyr: For wth such were the kynges daughters that were byrgens apparelled, made straighte to them. Then hyr seruante broughte hyr oute at the doores, and locked the doores after hyr. And she put a bes on hir head, and rent hyr gay kittle that was vpon hyr, and put his hande vpon hyr heade: and so wente, and as she wente, cryed. Then Absalon hyr brother sayde vnto hyr: hath Ammon thy brother bene wth the? Howe then be still my sister, for he is thy brother, and let not this thyng greue thyne hearte. And so Thamar remayned discomforted in hyr brother Absolons house.

And king David heard of al these thynges: & was very wroth, and Absalon said to hyr brother Ammon nether good nor bad. Howebeit Absalon hated Ammon because he had forced hyr sister Thamar.

And it happened twopere after that Absalon had a shepe shepning in Baall Hazor besyde the tribe of Ephraim, & had al the kinges sonnes, and he came to the king and sayed: beholde thy seruante hath a shepe shepning, let the kyng and hyr seruantes come wth thy seruante.

And kyng David sayed: Oh naye my sonne, let vs not go euerye one of vs, that we be not chargeable vnto the. And Absalon laye soze vpon hym, howebeit he wold not go, but blessed hym. & they sayde Absalon, then lette my brother Ammon go with vs: And the kyng answered: what nedeth it that he go wth the? But Absalon made suche instance, that he lette Ammon go wth him, and all the kynges chyldren.

Then Absalon commaunded hyr pong me saying: make when Ammons herte is meete wth wyne, and when I bid pou smite Ammon, then kill him: feare not, for it is I that byd pou, be bould therefore, and play the luffie bloudes. And the ponge menne of Absalon serued Ammon, euen as Absalon hadde commaunded them. And all the kynges sonnes arose, and toke eche manne his Aquile and fledde.

And while they were yet in the way, the kynges came to David that Absalon had slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was lefte alyue. Then the kyng arose and face hyr garmente, and laye alonge vpon the earth, and all hyr seruantes stood by wth theyr clothes rente. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Davids brother answered and sayde: let not my Lord suppose that they haue slayne all the pong me the kyngs sones, none saue Ammon only is dead, for that hath he bene euer in Absalons mouth, lithens he forced hyr sister Thamar. Howe therefore let not my Lorde the kyng take the thyng so greuousely, too thyng that all the kyngs sonnes be dead, when Ammon onely is deade. But Absalon fledde, and the ponge man that kepthe the watche lyfte vpe hyr eyen and looked aboute, and behold: there came muche people by a waye that was behynde his backe, alonge by an hylle spile. Then sayde Jonadab vnto the kyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come, and as thy seruante said so it is. And as sone as he hadde left speake kyng, behold the kinges sonnes came and lyfte vp their voices and wepte.

And thereto the kyng and all hyr seruantes wept exceedingly. But Absalon escaped and wente to Holmai the sonne of of Amihud kynge of Gethur. And the kynge mourned for his sonne continuallye. And so Absalom escaped and wente to Gethur, and was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kynge turned hys mynde from pursuinge Absalom. For he had lefte mourninge for the deathe of Ammon.

The. xiii. Chapter.

By the wysdome of the woman of Gethur, Absalom is called. The comynesse of Absalom. Absalom spaketh Joabs cojne. His father bysseth hym.

When Joab the sonne of Zaruiah perceyued that the kynge's hert was tourned agayn to Absalom, he sent to Gethur, and set thre a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: seyne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mourninge apparell. And annoint not thy selfe wth oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the deathe of some bodie. And go to the kynge and speake on this manner vnto hym. And Joab taughte her what she shoulde saye.

Nowe when that the wyse of Gethur was come to speake wth the kynge, she fell on hyr face to the grounde, and sayde: helpe me O kynge, And the kynge sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? she answered: I am a widow & myne husband is deade. And thy handmaid had two sonnes which fought together in the fieldes, where was no man to go betwene them, and the one slewe the other.

And beholde, the whole kynred arose agaynst thy handmaide, and sayde, deliuer vs him that smote his brother: that we may kyl hym, for the soule of hys brother whiche he slewe, for we wyl destroye the heire also. And so they shall quench the mynke whiche is left, till there remayne neither name nor issue vpon the earth vnto my husband. The kynge sayde vnto the wyse: go home too thyne house, and I wyl gyue a charge for the. When the woman of Gethur sayed vnto the kynge: O my Lord king, the trespace be vpon me, and vpon my fathers house, and the kynge and his seate be gyltlesse.

And then sayde the kynge: if anye man saye oughte to the, bynke hym to me, and he shal no more trouble the. Then said she: lette the kynge remembre hys Lorde God, that the nexte of the bloude gather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they see not my sonne. And he sayde: as trulye as the Lorde liueth, that shal not one heere of thy sonnes heade fall to the earth.

Then the woman sayd: let thyne handmaide speake one worde more to my Lord the kynge. And he sayde: saye on. And the woman sayed, wherefore then haste thou determyned on this same maner agaynst the people of God: that the kynge shoulde speake this thyng and be faultye therein, so that the kynge shoulde not set home agayne hys banished? For we must needs dye and perishe, as water spylte on the grounde, whiche canne not be gathered vp agayne, and God will not take awaye the lyfe, but fynde the meanes that the banished be not utterly expelled from hym. And nowe concerning that I am come to speake of this thyng vnto my Lorde the kynge, for I stode in feare of the people: thy handmaid thought surely, I wil speake vnto the king, peradventure the king wil heare the request of his handmaid. And the king shal heare his handmaid, & deliuer hyr forth of the hand of the man that wold haue destroyed me and my sonne also out of the inheritaunce of God.

Then thy handmaide sayed: I praye God that the word of my Lord the kynge maye be vnderchaungeable. For my Lorde the kynge is an angell of God in hearinge of good or badde, and therefore the Lorde thy God be wth the. When the kynge answered and sayde to the woman: hyde not from me I praye thee, the thyng that I shal aske the. And the woman said: let my Lord the kynge saye on. Then sayd the kynge: Is not the hand of Joab wth the in all this matter? And the woman answered & sayd: as surely as thy soule lyueth, my Lord the kynge it is neyther on the right hand nor on the lefte that my Lord the kynge hath spoken. For thy seruant Joab bad me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thy handmaide: and that I shoulde thus turne my tale an other waye, wylled me thy seruant Joab. And so I see that my Lord is wyse, euen as an angell of God, to vnderstande all thynges that are in the earth.

Then sayd the kynge to Joab: beholde, I am contente to do this thyng. So therfore I fet home the yonge man Absalom. And Joab fel to the grounde on hys face, and bowed hym selfe, and blessed the kynge, and sayde: now thy seruante knoweth that I haue founde grace in the sight of my Lord the kynge, in that he hath fulfilled the request of his seruante. And so Joab arose and wente to Gethur, and broughte Absalom to Jerusalem. Then sayde the king: let hym tourne too hys owne house, and see he come not in my presence. And so Absalom wente to his owne house: but came not in the kinges presence. Moreover in all Israell there was not so goodlye a man as Absalom, or so greatly praised: from the sole of his fote to the top of his head, was no blemish in hym. And when he shaued his head (for at euery yere he shaued it because it was heauie on hym and therefore he shaued it) the heare thereof wared ii. C. sicke weighte of the kinges weighte. And this Absalom had thre sonnes borne hym and one daughter named Thamar, which was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yere in Jerusalem withoute commynge into the kinges presence, he sente for Joab to the intente to haue sente hym to the kinge. But he woulde not come come to him. And he sente agayne: and yet he woulde not come. Then he sayde vnto his seruantes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande faste by myne, and hath he barlye therein, so and set it on fyre. And Absaloms seruantes went and set it on fyre. When Joab arose and came too Absalom vnto his house, and sayed vnto him: Wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my field wth fyre? And Absalom sayde to Joab: beholde, I sente for the despyng the to come because I would haue sent the to the king for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gethur? It hadde bene as good for me too haue abydden there still. Now therefore let me come to the kynges presence, or elles if ther be anye trespass in me, kill me. And Joab wente to the kyng and tolde him. And he sente for Absalom: whiche when he was come, fell too the grounde on his face before the kyng. And the kyng kyssed hym.

The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst his father. Dauid is faine to fle for feare of hym.

After this, Absalom gat him charrettes and horses, and sittyng men to runne before him. And thereto he vsed to arise vppon earlye in the mornynge, and to stand by the wayes side that led too the gate of the cite. And all the menne of Israel that had complaintes and came to the kinge for iudgement, he called vnto him, and sayde: O what cōtpe arte thou? And when the other answered, thy seruante is of such a tribe of Israel. Then sayde Absalom vnto hym: see, me thinketh thy matter is good and righteous, and yet no man is appointed of the kinge to heare the. Then Absalom sayde further: Oh, that I were a iudge in the land, and that al men whiche haue lites and matters in the lawe shoulde come to me. For I would do them iustice. And also when anye manne came nigh to hym to do hym obsequence, he put forth his hande and toke him to him, and kyssed him. And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for iudgement, and thus he wanne the hertes of the menne of Israel. And at fourtye dayes ende Absalom sayde to the kyng: Let me go to Hebron, and paye my bowe whiche I haue vowed vnto the Lorde: for thy seruante bowed a bowe when I was in Gethur in the lande of Syria, sayinge: if the Lorde shall brynge me agayne to Jerusalem, I will serue the Lorde. And the kyng sayde, goo in peace. And so he arose and wente to Hebron. Then Absalom sente spies thorowoute all the tribes of Israel, sayinge: as sone as ye heare the voyce of the trompe blowe, saye: Absalom reigneth kyng in Hebron. And with Absalom wente two hundred men forth of Jerusalem that were called. And they wente wth pure hertes knowinge nothyng of the matter. Absalom sente also for Achitophel the Gilonite Dauides counselloure, and sette him oute of his cite Giloh when he sacrificed sacrifices, wher was wrought stronge treason. And the people due to Absalom in greute thronges. And ther came a messenger to Dauid, and saide. The hertes of the men of Israel are to folowe Absalom. Then sayd Dauid to al his seruantes that were with him at Jerusalem: arise and let vs flee, for we shal not otherwise escape from Absalom. Make speede to depart, leaste he come sodenly and catch vs, and bringe some mischief vpon vs, and smyte the cite with the edge of the sword. And the kynges seruantes saide to him: behold thy seruantes are ready to what soeuer my Lorde the kyng shal appointe. Then the king and al his household departed a fote. And he sette behynde him ten women that were his concubines, to kepe the house. And so the kyng and all the people wente forth a fote and taryed far from the house. And al his seruantes went by his side. And all the Gethites and all the Gheethites, and al the Gethites euen fire hundred men whiche were come a fote from Beth went before the kinge. Then sayde the kinge to Ethai the Gethite, wherfore shuldest thou go with vs also? Retourne and abide with the kinge, for thou art a stranger and art remoued from thine owne place. Thou canst not but pester daye, and shouldest thou be disquieted to daye to go wth vs? I will go whither I go, but retorne thou, carpe agayne thy brethren. And Ethai answered the kinge and said: as surely as my Lorde the king liueth in what place my Lorde the kinge shall be, whether in deathe or lyfe, there will thy seruante be. Then saide the kinge to Ethai, come and go forwarde. And Ethai the Gethite went forth with him, and al the children that were with him. And al the contrey wept wth a loude voyce. So al the people went forwarde the straight waye to the wyldernes. And beholde Sadock and all the Levites were with him, and bare the arcke of the testamente of God. And when they had sente downe the arcke of God, Abiathar came by, but the people were all come oute, oute of the cite. Then saide the kyng vnto Sadock: Carpe the arcke of God agayne into the cite. If I shal finde fauour in the eyes of the Lorde, he will brynge me agayne, and shewe me bothe it and the tabernacle therof also. But if the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Behold, here am I: lette him do with me what seemeth good in his eyes. The kyng sayde also vnto Sadock the priesste, thou arte a Gethite, retourne therefore into the cite in peace. And take pour two sonnes wth you, Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar, and se, I will hyde me in the felde of the wyldernes til ther come some woorde from you to be tolde me. And so Sadock and Abiathar carped the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem: and they taryed

And al the people that was with him, had euery man his heade couered, and as they wente wepte also. And one toulde Dauid, saying: Achitophel is one of them that haue conspired with Absalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Lord, turne the counsel of Achitophel into foolishnes. When Dauid was come to the top of the mounte and hadde bowed him selfe vnto God: behoulde, Husai the Arachite came agaynste him with his cote torne, and carthe vpon his heade. Vnto whome Dauid sayde: if thou go with me, thou shalt be a burden vnto me. But if thou retourne to the cite, then shalt thou save vnto Absalom: I wil be thy seruante o kinge: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruant, and now I am thine. And shalt disclose the counsell of Achitophel. And thou haste thee wth the Sadocke and Abiathar the priestes, to whome thou shalt shewe al thou canst heare oute of the kynges house. And beholde, pehaue wth you these two sonnes Ahimaaz Sadockes sonne, and Jonathas Abiathars sonne, by whom ye shal send me all ye canne heare. And so Husai Dauides frend gat him to the cite: And Absalom al so entered into Jerusalem.

The .xvi. Chapter.

Ziba hyngynge presentes to Dauid, bothe falsely accuse Michiboseth. Husai curseth Dauid and howleth stones at him. Absalom by the aduise of Achitophel speeth with his fatheres concubines.

When Dauid was a lytle paste the toppe of the hylle, beholde ziba the seruante of Michiboseth came agaynste him with a couple of asses saddled, and vpon them two .x. loaves, and ene hundred bunches of reasyns, and an .x. scaples of dyed figges, and a bottell of wine. Then sayde the kyng to ziba: What haste thou there? And ziba saide: Asses for the kynges householde to ride on, and bread and fruite for the pong me to cate, and wine to drinke if any manne fainte in the wyldernesse.

Then sayde the kyng: Where is thy masteres sonne? and ziba sayd vnto the kyng, beholde he taryeth styll at Jerusalem. For he sayde: This dape shall the house of Israell restore me the kyngdome of my father. Then sayd the kyng to ziba: behoulde thine are all that pertayned vnto Michiboseth. And ziba answered, I beseeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte my Lorde kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde thence came out a man of the kynde of the house of Saule named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he came oute cursinge. And thereto he cast stones at Dauid and at all the seruantes of synge Dauid, al the people and all the men of warre goinge parte on his right hande, and part on his lefte. And thus saide this Semei, when he cussed y kyng walke, walke, thou bloud shedder, and thou vnthuffie manne: The Lorde hath broughte vpon the, all the bloude of the house of Saule, in whose place thou hast reigned, and he hath deliuered the kyngdome vnto the hande of Absalom thy soune. And thou arte wrapped aboute with thine owne mischynesse, because thou arte a bloude shedder.

Then sayde Abisai the sonne of Zaruah vnto the kyng: Whye dothe this dead dog curse my Lorde the kyng? let me go and strike of his head. And the kyng said, What haue I to do wth you, yesonnes of Zaruah? Let hym curse, for the Lorde hath bidde hym curse Dauid. And who dare presume to save, wherfore dothe he so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, and to all his seruantes: behold, my sonne whych came out of mine owne bowels seekeh my lyfe, how muche more then may this sonne of Jemur do it? Suffer hym therefore to curse, for the Lorde hath bydden hym, happely the Lorde wyl looke on my wretchednes, and do me good for this cursing this dape. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Semei went along on the hylle syde, ouer against hym, and rayled as he wente, and threwe stones at hym, and caste dust. And the kyng and al that wer with him, came very wery, and rested them selues there.

And Absalom & all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Achitophel with him. And as soone as he was come Husai the Arachite Dauides frende wente vnto Absalom and sayd vnto him: god saue the kyng, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this thy kindness thou owest to thy frende? Whye wentest thou not wth him? And Husai said vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whome the Lorde and this people and all the menne of Israel chose his wil I be, & with him wyl I dwell: And furthermore, vnto whom shal I do seruaice but to his son? And as I was seruante before wth thy father so shal I be with the: Then spake Absalom to Achitophel: giue counsell what is beste for vs to do. Achitophel sayde to Absalom: Bette in to thy fathers concubines: whiche he hath lefte to keepe the house. For when al Israel shal heare that thou haste forled thy father then shal the bandes of all that are wth the, be strong. And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon the top of the house: And he wente in vnto his fathers concubines in the syghte of all Israel. And the counsel of Achitophel which he counseled in those dapes, euen as a man had asked counsell of God: so was all the counsell of Achitophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

The .xvi. Chapter.

Achitophel perceruing his counsell disallowed of Husai, and forsaken, hangeth him self.

Then Achitophel saide vnto Absalom: let me chose out twelue thousand men. And I wil forwarde and folowe after Dauid

David by night, and come vpon him while he is wep and weake handed, and wil slay hym, that al the people that are wpth hym shall see. And so will I smyte the kyng succowlesse, and wil bypunge agayne al the people vnto the, for thou teachehest but after one mā, and al the people shal haue rest. And the saynge pleased Absalom wel, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayd Absalom: cal also Hushai the Arachite, and let he hear his aduice. When Hushai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, saynge: Achitophel hath geuen such counsel, wherether it be best we do after his saying or not tell thou. Then sayd Hushai to Absalom: the counsel that Achitophel hath geue, is not good at this tyme. For sayde Hushai thou knowest thy father & the men that are with hym, howe they be stronge men. And they be chased in their myndes, as a hear robbed of her whelpes. And moreouer thy father is a man practised in warre, and wyl not spe & nightes amonges the comen people. Perchaunce he nowe lurketh in some caue or in some other place. And though he some of his menne be ouerthrowen at the first brunt, yet they that hear it wil thinke the people that foloweth Absalom bee put by the worke. By reason whereof euen the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lions, shall shynke thereat. For al Israel knowe that thy father is a dour man, & that they which be with him be valiaunt men. But my counsel is that al Israel be gathered vnto the, fro Banto Berseba, as the sand of the sea in numbre, and that thou go to battel in thine own persō: And we shal come vpon him in one place or other where we shall fynde him, and we shall pytche a felde agaynst him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be left. neyther he nor anye of them all that were with him. Moreouer if he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel compass that cite rounde aboute wpth ropes, and we will drawe it into the cuer, untill there be not one stone founde vpon another. And Absalom and all the menne of Israel sayde that the counsell of Hushai the Arachite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lords intent to destroy the counsell of Achitophel, whiche was good, that the Lord might bange euill vpon Absalom. Then sayde Hushai vnto Sadocke and Abiathar the puelles: on this and that maner did Achitophel and the elders of Israel counsell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceled. Nowe therefore sende quicky and shewe David, saynge: tarpe not all nyghte in the felde of the wilderness, but get the ouer lea the kyng be deuouted, and all the people that ace with him. Nowe Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the well Rogell, for they myghte not be sene to come into the cite. And a wenche wente and tolde them. And they to go and shewed kyng David. After theleise there was a lad saw them whiche tolde it to Absalom. But they wente both of them away quicky, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, whiche hadde a well in his parde, into whiche they wente downe. And the wyfe tooke and sprade a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed thereon sleepd barley to dype. And the thyng was not espied. So when Absolons seruantes came to the wyfe to the house, and asked where one Ahimaaz and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them: they be gone ouer the litle broke of water. And when they had sought them and could not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the othet came out of the well & wente and tolde kyng David and said vnto him: aryse and get you quickly ouer the water, for such counsell hath Achitophel geuen. The David arose, and all the people that wer with him, and they were come ouer Jordan by daye lycht, so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Achitophel sawe his counsell was not folowed, he saddled his asse, and rose, and gat him home to his owne cite, and set his household in order, and hanged hym selfe and dyed, and was buryed in the buryall of his father. Then David came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, bothe he and all the men of Israel with him. Then Absalom made Amaza captayne of the hoste in steade of Joab: whiche Amaza was a mans sonne named Jethra a Jezraelite that wente into Abigail the doughter of Naah. Sister to Zarahiah Joabs mother. And Israel and Absalom pitched in the lande of Galaad. And when David was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Naah of Rabath the cite of the chyldren of Ammon, and Achimelech the sonne of Amiel of Lodaber, and Bezai & Salaadit of Rogell, brought beddes, basens and earthen vessels: and also coine, barley, flour, and parched corne, benes, and rice, hony, butter, shepe & chese of kine, for David and al the people that wer with him to eat. For they supposed that the people shulde be hongry, saynt, and thyrstie in the wilderness.

And he sente one part of them with Joab, and an other parte wpth Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde parte wpth Asai the Bethite. Then sayde the kynge: what seemeth pou beste, that wyl I doo. And the kynge stode by the gates syde, and all the people came oute by hundreds and by thousands. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayinge: se that ye save my sonne Absolom. And all the people hearden when the kynge gaue all the capitaynes charge vpon Absolom. And the people went out into the fildes agaynst Israel, and the battell was in the wood of Ephraim. And it chaunced Absolom to come before the seruauntes of Dauid riding on a gyle whych carried him vnder the thicke bowes of a great oke. And bys heade caughte in the oke, so that he hong betwene heauē and earth, and the gyle that was vnder him went away. And one sawe it that tolde Joab sayinge: behold, I sawe Absolom hang in an oke: & Joab sayed to him that tolde him, lo, sawest thou hym? And whych dydeste not thou there smyte hym to the grounde, that I shoulde haue gyuen the ten speles of syluer and a souldours girdle.

And the man answered Joab: though I hadde a thousande speles of syluer tolde in my hande, yet wold I not stretche oute myne haude agaynst the kynges sonne. For we hearde wyth oure eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayinge: se that ye save no handes vpon my sonne Absolom. Moreover though I had leoparded my lyfe: & done falsly. yet coulde I nought of all the matter haue bene byd fro the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldest be agaynst me. Then sayde Joab I maye not stande to pence wyth the I, wyl I vpon hym before thy face.

And there wyth he toke thre speares in his hande and thruste them into the hart of Absolom whyle he was yet aloue on the bodye of the tree. And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs wepōs, turned and smote Absolom and slue hym. Then Joab blew a trumpet, and the people retourned from pursuing Israel: for Joab spak the people. And they toke Absolom, and caſte hym into a greate pyre that was in the wood, and caſt a myghty great heap of stones vpon him. Then al Israel fled euery man to his tent. And this Absolom yet in bys lyfe tyme created by a pyller, whych is yet in kynges dale. For he sayed: I haue no male childe. And therefore to kepe my name in remembraunce, doo I it. And he called the pyller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Absoloms pyller.

Then sayed Abimaaz the sonne of Sadocke: let me run & beate the kinge tydynge, how the Lorde hath gyuen him out gement forth of the handes of his enemyes. Joab said to him: thou art no man to beate tidings this day: thou shalt beate tydynge an other tyme, but to day thou shalt beate none, bycause the kynges sonne is deade. Then said Joab to Abusi, go and tel the kynge what thou hast seene.

And Abusi bowed hym selfe vnto Joab and ran. Then sayd Abimaaz the sonne of Sadocke agayne to Joab: come what come wyl, let me run I pray the after Chusi. And Joab said: Wherfore shuldest thou runne my son? for albeit thou run, þ gettest no reward, but he sayed: Well, come what wyl, let me run. And he said to him: runne. Then Abimaaz came by the playne, and ouer came Chusi.

Dauid sat betwene the two Gates.

And the watche manne wente vp to the course ouer the gate vnto the wall, & lyfte vp bys eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a manne runnyng alone. And the watche man called, and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde: if he come alone, there is tidings in his mouth. And he came and dyed nye. And the watchman saw an other man runnyng, and called vnto the porter and sayed, beholde, there cometh an other runnyng alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydynge bringer. And the watche man sayed: me thynketh the runnyng of the formost, is lyke the runnyng of Abimaaz the sonne of Sadocke. And the kynge sayed: he is a good manne, and cometh wyth good tydynge. And Abimaaz called and sayed to the kynge: good tydynge, and bowed hym selfe to the earth before the kynge and sayd: blessed be the Lord thy God whych hath * luffe vp all the menne that lyfe by thy handes agaynst my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayed is the ladde Absolom safe? And Abimaaz answered: I sawe a great hurle burle, when the kynges seruaunte Joab sente me thy seruaunte. But I wote not what it was. And the kynge sayed: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde, Chusi came and sayed: good tydynge my liege syr kynge, the Lord hath quit the this daye oute of the handes of all that arose agaynst the. And the king sayed to Chusi, is the ladde Absolom safe? And Chusi answered, the enemyes of my lord the kynge, and all that ryle agaynst the to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kynge was moued and wente vp to a chabrie ouer the gate, and wepte. And as he wente thus he sayed, my sonne Absolom, my sonne my sonne, my sonne Absolom. wold to God I hadde dyed for the Absolom, my sonne, my sonne.

Dauid is restored to his kyngedome, and broughte agayne to Hierusalem.

It was told Joab that the kyng wept and mourned for Absolon. And the hypocrite was touned that daye into mournynge to all the people. For the people heard that daye howe the kyng sorowed for hys sonne, and the people went weeping into the cite, even as people confounded do steale away, when they see in battell.

And the kynge hadde hys face, and cryed with a lowde voyce: my sonne Absolon Absolon my sonne my sonne. Joab therefore wente into the house to the kyng and sayed: thou haste abashed thys daye the faces of all thy seruantes, whiche thys daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sones and daughters, and the lyues of thy wyues and concubynes, in þ thou lovest thine ennemys and hatest thy frendes. Thou haste declared thys daye that þ carest not nerher for thy captains nor thy seruantes. For now I evidently perceyue if Absolon had lyued, and all we dyed thys day, it had pleased the wel. Now therefore arise come abode, and speake kindlye vnto thy seruantes. I sweare by the Lord, onlesse thou come out, there will not scape one man with the thys night: wch thing wil be worke vnto the, then al the euil that fel on the from thy pouth vnto this houre. And the kyng arose and sate downe by the gate. And it was tolde vnto all the people, howe the kyng sate in the gate. And then all the people came before the kyng. But Israel fledde euery man to hys tente. And al the people were at Aysle, thowme oute all the kyntredes of Israel, sayinge: the kynge deliuered vs oute of the hande of our enemies, and he deliuered vs oute of the hande of the Philistines: And now he is fledde oute of the Lande for Absolon. But Absolon whom we annoynted ouer vs, is deade in battelle. Nowe therefore why are ye so still, that ye bringe not the kyng agayne? And kyng Dauid sente to Sadock, and Abiathar the priest, sayinge: Speake vnto the elders of Iuda and saye: why shoulde ye be the laste that shoulde bringe agayne the kyng to hys house, sithe suche tydnynges is come from all Israel vnto the kyng, euen vnto hys house? Ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesh wherfore then shoulde ye be the laste that shoulde come to bringe the kyng home agayne? And saye to Amasa: arte not thou my bone and my flesh? And God be so to me, and so, onles thou be capytayne of the hoste vnto me for euer in the towne of Iuda: and be doctored the herres of all the men of Iuda, as a manne would both the heart of one man: so that they set worde to the kyng, that he shoulde retorne with al his seruantes. And the kyng retourned and came to Iordan.

And Iuda came to Balgail to the in-sent to mete the kyng and conuey hym ouer Iordan. And Semer the sonne of Becer the sonne of Lemuy which was of Basburim, basted and came with the men of Iuda to mete kyng Dauid, and a thousande men of Ben Iamin with hym, and Ziba the seruaunte of the house of Saule and his xv. sonnes, and thientie seruantes with hym. And they whyppe ouer Iordan before the kyng. And there wente ouer a Bote to carpe ouer the kynges householde, and to do hym pleasure. And Semer the sonne of Becer fell before the kyng, as he was come ouer Iordan, and sayed to hym: let not my lord accompte wyckednes vnto me, nor let hym not remember the wyckednes that thy seruaunte dyd, when my lord the kyng departed for the of Ierusalem, that the kyng shoulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunte doeth knowe hys offence. And therefore beholde, I am the firste thys daye of all the house of Iosephe that am come to mete my lord the kyng. But Abisay the sonne of Zairubabauismere and sayd: shal not Semer dye for these wordes þ he reuiled the lordes annoynted with? And the kyng sayde: What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zairubab, that ye shoulde thys daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no manne dye thys daye in Israel, for I knowe I am made thys daye kyng ouer Israel. And the kyng sayed vnto Semer, thou shalt not dye, and swate vnto hym.

And Achishbozeth the sonne of Saule came also to mete the kyng, and hadd reuerent biesse his feete, nor shauen hys beard nor washed his clothes, from the tyme the kyng departed, till he came agayne in peace. And whē he was come to Hierusalem toward þ kyng, þ kyng said vnto him: Wherfore wentest not thou w me Achishbozeth? And he said, my lord kyng, my seruaunte deceiued me. For thy seruaunt said that I would haue myue alle sabled to ryde theron, for to go to the kyng because thy seruaunt is lame: And he hath thereto complayned vnto my lord the kyng. But my lord the kyng is as an angell of God, do therefore what semeth beste in thine eyes. For all my fathers house were but deade men vnto my lord the kyng, and yet dydest þ put me amonge them þ eate at thine owne table. What tpyghte therefore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kyng? And the kyng sayed: It needeth thee not to speke anye more. For I haue sayed, that thou and ziba shall deuyde the Lande betwene you. And Achishbozeth sayed vnto the kyng, yea let hym take al, for so muche as my lord the kyng is come in peace to hys owne house.

And Berzelai the Galaadite came fro Rogelym, and wente ouer Iordan with the kyng, to accompanye hym ouer Iordan: whiche Berzelai was a bette aged man, euen foure score yeres olde, and had prouided prouded the kynge of sustenance whyle he lay at Mahanaim: for he was a manne of very grete substance. And the kynge sayd vnto Berzelai: come thou with me, that I may see the wyrd me in Ierusalem. But Berzelai sayd vnto the kynge. Of what age am I, that I should go with the kynge into Ierusalem? I am this day foure score yere olde: and therfore cannot decerne fauour from vnfauour, neyther hath thy seruante pleasure in that hee eareth or disuether by the yet delectacion in the songes of men or women. It is no neede that thy seruante be a burthen vnto my lord the kynge: let thy seruante goo a litle way ouer Iordau with the kynge, for wher should the kynge geue me such a reward? But let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne owne cuntrye, and be buryed by the graue of my father, & mother. But so here is thy seruante Chamaam, let hym goo with my lord the kynge, and do to hym, what shall please the. And the kynge answered: Chamaam shall goo with me. And I will do to hym that thou shalt be contente with. Yea and whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people wente ouer Iordau.

And when the king was come ouer Iordau, he kist Berzelai and blessed hym, and he wente backe agayne vnto his own place. And then the kynge wente forth to Balgal, and Chamaam wente with him. Now, all the men of Iuda were at the bringyng ouer of the king, and but halfe the men of Israel. Wherfore all the men of Israel came to the king and sayed to hym: wherfore haue our brethren the men of Iuda stolen the awaye, & haue brought the king & his household, and all Dauides men with him ouer Iordau.

And all the men of Iuda answered the menne of Israel: for the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrie for that matter? thynke ye that we care of the kynge's cosse, or that the kynge geue vs anye gyfte? And the men of Israel answered the men of Iuda and sayd: we haue ten partes in the kynge, and haue thereto more right to Dauid then ye: Why then byd ye dyspse vs, that oure aduise hadoe not bene litte hadde in restoringe oure kynge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Iuda were feareder then the wordes of the men of Israel.

The .xx. chapter.

Seba the sonne of Bochiz raiseth Israel agaynste Dauid. Joab kylleth Amasa traipour. The head of Seba is geuen to Joab, Dauid's reuelers are numbyed.

THAT happened to be an vnthyrtie personne named Seba the sonne of Bochiz a manne of Remin, whiche blew a trumpet, and sayed: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor enheritaunce in the sonne of Isay, O Israel: let vs depart therfore euery manne to his tent. And all Israel wente from Dauid and folowed Seba the sonne of Bochiz. But the menne of Iuda claued fast vnto the kynge from Iordau to Ierusalem. And wher Dauid was come to his house to Ierusalem, he take the ten women his concubynes that he had left behynde hym to kepe his house, and put theym in ward, and mynistered all thynges vnto them, but laye no more with them. And so they were closed vnto the daye of the death of them, and luyed a widowes lyfe.

Then said the kynge to Amasa: assemble me the men of Iuda within thre dayes, and present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to assemble the menne of Iuda: but taryed longer then the tyme appoynted hym. Wherfore the kynge sayd to Abisai. Now shall Seba the sonne of Bochiz be worthe to vs then Absalon. Take thou therfore thy maisters seruantes, and folowe after hym, leaue he gette hym walled cuntrye and escape vs.

And they went oute after hym Joab and the Cherethites, and the Ishelchites, and menne of strength. And they departed oute of Ierusalem to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochiz: And when they were come to the grete stone in Gabaon, Amasa mette hym. And Joab had his garmettes that he wore about him, girded vnto him and had girded thereon a knyfe toged faste to his loynes in a sheath, oute of whiche he myght easely come forth.

And Joab sayd to Amasa: are all thynges readye my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chynne with the righte hand as though he would haue kyssed him. And Amasa toke no heed to the knife that was in Joabs hande, with whiche Joab smote hym in the whette rybbes, and webbe oute his bowels to the grounde, and smot hym but one stroke, and he dyed.

And then Joab and Abisai together pursued Seba the sonne of Bochiz. And one of Joabs men that rode by the deade cosse of Amasa, sayd: What is he, that he shoulde be as Joab, and what is he that he shoulde be vnto Dauid in steede of Joab? And Amasa lay a wallowynge in bloude in the myddell of the waye. And there was a manne that sawe howe all the people rode apl to gase vpon hym, and he comled Amasa oute of the waye into the feld, and caste a cloth vpon hym. And as sone as he was tumbled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochiz.

And he wente thowhe all the rybbes of Israel, vnto Abell, Bethmaacah, and all Batym. And the people gathered vnto hym, and wente also after hym. And they came & beseged hym in Abell Bethmaacah. And they caste by a bancke agaynste the cuntrye. And it was beseged. All the people that were with Joab laboured busily to surmounte the walles.

And Dauid sayd, I will geue them you. (I. re. xlviii. a.) But the kynge had compassion on Michi-boseth the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the lordes ory that was betwene Dauid & Jonathas, the sonne of Saul. But he toke the thre sonnes of Rezphab the daughter of Aiah, which she bare vnto Saule, Armonye, and Michiboseth, and the thre sonnes of Michol, the daughter of Saul, which she bare to Adipell the sonne of Berzelai the Golarhyte, and de-liuered them vnto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the Lorde.

These seuen were al slaine at once in the first dayes of heruest: euen in the begynning of barley haruest. And Rezphab the daughter of Aiah toke sacke clothe and sprede it vnder hir vpon the rocks, euen from the beginning of heruest, vntill calie dropped vpon them out of heuen, and suffered neyther þ birds of the ayre to falle on them by day, nor beastes of the fild by nyght.

¶ When it was tolde what Rezphab the daughter of Aiah, the concubynne of Saule had done, he wente and toke the bones of Saule, and of Jonathas his sonne of the men of Jabes in Galaad, which they had ybilidines had daged the in þ daies when the ybilidines had slaine Saul in Gelboe.

And brought thence the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his sonne, and they set away the bones of them þ were hanged, & buried them with the bones of Saul & Jonathas his sonne, in the countrepe of Beniamyn in zela in the sepulchre of Eys his father.
And when they had performed all that the king commaunded, God was appeased wth the lad. And the ybilidines had yet again warre wth Israell. Dauid therfore wente downe and his seruantes wyth hym, and fought wth the ybilystynes.
And Dauid waxed saynter, and Helpe of Abi one of the sonnes of Haraphab, whose speare heade wayed thre hundred fyces of bylle, and was gyde wth a new sword, thoughte to haue slayne Da-uid. But Abisai the sonne of Zaiurab suc-coured hym, and smote the ybilidynne, and slawe hym.

¶ Then the seruantes of Dauid swore vnto hym sayinge. Thou shalt goo no more forth wth vs to battayle, that the lyght of Israell be not put out. And there was yet after this, battel wth the ybilystynes at Abi, in which the Sobochay the Golarhyte slawe Saph of the sonnes of

of Haraphah. And there was yet the third battayl in Gosh, with the Philistines, wher Elishan the sonne of Haree Digin, a Bethlehemitte, slew one Goliath a Gethite, the staffe of whose speere was as great as a weavers cloth beame.

And there was yet a battell in Geth, where was a man of great heighth, who had on euery hande fyve fingers, and on euery fote fyve toes. xxiii. in all. And was also of the kyndred of Haraphah, and defied Jscall. And Jonathan the sonne of Samueh the brother of Dauid slew hym. These. iiii. were the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth; and were overthrowen by the hand of Dauid and his seruantes.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The song of Dauid for his deliuerie from his enemies.

And Dauid spake the wordes of this Ballade vnto the Lorde what tyme the Lorde had deliuered hym out of the handes of all his enemies, and out of the handes of Saule.

And he sayd: The Lorde is my rocke my castell, & my sauoure, God is my strength and in hym will I truste: my shield, and the hewe that defendeth me, myne high hold & refuge: my sauour & what saue me from wyckednes. I will praise and call vpon the Lorde, and so shal I be saued from myne enemies. For the Roymes of death haue closed me aboute, & the cloudes of Delpal haue feared me. The cordes of hell haue entouned me, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulacion I called vnto the Lorde, and cryed vnto my God. And he heard my voyce out of his temple, and my cry entered into his eares. The earth trembled and quake, and the foundations of beuē moued and shoke because he was angrie.

Smoke wente oute at his nosegaylles and consumynge fyre oute of his mouth, that it kindled coales. He boomed heauen and came downe, and darkened vnderneath his seete. And he rode vpon Cherubyn & flew: & appeared vpon the wynges of the wind. And he made darkenesse a tabernacle roundabout hym, with water congeled in the thicke cloudes. Of the brightnesse that was before hym, coles were sette on fyre. The Lorde thounded from heauen, and the most hygh put out his voyce. He shotte arrows and scattered them, and hurled lyghtenynge, and turmoiled them. And the bottome of the sea appeared, and the foundations of the world were seene, by reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thowome the blastyng of the breache of his nosegaylles. He sent from aboue and fet me, & plucked me oute of myghty waters. He deliuered me fro my myghty enemy, & fro the þat hated me, & were to stryde for me. Whē they had beseged me in þe day of my affliction, the Lorde aided me vp. And he brought me out at large and deliuered me, because he deliued in me. The Lorde rewarded me after my ryghtwysnesse, and accordynge to the purenesse of my handes he requiered me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wyckednesse by forsakynge my God. But I had all his lawes in my syght, neither I countred my face from anye of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto hymwarde, and kept my selfe from vngodlynesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghtwysnesse, and after my purenesse that I had in my ryghte. Wherof the holy thou shalt be holpe, and with the man that is vncorrupte, thou shalt be vncorrupt. Wherof the pure thou shalt be pure and with the frowarde thou shalt be froward also. And the people that are in aduersitie, thou shalt helpe. And on the proud shalt thou cast thine eyes, to put the down. Thou art my lyght (O Lorde) & the Lorde shall lighte my darkenesse. With thy helpe I wil run thowow an hooile of men, and by the aide of my God wil spring ouer a wal. The wape of God is vnderpiled, and the word of the Lorde tryed as golde, and he a shield to all that truste in hym.

Who is a God saue the Lorde, and who myghty saue our God? God is my strength in war, & ridder the way cleare before me: And maketh my fete as swyfte, as an byndes, & setteth me fast vpon my high holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fyght, & that a bow of brasse is to weke for myne armes.

And thou hast saued me wth thy shield, and thy gentlines hath multiplyed me. Thou madest me loose to walke in, that my fete should not lagge. I folowed myne enemies & destroyed the, & turned not agayne til I had consumed them. I wasted them & so browset them, that they coude not aspye: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou dyddest compasse me aboute with myghty battell, and made thepne that arose against me, to stoupe vnder me. Thou madest myne enemies to stoune their backs to me, & them that hated me & I destroyed them. They looked for helpe: but none came to saue the. Vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he herd the not. I wil beat them as smal as the dust of the earth, and wil stampe them as the byrte of the sicke and wil spread them abroad.

Thou deliuered me from the dysfencyon of my people, and kept me to be an hed ouer nations: for the people whiche I knew not became my seruantes.

And the straungers shal make no respyce agaynst me, & shal obey me at a word.

And the alienes that synke away, shal tremble for feare, in their defended places.

The Lorde lyue, and blessed be he that is my strength: & exalted be God the strength & sauer me: It is God that auenged me, & bringeth down the people vnder me. And deliuered me fro mine enemies. Thou lyf in strength sette me vpon hygh fro the þat aspye agaynst holdes.

Godly men haue called the Lorde by diuers names accordynge to their sayng, what is as they thought of god with in them selves, and as they also had proued. As Dauid here calleth hym his works, his lyf, his deliuerer.

For, his strength, his shield, his hewe of beaute, &c. Psal. xlviii.

* That is, the deues of god or pure & vncorrupt

That is to run away, & be from me.

And when he was come before the kyng, he made obeysaunce vnto the kyng vpon his face vnto the grounde, and said: O my lord king hast thou sayde: Adonias shall raigne after me, and he shall sitte vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye and hath offered oxen, fatlinges, and shepe plentyfullpe, and hath called al the kyngs sonnes and the captaynes of the hoste, and Abiathar the puest. And se: theye ate and drinke before him, and say: God saue kyng Adonias. But me thy seruaunt and Sadocke the puest, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruaunte Salomon he hath not called. Then king David answered and sayde: Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before hym. And the king sware: sayinge. As surely as the Lord (that hath rid my soule oute of all aduersite) lyueth, euen as I sware vnto the by the Lorde God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon shall raigne after me, so wyl I do this daye. 6. Ps. xlii.

And

And all the people came bp after him piping with pipes, and reioysing greatly, so that the earth rang wpth the sounde of them.

And Adonias and all the gesses that wer with him herde it, even as they hadde made an ende of eatinge. And when Joab herde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: howe happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cite? And as he yet spake: se, Jonathas the sone of Abiathar the pueste came. And Adonias sayde: come for thou arte a lustye bloude, and by agest good tpyngs. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adonias: Werelpe oure Lorde kyng David hath made Salomon king. And the kyng sente wpth hym, Sadocke the pueste, and Nathan the prophete: and Banaiah the sone of Joiada, and the Cherethites and the Ishethites. And they haue sette hym vpon the kynges chaire, and Sadocke the puest and Nathan the prophete haue anointed him kinge in Bihon. And as they came bp again, they reioysed that the cite sounded agayne. And that is the noyse that ye haue herde. And therto Salomon sitteth on the seate of the kingdome. And moreover the kyngs seruants went in to blesse our lord king David: saying, thy god make the name of Salomon more full of fauour the thine, and his seate more glorious then thine.

And the king bowed himself vpon the bed. And laste of al thus sayde the kyng: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, who hath made one to sitte on my seate this day, myne eyes sepyng it. Then all the gesses that were with Adonias were a raled, and rose vpye, and wente euerye manne hys waye. But Adonias fearng Salomon, arose, and wente and caughte holde on the hornes of the altre.

And it was tolde Salomon, that Adonias as for feare of kyng Salomon hadde caughte holde by the hornes of the altre, saying: let king Salomon sweare vnto me this dape, that he wil not slea his seruante wpth the swerde. And Salomon said: if he wil be a good man, there shall not an heare of his heade fall to the earth: But if wickednes shall be founde in hym, he shall dye for it. And therupon kyng Salomon sent and fet him downe from the altre. And he came and dyd obeysaunce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayed vnto hym: gette the to thine house.

The ii. Chapter.

David dyeth. Adonias requireth to have Abisag to his concubine, & therefore Salomon commaundeth to slea hym. Abiathar is put fro his priesthode. Hemei & Joab are slain.

When the dayes of David were drawen npe that he shoulde die, he charged Salomon his sonne sayinge: I muste walke by the waye of all the worlde, neuerthelesse be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfullye. And se thou kepe the appointmente of the Lorde thy God, that thou walcke in hys wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordynances, lawes and testymones as it is wyttte in the law of Moyses, that thou mayste vnderstande all that thou oughtest too do, and all that thou shouldest meddle wpth, that the Lorde maye make good his promes, whiche he hath promysed me, sayinge: if thy chyldeyne shall take heede to their wayes, that they walcke before me in truthe wpth all theyr heartes, and wpth all theyr soules: then thou shalt neuer be wpthout one sitting on the seate of Israell.

* Moreover thou wotest howe Joab the sonne of zacariah hath serued me, and what he hath done to the two capitaynes of the hostes of Israell: to Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa the sonne of Iether, howe he slewe them, and shedde the bloude of warre in tyme of peace, and put the bloud of war vpon his gyrdle that was aboute hys loynes, and in his shoes were on his fete. Deale wpth hym therfore accordinge to thy wisdom, and se thou bring not his grape head down to the graue in peace. And shew kindnes to the sonnes of Beresai the Galaadite, & let them be amog them that eate at thy table, because they so claue to me when I fled from Absolom my brother.

* And lo, thou hast wpth the Hemei, the sonne of Bera, the sonne of Semu of Bahurim: whiche Cursed me wpth a bitter curse, what tyme I wente too Mahanaim. But he came agaynst me to Jordan, & I sware vnto him by the Lord, saying: I wil not slea the with the swerd. But pardon thou him not. Thou art a man of wisdom, & shalt know what to do to him, se therfore thou bringe his grep heade to the graue wpth bloude.

And so David rested with his fathers and was buryed in the cite of David. And the dayes whiche David raygned vpon Israell were fortye yeres, seuen yere in Hebron, and thirtie and thre yere in Ierusalem. * So Salomon sat vpon the seate of David his father. And his kingdome was stablyshed myghtelye. After this, Adonias the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe, the mother of Salomon. And she sayde: betokeneth this coming peace? And he said: it betokeneth peace. Then sayd he, I haue a matter to shewe the. And she saide sape on. And he sayde thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israell sette theyr eyes on me that I shoulde raygne, howbeit the kyngdome was turned away, & geuen to my brother: for it was appointed hym of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticioun of the, wherefore denye me not.

And she sayde vnto hym: tel what it is. Mat. i. c.

And kyng Salomon answered and saped vnto hys mother: whye doeste thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adonias? I sape, rather aske for hym the kyngdome: for he is mine elder brother: euen for him aske it, and for Abiathar the priest, and for Joab the sonne of Zeruiah. Then king Salomon sware by the Lord, saying. God do so to me and so, if Adonias haue not spoken agaynst him selfe. Howe therefore, as surely as the Lord spureth, who hath established me, and sette me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hath made me an house as he promised me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kyng Salomon sente by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Jojada, and smote him that he died. And vnto Abiathar the priest saped the kyng: gette thee to Anathoth vnto thine own felowes: for thou arte worthe deathe: but I wil not at this tyme kyll the, because thou barest þe arke of the Lord before Dauid my father, & because thou sufferedst wth my father in afflictions.

II. Reg. vii.

And so Salomon putte awaye Abiathar from being priest vnto the Lord, to fulfill the wordes of the Lord, whiche he spake ouer the house of Beth in Siloh. Then the kynges came to Joab, for Joab had turned after Adonias, but not after Salomon.

II. Reg. ii. c.

Wherefore he fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lord, and caughte houlde on the hornes of the altier. And it was told king Salomon howe Joab was fled to the tabernacle of the Lord, and stode by the altier. Then Salomon sente Banaiah the sonne of Jojada, sayinge: go and smyte hym.

And whē Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lord, he saped vnto him: thus saythe the kyng: come oute. And he saped nape. But I wil dye here. And Banaiah broughte the kyngs worde, sayinge: thus saped Joab, and thus he answered me. Then the kyng saped, do euen as he hath saped, smyte hym, And burie hym, and take awaye the bloude whiche Joab shedde causeles from me, and from the house of my father: and the Lord bringe hys bloude vpon hys owne heade: for he smote two menne rightwys and better then he, and slewe them wth the swerde, my father bnweth. I sape, euen Abner the sonne of Neri, captain of the host of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, captain of the host of Juda, and theyr bloude retorne vpon the heade of Joab, and on the head of hys seide for euer, and prosperite be vnto Dauid, and vnto hys seide, and vnto hys house, and vnto hys seide of the Lord for euer. And Banaiah the sonne of Jojada wente by, and smote hym, and slew hym, and buried him in hys owne house in the wilderness, and the kyng put Banaiah the sonne of Jojada in hys room, ouer the host, and put Sadoch the priest in the rowme of Abiathar.

Then the kyng sent, and called Semei, and saped vnto hym: buyld the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest out and passest ouer the riuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye for it, and thy bloude shall be on thine own heade. Semei saped vnto the kyng: it is well saped, as my Lord the kyng hath sayd, so will his seruaunt do. And Semei dwelle in Jerusalem manye a daye. And it chaunced at the ende of thre yere, that twoo of the seruautes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah kyng of Geth.

And one told Semei, sayinge: se, thy seruants be in Geth. And Semei rode by, & saddled his asse, and gate him to Geth to Achis to seeke his seruantes, and came and brought them againe from Geth.

But it was tolde Salomon how Semei hadde gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent, and called Semei, and saped vnto him: dyd I not sware by the Lord, and recorded vnto the, sayinge: be sure when soeuer thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, thou shalt dye. And thou answeredst me: it is good to dynges that I haue hearde? Whye then haste thou not kepte the othe of the Lord: and the commandemente that I commaunded the? And then þe kyng saped vnto Semei: thou remembreste all the wickednesse whiche thynne hert knoweth, that thou dydest vnto Dauid my father. The Lord therefore render agayne thy wickednesse vpon thynne owne heade: and king Salomon be blessed, and the seate of Dauid be settled before the Lord for euer. And the kyng commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Jojada: whiche wente oute and smote hym that he died. And so was þe kyngdome settled in the hand of Salomon.

Then Salomon dyne affinitie with Pharaoh kyng of Egypt, & toke his daughter and brought her into the cytpe of Dauid, tyl he had made an end of buylding his owne house and the house of the Lord, and the walles of Jerusalem round about. Only the people sacrificed in altiers made on hylls, because ther was no house buyld for the name of the Lord til those daies. Salomon doubtles loued the Lord, & walked in þe ordinaunces of Dauid his father, save onlpe onlye that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon altars in hylls.

And the kyng wente to Sabaon to offer there, for that was a greatesse offerynge place. And there Salomon offered a thousande burnt offerynge vpon that altare. And in Sabaon the Lord appeared to Salomon in a dreame by night. And God said. Aske what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayd: thou haste shewed vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father greatesse mercede, because that he walked before the Lord in truth and in rightousnesse and playnes of herte wth the Lord. And thou hast kept for hym this greatesse mercede, that thou haste geuen hym a sonne to sette on his seate: as it is come to passe this daye. * And nowe Lord my God, it is

W thou that haste made thy seruaunt king, in the rowme of Dauid my father. * And I am a yonge ladde, and wot not howe to orde my selfe. And thy seruaunt is in the middes of thy people whiche thou hast chosen, a people that are so manie that they canne not be tolde nor numbered for multitude. * Geue therefore vnto thy seruaunt an vnderstandinge herte to iudge thy people, and to decerne betwene good and bad. For who is able to iudge this thy people so waighty a people? And it pleased the Lord well that Salomon had desired this thyng.

Wherefore God sayed vnto hym: because thou haste asked this thyng, and hast not asked longe lyfe, neither hast asked riches nor the lues of thine enemies, but hast asked the discrecion to vnderstande equyte: Lo, I haue done accordynge to thy petytion: and beholde, I haue geuen the a wise and an vnderstandinge herte, so that there was none lyke heretofore, nether after the. * Shall anye arse lyke vnto the. And thereto I haue geuen the that thou askedest not, bothe rychesse and honoure: so that there shall be no king like the, althp dayes. And if thou wylte walke in my wayes, to kepe mine ordinaunces and commaundements as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I wil lengthen thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, he vnderstode this was his dreame. And he came to Ierusalem, and presented hym selfe before the Arcke of the Lords couenaunte, and offered burnt offerynge: and peace offerynge, and made a feaste to all his seruautes.

Then came two women that were harlots vnto the kyng, and stode before hym. And the one of them sayde: O my Lord. I and this woman dwel bothe in one house. And I was deliuered of a childe wth hyr in the sayde house. So the thyrde daye after I was deliuered she was deliuered also: so we two beynge together, and no straunger wth vs in þ house, saue we two alone. And this wifes childe dyed in a nyght, for she had overlaped it. And then she arose at mydnyght, and tooke my sonne from me my selfe, while thine handmaid slept, and layed it in hir bosom, and put hyr dead childe

But when I had looked more diligently vpon it in the mornynge: Beholde, it was not my sonne, whiche I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde: It is not so: But the lyfynge is mine, and the deade is thine. And she sayed agayne: thou sayest vnto me, for the deade is thy sonne, and the lyfynge myne. And thus they chide before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayth, this that is alpye is my son and the deade is thine. And the other sayth naye: But thy sonne is the deade, and the childe alpye is myne. Then sayde the kyng vnto me a swerde, and they brought a swerde before the kyng. And the kyng sayed: Deuide the lyfynge childe in two, and geue the one halfe vnto the one, and the other vnto the other.

Then spake the woman (that was mother to the childe alpye) vnto the kyng (for her bowels perned vpon her sonne,) and sayd: I beseeche the my Lord geue her the lyfynge childe, and in no wyse slea it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thine nor mine, but deuide it. Then the kyng answered and sayde: geue her the liuing childe, and slea it not, for she is the mother therof. And all Israell hearde of the iudgemente, whiche the kyng had geuen, and feared the kyng, for they perceiued that the wise dome of God was in him to do iustice.

But now the Lorde my God hath geuen me rest on euery side, so that there is neither aduersary nor an euill plage. And therefore I am dysposed to buyde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God as he promysed Dauid my father, sayng: thy sonne whych I will put vpon thy seate for the, he shall buyde an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. When Hiram heard the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatlye, and sayde: Blessed be the Lorde this daye, whych he hath sette Dauid a wyse sonne, ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sente agayne to Salomon, sayng: I haue allowed thy requeste whych thou sentest too me, and will satisfye al thy luste concernynge timber of Cedar trees and fyre. The. vi. Chapter.

The frame and forme of the temple porch and Aulare. &c.

AND it came to passe in the four hundred and four score yere after the chylidren of Israel were come out of the land of Egypte and the fourthe yere of the reigne of Salomon vpon Israel and the second moneth called *zif, that he began to buyld the temple vnto the Lord. And the house which Salomon built for the Lord was .lxx. cubytes longe, and thretye brode, and threty cubytes hye. And þ porch that was before the bodye of the temple, was .xx. cubytes longe, after the measure of the bredth of the house, &c. brode, euen at the bette ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open & shut.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galeries rounde aboute, both aboute the temple and also the quere: And so made sydes rounde aboute. And the herbermoste galerie was five cubytes brode, and þ myddle galerie fyve, and the thirdesteuen cubytes brode: for he made the walles without theron the beames laye, euer thinner and thinner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was built of stone made perfecte alrebye it was broughte thither, so that there was neither hammer nor axe, cyther anye toole of yron herd in the house, whyle it was in building. And the doore of the myddle galerie was in the ende of the house on the right syde. And men wente vp wth wynding staires into the myddle galerie, and oute of the myddle into the thirde. And so he barke the house and synghed it, and couerte it wth beames of Cedar tymber, made holowe and ioynted togither. Then he buylte chambres ouer all the temple of fyue cubytes heigth, and coupled the house together wth beames of Cedar.

And the word of the Lord came to Salomon, sayinge: concerninge the house whiche thou art a buildinge, if thou wilt walke in mine ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then will I make good vnto the, my promes * whiche I promised Dauid thy father *. And I will dwelle amonge the chylidren of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buylte the house and synghed it, and fylled the walles of the house within, wth cybbes of Cedar tre, & uen the pauemente vnto the rouffe dyd he fyle it wthyn, and boarded the doore of the house wth planches of fyre.

And he fylled twenty cubytes in the end of the temple, both floore and walles wth Cedar, and dyed it within to be the quere and place moste hoyle. And the fyfte house that is to say, the bodye of the temple, was forty cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within was kerued wth knops and graue wth floures, and al was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And þ quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set ther the arcke of the Lords testamēt. And the quere was .xx. cubytes long, &c. xx. in bredth & twenty in heigth. And he fylled it wth pure golde, and bouted the alter wth Cedar. And Salomon fyled the house within also wth pure golde. And he made golden barres runne along the quere, whiche he hadde couered wth golde. And the hole house he ouerlaid wth golde, vntill he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlaid wth golde also. And within the quere he made two Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye a pece, and euery wyng fyue cubytes long, so that from the vntermoste parte of one wyng, vnto the vntermoste parte of the other, were tenne cubytes: And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hye also, so that both the cherubes were of one measure and one fyle. The hergth of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the myddle of the inner house. And the Cherubes stretched therr wynges, so that the one wyng of the one touched the one wal, & the one wing of sother touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one an other in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlaid the Cherubes wth goulde.

And the walles of the house rounde aboute he garnished wth worke of Cherubes and palme trees, and grauen floures, bothe wthyn the quere, and withoute in the temple. And the floore of the house he couered wth golde: bothe wthyn the quere, and also withoute in the temple.

And in the enterynge of the quere, he made two doores of olyue tre, wth the upper and two fyde postes, fyve square. And the .ii. doores of olyue tree, he graued wth grauinge of Cherubes & palme trees, and graued floures, & couered the wth golde, and laide golde ouer the Cherubes, and also the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the doore of the temple he made postes of olyue tree fyve square and two doores of fyre tre, and either doore wth two folding leaues, & graued theron Cherubes, palme trees, and floures, and couered the wth golde made playne by a ruler. And then he built the inner court wth fyve rowes of Libanon an hundred cubites longe, and fifty brede, & thirty hygh, four square with rowes of Cedar pylers, & Cedar beames a long upon the pylers. And the rose was of Cedar above on hygh, vpo the beimes that laye on hygh on the pylers, which pylers were fourtye and spue in numbre, spylene on a cower: and the spaces betwene the pillers were one agaynst an other threfolde.

And al the dores wpth the postes were. full square one agaynst an other threfold.

And he made a porche of pylers fyttye cubites longe, and thirtty cubites brede, and per a porche before that with pylers, and a threfolde piler before that. Then he made a porche to spere and ludge in, cyled wpth Cedar, even from the paucementes vnto the toppe. And his owne house where he kepte residence in an other court wpth oute that porche, was of the same worke.
And then Salom made an house for Shabas daughter, whiche he had take to wife like vnto that porche.

AND al these thinges were of the stone hewed after a measure, and sawed wpth sawes wpthin and wpthoute, even from the foundacion vnto the toppe of the wal-les, and on the oute syde thereto toward the great court. And the foundacion was of tyche stones, and that myghty grete stones of ten cubites, and of epyght. And about were tyche stones hewed accordinge to the same esse, and also wpth Cedar. And the grete court roundabout was wpth thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar planches.

AND likewise was it in the inner court of the house of the Lorde, and of the porche of the temple. * And kynge Salomon sent and sette one Hiram oute of Tyre a wyrdowes sonne of the tyche of Sephraim: his father being of Tyre. Whych Hiram was a perfecte foundere, and full of wyldome, vnderstandynge, and connynge to worke al maner of worke in byasse. And he came to kynge Salomon, & wrought all his worke. He cast two pylers of byasse, of xviii. cubites a peece hygh, and a streynge of xii. cubites p myght compasser of the about. And he made two heade peces of molten byasse to set on the tops of the pyl-lers of spue cubites long a peece, with garlandes of broded worke, & hopes of chapyn worke for the head peces, that wer on the pyllers, seven for the one, and seven for the other. And he made the pylers, and for epy-ther of the head peces a garland, with two rowes of pomegranets to cower the with.

And the head peces that wer on the tops of the pylers, wer wrought wpth lilies in the porch the space of foure cubites of the. And the pomegranettes about & beneth on the withen chaines that compassed the myddle of the head peces, were in number. ii. C. on epter head peece. And he set vp the pylers in the porche of the temple, & when he had set by the ryght piler, he called the name therof Jachin, and when he had set by the left piler, he called the name therof Boaz.
And the toppes of the pylers were thus wroughte wpth lilyes, and so was theyr workmanshipp finished.

Then he caste a see of byasse ten cubites wyde from bymmeto bymmeto, and round in compass, and spue cubytes hygh. And a streynge of thirtty cubites myght compass it about: and vnder the bym of it as it wer appels, compassed and embraised the see of ten cubites wyde in the oute cast wpth it when it was cast. And it stode on twelue oren, of whych, thre looked North, thre West, thre South, and thre East. and the see on hygh vpon the, and al thet vnder pac-res wer inward. And it was an had bredth thicke, and the bym wrought like the bym of a cap with floures of lilies. And it coust

And he made ten bottoms of byasse. iiii. cubites longe, and four cubites brede a peece, and thre hygh. And the workes of the bottoms was on this maner, that p sydes wer as it wer flat bordes betwene the l. d.
ges. And on the flat bordes betwene the l. d. ges were Lyons, oren, and Corubes. And vpon the ledges that were about and be-neth the Lyons and oren, was torned pen-dant worke. And eury botome had foure byasse wheles, whose axeltrees were also of byasse. And in the. iiii. corners were vndersetters vnder the lauatoz, cast ech oner a-gaynst his felowe.

And the skalle of the lauatoz was in the myddle of the botome one cubite hygh, and a cubite & an halfe rounde, and it had knappes the on in the bare places whiche were four square, not rounde. And vnder p sydes were foure wheles, & thet axeltrees toined fast to the botome. And the heigth of eury whele was a cubit & an halfe. And the workmanhip of p wheles was like p worke of a charer whele: And the axeltrees, the na-uels' spokes, & shaftes were al moulded. And the foure vnder setters in the foure corners were of the hept bottomes.

And vnder the skalle of the lauatoz in the myddes of the botome, was there a rounde fore of halfe a cubite hygh. And

And he graced in the playne; and also on the ledges, Cherubims, lions, and palm trees, every where rounde aboute. And on this maner he made the ten botromes cast worke: all of one measure & one size. Then he made ten laucers of brass, containing foure Bathes a peece, and they were of foure cubytes a peece, for euery one of the botromes a lauer. And he put .v. of those botromes on the righte chynne of the temple, and other foue on the lefte, and put the see on the righte corner of the temple eastwarde, and toward the South. And Hiram made potres, shouels, and basones, and so supplied all the worke that he made King Salomon for the house of the Lorde: that is to saye, two pylers and two scalpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the two pylers, and foure hundred pomgranets vpon two wythes, two rowes on eyther wythe, to couer the two scalpes of the heades, that were on the toppes of the two pylers: and threten botromes of brass with .x. laucers vpon them, and sette wyth .xii. oxen vnder it, & potres shouels and basens. And all these vessels whiche Hiram made to King Salomon for the house of the Lorde, were of byrghe brass. And in the plaine of Iordā did the king cast thē, euē in the clay of the erth betwene Sotay and Jartan. And Salomō left all the vessels vnwaied, for the exceeding abundance of brass that was in thē. And Salomon made all the vessels that pertained vnto the house of the Lorde, the altar of gold, & the table of gold wheron the shew breade was put, and syue candelstyes for the right side & as many for the left, before the quere of pure gold: with floures, lāps, and snuffers of gold, and bolles, psalteries, basins, spones and fyre pannes of pure golde, and hinges of gold, bothe for the doores of the quere, the place most holpe, and so; the doores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that King Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And then Salomon brought in the shrynges which Dauid his father had decreate in siluer, golde & other vessels, & put thē to the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

The viii. Chapter.

The arke is borne into the temple: A cloude fylleth the temple. The temple is blessed.

Then Salomō gathered elders of Israel, all the heades of the tribes & ancient lordes of the chyldren of Israel vnto him to Ierusalem, to byng by the arke of the testamente of the Lorde oute of the citty of Dauid, whiche is Syon. And all the maner of Israel assembled vnto King Salomon, to the feast that falleth in the moneth Erbanan, whiche is the seuenth moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, the priestes toke vp the arke of the Lorde, and brought it, and also the tabernacle of witness, and all the holpe vessels whiche were therin. And the priestes & the Leuites brought them vp. And King Salomon and all the company of Israel that were assembled, & were wyth hym before the arke, did offre wythe and oxen that coulde not be coude nor numbered for multitude. And so the priestes brought the arke of the Lordes testamente vnto his place, euen into the quere of the temple, in place most holpe, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes: For the Cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer the arke, and couered bothe it & also the laucers that were vpon it. Howebeit the laucers were so long that the ends of thē appeared oute of the holpe place before the quere, but on the ouer syde were they not lene, and there they be vnto this day. And ther was nothing in the arke save the two tables of stone, whiche Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lorde made an appoyntment w the chyldren of Israel, after they were come forth of Egypt.

And when the priestes were come oute of the holpe place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the priestes coulde not endure to minister because of the cloude for the glorie of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon: the Lorde said that he wold dwell in darknesse. I haue buylt the an house to dwell in, and an habytacyon for the to abyde in for euer. And the king turned vpon face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel, all the congregacion standynge. And he sayed: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whiche hath fulfilled wth his hand that he spake wyth his mouth vnto Dauid my father, sayng: for the day I broughte my people Israel forth of Egypt, I chose no citty among any of the tribes of Israel to buyld an house, that my name might be therin: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buyld an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. But the Lorde God sayed vnto Dauid my father: in that it was in thyne herte to buyld an house for my name, thou dydest wel, that thou wast so mynded, & neuertheless thou shalt not build the house, but thy sonne that shall come out of thy loines, shall build an house for my name. And the Lorde hath made good his word that he spake. For I rode vp in the roune of Dauid my father, and sat on the seat of Israel, as the Lorde promysed, and haue buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the arke, wher in the couenaunte of the Lorde is, whiche he made wyth our fathers after he hadde brought them oute of the lande of Egypt. And Salomon rode before the altar of the Lorde in the syghte of all the people of Israel, and stretched out his hands to heauen, and sayd: Lorde God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heauen aboue, or in

Lorde God of Israel kepe wth thy ser-

God, to geue an eare vnto the voyce and prayer wherby thy seruant prayeth before the this daye, that thyne eyes maye be open vpon this house night and daye, and vpon the place, of whiche thou hast said: my name shall be there: that thou hasten vnto the prayer wherby thy seruante shall prayer in this place. And hearken vnto the supplication of thy seruante, and of thy people of Israel which they shall praye in this place: And heare thou vnto heauen thy dwellinge place, and when thou hearest, haue mercy. And if anye man tres-pace agaynst his neyghbour, & his neygh-bour take an adiuracyon to adiure hym wth hall, and the adiuracyn come before thyne altar at this house, then hasten thou vnto heauen, and worke and iudge thy seruantes that thou condemne the wicked, to bringe his wale vpon his head and iudge the rightous to geue hym ac-cordinge to his rightousnes. When thy people Israel be put to the worse before their enemies, because they haue sinned agaynst the, & afterwarde turne agayne to the praise thy name, & praye & make supplicacyn vnto the in this house the heart vnto heauen, & be merciful vnto the sinne of thy people Israel, and bringe them a-gayne to the lande wherby thou gauest vnto their fathers.

If heaue be shut vnto that ther be no raine because they haue sinned agaynst the, yet if they praye in this place & praise thy name and turne from their synnes, & thou wilt scourge of them, then heare thou vnto heauen & be merciful vnto the sinne of thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, that thou geue them a good way to walke in, and geue raine vpon the lande that thou hast giuen vnto thy people to inherite.

If ther chaunce death in the land, pestilence, blastyng, or wytherynge of coyne, that the feutes be deuoured of geasoppes them in the land, & in their owne cyties, or what euer plage or sickness chaunce, then heare thou vnto heauen thy dwellinge place al-of alme shew vnto al thy people Israel, wherby shall knowe euery man the plage of his owne bette, & stretch forth his handes vnto this house, and bee merciful and worke, & geue euery man accordynge to his wayes, (euen as thou oulp knowest euery mannes bette, for thou knowest the bettes of all the chyldeu. of Adam) that they maye scape the as long as they liue vpon the earth, which thou gauest vnto their fathers. And likewise if a stranger that is not of thy people Israel, come out of a far countrie for thy names sake, (for they shall heare of thy great name, and of thy mighty hand, & stretched out arme) and therefore if he come and praye at his place, heare thou vnto heauen thy dwellinge place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to the for, & al nations of the earth maye knowe thy name, to scape the as do thy people Israel, that it maye be knowne & thy name is called vnto ouer this house which I haue builde.

And when they go out to battell agaynst their enemies whither soeuer thou shalt sende them, & shall praye vnto the Lorde toward the city which thou hast chosen, and towards the house that I haue builde for thy name: heare thou theyr prayers and supand hast deliuered them to their enemies, that they be caried as captiues vnto the land of their enemies whether far or neare, yet if they turne agayne vnto their bettes

When Salomon had finished the building of the house of the Lord and of the kings palace, and all his desire & luste was to make: the Lord appeared unto him againe, as he appeared to him at Gabaon. And the Lord said unto him: I haue heerd thy prayer and intercession that thou madest before me, and haue halowed this house whych thou hast buyt to put my name there for euer, & mine eyes & myne hart shall be there perpetually. And if thou wilt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, in purenes of heart & plainnes, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalt kepe myne ordynances and cyles: I will settle the seate of thy kyngdome vpon Isaac for euer, as I promysed Dauid thy father, sayinge: Thou shalt not be withoute one of thy children shall turne away from me, and shall not kepe myne ordynances whych I haue set before you, but shall go & serue other goddes, and how your selues to this: then I will weede Isaac out of the land whych I haue giuen them. And this house whiche I haue halowed for my name I will put oute of my syght. And Isaac shall be a prouerbe and a salue vnto all nations. And this house is built to this purpose, that passe by it shall be astonied, and shall blesse & say: why hath the Lord dealt in this manner with this land, & with this house? And it shall be answered the: because they forsoke the Lord their God, whych brought them out of the land of Egypt, and haue leaned to other goddes, and haue coupled vnto them and serued them: therefore hath the Lord brought vpon them all this euill. When at the end of twety yeres, in which Salomon had buyt the two houses, that is to wytte the house of the Lord, and the kings palace: because Hiram the kynge of Tyre had supported him with Cedar, fir, and gold, as much as he desired, therefore Salomon gaue Hiram, xx cyles in the land of Galyle. And whil Hiram was come from Tyre to see the cities which Salomon had giuen him, they pleased him not. Wherefore he said: what cities are these whiche thou hast giuen me, my brother? And he called them the lande of Cabull vnto this day. This Hiram had sente the kynge fyre score hundred waight of golde. And this is the sum of the tribute which king Salomon payed to build the house of the Lord & his own house & the walles of Ierusalem, and Bether and Gagedo, and Gazar.

For Pharaos King of Egypte wente vp and toke Bazer and burne it with fyre, and slewe the Canaanites that dwelle in the city, and gaue it for a present vnto his daughter that was Salomons wife. And Salomon buyde Bazer and Bethhoron the wyldernesse that is in the land, and all ettes for his charrettes, and cities for his horsemen, and al that his lust was to build in Ierusalem and Libanon, and in all the land of his kyngedome.

D And all the people that were left of the Amoytes, Hettytes, Iheresites, Heuytes and Jebusites, whiche were not of the chyliden of Israel, the chyliden of the sayd nacions that were left in the lande, by-cause the chyliden of Israel were not ha-ble to destroy them, Salomon made tributaries vnto this day. But of the children of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondemen.
But they were men of warre, his seruan-tes, and his lordes, and cappaynes and rulers of his charrettes, and of his horsemen. And these many lordes that ouersaw the worke hadde Salomon, foue hundred and fiftye, whiche ruled the people that wrought in þe worke. And Ishaas dought-er came up oute of the cite of Dauid, unto the house whiche Salomon had buyte for her. And after that, he built Agelo. And thise a yere dyd Salomon offer burnt offerynges and peace offerynges vpon the alter which he had built vnto the Lorde, to burne the fatte thereon: whiche alter is before the Lorde. So when kynge Salomon had made the house perfecte, he made stappes in Zion Baber, whiche is besyde Elah, on the drynke of the redde sea in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sente by ship-ps also of his seruantes, that were shipmen and experte in the sea, with the seruans of Salomon. And they went to Ophir and set from thence golde, to the summe of four hundred and two and twenty talentes, and brought it to Salomon.

The. i. Chapter.

C The Quene of Saba cometh from the farsthest partes of the land to heare and se þe wis-dome of Salomon. The perele richesses & ren-tes of Salomon, his thyngs, vessels of golde, charrettes horsemen, and copson of syluer.

A And the quene of Saba hearde of the wysedome of Salomon concernyng the name of the Lorde, and came to proue him with riddles. And she came to Ierusalem with a myghty grete multitude of Camels that bare sweete odoures, and golde exceedinge muche, and precious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she talked with hym of all that was in her herte. And Salomon expounded all her questions that ther was not one thyng hid from the kynge, whiche he expounded her not. And when the quene of Saba had sene all Salomons wysedome, & the house that he had built, and the meate of his table, & the lodgings of his seruantes: and the fa-moun of his court, & their apparel, & his butlers, & the sacrifice þe offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astounded. And she sayd to the king: the word I heard in myne own land of thy dedes & wysedome is true. How beit I beleued it not, tyll I came & sawe it with myne eyes. And so the one half was not tolde me, for thy wysdome and goodness passeth the same whiche I herd. Hap-pye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruantes, whiche stande euer before the beace of thy wysdom. And blessed be the Lorde thy god whiche had a lust to the, to set þe on the seate of Israel: because the Lorde loueth Israel for euer, and therefore made the king to do equyte and ryghteousnes.

Then she gaue the king an hundred and xx. talentes of gold, and of sweete odoures exceeding muche, & precious stones. There came neuer after suche aboundaunce of sweete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kynge Salomon. And thereto the shipppes of Hiram that brought gold from Ophir, great plenty of Almuge tree, and precious stone. And kynge Salomon made of the Almuge trees pillars of the house of the Lorde & in the kinges palace, and made harpes & psalteries for singers. Ther came no more Almuge tree so, nor was any more sene unto this daye. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto þe quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked of hym, besydes that he gaue her with his owne hand. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey with her seruants.

And the kinge made a grete seate of Iuuoyr, and couered it with precious golde.
And the seate had sixe stappes.

And the toppe of the seate was round behynd his backe, with pomelles on eyther syde the place wher he sate, and two lyons standyng besyde the pomelles. And there stode twelue lions on the stappes, fyve on a syde. There was none lyke sene in any kyngdome. And al kynge Salomons drynking cuppes were of golde, and al the gar-nyshment of the house of the wood of Lybanon, were of pure golde. And as for syluer it was norbyng worthe in the dayes of

And Salomons horses came oute of Egypte from Beua. The marchantes fet them fro Beua at a puce. A charret came out of Egypt for. vi. A. sicles of spluer, and an horse for on. A. and ffty. And euē so by the handes of the sayd marchantes, horses were brought out for all the kynges of the Bethites, and for the kynges of Siria.

But king Salomon loued many oute-landish women: the daughter of pharao and of the Moabites, and Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonites, and Bethites, euen of natyons of whiche the Lorde sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: se ye come not at them, nor let them come to you, for sure lye they wyl turne your hertes after the gods. I neuer theles to such Salomon claue and fel in loue vnto them. And he had seuen hundred & very quenes. and the hundred concubynes, which turned away hys hert. For when Salomon was old, his wiues turned his hert after other Gods, so that his hert was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon folowed Ashtaroth the God of the Sidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. So Salomon wrought wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde, and contynued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon built an auter for Chamos the abhominacion of the Ammonites in the hill that standeth before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblable he did he for all his outlandish wauies, whiche buent incense, and offered vnto the gods: Then was the Lord angrie wpth Salomon, because hys hert turned from the Lord God of Israel which appeared vnto hym twise, & gaue him a charge of this thyng that he shoulde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherupon the Lord said to Salomon: for as muche as this is done of the, and thou hast not kept mine appointment and myne ordinaunces whiche I haue commaunded the, therefore I wyl rente the kyngedome from the, and wyl giue it to thy seruaunte. Notwpthstanding in thy dayes I wyl not do it, because of Dauid thy father: but wyl take it from thy sonne. Howbeit I wyl not take awaye all, but wyl geue one tribbe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaunt, and because of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen.

Then the Lorde stirred vp an aduersarye vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges kynage of Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the captayne of the hoste was gone vp to butchere them that were flayne, and hadde flayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For syre monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, and certayne other Edomites of hys fathers seruauntes wpth hym, to go to Egypte, Hadad beyng yet a lytle land. And they arose oute of Arabia, and wente to pharan, and toke men wpth them oute of pharan, and came to Egypte vnto pharaos kyng thereof whiche gaue hym an house, and appointed hym vntayles, and gaue hym landes. And Hadad gatte greate fauoure in the syghte of pharaos, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of his own wife, the syster of Thahaphnes the quene. And the syster of Thahaphnes bare hym Sedubath hys sonne. And Thahaphnes wened him in pharaos house. And he was in pharaos house amonge the sonnes of pharaos. And when Hadad hearde saye in Egypte that Dauid was laid to slepe with hys fathers, and that Joab the capytayne of the hoste was deade also, he sayd to pharaos: let me departe, that I maye go to mine own cuntry. Then sayd pharaos vnto him: what lackest thou here wpth me, that thou wouldest go to thine owne countrey? And he sayd, nothyng: howbeit lette me go. And God stirred vp an other aduersarye one Raason the sonne of Eliada, whiche fledde from Hadad beyng kyng of zobah his master. This Raason gathered men vnto hym, and became capytayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slew them: And they went to Damasco & dwelte therein, & traigned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the daies of Salomon with the euil that Hadad dyd, whiche abhored Israel, and traigned in Siria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephraimite of zaredah (whose mother was called zeruah, and was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruaunt) * lyfte vp his hand agaynst the kyng. And hereof came it, that he lyfte vp his hand agaynst the kyng Salomon builde Bethel, and mended broke places in the cite of Dauid hys father. And this fellow Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomon sawe the poynt that he wrought so lustely in the worke he made hym ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph.

And it chaunced at that season, as Jeroboam was gone oute of Jerusalem, that the prophet Ahiah the Silonite met hym by the waye, hauing a new mantel on hym. And rent in twelue peces, and sayd to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thus saith the Lord God of Israel: behoulde I wyl rent the kyngedome oute of the handes of Salomon and wyl geue ten tribbes to the

and he shall haue one, for my seruaut Dauid's sake, and for Iherusalem, the cite whiche I haue chosen oute of all the tribes of Irael because they haue forsaken me: and haue bowed themselves vnto Ashtaroth the God of the ydons, and to Chamos the God of the Moabites, and to Melcom the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that please me and myne ordynauces and rites: as did Dauid his father.

Howbeit I will take none of the kingdome oute of his hande, but will make him chiefe all his dayes longe, for Dauid my seruantes sake, whiche I chose: because he kepte my commaundementes and ordynauces. But I will take the kyngdome forth of his sonnes hande, and will giue vnto the ten tribes of it, and will giue his son one, that Dauid my seruant may haue lyghte alwaye before me in Iherusalem the cite whiche I haue chosen me: to put my name there. And I will take the, and thou shalt reigne vpon all that thy soule desireth, and shalt be kinge ouer Irael. And if thou shalt hearken vnto all that I commaunde the, and shalt walke in my wayes and do that is right in my sight, that thou kepe myne ordynauces and commaundementes, as Dauid my seruante dyd: then will I be with the, and build the an house that shall continue, as I builde for my seruante Dauid: and I will giue Irael vnto the. And therewith wil I bere the seede of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon soughte to kyl Ieroboam, wherfore Ieroboam arose and fled into Egypte, vnto Seke kinge of Egypte: and continued ther till the death of Salomon. The rest of the actes of Salomon and all that he dyd, and his wylsome, are wyrtten in the booke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon reigned in Iherusalem vpon all Irael, was fouretye yeres. And then he lained hym to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Ieroboam his sonne reigned in his stede.

The.iii. Chapter.

The kyngdome is deuyded: and Ieroboam reigneth ouer two tribes, and Ieroboam one ten. Adoram is deuyd. Ieroboam maketh golde calves.

And Ieroboam went to Sichem for all Irael wer come to Sichem to make hym king: And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat hearde of it, beyng yet in Egypte, for he had fled to Egypt for feare of Salomon, and dwelt ther. And they sent and called hym: and so Ieroboam and all the assemble of Irael came and spake vnto Ieroboam, sayinge: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but nowe make thou the greuous serupce of thy father, and his fore yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter, and so we will serue the. And he sayde vnto them, depart ye for the space of thre daies and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Ieroboam tooke counsell wth the olde men that stode before Salomon his father while he yet liued, and said: what counsell geue ye to answer this people wth? And they said vnto hym: If thou wylte be a seruante vnto this people this daye, and serue them, and answer them, & speke kynde wordes to them, they will be thy seruants for euer. But he left the counsell that the olde men had geuen him, & counselled wth the pong men that wer nourished by wth him, and had waited on hym.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye to answer this people, which haue commaunded wth me, sayinge: make þ yoke whiche thy father byd put vpon vs lyghter. And the pong men that were broughte by wth him, answered hym sayinge: this people that haue said vnto the: thy father made oure yoke heuier make thou it vs lyghter: thus answer them. My litle finger shall be waigher then my fathers loines. And now wher my father put a greuous yoke vpon þou, I wil make it heuier. For wher my father corrected þou with scourges, I will chastice þou with scorpions. And when Ieroboam and all the people were come to Ieroboam the thirde daye, as the king appointed them, sayinge: come to me agayne, this daye the daye: the kinge answered the people churly, & left the aduise that the olde menne gaue hym, and spake to them after the aduise of the pong men, sayinge: My father made þour yoke greuous, but I wil make it greuouser. For wher my father chastised þou with whippes, I wil chastice þou with scorpions. And so the king hearkened not to the people, for the turning awaye was of the Lord to performe his saying, which þ Lord had said by Ahiah the Salomite vnto Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Irael sawe that the kyng regarded the not the people answered the kyng agayne, saying: we haue no part in Dauid, nor inheritance in the son of Iui. Hasten þou to þour tentes there, for Irael, and nowe see to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Irael departed vnto their tentes. Howbeit ouer the chyldren of Irael, whiche dwelt in the cite of Iuda dyd Ieroboam taigne Apil. Then kyng Ieroboam sent Adoram the receuer of the tribute, and all Irael doned hym to death wth stones. But kyng Ieroboam made speede, and gat hym vp to his charact, & fled to Iherusalem. And so Irael departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

And when all Irael hearde that Ieroboam was come agayne, they sente and called hym vnto the congregation, and made hym kyng ouer Irael: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the trybe of Iuda on lyfe. And when Ieroboam was come to Iherusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, and all the tribe of Beniamin, an hun-

the house of Israel. and to bring the king dome agayne to Achobeam the sonne of Salomon. * Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Semai, the man of God, saying: speake vnto Achobeam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda. and vnto al the house of Iuda and Ben Iamin. and the remainnte of the people. and saye. Thus sayth the Lorde. go not nor yet spighte a-gaynste your brethren the chyldren of Israel. but retorne euery man to hys house. for this doinge is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde. and returned and departed accordynge to the word of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buylte Si-chem in mounte Ephraim and dwelt there.
And wnt from thence and built Bethaniel. And Jeroboam thought in his heart. nowe might the kyngdome retorne to the house of Dauid agayne.

For if thys people shall go vppre and do sacrifice in the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem. then shall their heartes tourne agayne vnto the Lord Achobeam kyng of Iuda. and so shall they kille me. and go agayne to Achobeam kyng of Iuda. *
Wherupon the kyng took counsell. and made two calves of golde. and sayde vnto the people. ye shall not neede to go any more to Ierusalem. Behold your gods. (Israel) whiche brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel. the other in Dan. And that doyng was a cause of synne. And the people went to worshyp the calf. as farre as Dan. And he made teples in the hilles. and made the lowest of the people priestes. whiche were not of the sonnes of Levi. And Jeroboam made a feast the fiftene daye of the eyght moneth lyke vnto the feast that was in Iuda. and offered on the altar. and so did he in Bethel. to offer vnto the calves that he hadde made. And he putte in Bethel the priestes of the hyl altars. whiche he had made.
And he offered vnto the altar whiche he had made in Bethel the fiftene daye of the eight moneth. whiche he had imagined of his own herte. and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldren of Israel. and went vnto the alter to burne sacrifice.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Jeroboam sacrifice vnto calves. as re-proued of the Prophete. His hande dyeth vnto while he putteth out agaynst the Pro-phete. The prophete is hylled and lured.

And behold. there came a man of God oute of Iuda with the word of God to Bethel. as Jeroboam stode by the altar to offer. and cryed agaynste the alter at the commaundement of the Lorde. & sayd. altare altare. thus sayeth the Lorde.
Behoulde. a Chylde shall be borne of the house of Dauid Josiah by name. whiche upon the shall offer the priestes of the hyl altars. that sacrifice vpon the. and shall burne mennes bones vpon the.

And he gaue them the same tyme a signe sayinge. this is the signe of that the Lord hath promysed. Behoulde the altar shall rente. and the ashes that are in it shall fall oute. And when the kyng hearde the saying of the man of God. whiche he cryed a-gaynste the altar in Bethel. he stretched forth his hand from the altar. sayinge. hold hym. And his hand which he put forth toward hym. dyed vnto. that he could not pull it agayne to hym. and the altar claued. and the ashes ranne oute of the altar accordynge to the token whiche the manne of God had geuen. at the commaundement of the Lorde. And the kyng answered and sayde vnto the man of God. Oh pray vnto the Lord thy God. and make intercession for me. that my hande maye be restored me agayne. And the man of God besoughte the Lord. and hys hande came to hym agayne as well as before. Then sayde the kyng vnto the man of God. Come home wth me and refreche thy selfe. and I will geue thee a rewarde. But the manne of God answered the kyng. if thou wouldest geue me halfe thyne house. I woulde not go wth the. neyther woulde I eate meate. nor drinke in thys place. For so was it charged me thowme the worde of God. & sayde to me. eate no breade. nor drinke water. nor tourne agayne by the same waye thou wenteste. And so he wente an other waye. and returned not by the same waye that he came to Bethel.

And there dwelte an olde prophete in Bethel. whose sonnes came and tolde hym all the workes that the man of God hadde done that daye in Bethel. and the woordes whiche he spake vnto the kyng. they tolde thys father also. And then the father sayd vnto them. what way went he? for his sonnes had sent what way the man of God went. whiche came from Iuda. Then sayde he to his sons. saddle mine asse. And they saddled hym an asse. And he gate hym thereon. and went after the man of God. and found him sitting vnder an oke. and sayde vnto hym.
Arise thou the manne of God that camest from Iuda. And he said. yea.

Then he sayde vnto hym. come home with me and eate breade. And the other said agayne. I maye not retorne with the to go wth the. neyther maye I eate breade. nor drinke water in thys place. For it was sayed to me by the commaundement of the Lorde. eate no breade. nor drinke water in thys place. nor turne agayne by the waye thou wenteste.

And the olde prophete said vnto him.
I am a prophete as well as thou. and an angell spake vnto me wth the woordes of the Lorde. sayinge. Bring hym agayne wth the to thyne house. and let hym eate breade. and drinke water. and yet lye vnto hym. And so the other wente agayne wth him. and eate bread in his house. and drank

bianche water. And as they late at the table, the woorde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete that broughte hym agayne.

¶ And he cryed vnto the manne of God that came from Iuda, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde: because thou haste dysobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and haste not kepte the commaundement whiche the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but cammest backe agayne, and haste eaten breade and droncke water in the place, in the whiche he bad that thou shouldest eate no breade, nor drinke water: therefore thy carcas shall not come to the sepulchre of thy fathers. And when he had eaten breade, and droncke, he saddled an asse for the prophete which he broughte agayne. And as he iourned, a Lyon met hym by the way, and slewe him, and hys carcas laye along in the way, and the asse stode therbi, and the Lion by the corpe also. And men that passed by, sawe the carcas cast along in the way, and the Lyon standinge therby, and went and told it in þe towne where the olde prophete dwelte.

¶ And when the prophete that broughte hym backe agayne from the waye, hearde thereof, he sayde: It is the manne of God, whiche disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde. And therefore the Lorde hath despured hym vnto the Lyon, whiche hath rente hym, and slayne hym, accordynge too the woorde of the Lorde, whiche he sayed too hym. And he sayde to his sonnes, saddle me an asse: and so they did. And he wente and founde the bodie caste alonge in the waye, and the asse and the Lion, standinge therby. And the Lion had not eaten the carcas nor hurt the asse. And he toke vp the bodie of the man of God, and put it on hys asse, and broughte it agayne, and came to the citty of the olde prophete to lamente him, and to burie hym. And he layed hys bodie in his owne graue, and lamented hym. * Wh my brother. And when he buried hym, he spake to hys sonnes, sayinge: When I am deade, sepeburie me in the sepulchre, wherein the man of God is buried, and laye my bones by hys. For the sayinge whiche he cryed at the byddynge of the Lorde agaynst the altier in Bethel, and agaynst al the houses of hylt altiers which are in the ctytes of Samaria, shall come to passe.

Howbeit for all that Jeroboam turned not from his wycked waye: but turned away, and made of the lowest of the people puelles of the hylt altiers. Whosoever wolde he filled their hands, & they became puelles of the hylt altiers, And thys doynge was sporne vnto the house of Jeroboam, even to destroye it: and to putte it awaye frome of the face of the earth.

The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ At that tyme Ahiah the sonne of Ieroboam tel spch. And Jeroboam said vnto his wife: aryse & chaunge thine apparel, that thou be not known to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Siloh. For there is Ahiah the prophete, whiche coulde me * that I shoulde be kyng ouer this people * And take wth the ten loues and crakenels, and a cruise of hony, and go to him: for he wyl tel the what shal come of the childe. And Jeroboams wife did so: She a rose & wet to Siloh, & came to the house of Ahiah. But Ahiah coulde not se for his eyes were waken dimme for age.

And the Lord said vnto Ahiah: Behold the wyfe of Jeroboam cometh to question wth the aboute her sonne which is spcke. This wyfe, and this wyfe answer her. And when she came, she sayned her selfe to be another woman. But when Ahiah heard the sound of her feete as she came to the dore, he sayde: Come in thou wife of Jeroboam, whyp saynest thou thy selfe to be another? I am sente to the an heauy messenger. Go and tell Jeroboam, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: for as much as I aduanced the aboute the comon people, and made the prynce ouer my people Israel, and byd plucke the kingdome away from the house of Dauid, and gaue it thee: and thou haste not ben as my seruaunt Dauid, who kepte my commaundementes, and folowed me with all his hert, to do that only whiche semeth ryght in myne eyes, but haste done euyl aboue al that were before thee. and hast gon and made thee other gods & images of metal to prouoke me, and hast cast me behinde thy backe: therefore beholde I wyl bynge euyl vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyl sticke frome Jeroboam all that preseth agaynst the wall, and what soeuer is in prysonne, or forsaken in Israel, and wyl take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as menne take away a dog hylt, & it be consumed. And whosoever of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges eate, and hym that dyeth in the field, shall the fowles of the ayre eate: for the Lorde hath sayed it: arise and gette the into thine house, & as sone as thy foot entreteth the citty, the childe shall dye. Howebeit all Israel shall mourn hym, and burie hym, for thys onely of all Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse toward the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

Moreover the Lorde shall sette hym by a kyng ouer Israel, who shall destroy the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is that, that is now in hand? And the Lord shall smite Israel, as a rebe that groweth in the water is shaken, and wyl wede Israel oute of thys good lande whiche he gaue to thys fathers, and wyl scatter them beyond Euphrates, because they haue made them groues to anger the Lord. And he wyl

And Jeroboams wyfe arose & departed, & went to Thersah, & by that time she was come to the threshold of the dore, & her lad was deade. And all Israel buried hym, and lamented hym, accordyng to the worde of the Lord, which he spake by the hand of his seruaunte Ahiah the prophete. The reste of the dedes of Jeroboam, howe he warred, and how he reigned, are writte in the boke of the cronicles of the kyngs of Israel. And the dayes whiche Jeroboam reigned were two and twenty yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sone reigned in his steade.

1. Par. xli. a And Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon reigned in Juda, and was xli. yere oulde when he beganne to reigne, and reigned xviij. yere in Jerusalem the cytye whiche the Lord had chosen oute of al the trybes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednes in sighte of the Lord, and angered hym aboute all that they fathers dyd, wth the synne whiche they synned. For they also made them hylaulers, and Images, and groves on euery hyl, and vnder euery grene tree. And thereto there was a stur of male children in the lande, and they dyd accordyng to all the abhominacions of the Heathen, whiche the Lord caste oute before the children of Israel. And the yere of kyng Rehoboam, came Selahe kyng of Egypt by to Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasure of the house of the lord and of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke the shildes of golde whiche Salomon made, in whose steade Rehoboam made brassen shildes, and put them in the keeping of the captaynes of the garde, whiche waited at the dore of the kynges house. And as oft as the kyng went into the house of the Lord, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them agayne into the gard chamber.

The reste of the actes of kyng Rehoboam and al he did, are writte in the boke of the actes of the kyngs of Juda. And there was war betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the dayes. And Rehoboam laped hym to telle wth his fathers, and was buried wth his fathers in the cytye of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiam his sone reigned in his place.

1. Be. xlii. yere of kyng Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, reigned kyng Abiam ouer Juda, and ruled thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Abisalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father, whiche he dyd before hym, and his herte was not holt wth the Lord his God, as the herte of Dauid his father.

Neuerthelesse for Dauides sake, the Lord his God gaue hym a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set by his sonne after hym, to contynue in Jerusalem. Because that Dauid did that which pleased the Lord, and turned from nothing that he commitede him al the dayes of his lyfe, & saue onely in the matter of Urias the Hethite.

And there was war betwene Rehoboam, and Jeroboam, as long as he lyued. The reste of the dedes of Abiam, and al that he dyd, are writte in the Cronicles that were done in the dayes of the kyngs of Juda. And ther was war betwene Abiam, & Jeroboam. And Asa dyd that seemed righte in the eyne of the Lord, like Dauid his father. And he made the stewes of males departe the lande, and putte awaye all the Idols that his fathers had made.

And thereto he putte downe Maacah his mother from hearyng rule, because she hadde made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed the Idole, and burnt it by the broke Cedion. But he put not downe the hylaulers. Neuerthelesse Asa herte was holt wth the Lord all his dayes. And he brought in that his father had dedicate, & the thinges hallowed vnto the house of the Lord, siluer, gold & Jewels. And ther was war betwene Asa & Baasa all their dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel wente by agaynste Juda, and buylte Ramah, because he woulde lette none of Asas people kyng of Juda go in or out.

Then Asa toke all the siluer and goulde that was left in the treasure of the house of the Lord, and all the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it vnto his seruauntes, and sente them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabemon the sonne of Bezan kyng of Siria, that dwelte at Damasco, sayinge: there is a bonde betwene the & me, as was betwene thy fathers and mine. Therefore I send the bothe golde and siluer for a gifte, that thou go and breake the bonde betwene the and Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe from me.

And Benhadad berkened vnto kyng Asa, and sent the captaynes of the hostes whiche he had agaynst the cities of Israel, and smote Thion, Dan, Abel called Beth Gaacah, and all Ceneroth, wth al the Land of Zephthali. And when Baasa heard that he left buyldyng of Ramah, and dwelte in in Tharzah. Then kyng Asa made proclamations thorowout al Iuda: that none shold be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah, and the timbre wherewith Baasa had built: and king Asa built therewith Bahaah in Ben Jamin, and Gazphah.

The reste of all the dedes of Asa, and of all his proceedynges, and the ctytes whiche he buyt are witten in the cronicles of the actes done in the dayes of the kynges of Iuda. Neuertheles in his old age, he was diseased in his sete. And Asa laid him to rest with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the ctyte of Dauid his father. And Josaphat his sonne reigned in his rowm.

Radab.

And Radab the sonne of Jeroboam began to raygne vpon Israel, the second pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, and raygned vpon Israel two pere. And he dyd euil in the syghte of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father: and in his sinne wherewith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, of the house of Achazar conspired against him, and slewe hym at Sebethon, a ctyte of the Philistines, for Radab and all Israel laye at seige before Sebethon. And it was the thirde pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, when Baasa slewe hym, and raygned in his stede. And as soon as he was kyng, he slewe all the house of Jeroboam, and lette hym naught that breathed, until he had destroyed hym, agreeynge to the sayinge of the Lord whiche he spake by his seruante Amiah the Silonite, for the sinne of Jeroboam wherewith he synned, & made Israel synne, and for his angering that he angered the Lord God of Israel. The reste of the dedes of Radab, and all his proceedynges are witten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betwene Asa, and Baasa, kyng of Israel, al their dayes.

In the thirde pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah beganne to raygne ouer all Israel in Tharzah, and continued xxiii. pere. And he dyd that displeased the Lord, for he walked in the way of Jeroboam, and in his synne, wherewith he made Israel synne.

The xvi. Chapter.

Jehu.

Then came the word of the Lord to Jehu the son of Hanani agaynst Baasa saying: for as muche as I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee captain ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel sinne, to anger me with their synne: I wil make cleane riddaunce of Baasa, and of all his house, and wyl make his

The reste of the dedes of Baasa, & what he dyd, and his warres, are witten in the booke of the histories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fel on sleepe with his fathers, and was buried in Tharzah. And Elah his sonne raygned in his stede. And by the hande of the prophet Jehu, the sonne of Hanani, the worde of the Lord came agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house: because of the wychednesse that he did in the syghte of the Lord, in angering hym with the workes of his handes, that he shoulde helpe the house of Jeroboam, because he hadde kyled Nabat.

The xxvi. pere of Asa kyng of Iuda began Elah the son of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Tharzah, and continued two pere. And his seruante Zambri capytayne of halfe his charrettes, conspired agaynst hym: as he was in Tharzah drynkyng of stronge dryncke, in the house of Azab steward of his house in Tharzah. And Zambri came and smote hym, and killed him, the xxvi. pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, & raygned in his stede. And as soon as he was kyng, and sat on his seat, he slew al the house of Baasa, & left not a pyffer agaynst the wal.

And thereto he slewe all his kinne, and frendes, and so Zambri destroyed al the house of Baasa, accordinge to the worde of the Lord, whiche he spake to Baasa, thorow Jehu the prophet, for al the synnes of Baasa, and the synnes of Elah his son, wherewith they synned, and made Israel sinne, to anger the Lord of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the dedes of Elah, & all that he did, are witten in the cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The xxvii. pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, Zambri raygned eghte dayes in Tharzah, the people beleagynge Sebethon, a ctyte of the Philistines. And when the people that laye in the seige heard sege howe Zambri hadde conspired, and howe he hadde slaine the kyng also, then all Israel made Amri capytaine of the menne of warre king that same daye ouer Israel, euen in the hooile. And Amri departed from Sebethon, and all Israel with hym, and beleaged Tharzah. And when Zambri sawe that the ctyte muste needs bee taken, he wente in to the palapce of the kynges house, and sette the kyngs house a fyre on hym selfe, and there dyed, for his synnes, whych he synned in doyng wychednesse in the syght of the Lord, and for walking in the way of Jeroboam, & in his synnes whiche he dyd, and made Israel sinne. The rest of the actes of Zambri, & the treason that he wrought, are witten in the booke of the cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

Agayn, the same season was Israel ell deuyded in twaine, for halfe the people folowed Thebny, the sonne of Synath, to make him king, and the other halfe folowed Amrye. But the people that folowed Amrye, prevailed agaynst them that folowed Thebny, the sonne of Synath. And so Thebny dyed, and Jamrye raygned. The xxii. yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, beganne Amrye to raygne ouer Israell, xii. yere: and ruled, vi. yere in Tharab. And he bought the hylle of Samaria of one Semar, for two hundred talents of syluer, and built in the hyl, and called the name of the cite whiche he had built Samaria, after the name of Semar the Lorde of the hylle.

And this Amrye wroughte wyckednes in sight of the Lorde worse then all that were before hym, & walched in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in hys sinne, wherewith he made Israell sinne, to anger the Lord God of Israell whiche dauncynges. The rest of the acts of Amrye which he dyd, & the battels he fought, are written in the cronicles of the kynge of Israell. And Amrye layde hym to rest wth hys fathers, and was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The xxxviii. yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, began Achab the sonne of Amrye to raygne ouer Israell, and raygned in Samaria, xxi. yere. And he displeased the Lorde above all that were before hym. For it semed him a lichte thinge to walche in the synne of Jeroboam. But toke Jezabell the daughter of Ethbaal kynge of the Sidonies to wife, and went & serued Baal, & bowed vnto hym. And he reared an altier to Baal in the house of Baal whiche he had made in Samaria. And Achab made a groue, and proceeded further in angering the Lord God of Israell, then all the kings of Israell that were before hym.

In hys dayes Byell of Bethell buylde Jericho. And it cometh hym Amram hys eldest sonne when he laid the foundacion, & his youngest sone whiche he set vp the gates, agreyng vnto the word of the Lorde whiche he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The.xvii. Chapter.

Eliab is nourished and fedde of Waucho, and after is sent to the woman of Sarepta whose child he rayseth to lyfe.

And Eliab the Ghebrise whiche was of the inhabitants of Galaad, sayd to Achab: as true as the lord god of Israell liueth before whom I stand, ther shall be neither dewe nor raine these yeres save as I appoynt it.

And the worde of God came to hym, sayinge: get the hence, and turne the easterwarde, & hyde thy selfe in the broke Iserpt, that lieth before Iordan: drynke of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the Iauens to fede the ther. And he went and dyd accordyng to the worde of the Lorde: he went and dwelt by the broke Iserpt, that lieth before Iordan. And the Iauens brought hym bread and fleshe euery moynynge, and euery euening, and he dranke of the broke. And it chanced after a while, that he broke dyed vp, because there fell no raine vpon the carthe. Thencame the word of the Lorde vnto hym, sayinge: aryse, and gette the to Sarepta, a cite of Sydon, and dwell ther. Behold, I haue commaunded a wyddowe ther, to susteine the. And he arose, & heft to Sarepta. And whē he came to the gate of the cite, ther was a wydow ther gathered strakes. And he called vnto hyr and sayed: let me pray the, a lytle water in a dysche that I may drynke.

And as she wente to set it, he cryed to hyr and sayed: Wrynge me a praye the, a morsell of bread in thyne hande. And she answered: as sure as the Lord thy god liueth I haue no bread, but euen an handefull of meale in a pytcher, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And so, I haue gathered a fewe speckes for to goo and bake it for me, and my sonne, that we maye eate it, and then dye. And Eliab sayed vnto hyr: feare not but goo and do as thou hast sayed: and make me a lytle cake spise of all, and wrynge it oute vnto me: and afterwards make for the and thy sonne.

For thus sayeth the Lord God of Israell: the pytcher of meale shall not be wasted, neyther shall thy oyle cruse be wythoute oyle, tyll the Lorde haue sente raine vpon the carthe. And she wente and dyd as Eliab hadde. And she, and he, and hyr house, dyd eate a good space, and the pytcher of meale wasted not, neither was the oyle cruse wythoute oyle, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, whiche he spake thowme Eliab. And after these thynges it happened that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sycke. And hys sykenes was so sore, that there was no heale left in hym. Then sayed she vnto Eliab: What haue I to doo wth the, O thou manne of God, art thou come vnto me, that my synnes shoulde be thoughte vpon, and my sonne shal dye?

And Eliab sayed to hyr: gyue me thy sone. And he toke hym out of hyr lap, and caried him vp into a lyste, where he laye, and laid him vpon his own bed, & called to the Lorde, and sayed: O Lorde, my God, haue thou bene so cruell vnto the wydow with whom I sojourne, that thou hast layd her sonne? And he stretched hym selfe vpon the childe thre tymes and called vnto the Lorde, and sayed: O Lord my God, let the childs soule come into hym agayne. And the Lorde herd the voice of Eliab, and the soule of the childe came into him agayne, and he reuiued.

And Eliab toke the boye and broughte him downe out of the chambie into the house, and deliuered hym to hys mother and sayed: se thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayed to Eliab: Now I know thou art Gods man, and that the word of the Lorde in thy mouth is true.

Elisha of Eliab.

As at last the word of the lord came to Eliab the thirde pere sayinge: goo thy self vnto Achab, that I mai send raine vpon the erth. And Eliab wente to shewe hym selfe to Achab, for ther was a great fampthment in Samaria.

Wherefore Achab called Abdia the gouerner of his house which feared god greatly: in so much that he had destroyed the Lordes Prophetes, he took an hundred of the Prophetes, and byd them, to lye in one caue, and to lye in an other, and prouided bread and water for them. And Achab sayed vnto Abdiah: walke thow the land vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brookes, to se whether anye grasse maye be found, that we may saue the horses, and the egules, that we destroy not the beaues. So they deuised the lande betwene them to walke thowse it. Achab wente one way by hym selfe, and Abdiah wente another by hym selfe.

And it chaunced as Abdiah wente in the waye, that Eliab met hym. And Abdiah knewe hym, and fell on his face and saied: Art thou my Lorde Eliab? And he said vnto hym: I am he. So and tel Achab that Eliab is here. And the other answered: What haue I spened, that thou wouldest help me into the handes of Achab to slea me? As sure as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacoun nor kyngdome whether my Lorde the kyng hath not sente, to seke the. And whel they said thou wast not ther, he took an oth of the kyngdome, and nacion, by cause he found the not.

And now thou saist: So, tel thy Lorde, Eliab is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spirit of the Lorde shall ca-rye the awaye, whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Achab, and he can not fynde the, he shall slea me. And yet I thy seruante haue feared the Lorde from my yowth.

Was it not tolde my Lorde what I byd when Jezabel slewe the Prophetes of the Lorde, how I byd an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, to lye in one caue, and as many in an other, and prouided them bread & water? And yet now thou saiest, go thy selfe Lorde that Eliab is here, to the intente he myghte slea me. Then Eliab sayed, as truly as the Lorde GOD of heu'nes lyueth he fore whom I stande: I wyll shewe my selfe vnto hym this day.

And thereupon Abdiah wente to Achab and tolde hym. And Achab wente agaynst Eliab. And when Achab sawe Eliab, he sayed vnto hym: Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayed: It is not I that troubleth Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commandementes of the Lorde, and haue folowed Baal. But nowe send and gather me al Israel vnto mount Carmell, and the Prophetes of Baal, four hundred and fiftie ty, and the Prophetes of the groves four people of hundred, whiche eate of Jezabels table.

And Achab sente for all the chyldren of Israel, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mount Carmelle.

And Eliab came vnto all the people, and said: Why haue ye betwene two opinions?
If the Lorde be ver y God, folowe him: or if Baal be he, then folow him. And the people answered hym not one word.

Then sayed Eliab vnto the people: Nonlye remayne of the Lordes Prophetes, and Baal's Prophetes are four hundred and fiftie. Let two oxen be geuen vs, and lette them chose the one, and cut hym in peaces, and lape him on wood, and putte no fyre vnder. And I wyll dresse the other, and put hym on wood, and put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of your God, and I wyll calle on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the ver y God.

And all the people sayed: It is well spoken. Then sayed Eliab vnto the Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ox, & dresse him fyre (for ye are many) and calle on the name of your God, but putte no fyre vnder. And they took the ox that was geuen them, and dresse hym, and called on the name of Baal, from morninge, to noone, saying: O Baal, heare vs. But there was no voyce nor answer. And they lepte aboute the autier that they had made. And at noone Eliab mocked them & said. Call loue, for he is a God: but he is falschynge or p'nsupnge bys ennemys, or happelye he sleapeth, that he maye awake. And they cryed a lowde, and cutte them selues (as their maner was) with knyues and laucers, tyll the bloude folowed ou them. But when mydder daye was passed, and they hadde plared the Prophetes tyll it was tyme to offer, and yet was neyther voyce nor answer, nor any that regarded them, Eliab sayed to all the fouliche, come to me.
And all the people came to hym. And he mended the autier of the Lorde that was broken, & and toke xij. stones, acco'rdynge to the nombre of the twelue tribes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whome the worde of the Lorde came sayinge: Israel shall be thy name. And with the stones he made an autier in the name of the Lorde.
And he made a gutter rounde aboute the autier, able to receyue two peckes of corne, and he putte the woodde in order, and hewed the ore in peaces, and put hym on the woodde, and sayd: tyll four pychers tyll to ster, and poure it on the sacryfice and on the wood. And he said: do so agayne and they byd so agayne. Then he said: do it the thyrd tyme. And they byd so the thyrd tyme.

time. And the water ranne rounde aboute the aulacre, and the gutter was full of water also. So when offeringe tyme was come. Eliab the prophet wente to a sayde: Lord god of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel let it be knowne this daye, that thou arte the God of Israel, and that I am thy seruante. & that I doo all these thynges at thy commaundement.

Hearc me, O Lorde, that this people may knowe, that thou arte the God, and that thou hast turned eueri bettes backward. And there fell fyre from the Lorde and consumed the sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the house, and lyked vp the water, so it was in the gutter. Whiche when all the people sawe, they fell on their faces, and said: the Lorde he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayd Eliab vnto them, lay hands on the prophets of Baal, let not one of them escape.

B And when they had taken them, Eliab broughte them downe vnto the brooke Ison, and slew them there. Then Eliab sayd vnto Achab, gette the vp, seate thy selfe, for ther is a sound of much captiue. And when Achab wente vp to eate and dryncke, Eliab wente vp to the toppe of a mount Carmel, and bowed hym selfe to the earth, and put his face betwene his knees and sayd to his seruante: goe vp and loke toward the Sea. And he met vp and looked, and sayd: here is nothyng, and he sayd: go agayne seuen tymes. And the seuenthe tyme he said: beholde, there styeth a lytle cloude oute of the sea, lyke the paulme of a mannes hande.

Then he sayd: go and saye to Achab, put the horses in the charerie, and gette the downe, that the captiue stoppe the nor. And wythin a little whyle, beauen was blacke with cloudes and wynde; and there was a greete rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezrebell, and the hande of the Lorde was vpon Eliab, and he gyrded by his loynes, and ranne before Achab, till they came to Jezrebell.

The xii. Chapter.

Eliab seruant from Jezrebell, is named of the angell of God. He complayneth that he is left alone, and that they seeke his lyfe. He is commaunded to annoynte Jehu, and Eliseus.

A And Achab told Jezrebell, al that Eliab had done, & altogether how he had slaine the prophetes with the sword. When Jezrebell sente a messenger vnto Eliab, sayinge: * So do God to me, and so thereto, but if I make thy soule lyke one of theys, by to morowe this tyme: when he sawe that, he arose and wente for his lyfe, and came to Bersabe in Iuda, and left his seruante there. And he wente a dayes iourneye into the wyldernesse, & when he was come, he late downe vnder a Junypar tree, and desired for his soule, that he myghte dye, and sayd:

Jonas. iii. c

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde, there came an aungell and touched hym, and sayd vnto hym: arise, and eate. And he looked aboute hym: and loe, there was an timber cake, and a cruse of water at his heade. And he eate and dryncke, and layde hym downe agayne to sleape. And the aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayd arise and eate. for thou haste a longe iourneye to go. And he arose, and dyd eate and dryncke, and went in the strength of that meate fortye dayes, and fortye nyghtes vnto Horeb, the mount of God, and entered there into a caue, and lodged there all nyghte.

And then the woide of the Lorde came vnto hym, and sayd: what dost thou here Eliab? And he answered: I haue bene thome augepte, for the Lorde God of hostes sake. For the chylderen of Israel, haue forsaken thy couenaunte, and haue broke downe thine aulcres, and slayne thy prophetes with the sword, and I onely am left, and they seeke my soule to haue it. And he sayd: come oute and stande before the Lorde.

Rom. xi. c

And beholde the Lorde wente by, and a myghty stronge wynde, that rent the mountaynes, and brake the rockes before hym, but the Lorde was not in the wynde. And after the wynde came an Earthquake. And after the earthquake came fyre, but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a smalle spyll boyye.

And when Eliab hearde it, he couered his face with his mantell, and wente out, and stode in the mouth of the caue. And loe ther came a voyce vnto hym, and sayd: what dost thou here Eliab? And he answered: I haue bene earnestlye augepte for the Lorde God of hostes sake: because the chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thine appointement, and haue cast downe thine aulcres, and slayne thy prophetes with the sword, and I onely am left, and they seeke my soule to haue it. Then the Lorde sayd vnto hym: go, and turne thy way to the wyldernesse of Damascus, and go and annoynte Hazael to be kynge of Syria.

And Jehu the sonne of Hami anoynt to be king ouer Israel. And Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, of Abel mebulah anoynt to be prophete in thy towne. And he so escape the sword of Hazael, vnto Hal Jehu sea, & if any man escape the sword of Jehu hym Hal Eliseus sea. And thereto I haue left me seuen thousand in Israel, of whiche neuer manne bowed his knees vnto Baal, & nor killed him with his mouth. And he departed thence and founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat plowing with xii. oxes of Oren before hym, & he with the twelue.

And he sayd vnto hym: goo backe a-he went backe againe from him. and toke a poke of oren, and slewe them, and dressed the skes wth the instrumentes of the or-

The.rr.Chapter.

The first and seconde tyme that Samaria was beleiged of Benhadad kyng of Siria

AND Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all hys booke together, and xxxiiij. kynges with him, with horse and charret and went by and besieged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sente messengers to Achab kynge of Israel into the cite, and said unto hym: thus sayeth Benhadad. Thy silver and thy golde is myne, and the beste of thy wyues, and the beste of thy chylzen be myne. And the kynge of Israel answered and sayde: my lord king accordyng to thy sayinge, I am thynne with all that I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab, and sayed: thus saierh Benhabad. I haue therfore sente vnto the, sayinge: deliver me then thy silver, and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy children. Or els I will send my seruantes vnto the by to morrow this tyme: and they shal search thine house, and the house of thy seruants, which shall take all that is gloriouse in thine eyes, and burnge it awaye with them.

Then the kynge of Iſrael ſente for the elders of the lande, and ſayed : take heed I praye you , and ſee howe thys fellowe goeth aboute myſchefe . For he ſente unto me , for my wyues, and my chyldrenne, and my ſolace and my glaſſe : And all the elders of Iſrael, and all the people ſayed : hearken not to hym, nor conſente . Whereupon he ſayed to the meſſengers of Ben-hadad, tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he ſente for the fyrſt tyme, that I wyl doo, but thys requeſte I maye not doo . And the meſſengers departed and broughte hym worde.

Then Benbadad sente vnto hym and sayd: thus doo the Goddes to me, and so to thes. If the duste of Samaria be enough for all the people that folowe me, that e-uerie man maye haue an handefull. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayed: Telle hym, lette not hym that putteth hys harness booste hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. * And when Benbadad hearde that answere, as he and the kynges were dyuynge in the paylions, he sayed vnto vs seruantes: put youre sel-ues in atape. And they put theym selues in atape agaynst the ctyte. And beholde there came a prophete vnto Ahab kynge of Iſſaell, and ſayed to hym. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: Seeſte thou all thyſe greate multytude? Beholde, I wpll deliuer them into thyne hande this daye, that thou maieſte knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab ſayed, by whome? And he ſayed, thus ſaith the Lorde: euen by the gouernours men of the ſhyres. And Achab ſayed: who ſhall ſpyke to myne battayle? And he ſayed, thou.

Then he numbered the men of the gouer-ners of the ſhyres, and they were two hundred. xxxiiij. And after them he numbred all the people, and all the chyldreune of Iſ-ſaell were ſeuen thouſande. And they marched ſo warde at noone, when Benhadad was a dyrnckynge ſtronge dyruke in the pauillions wpth the two and thyrtye kinges that holpe hym.

And the men and rulers of the Hyres, wente oure frylle. And Benhadad sente forth, and thep shewed hym, sayinge: Ther come men from Samarra. And he sayed: if thep come to make peace, take thep in a lyue. And also, if thep come for warre, take thep in pet alyue. And when those menne of the Hyres of the Hyers were come out of the ctry, and the hooste after them, they sawe evere man bys enemye that rode in bys waye.

And the Syrians fledde, and Iſtaell followed after them. And Benhadad the king of Siria escaped on a horse, with his horse men. And the kynge of Iſtaell wente out and smote horse and charette, and slew a great slaughter of the Syrians. Then ther came a Propete to the kynge of Iſtaell, and sayed vnto hym: go forth, and play the man, be bold and take vnde what thou doeſt: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Siria wyll come agaynſt the agayne.

Then said the seruantes of the kinge of Siris to him. The Goddes of the hilles ar they? Gods, and therfore they had þ better of vs. But let vs fyghte wth them in the playne, and vndoubtedlye we shall haue the better of the. And this do, take the kin ges awape, & put Dukes in theyr rounes.
And turne the a new hoste, lyke the hoste that thou hast loste, and haile for horse, and charret for charret, and let vs fyghte wth them in the playne, & for a wager we gette the better of the. And the king bekned on to their counseil, and byd euery so.

And as soon as the peace was gone about, Benhadad numbered the Syrians, and wente up to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the children of Israel were numbred and provided of victual, and wente against them, and pitched before them, like two little flocks of kyddes, but the Syrians filled the countrey.

Then ther came a man of God, and saide vnto the kynge of Iudaell, thus saied the Lord. Because the Syrians say: the Lord is but a God of the hylls, and not God of the valleyes too, therefore will I deliuer all thyngs grete muste be into thyne hand: that ye may knowe that I am the Lorde.

And they purged one ouer agaynste the other. vii. dayes, and the seuenth day they forned bachel. And the child of Israel slew of the Syrians, an hundred thousand foremen in one daye. And the rest fledde to Aphek into the cite. And there fell a waile vpon. xxi. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fledde, and went into the cite, from chamber to chamber.

Then sayed his seruantes vnto hym: Beholde, we haue hearde saye, that the kinges of the house of Israel be merciful kinges. Let vs put sackcloth about our loines and ropes aboute oure heades and go ouer to the kynge of Israel: haply he wyl saue thy lyfe. So they gydd sackcloth aboute their loynes, and put ropes aboute their heades, & went out to the kynge of Israel, and sayd: thy seruant Benhadad sayth: I praye the let me lyue. And he sayed: Is he yet aloue? What, he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke, and hastyly caught it out of his mouth, and sayed: Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayed goo and brynge him. And Benhadad came out to hym, and the other toke hym vp into the charette. And Benhadad sayde: the cyres whiche my father toke from thy father, I wyl restore agayne.

And thou shalt make Streets for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Sama. I. And I wyl make a leage wth the, and sende the away. And so made a leage wth him and sente hym away.

Then a certayne man of the chyldren of the prophetes sayed vnto his felowe wth the word of the Lorde: flete me I praye the. And the man woulde not flete hym. And he sayed, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: behold, as sone as thou art departed and gone from me, a Lion shal fynde the. And as sone as he was departed from hym, a Lion founde hym and stode by him. Then he found an other man and sayed to hym: flete me I praye the. And the man gaue hym a good steepe and wounded hym. And the prophet met forth a warred for the kynge by the waye and tyed a kerchele ouer his eyes: and put himselfe oute of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he crept vnto hym and sayde: thy seruante wente oute in the myds of the batel. And lo, ther was one began to flee. And there came a man to me and sayd: kepe thou this man. And if he be missed, thy lyfe shal goo for his, or els thou shalt paye a talente of siluer. And as thy seruant had here and there to do, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayd to hym: euen so shal thy iudge ment be as thou hast defenede thy selfe.

And he baded and unfolded the kerchele awaie from his eyes: and the kynge of Israel knewe hym, that he was of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto the kynge, thus saith the lord: because thou hast let go a man that ought to haue died, thy lyfe shal go for his lyfe, & thy people for his. And the kynge of Israel wente to his house all sad and very deuyr, and entred into Samaria.

2de. xxi. Chapter.

Jezebel comendeth to hyl Naboth, for the vineyard that he refused to sell Achab. hysly as reproach Achab, and he repenteth.

After these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard in Jezreel hard by the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake to Naboth, sayng: let me haue thy vineyard, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lieth so nigh my house: & I wyl geue the a better vineyard for it: or if it please the I wyl geue the the worth of it in siluer. But Naboth said to Achab: the Lord thy god hath sayd me, that I shuld geue the inheritance of my fathers vnto the.

Then met Achab vnto his house exceeding angry, and euyl payed, because of the wordes which Naboth & Jezreelite had spoken to him, sayng: I wil not geue the inheritance of my fathers. And he layd hym downe vpon his bedde, and turned aways his face, and would eate no meate.

Then Jezebell his wyfe came to hym, and sayed vnto hym: Why arte thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meate? And he sayed vnto hyr: I spake vnto Naboth the Jezreelite, and sayed to hym: Gyue me thy vineyard for siluer, or els if thou wylst, I wyl geue the an other vineyard for it. And he sayed: I wyl not geue the my vineyard.

Then sayed Jezebell his wyfe to hym: What a goodly kingdome were thou able to make in Israel? Ete and eate meate and sette thyne herte at reaste, for I wyl gyue the the vineyard of Naboth to Jezreelite. Then she wrote a letter in Achabs name and sealed it wth his seel, and sente it to the elders, and chiefe men of his cite, that dwelte where Naboth dwelte. And she wrote in the letter, sayinge: proclayme fastynge, and set Naboth on hygh among the people, and set euo naughtere felowes before hym, and sette them testyfe agaynst him, sayng: thou dydst blaspheme both God and the kynge. And by that casse hym out, and stene hym to deathe.

And the elders and nobles of his cite whiche dwelt in his cite, dyd as Jezebell had sente vnto them, and as it was wrytten in the letter whiche she hadde sent vnto them. They proclaymed fastynge, and set Naboth on hye among the people, and ther came in two vniuersite persons and stode before hym. And the two deuyls wher sonnes witnesssed agaynst Naboth before the people, sayinge: Naboth dyd curse god and the kynge. And vnto that they carryed him forth of the cite & stoned hym wth stones to deathe.

And they sente to Jezebell, sayinge: Naboth is deade.

Act. vii. 9

both is stoned to death. And when Jezabel heard that Naboth was stoned to death, she said to Achab: arise and take possession of the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, which he denied to give thee for silver: for Naboth is not alive, but dead. And when Achab heard that Naboth was dead, he arose to go down to the vineyard of Naboth & Jezrahelite to take possession of it.

And the word of the Lord came unto Elijah the Tsebote, saying: arise & go down to meet Achab king of Israel, whereby he is in Samaria. Behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth: for he is gone downe thither, to take possession of it. And say unto him, thus saith the Lord: thou hast killed, and more once gotten possession. And say after that unto him: thus saith the Lord: in the place where Dogges lapped the bloude of Naboth, shall Dogges lap even thy bloude also. And Achab said to Elijah dost thou founde me thine enemye at anye time? And he said: yea, because thou art utterly appointed to worke wickednes in the sight of the Lord.

Behold, I will bringe euill upon thee, and will make cleane riddance of thyne issue, and will destroye of Achab, all that pisseth agaynst the wal, & euen the incluse, and furbeste in Israel, and will make thyne house, like the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and like the house of Baasa, the sonne of Abiad, because thou hast prouoked me to anger, & made Israel sinne. And also agaynst Jezabel came the word of the Lord, saying: Dogges shall eate Jezabel vnder the walles of Jezrael. And he that dieth of Achab in the towne, hym shall dogs eate: & he that dieth in the fields, hym shall the foules of the ayre eate.

For there was none at all like Achab that was so utterly appointed to doo wickednes in the sight of the Lord, and that because Jezabel his wyfe pricked hym so inward. And therefore he dyd exceedingly abominable, in following Idols, in all thinges, like as did the Amorites, whiche the Lord caste oute before the chylidren of Israel. When Achab hearde these wordes, he rent his clothes, and putte sackcloth aboute his fleshe, and fasted, and laye in sacke, and went comfortlesse. And the word of the Lord came to Eliah the Tsebote, saying: see thou howe Achab humbleth hym selfe before me? because he so humbleth hym before me, I will not bringe the euill in his daies: but in his sonnes daies I will bringe euill upon his house.

The xxii. Chapter.

Four hundred false prophets do comfyt Achab and Josaphat to warre against Ramoth: only Michaeah propheseth the truth, for whiche he is saynten, and put in prison.

And he continued the peace without warre betwene Syria and Israel. * And the thirde yere Josaphat kinge of Iuda came to the kinge of Israel. Then sayed the kinge of Israel vnto his seruantes, knowe ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ouers, and we syt still, and take it not oute of the handes of the kinge of Syria? And he sayed to Iosaphat: wyle thou go with me to batteill, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Josaphat sayed vnto the kinge of Israel: * I wyl be as thou arte, and my people shal be as thyne, And Josaphat sayed to the king: aske counsaile I pray the, of the Lord to daye, And then the kinge of Israel gathered of the prophetes together, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayed vnto them: Shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to battaill, or be still? And they sayed: go for the Lord shall deliuer it into the handes of the kinge. And Josaphat sayed: is there not one prophet of the Lord here more, that we myghte enquire of hym?

And the kinge of Israel sayed to Josaphat: there is yet one, by whome we may aske counsaile of the Lord, one Michaeah the sonne of Iemlah, but I hate him for he neuer propheseth good vnto me, but euill. And Josaphat sayed: let not the kinge saye so. Then the kinge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlaynes and sayd: let Michaeah the sonne of Iemlah hether at once. And the kinge of Israel and Josaphat the kinge of Iuda, sate cyther in his seate, and they appatell on them, in a void place beside the enterynge of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes, prophesying before them. And Jeechiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of iron, and sayed, thus saith the Lord: with these hornes thou shalt winowe the Syrians, vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the prophetes prophesied euen so, saying: go to Ramoth in Galaad and prosper, for the Lord shall deliuer it into the handes of the kinge.

And the messenger that was gone to call Michaeah, sayed vnto hym: see, the wordes of the prophetes speake good of the kinge with one voice, let thy wordes I pray the be like the wordes of one of the, and speake that is good.

And Michaeah sayde: as sure as the Lord liueth, what the Lord putteth in my mouth, that wyl I speake. And when he was come vnto the king, the kinge sayed vnto him: Michaeah, shal we go to Ramoth in Galaad to battaill, or shall wee be still? And he sayd vnto hym, * goo and prosper, for the Lord shall deliuer it into the handes of the kinge. And the kinge sayed vnto him: howe often shal I adure the, that thou tel me nothing but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayde: I sawe all Israel scattered vpon the hylls, as sheepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lord said, these haue no mayster, let them returne euery man to his house in peace.

Then sayed the kinge of Israel to Josaphat:

Eraphat: I wd not I tell the, that he wolde prophetic no good unto me, but euyl: And Agicheah sayde: Heate thou therefore the worde of the Lorde: I saw the Lorde sitte on hys seate, and al the company of heauē standyng about hym, on his ryghte hande, and on hys lefte, and the Lorde sayde: * Who shal deceiue Achab, that he maye go and be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? And one sayde on thys maner, and another on that. Then came forth a spūte and stode before the Lorde, and sayde: I wyl deceiue him. And the Lorde sayd: wherewith? And he sayd: I wyl go out, and be a false spūte in the mouthes of all his prophets.

And the Lorde sayde: Thou shalt deceiue hym, & also preuayle, go forth, and do euyl so. Now therefore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lyngge spūte in the mouthes of all these thy prophets, when in very dede the Lorde hath spoken euyl toward the. Then zedekiah, the sonne of Canaanah went to, and smote Agicheah on the cheke and sayde: Howe is the spūte of the Lorde gone from me, to speake in the? And Agicheah sayd: Behold thou shalt se in þe daie, whē thou shalt go fro chamber to chāber to hide the. And the king of Israel said: Take Agicheah, and carpe hym backe agayne vnto Amon the gouernour of the city: and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and saie: thus sayeth the king: Putte this fellow in pryson, and fede him with breade and water straght, tyll I retorne in peace. The Agicheah sayde: if thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he saide: hearken ye people, euerye one of you.

And so the kyng of Israel, and Josaphat kyng of Juda wente by to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kyng of Israel sayde to Josaphat: I wyl chaunge myne apparell, and get me to warre, but put thou on thyne owne apparell.

And the kyng of Israel chaunged hys raymente, and wente to battell also. But the kyng of Siria had commaunded the captaynes of hys Charettes, of whiche he had xxiij. saynge: fight nether with small nor grete, saue with the kyng of Israel onlpe. And when the captaynes of the Charettes saw Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kyng of Israel, and therefore they turned to hym to fyghte. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe that he was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe from hym. And a certayne man drew a bow vnwares and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of hys harners. Wherefore the king said to the driuer of his charret, turne thy hand, and carpe me forth of the host, for I am hurte. And the felde encreased that day, and the kyng continued in his charret before the Sirians, and died about nyghte. And the bloude ranne oute of the wounde into the botto me of the charret. And there wente a proclamacion thowenoute the hoste after the sunne was downe: I praye: let euerye man departe to hys cyty, and to hys owne contry. And when the al of Israel was deade, they came to Samaria, and buryed him there.

And whyle they washed the charette in the pole of Samaria, the Dogges lpyed up hys bloude, and harlottes washed by accordyng to the word of the Lorde which he spake. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe that he was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe from hym. And a certayne man drew a bow vnwares and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of hys harners. Wherefore the king said to the driuer of his charret, turne thy hand, and carpe me forth of the host, for I am hurte. The Fifth Chapter.

Theophilus is hurt, and seeketh counsell of Bel-zebub howe he may come by helth. The captaynes our City with their souldiours are burnt, by the prayer of Belsh. Theophilus is reproued of Belsh, and dieth, and Jeropa hys brother succeedeth hym.

 Hoziah the sonne of Zachab began to raigne vpon Israell in Samaria, the xviij yere of Josaphat kynge of Iuda and was kynge ouer Israell two yere, and did euill in the sighte of the Lord, and walked in the way of hys father, and in the waye of hys mother, and of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whiche made Israell synne And he serued Baall, and bowed hym selfe to hym, and angered the Lorde God of Israell in all thyng, as dyd hys father. And Hoziah fell thowhe a latteste wyndowe, oute of an upper chamber that he hadde in Samaria, and fell speke.

When he sente messengers, sayinge vnto them: Go and enquire of Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I shall recouer of this dysease, or no. But the Angell of the Lorde spake to Elisha the Thesbite saying, smaspe, and go agaynste the messengers of the Kinge of Samaria, and sape vnto them: Is there no God in Israell, that I go to aske of Beelzebub the God of Akaron? Therefore thus saith the Lord: Thou shalt not come downe from the bed vntill thou ipest, but shalt dye. And Elisha departed.

13 And the messengers turned backe againe vnto Pharaoh. And he sayed vnto them wherfore ye thus come agayne.

And they said vnto hym: ther came a man a garunte vs and sayde vnto vs: go and returne vnto the kynge that sente you, and Telle hym. Thus saith the Lorde: Is there no God in Israell. that thou sendest to enquire of Beelzebub the God of Aka-ron? Therfore thou shalt not come downe from thy bed whereon thou arte gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he said to them: What maner manne was that whiche met you, and tolde you these wordes? And they sayde vnto hym it was an heape manne, and gyde wpth a girdle of a skynne about hys loynes. And he said vnto them: it is Eliab the Thelbite.

Then the King sente vnto hym a Captayne ouer fifty, with his fifty that were vnder hym. And when the captayne was come vnto hym, beholde, he sate vpon the toppe of an hyl. And the Capptayne sayd unto him: Man of God, the king biddeth the come downe. And Eliah answered and saide to the captaine ouer the sytpe: If I be a man of God, fire come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy sytpe.

* And there came fyre downe from heauen and deuoured hym and hys fpyte. And the kyng sente to hym a nother Captayne ouer fpyte wpth his fpyte me with him, whp he answered and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, thus saith the kyng: make hast and come downe. And Eliah answered & sayde to them: If I be a man of God, then lette fyre come downe frome heauen, and consume the and thy fpyte. And there came fyre down from heauen and consumed hym and hys fpyte.

And the kyng sent agayn the thyrde capteine ouer spfste. And when the thyrde capteine ouer spfste was come vnto hym, he fell on hys knees before Eliah, & besought hym, and sayd vnto hym: Oh man of God let my lyfe, and the lyfe of these spfste thy seruauntes be precious in the spghte of my Lord. Behold, ther came fyre downe from heauen and burnte vp the two fore Capptynes ouer spfste wpth thei: spfstes: But lette my lyfe nowe be precious in thy spghte. Then sayde the angel of the Lord vnto Eliah: So downe wpth hym, and be not afrayed of hym: And he wente downe wpth hym to the kyng.

And he sayde vnto the kyng: thus sayth the lord: for as much as thou sentest messengers to aske thowow Belzebub the God of Akaron. as though ther had bene no God in Israell to aske thowowe lps word, therfore thou shalt not come of the bed on whiche thou art mounted, but shalt surely dye. And so he dyed accordyng to the wooorde of the Lorde whiche Eliah spake, and Jehozam was made kyng in lps steade, the seconde yere of Jehoram sonne of Josaphat kyng of Iuda. because he hadde no sonne. the rest of the dedes of Whoziah whiche he did, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell.

The ii. Chapter.

El-ah drincketh the waters with his man-fill. He is taken vp into heauen. The bytter and benemouse waters are healed by the salt that Eliens put into them. The childrene that worke Eliens are rent in peaces.

And it chaunced when the Lord wold take vp Eliah to heauen in a whole wynde, that Eliah and Eliseus wer goynge from Galgail And Eliah sayd to Eliseus: tary here, for the Lord hath sent me to Bethel. But Eliseus sayd: as surely as the Lord liueth, & as thy soule liueth, I wyl not leaue the. And when they came to Bethel, þ childre of the prophets that wer at Bethel, came forth to Eliseus, & saide to him: knowest thou not that the Lord wyl take awaye thy master, that he be no longer thy head thy sarge? And he sayde: I knowe it to, holde your peace.

इहं

When saide Eliah to Eliseus: tary here I pray the, for the Lord hath sent me to Jericho. And he sayd: as surely as þe Lord sp-ueth, as surely as thy soule spueþ, I wyl not leaue the: and so they wente to Jericho. And the chylidren of the prophet that were at Jericho, came to Eliseus, and said vnto hym: arte thou not aware that the Lorde wyl take awaye thy master frome the this daye? And he answered: I knowe it also, holde youre peace. And Eliah saide vnto hym: tarpe I praye the here, for the Lorde hath sente me too Jordan. But he sayde: as surely as the Lorde spueþ, and as thy soule spueþ, I wyl not leaue the.
And so they wente bothe of them together.
And fiftie menne of the sonnes of the prophetes wente and stode in spghte a farte of lijah toke hys mantell, and wrapte it togeand they two wente ouer on the drye land.

And as sone as they were ouer, Eliah said they wente walkyng and talkyng, be-ses of fyre, and put them a sunder. And Elijah wente by in the whorlewinde to heauen. And Eliseus sawe and cryed: O my father, O my father, þe charret of Israel, and hys charette manne: but he sawe hym no more, and therefore toke hys owne clothes and rente them in two peaces. And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fel from him, and wente backe againe, and stode by Jordanes syde, and wroth the mantell of Elijah that fel frome hym, he smote the water, and sayed: where is the Lorde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smitten the water, it deupped parte this way, and parte that way, and Eliseus went ouer. And the chylidren of the prophetes of Jericho, whiche sawe hym a farte, sayd: the spirit of Eliah dothe reste on Eliseus, and wente agaynst hym, and bowed too the earth to him. And they sayed vnto hym, se there be amonge thy seruantes fiftie ludy men: let them go and seke thy master, happely the spirit of the Lorde hath taken hym by, and hath caste him vpon some mountayne, or in some balke.

And he sayde: sende not. Neuerthelesse yet they laye vpon hym, tyll he was ashamed, and sayde: sende, and they sente fiftie menne, whiche soughte hym three dayes and thre nightes, but founde him not. And they came againe vnto hym, for he sayed at Jericho. And he sayd to them: dyd I not saye vnto you, that ye shoulde not goo?
When the men of Jericho said to Eliseus, beholde, the cite standeth pleasauntelye as my Lord seeth, but the water is nought and the ground barren. And he said, bring me a newe cruse: and put salt therein. And they brought it to hym. And he wente by to the spunge of the water, and caste the salte in therether, and sayed, thus sayth the Lorde: I heale this water, there shall not come hence forth ept he death or barren-nesse. And the water was healthsome euer after, accordyng to the woorde of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he wente from thence to Bethell.
And as he was goyng in the waye, there came little laddes out of the cite, and mocked him. A said vnto him: go by thou balde heade, go by thou balde heade. And he tour-ned backe, and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lord. And there came two Beres out of the wood, and tare xli of the bones. And he went from thence to mounte Charnell, and from thence he wente againe to Samaria.

The iii. Chapter.

The kynges of Israel, Juda, and Edom lacked water, when they shoulde fyghte a-gaynst Moab: whiche they obtayne thorough the prayer of Eliseus. The kyng of Moab leteþ the seide, and after sacri-ficeþ hys sonne.

Jehoram the sonne of Achab beganne to reigne vpon Israel in Samaria the eightene yere of Josaphat kyng of Juda, and contynued twelue yere. And wroughte image of Baal that his father had made.

Neuertheles he contynued in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whiche made Israel synne, and shooke not ther-fro. And Moab, kyng of Moab, whiche was the of Weepe (and was wonne too reder to the kynges of Israel, an hundred thousand lames, and as many rams with the wolfe rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel after þe death of Achab. And king Jehoram wente out of Samaria, the same season, and numbered all Israel, and then wente and sente to Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayyng: the kyng of Moab hath rebelled agaynst me, wylte thou go with me against the Moabites to battel. And he said: I wil goo, and wyl be as thou, and my people shalbe as thine, and my horses as thine.
And he sayde: what waye shal we go? And the other answered: the waye thorow the wyldeynes of Edom.

And the kyng of Israel toke hys iour-ney with the kyng of Juda, and the kyng of Edome. And when they had compassed the way seuen dayes, there was no water for the host, nor for the cattel that they had with them. Then said the kyng of Israel, alas the Lorde hath called together these three kynges to deliuer them into the handes of the Moabites. But Josaphat saide: is one of the kynges of Israels seruauntes an-of Saphat: whiche powred water vpon the handes of Eliah. And Josaphat sayd: the worde of the Lorde is wpth hym. And so the kynges of Israel and Josaphat, and the kynges of Edom wente do vne to hym.

And Eliseus sayde to the kynges of Isto the prophetes of thy father, and of thy mother. And the kynges of Israel sayed vnto hym: Oh nape, but hath the Lorde cal-he sayde: thus bindeth the Lorde, make at

For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall see her-ther wpride nor capne, and yet thys brooke shall bee fylled wpth water, that ye maye dunke, & pour beastes and pour cattel also.
And thys is but a smal thing in the spghte of the Lorde: But he wil giue the Moabites into your handes also.

And ye shall destroy all strong townes, and all goodlye cyties, and shall fell all pleasaunte trees, and stoppe all the welles of water, and make al good plots of ground wpth stones. And in the moynge aboute offerpyge tyme, there came suche a water the waye from Edome, that the countrey was fylled wpth water.

When all the Moabites hearde that the kynges were come to spghte agaynst them they assembled from the pongest that was able to put on harnes and so upward, and waited in the borders. And they beinge by eclipse in the moynge, the sunne arose, & shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water a farre of, as redde as bloude, they sayde: it is bloude: the kynges haue foughte together, and one slayne an other. Nowe therefore ye Moabites, gette you to the people. And when they came to the hoste of Israel, the Amalites stood by and sayde on the Moabites, that they fled before them. And so they entered the land, and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cities, and on euery good pec-cel of land, call euery man his stone, & ouer couered it, and stoppt al the welles of water, and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones thereof byd remayne in the walles of Jericho, the kynges wente bypon it and beate it.

And there cryed a certayne woman of the wyues of the chyldren of the prophetes vnto Eliah, sayinge: thy seruant my husbande is dead, and thou knowest that thy seruant did feare the Lorde.

And the manne that lent vs monye is come to sette my two sonnes, too be his bondemen. And Eliseus sayed vnto hyr.
What shall I do for the. Tel me, what hast thou in thine house? And she sayde, thine handmayde hath nothpyge at all in hyr

Go and borowe the in other places, of all not a few, and then go and shutte the dore to the, and to thy sonnes, and poure out in to all those vessels, and put the ful alwaye aside. So she went from him, and shut the dore to hyr, and to her sonnes.

And they broughte to her and she poured out. And when the vessels were ful, she sayd to her sonne: bring yet a vessel. And he sayd: there is no mo. And then the oyle ceased.
Then she came and tolde the man of God.
And he sayde: go and sel the oyle, and paye seus came to Sunam wher was a ryche wo-

And as ofte as he came that way, he toun-

And it fortuneth on a tyme that he came sayd to hym, say to her I pray the: se thou hast made all thys prouision for vs, what shal we do for the? woldest thou be spoken no childe, and her husbande is olde.

And he sayd: call her. And he called her.

And ther he complained vnto his father, saying: my head, my head. And hys father sayde to a seruaunt: carpe hym to hys mother. & he toke hym and brought hym to his mother. And he late on her knees til noone and then dyed. And she caried hym vp, and layd hym on the bed of the man of God, & shut the dore to hym, & went out, and came to her husband and sayde: send me one of the pong men and an asse, that I may run to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wilt thou go vnto hym to day, whyle it is neyther new moone, nor saboth day? And she sayd: be content. Then she saddled an asse, and said to her seruaunt: leade a way, & make me not cease ryding tyl I byd the.

So she went, and came to the man of God to mounte Carmell. And when the man of God sawe hir a farre, he said to Giezi his seruaunt: se where oure seruaunte cometh. Howe go and mete hir and aske hir whether it be wel with hir & with hys husbande, and wpth the chylde. And she sayd: all is wel. Then she wente to the manne of God vp to the hill, and caughte hym by the fete. And Giezi wente to hir to thrust hys awape. But the man of God sayde: let hys alone, for hys soule is deper, and the Lord hathe hid it from me, and hath not told it me. Then she sayde: did I despie a sonne of myn Lorde? yd I not say that thou shuldest not moche me? Then he sayde to Giezi: gird vp thy lopnes, & take my staffe in thine hand, & get the hede. If any wā mete the, salute him not. And if anye salute the, answer hym not. And put my staffe vpon þ hope. Notwithstandyng the mother of the chylde sayde as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soul liueth, I wil not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed hir. Giezi wente befoze them, and putte the staffe vpon the ladde. But ther was neyther breath nor fealpyng. And then he went against his master and foulded hym, sayinge: it hathe not awaked the chylde.

When Elizeus was come to the house, beholde, the bope was dead, and sayde vpon his bedde. And he wente in and shutte the dore to the chylde and hym: and prayed vnto the Lorde. And he went vp, and layd vpon the lad, and put his mouth vpon his mouthe, and his eyes on his eyes, and the palme of hys handes, on the paulme of hys handes, and spred hym selfe vpon the lad, that the fesse of the lad wared warme. And wente agayne and walked vppe and down in the house, and then went vp, and spred hym selfe vpon him, and then the lad knesled by tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Giezi and sayde: Call for thys Sunamite. And he called hir. And when she was come vnto him, he sayd: take thy sonne. Then she wente, and fell at his fete and bowed hir selfe to the ground, and toke vp hir sonne, and wente forth. When Elizeus was come vnto Baigal agayn, ther was a deathe in the lande, and the chyl-dren of the prophetes dwelte wpth hym. Then he sayde to hys seruaunte, put on a greute pot and make potage for the chyl-dren of the prophetes. And one wente out into the feilde to gather herbes, and found as it were a wilde byne, and gathered ther of Colouintidaes his lap full, and came & shred them into the pot of potage, and wist not what it was. And they poured oute for the men to eate. And when they had tasted of the potage they cryed oute, and sayde: there is deathe in the pot, thou man of God, and coulde not eate thereof. Then he sayd: bynge meale. And he cast it into the pot, & said: fil for the people, that they may eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baalsah: and brought the man of God bread of the fiste frutes, euen twentye loues of barlye, and new corne in a clothe he had. And Elizeus bad put it befoze the people, that they may eate. Then his minister sayde: what, hal I set this befoze an hundred me. And he said: set it befoze the people, & let them eate. For thus saith the Lord: They shal eate & leaue. And he set it befoze the, and they eat & leftte accordyng to the word of the Lord.

The v Chapter.

Naaman the Syrian is healed of his leproy. Giezi is stricken with a leprosy because he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman captain, of the host of Siria, was great with his master, & wel taken, for thozow him the Lord saued Siria. And he was an actiue mā, & a ryche, but yet a leper. And there was a compaign of souldiours gone out of Siria a rounyng, and had brought of the cuntrey of Israell a little maid, which was wpyly Naamans wife. And the damosel said vnto hir Lady: I woulde my Gynestes were wpyly a prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde deliuer hym of his leproy.

And she went and tolde her husband, saying: thus and thus sayth the mayde of the land of Israell. And the king of Siria said: go thy waye, and I wyl sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israell. And he wente, and toke wpth hym ten talentes of spuer, and spre thousande pieces of golde, and tenne chaunge of raymentes. And he brought the letter to the kyng of Israell, contepnyng in effecte these wordes. When thys letter is come vp to the: Behold, I haue sent Naaman my seruaunte to the, that thou shuldest cpydde hym of hys leproy. of God, had hearde howe the kyng of Israel had sente hys clothes, he sente to the kyng, sayinge: Wherefore hast thou sent thy clothes: lette hym come to me that he maye knowe there is a prophet in Israel.

And Naaman came wpth hys horyes and hys charret, and stode at the dore of E-liseus. When Eliseus sent a messenger saying go and wash the in Jordan seven times and thy flesh shalbe hole, and thou shalt be cleane. And Naaman was wroth and went away, and said: Behold, I thoughte in my selfe, he would haue come oute, and stande and call on the name of the Lord his God, and put his hande on the place of the dysease, and so take awaye the leproye. Are not Abanah and Pharpar rivers of Damascus better then all the waters of Israel. Wght I not rather washe in them and be cleane?
And so he turned and departed in anger.

When came hys seruauntes, and talked wth hym, and sayde: Father, if the pro-phete had byd the done some grete thyng oughtest thou not to haue done it? Howe much rather then shuldest thou do it, while he saythe to the only, wash and be cleane.

* Then he went downe and washed seven tymes in Jordan as the man of God bad, and his flesh changed, like vnto the flesh of a lytle boye, and he was cleane.

Then he turned agayne too the man of God and al his compaigne wpth hym, and came and stode before hym, and sayde. Be-holde I knowe there is no God in all the worlde but in Israel. And now I praye the take a reward of thy seruaunt. But he said

* as surely as the Lord liueth, before whō I stand, I wil receiue none. And the other wold haue constrayned hym to receiue, but he wold not. And Naaman sayd: if thou wilt not, yet I praye the make there not be geuen thy seruaunt the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunte wyl henceforth offer vnto any other God then to the Lorde. But herein the Lorde be mercifull to thy seruaunte, for when my master goeth into the house of Amon to worshype there, he leaneth on myne hande, and I must worshype in the house of Amon: let the Lorde I praye the be mercifull vnto thy seruaunte in this case. And he sayd to him:

go in peace. And when he was departed from hym a furlong of ground, Bihezi the seruaunte of Eliseus the manne of God, sayd: se, my master is so pitiful to this Si-rien Naaman that he woulde not receiue of hys hande that he offered. As surely as the Lord lyueth, I wyl runne after hym and take somewhat. And so Bihezi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him running after him, he came downe oute of the charret against him, & said: is al well?

And he saide yea. But my master hath sent me, sayinge: so there be u pouge men come to me oute of Ephraim of the chyldren of prophetes: gyue them I praye thee, one talente of siluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And Naaman said: auenture and take two talentes of siluer, and he con-strayned hym, and bound two talentes of siluer in two bags, with two goodly garmentes, and deliuered the vnto two of his seruauntes to beare it before hym. So whē he came to the towne he toke it of their han-des, and bestowed it in the house, and lette the men go, and they departed.

When he wente and stode before hys master. And Eliseus saide to him: whence commeth Bihezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunte wente no whither. And he sayd: wente not myne heart wth the, when the man turned and came of hys charret against the? Wd not I knowe the time when thou wentest to receiue siluer, and to receiue garmentes, olype trees, vineyards, open, shepe, mē seruauntes and mayd seruauntes? The leproye vnto thy seede for euer. * And he went oute from hym a leper as whyte as snowe.

The. vi. Chapter.

Eliseus maketh prou to saye aboute the water. Vnto the siege of Israel, so that two womē agree together to eat thei own child.

Then sayde the chyldren of prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where wee dwel with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therefore take euerye man a peece of tymber and build vs a place there to dwel in. And he sayde: gope. And one sayd: begyn I praye the, and go with thy seruaunts. And he sayd I wil, and so wente wpth them.

And when they came to Jordan: they cutte downe woode. And as one was hewyng of a tree, the axe head fell into the water. And he cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lent me. And the mā of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed hym the place. And he cut an helme and caste it in thither, and made the axe head saym.
And he said: take it vp to the. And the other stretched hys hande and caughte it.

And the kyng of Siria fought agaynst Israel, and toke counsel with his seruauntes, sayinge: In suche a place, and in suche a place. And the man of God sent vnto the kyng of Israel, sayinge: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Syrians gone downe. And the kyng of Israel sente too the place whiche the man of God told hym and warned him of, and saued hym selfe theremore then once ria was troubled therewith, that he sente for hys seruauntes, and sayde too them: *

the kyng of Israel? And one of hys seruan-tes sayde: nay my Lord kyng, Eliseus the sende and let hym. And ouer told the kynge, sayinge: he is in Dorban. And he sent thither horse and charettes, and a greate hoste. And they came thither by nyght and encamped aboute the towne about.

And when the seruaunte of the man of God rose vp early and was gone oure, behold there was an host rounde aboute the towne with horses and charettes.

Then sayd his seruauntes to hym. Alas mayster, what shall we doo? And he sayd: fear not, ther are mo wyth vs then wth the. And Eliseus prayed and sayde. Lord open the eyes of the pong man, and he saw. And behold, the mountayne was full of horses, and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Eliseus. And wher the souldyours came down to hym, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lord, and sayd: Smyte this people with blindness. And he smote them with blindness accordyng to the desire of Eliseus. The Eliseus sayd vnto them: this is not the maye nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I will bring ye to the man ye see. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eliseus sayd: Lord open theyr eyes, and let them see. And the Lord opened theyr eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Eliseus when he sawe the pmy: shall I smyte them? Shall I smyte them father? And he sayde, smite them not. But smyte those whom thou takest with thine owne swerde, and with thine owne bowe, but set breade and water before them, and sette them eate and drynke and goo to theyr mayster. And he made greate ordynance before them. And wher they had eaten and drynke, sente them awaye, and they wente to theyr mayster. And so the souldyours of Siria came no more into the land of Israel.

After this, Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besyged Samaria. And there arose greate dearthe in Samaria: for they besyged it tyll an asses heade was moze then foure score pyles of syluer, and the fourth parte of a cab of doves dong worth fyue pyles. And as the kynge of Israel walked vpon the walls, ther cryed a woman to him, sayinge: helpe my lord king. And he sayd: May the Lord helpe the. But wheremyth shoulde I helpe the, mych come or myne? Then sayde the kynge to her, what aylleth the? And she answered, this woman here. I. id to me, bring for sone, & let vs eate him to day, & we wyl eate myne to morowe. And so we dydd my sonne & did eat him. And I said to her a nother day, bring thy sonne, that we maye eate him: But she hath hid her sone. When the king hearde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothys euen as he was walkinge on the walles. And when the people looked vpon hym so, he was clothed in sacke vnder. And he sayd: God do so and so to me, if the heade of Eliseus the sonne of A phat tarpe on him this daye. And as Eliseus satte in his house and the elders mych hym, the kynge sente one for hym. But ere the messenger came at him, he said to the elders: Se you not howe the sonne of this murderer hath sente to take of myne heade? Be circumfpect therfore when the messenger cometh, and shut the doore, and shut hym backe therwith, for the souldes of his masters see foloweth hym. And whyle he per talked with them, Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd behold, thys euill is of the Lord, what moze shal we luke for of the Lord?

The.vii.chapter.

Eliseus prophesied plenty of byrdes and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians run awaye no man following them. The Lord that would not beleue the wordes of Eliseus is troden to death.

Then Eliseus sayde: heare the wordes of the Lord for thus saith the Lord: to morowe this tyme a bushel of fyne flour shal be sold for a sicke, and two bushels of barlepe for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hand the kynge leaned, answered the manne of God, and sayd: though the Lord would make wyndowes in heauen, yet would not this be. And he sayde agayne, Beholde, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, and shalt not eate therof.

And there were sower leapers set with the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to his companion: what spe we here vntill we dre? though we thynke that we myghte come into the ctyte, yet is the dearthe so great in the cite, that we shal dye. And if we eate here, we are but dead also. Some therfore come and let vs fle to the hooke of the Syrians: If they saue oure lyues, we shal lyue: And if they kyl vs, the are we dead. And so they arole in the darke to go to the hooke of the Syrians. And when they were come to the side of the hooke of Siria, loo there was no man there. For the Lord had made the host of the Siria and heare a nople of charettes, and a nople of horses, and the nople of a greate hoste. In somuch that they sayd one to another: lo the kynge of Israel hath hyed agaynst vs the kynge of the Bethites, & the kings of Egypt to come vpon vs. Wheruppon they arose, and fled in the darke, and sette their tentes, their horses, theyr asses, & the felde they had ppyched, euen as it was, and fled for theyr lyues. And wher these lepers came to the edge of the host, they went into a tent, and did eate and drinke, and caried thence, syluer, golde, and rapmente, and went and hydde it, and came agayne, and entered in to another, and caried thence also, & wente and hydde it. Then they sayde one to another, it is not well that wee doo, for thys daye hath broughte good trydnges with it. And if we holde oure peace and tarryt it be day lyghte, we shal fynd myschefe. Now therefore come, let vs go a tel the kynges household. And so they went and called to the porters of the cyte, and tolde them, sayinge: we came to the paulions of the Syrians, and lo there was no manne there, ne the voice of manne, but houlles and asses, cryed, and the tents euen as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynges house wythin. And the kyng arose in the nyghte, and sayd to his seruantes: I wyl shewe you how the Syrians haue serued vs. They knewe we are oppressed wyth hunger, and therefore are gone out of their paulions to hyde them selues in the field, sayinge: They wyl come out of the cyte, & then we shal catche them alive, & get into the cite. And one of his seruantes answered and sayed. Let men take foue of the houlles that remaine and are left in the cyte. Beholde, they are as good as all the multitude that are left in the cyte, and as good as all the multitude of the cyte that are consumed, and lette us sende and see. And they tooke two charers of houlles, and the kyng sent after the host of the Syrians, sayinge: Go and se. And they folowed after them, euen vnto Hazone: and loo, all the waye was ful of clothes and vesselles wherby the Syrians had caste from them for haste.

Then the messengers returned and tolde the kyng: and the people flocked out and robbed the tentes of the Syrians. And so a bushell of flour was sold for a shekel, and two bushells of barley for a shekel, according to the Lordes worde. And the kyng set the Duke on whose hande he leaued, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, accordyng to the sayinge of the Goodes man, wherby he sayed when the kyng came home to hym. And it came to passe accordyng to the worde of the man of God, lookyng to the kyng, sayinge: two bushells of barley for a shekel, & a bushell of barley for an other, shall be to morowe this tyme in the gates of Samaria. Where vnto the Duke answered the man of God and sayed: though the Lord made myn, homes in heauen, yet worlde this nor be. And the other sayde: beholde, thou shalt se it with thine eyes, and shalt not eat thereof. And so it chaunced, for the people trode him vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

The viii. Chapter.

Eliseus prophesied vnto the Sunammite & death of Hazone. After the death of Hazone, Hazone & Hazone in Syria. Jehoiam & son of Josaphat & Jehoiam in Juda. Jehoiam & son of Josaphat & Jehoiam in Juda. Jehoiam & son of Josaphat & Jehoiam in Juda.

Then spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to life, sayinge: arise and go with thou and thine house and sojourn where thou thyngest best, for the Lord wyl call a deeth, whiche shal come on the land seven yere. And the woman arose, and dyd after the sayinge of the Goodes man, and wente bothe she and her household, and sojourned in the land of the Philistines seven yere. And at the seven yeres ende, when the woman was come againe out of the lande of the Philistines, she went out to speake to the kyng for her house & for her lad. And the kyng was talking with Gehazi the seruant of the man of god, sayinge: tel me I pray the, al the great dedes whiche Eliseus did. And it chaunced as he was tellinge the kyng howe he restored a deade boye to lyfe againe, came in the woman whose sonne he reuured, and cryed to the kyng for her house and land. And she said: Gehazi: saye vnto the kyng, this is the woman and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus brought to lyfe againe. And the kyng asked the woman & she told him. And so the kyng sent with her one of his chamberlaines, sayinge: restore all that pertaineth to her with al the fruites of the field sythens the daye she lefte the lande vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kyng of Siria fel sicke. And one told the kyng, sayinge: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kyng to Hazael: take a presente with the and go againe the manne of God, and aske the Lord by hym whether I shal recover of this my dysease or no. And Hazael went to mete him, and toke presentes with hym, euen of all the good thynges of Damasco as muche as fourty camels coude beare, and came and presented hym selfe before him, and sayed: thy sonne Benhadad kyng of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge: shal I recover of this my dysease? Eliseus sayde: go and say to hym, thou shalt recover, for so be it the Lord hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God stroke him by hym, and was taken with a sore maledie. In somuch that he chaunged coloure & wept. And Hazael said, why wepeth my lord? And he answered, for I knowe that thou shalt do euill vnto the children of Israell, thou shalt stronge cyties thou shalt set on fyre, and thou shalt yowment thou shalt see with the sword, & shalt bash out the braynes of theyr sucking children, & al to teare theyr women with child. And Hazael sayed, what is thy seruant, which am but a dog, that I shuld do this great thinge? Eliseus sayed, for the Lord hath shewed me, that thou shalt be kyng of Siria. And so he departed from Eliseus, and came to his master, wherby he sayd to him: What said Eliseus to the? And he sayd: he sayd, he coulde me that thou shouldest recover. And on the morowe he toke a rough staffe, and dypte it in the water, and spredde cloth to him on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The first reare of Jehoiam sonne of Ahab kyng of Israell (Josaphat reare kyng of Juda) Jehoiam sonne of Josaphat, kyng of Juda beganne to raygne: thirte and two yere olde was he when he began to raygne, and raygned eynete yere in Ierusalem. And but dyd in he rose by nyghte, and layd on the Edomi-

The reste of the dedes of Jehoiam, and

And Jehoiam the sonne of Achab wente

Jehu made kyng of Israel, and killeth Jehoia the king therof, and Ohoziab king of Juda also: and thereto causeth Jezrebel to be cast downe forth of a window, whom dogges ate.

And Eliseus the prophete called vnto one of the children of the prophetetes, and said to hym: gyrd by thy lones, and take thys bore of oyle in thyne hande, and get the to Ramoth in Galaad.
And whē thou comest thither, thou shalt theise Jehu the sonne of Josaphat & sonne of Ramā, & go to him and make him arise vp sed among his brethē. & carie hym to a secrete chaber. And take the bore of oyle & pouce it on hys heade, and say, thus sayeth p lorde: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then open the doore and fle, & tary not. So the seruant of the prophete dyd gette hym to Ramoth in Galaad, and when he came, the capytaynes of the host were sytting toggyther. And he sayd:

I haue an errand to the, sy capytayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto whiche of alns? And he sayd: to the capytayne. And he arose and wente into the house.

And the other poured the oyle on hys head, and sayd to him, thus sayeth the Lorde god of Israel: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Israel the people of the Lorde, that thou shouldest the householde of Achab thy master. For p lorde sayeth the Lorde, wyl auenge the blud of al the seruants of the Lorde, of the had of Jezabel (for the hole house of Achab shall be destroyed) & I wil destroy vnto Ashall escape, no not so much as the pisoned the house of Achab like the house of Jerobo-boa the sone of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Abiah. And eueruinge Jezabel, the dogs shall eate her in the felde of Jezabel, and none shall bury her. And he opened the doore and fled. And whē Jehu was come out to the seruantes of hys Lorde, they sayd to hym: is al peace?

Wherfore came thys mad felow vnto the?

And he sayd vnto the mynys: knowe the felow, and hys communicacion. And they sayd: it is not so. But tell vs a felowshipp.
And he sayd: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Israel.
And they halsted and toke euery man hys mantel and put vnder him on an hye bench at the top of the steepe, and blew a trumpette, and sayd: Jehu is kyng. And so Jehu the sonne of Josaphat, the sonne of Asa-sy, conspyed agaynst Jehoiam. And Jehoiam hadde bene waytyng at Ramoth in Galaad, and all Israel wth hym, for fear of Hazael kyng of Siria, and was retourned to be healed in Jezrebel, of the woundes whiche the Sirians hadde geuen hym, as he foughte wth Hazael kyng of Syria.

And he sayd Jehu: I se be your myndes let no man escape out of the cty, to go and tell in Israel. And Jehu rode, and wente to Israel: for Jehoiam laye there and Ohoziab kyng of Juda was come to Jeho-iam. And the watchmanne that stode on the tower in Israel, espyed the companye of Jehu as he came, and sayd: I se a compayne. And Jehoiam sayed: take an horsemanne, and sende agaynst theym and lette hym aske whether it be peace.

And there wente one on horsebacke a-gaynst hym, and sayed: Thus sayeth the kyng: is it peace? And Jehu answered: what haue thou to doo wth peace? tounne and come after me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: the messenger came to them but he cometh not agayne. Then he sente out another on horsebacke, whiche came to them, and sayed: thus sayeth the kyng: Is it peace? And Jehu answered, what haue thou to doo wth peace? tounne and come after me. And the watchman told, saying: he came to them, but he cometh not againe, and the byrnyng is lyke the byrnynges of Iehu the sonne of Namsy, for he byrned as he were mad.

Then sayed Jehoram, make ready. And they made readye hys charrette. And Jehoram kynge of Iuda, and Ohoziab kynge of Iuda wente oute together in hys charrette agaynst Iehu, and mette hym in the furlonge of Naboth the Jezrehelite. And when Jehoram sawe Iehu, he sayed: is it peace Iehu? And Iehu sayed: what peace should there be, so longe as the houndes of thy mother Jezabell, and thy houndes are so greates? And Jehoram turned hys hande and fledde, and said to Ohoziab: there is falsehode in hande Ohoziab. And Iehu tooke his bowe in his hande, and smote Jehoram betwene the shoulders, that the arrowe came oute at hys breste. And he felle downe the fowle in his charrette. Then he sayed to Baduhat a Lord of hys: take and cast him in the plot of the ground of Naboth the Jezrehelite. For I remembre as I and thou rode together after Achab hys father, howe the Lorde spake these wordes agaynst hym: I haue sene yesterdaye the bloude of Naboth and of hys sonnes sayd the Lorde, and I well reacquire hym in this ground, sayd the Lorde. Nowe therefore take and cast hym in the place of grounde, according to the Lordes word. And when Oho-

And Iehu folowed after hym, and sayd: smyte hym also. And they smote hym in hys charrette at the gornge by to Sur, by Jeblaia, and fledde to Magedo, and there dyed. And hys seruantes caried hym to Hierusalem, and buried hym in hys sepulchre with hys fathers in the cytye of Dauid. And in the eleuenth yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab, beganne Ohoziab to raygne ouer Iuda. And when Iehu was come to Jezabell, Jezabell hearde of it, and beeynted hir eyes, and tryed hys head, and looked oute at a window. And as Iehu entered at the gate, he sayed: had I anye peace, whych I seme hys myghter? And he lyfte by hys eyes to the window, & sayd: Who is of my syde, who? And there looked downe two Lordes þ were chamberlaynes. And he sayed: Thowse hys downe. And they threwe hys downe. And he spycked of his bloude upon the walles, and on the hoyses, and rode by vnder foie. And then when he was come in, and had eaten and droncke, he sayed: goo and ysette I praye you pounder couised Creature, and butte hys, for he is a Kynge's daughter. And when they came to butte hys, they founde no more of hys then the sculle, and the two fete, and the two handes. And they came agayne and tolde hym. And he sayed: It is the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake by the bandes of hys seruantes. He sayed: I will be Iyng: in the syde of Jezabell, shall Dogges eate the fleshe of Jezabell, and the carcasse of Jezabell shall be donge vpon the earth in the syde of Jezabell, that men shall not saye: this is Jezabell.

The .x. Chapter.

Jehu causeth the three hoxe and ten sonnes of Achab to be slayne, and after that fortye and two of hys brethren. He synneth a meane also to kille all the priestes of Baal. At hys deathe hys ionne raygneth in hys stede.

Achab hadde thye score and ten sonnes in Samaria. And Iehu wrote letters, and sente vnto Samaria vnto the elders that were Lordes of Jezrehel, and to them that nourced up Achab's children, saying: now at the commynge of these letters to you, ye haue with you your masters sonnes, and ye haue with you charers and horses, and a stronge cytye, and harners. Therefore chose the beste, and bym that moste pleasech you of your masters sonnes, and put hym on hys fathers seat, and sygh for your Lordes house. And they were exceedingly afraid, and said: se two kynge were not able to stande before him, how shall we then stand. And the gouernours of the kynges house, and of the cytye, and of the elders, and of the vourses sent to Iehu, saying: we are thy seruantes, and wil do all that thou shalt bydde us: we will make no manne kynge, but doo thou what semethe good in thine eyes.

* They be here called nurses, not were called counselors, and rulers, of þ things pertaining to þ common wealth: because they also prouided for the chyldren all such things as were convenient for them.

Then he wrote other letters to them, saying: Ye be myne, & will obey my word: then take the bandes of your masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrehel by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were .lxx. personnes with the greates men of the cytye whiche nourished them. And when the letters came to them, they toke the kynges children, and slewe them in number thye score and ten personnes, and put theyr heades in cophures, & sente them to hym to Jezrehel.

And there came a messenger and tolde hym, saying: they haue brought the heades of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde: lette them putte them on two heapes in the entreynge of the gate, till it be daye. And in the mornynge he wente oute and stode, and sayde to all the folke: Ye be ryghteous: for see, I conspyed agaynst my master, and slewe hym: But who slewe these? Consider nowe, howe there is nothynge of the Lordes worde fallen to the earth, whych he spake agaynst the house of Achab: for the Lord hath done that he spake to hys seruante Iah. And so Iehu slewe all that remayned in the house of Achab the Jezrehelite, and all that were greates with hym, and companions, and his priues, till he hadde lefte hym naughte. And he arose, and departed, and wente to Samaria. And as Iehu was come vnto the house

And whosoever cometh wpythin the ranges shal die for it. And se ye be wth þ king as he goeth out and in.

The captaynes dyd all thynges as Joiada the þrie had commaunded, and toke euery man his men, that is, the that came in the Saboth daye wpyth them that went out the Saboth daye, and went to Joiada the þrie. And the þrie gaue to the captaynes the speares and shildes that wer kynge Dauiddes, and hadde remayned in the temple.

And the garb stode euery man wpyth his weapen in his hand, roundabout the king from the ryght corner of the Temple to þ lyste, along by the altar and temple. And he brought out the kynge's soune, and put the crowne vpon hym, and deliuered hym the swerde, and made hym kynge, and anoynted hym. And they clapt theyr handes & said: God saue the king.

When Athalia heard the noyse of þ people, she came to the people into the house of the Lord. And when she saw the kynge stande by a pylle (as the maner was) and the syngers and the troumpetters by the kynge, and all the people of the Lande reioysyng, and the blowyng of the troumpettes, she rente hir clothes, and cryed, treason, treason.

Then Joiada the þrie commaunded the captaynes that hadde the rule of the hooße, and said vnto them: haue þr oute wpythoute the ranges, and if anye solowe þr, let hym dye wpyth the swearde: for the þrie sayed, he maye not be slayne in the house of the Lord. And they layed handes on þr, & she wist the way that the horses of the kynge wist out, and was slayne there.

And Joiada made a bonde berthe betwene the Lord and the kynge, and betwene the people and the Lord, that they shoulde be the Lordes people, and also betwene the kynge and the people. Then all the people of the Lande went into the house of Baal, and destroyed his alters, and brake downe his images lustely, and cleme Nathan the þrie of Baal before the altar. And the þrie sette watchemen in the house of the Lord, toke the rulers ouer hundredes, and the captaynes, and the garbe, and all the people of the Land. And they brought the kynge into þ house of the Lord, & wist the way of the gate of the garbe to the kinges house. And he sate hym downe vnder the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lord reioysed, and the cype was in quyet. So they slew Athalia wth the swearde in the kinges house.

The. xii. Chapter.

Joas maketh provision for the reparyngs of the temple. He is kylled by two of his seruantes. Amazia sayneth in his Reue.

Joas was seven yere old when he began to raygne the seneneth yere of Acha, and reigned forty yere in Hierusalem. His mothers name was Zebia Beersabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lord, as long as Joiada the þrie enfourmed hym. But he toke not awaye the hylle alters, for the people stode and offered styll in the hylle alters.

And Joas sayd to the þries: al the siluer that is geuen to the vse of the temple, and brought to the house of the Lord by straungers, whether it be the mony that euery man is set at, or the mony that any mans herte geueth hym to bryng into the house of the Lord, let the þries take it to them, and let them repayre the broken places of the Temple, in al places wher oughe is founde decayed. Neuerthelesse the þries had not repayred to the thie and twentye yere of Joas, the thynges decayed in the temple.

Then sayng Joas called for Joiada the þrie, and for the other þries, and sayed vnto them: why repayre ye not the broken places of the temple? Howe therefore se ye receyue no more money accordyng to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple wpythall. And the þries consented to receyue no more money of the people, but that it shoulde goo to the repyryng of the temple.

Then Joiada the þrie toke a cofer, and boored a hole in the syde of it, and put it besyde the altar on the ryghte syde as one cometh to the house of the Lord. And into that dyd the þries that kepte the boxes, putte al the mony that was brought to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was muche money in the cofer, the kynge scrute, and the hie þrie came and sealed vp the mony, that was found in the house of the Lord, after they had tolde it. And they gaue the mony by sums into the handes of the maisters of the works, that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lord, and they brought it oute to the carpenters and baylders that wroughte vpon the house of the Lord, and to Masons and bewers of stone, to breke timber and fre stone, to repaire the decay in the house of the Lord, and all that needed reparacions in the house: howbeit there was not made in the house of the Lord, bowles of syluer, shreadynges, basens, troumpettes, or anye other instruments of gold or siluer, of that mony that was broughte for the house of the Lord. For they gaue that to the workemen to repaire ther in the house of the Lord.

Howebeit they rekened not wpyth the moneys to be bestowed on the workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelitie. Howbeit trespass many, and sinne money, might not be brought into the house of the Lord, for it was the þries. Then came Bazaell the kynge of Siria, and foughte agaynst Jeroboam and toke it, and appoynted hym selfe to go vpon into Hierusalem.

But Joas king of Iuda toke the dedicate thynges ah his progenitors kynges of Juda had dedicate, and that he hym self had dedicated, and all the gold that could be found in the treasure of the Lordes house, & of the kinges house, and sent it to Hazael kyng of Sicia, and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The residue of the actes of Joas, and al he dyd, are witten in the chronicles of the kynges of Juda. But hys owne seruantes arose and wrought treason, and slew Joas in the house of Selo, in the wape down to Sela. For Jozabab the sonne of Semaath, and Jozabab the sonne of Somaer his ser-uantes smote hym that he died. And they buried hym with his fathers in the Citie of David. And Amazias his sonne reigned in hys place.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Joachaz the sonne of Jehu is deliuered into the handes of the Sirians, and dieth. Joas his son reigneth in his stede. Eliseus dieth Joachaz the sonne of Jehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued sedentene peres, & he wrought wickednes in the eyes of the Lord, for he folowed the sin of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, which made Israel to sinne, & departed not from the same.

Wherfore the Lord was angry with Israel, and deliuered them into the hande of Hazael kyng of Sicia, and into the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael al their daies. But Joachaz besoughte the Lord, and the Lord heard hym, for he had sene the affliction of Israel, howe the kynges of Sicia oppressed them.

And therfore the Lord gaue vnto Israel a deliuerer, and they were deliuered forth of the handes of the Sirians. And the childre of Israel dwelt in their tentes as beforetime. Nevertheless, they departed not from the synne of the house of Jeroboam who made Israel sinne, but walked therein. And ther remayned a superstitious woode also in Samaria still, but there wer lette of the people to Joachaz, but spste horsemen, and ten charrettes, and ten thousand fotemen, for the kynges of Sicia had destroied them, and made them like thies.
Wed chate the rest of the actes of Joachaz and al he did, and his power, are witten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joachaz rested with his fathers, and they buried hym in Samaria. And Joas his son reigned in hys stede. In the. xxiij. pere of Joas kyng of Juda, beganne Joas the sonne of Joachaz to ragne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued sitene peres, & did naughtelpe in the spghte of the Lord, and departed in nothynge from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, that made Israel synne, but walked therein. The remnaunte of the actes of Joas, and al he did, and his power, howe he foughte wth A-mazias kyng of Juda, are wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to rest wth hys fathers, Jeroboam late vpon hys seate, and Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

When Eliseus was fallen speke of the sykenes wherof he dyed, Joas kyng of Israel came to him, and wept to him, and sayde: O father, father, chariot of Israel, and conductoure of the same. Eliseus said vnto hym: bringe bowe and arrowes. And he sayed vnto the kyng of Israel: putte thynne hande vpon the bowe. And when he had put hys hande vpon the bowe, Eliseus put hys handes on the kynges hands. Then he sayde: open a windowe eastwarde, and he opened. And Eliseus said: shot, and he shot. And he said: the arrowe of help of the Lord, and the arrow of help against the Si-rians for thou shalt beate the Sirians in A-phak, tll thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayd: take arrowes, and he toke. When he said to the kyng of Israel, smote the grounde: and he smpte thysse, and ceased. And the man of God was angry wth him, and said: Thou shuldest haue smitten five or sixe times, and then thou hadst smitten the Sirians vntill thou haddeste consumed them: where nowe thou shalt beate them but thysse.

When Eliseus was dead and buried, an army of the Moabites came into the lande the yere folowinge. And it chaunced as they were buryng a man, they espyed the souldiers, and therfore cast the dead corps into the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as sone as it touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuiured, and stode vpon his fete.

And Hazael oppressed Israel al the daies of Joachaz. But the Lord hadde merce on them, and turned to them because of his promyse made wth Abraham Isaac, and Jacob, and wold not destruy them, neither cut them from him as yet. And when Aza-el kyng of Sicia was deade, Benhadad his sonne ragged in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachaz wente agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad some of Hazael, the cityes whiche he had taken forth of the handes of Joachaz hys fathers by lawe of armes. And the tymes dyd Jo-as beate hym, and brought the cities of Israel agayne.

kylled, and Azarias raggeth in his stede.

The second pere of Joas sonne of Jo-dome was setteled in hys hande, he slew hys seruantes that killed the kyng his fa-he flew not accordyng to that is written in the booke of the lawe of Moyses where the Lorde commaunded saying: *the fathers shal not do for the childrens cause, nor the children for the dedes of the fathers: but euery man shalbe blame for his own synne.

* And he flew of the Edomites in the salte ballre, tenthousande, and took the towne Sela wyth strengthe of battel, and called the name of it Jekihel euer after.

After that Amasias sente messengers to Joas the sonne of Joachaz sonne of Jehu kyng of Israel saying: come lette vs seagayne to Amasias kyng of Juda, saying: Athille in Libanon, sente to a Cyplicie tre in Libanon, saying: giue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. But the wilde beastes in Libanon, went and trode down the thille. Because thou hast beaten the Edomites, therefore thine hert is seth. Be gloriouse: but tary at home. For what nedest thou to prouoke mischiese, that thou shouldest be overthrowen, and Juda wyth the?

But Amasias woulde not here. And so Joas kyng of Israel wente vpp, and he & Amasias sawe eche other at Bethlames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled euery man to his sente, and Joas kyng of Israel took Amasias kyng of Juda, sonne of Joas, son of Oboziah at Bethlames. And he wet to Hierusalem and brake down of the walle of Hierusalem from the gate of Siphum to the corner gate, foure hundred cubites.
And he took all the golde and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the Lord, and in the treasure of the kyngs house, and hostages thereto: and then returned to Samaria agayne.

The rest of the actes of Joas whiche he dyd, and hys power, and how he foughte with Amasias kyng of Juda, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joas layd hym to rest with his fathers, and was buried wyth his fathers, & was buried at Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel: and Jeroboam his son reigned in his rowme.

Amasias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda liued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joachaz kyng of Israel, fiftene yeres.
The reste of the dedes of Amasias, are written in the chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And they conspired greute treason a-gaynst hym in Hierusalem, and he fled to Lachis. And they wente after hym to Lachis, and flew hym ther. And they brought hym on an horse and he was buried at Hierusalem amonge hys progenitours in the crypte of Dauid. * And all the people of Juda took Azarias bepage fiftene yere olde, and made hym kyng in the place of hys father Amasias. He built Ailah, and brought it agayne to Juda, after that the kyng was layd to rest wyth hys fathers.

The fiftene yere of Amasias sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, was Jeroboam son of Joas made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and reigned thre yeres, and broughte wyckednes in the syghte of the Lorde: for he tourned in nothyng from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel to synne.

He restored the coffes of Israel from the entering of Demath vnto the Sea, in the wilde fieldes, accordyng to the woorde of the Lorde God of Israel, whiche he spake thorowe hys seruante Jonah the sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of Beth Dophre. For the Lorde hadde sene howe the affliction of Israel had bene excedyng bitter, in so muche that the pyloned, and the forsaken were at an end. And ther was no helpe vnto Israel. And the Lorde had not yet sayde, that men shoulde put out the name of Israel frome vnder heauen. And therefore he help them by the hand of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

The rest of the dedes of Jeroboam, and all he did, and hys power, howe he foughte how he restored Damasco, and Demath to Juda in Israel, are written in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam layd hym to rest wyth hys fathers, and wyth the kynges of Israel, too whome zacharias hys sonne succeeded.

The seven and twentye yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, Azarias the sonne of Amasias kyng of Juda began to reigne. Sixtene yere olde was he when he was made kyng, and reigned two and fifti yeres in Hierusalem: his mothers name was Zacharia, and was of Hierusalem.
And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thynges, as dyd hys father Amasias, saue that they put not the hil aulters away, for the people offered and burnt still in the hil alters. And the Lorde smote the kyng that he was a lepre vnto the daye of hys death, and dwelt in a house at liberty by hym self, and Jothan the kynges sonne gouerned the house, and iudged the people of the lande.
The rest of the dedes of Azarias, and all he made kyng vpon Israel in Samaria, and reigned six monethes, and dyd that pleased the Lorde, as dyd his fathers, and turned not from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whiche caused Israel to synne. And Selum the sonne of Tabes conspired agaynst hym, and smote him before the people, and kyled hym and reigned in hys stede. The rest of the dooers of Zacharias, are witten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. Whys is the saying that the Lorde spake vnto Jeru, saying: the sonnes shal sit on the seate of Israel in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe, Selum the son of Tabes began to regne the nyne and thirtie yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, and he reigned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahem the son of Gadi came by from Tharrah, and went to Samaria, & smot Selum the sonne of of Tabes in Samaria, and slew hym, & reigned in his stede. The reste of the dooers of Selum, and the treason whiche he conspyred, are witten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. The same tyme Manahem destroyed Thaphsah, and all that were therein, and the coses thereof from Tharrah (because they opened not to hym) he smote, and sente all the women wth childe.

The nyne and thirtie yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, began Manahem the sonne of Gadi to raigne vpon Israel, and continued ten yeres in Samaria. And did euil in the sighte of the Lorde, and turned not all his dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whiche made Israel synne. And Shul kyng of Assiria came by on the lande. And Manahem gaue Shul a thousande talentes of syluer, to helpe hym to stablysh hys kyngedome. And Manahem rayled the monye in Israel, vpon all men of substance, for to geue the kyng of Assiria, fifty cycles of syluer a yere. And the kyng of Siria turned backe agayn, and taried not there in the lande. The reste of the dooers of Manahem, and all he dyd, are witten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Manahem was layed to rest with his fathers, Shalmaneser hys sonne reigned in his stede.

The fiftieth yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, began Shalmaneser the son of Manahem to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued two yeres, and wrought wretchedly in the sighte of the Lorde, and left not of from the syn of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which caused Israel to syn. And Shalmaneser the sonne of Assiria, a capytayn of his, conspyred agaynst hym, and slew him in a tower of the kings house, wth Argob and Ariah, & fiftie men wth hym that were Galadites. And when he had killed hym, he raygned in his towne.

The reste of Shalmaneser, and all that he dyd are witten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. In the two and fiftie yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, began Shalmaneser the sonne of Assiria to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued two yeres, and dyd euil in the sighte of the Lorde, and turned not from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, that made Israel to syn. In the daies of Shalmaneser kyng of Assiria, came Tiglath Pileser kyng of Assiria, and toke Aion, Abel, Beth, Banaia, Janoa, Bades, Bazon, Balaad, Balie and all the lande of Iephthah, and caried them awaye to Assiria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspyred treason agaynst Shalmaneser the sonne of Assiria, and smote hym, and slew hym, and raygned in hys stede, the twenty yere of Joatham the sonne of Oziah. The reste of the actes of Shalmaneser, and all that he dyd, are witten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

And he dyd righte before the Lorde, even in all thyng, as dyd hys father Oziah, so did he. But he put not awaye the hill aulters, for the people offered and burnt incense still in the hill aulters, he buylte the hysse doore in the house of the Lorde. The reste of the dooers of Joatham, and all he dyd, are witten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. In those dayes the Lorde began to send agaynst Iuda. As in the kyng of Siria, and Shalmaneser the sonne of Assiria. And Joatham rested wth hys fathers, and was buried wth hys auncestours in the cypre of Dauid hys father, and Achaz hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

The senentene yere of Shalmaneser son of Assiria kyng of Israel, Achaz sonne of Joatham kyng of Iuda, began to raigne, being of thage of twenty yere, when he was made kyng. & raygned nineteene yere in Ierusalem, and dyd not the thyng that was righte in the eyes of the Lorde his god as did Dauid hys father.

And he offered and burnt the fat in the hill aulters and on the hylls and vnder euery grene tree. Then Asa king of Siria, & Shalmaneser sonne of Assiria kyng of Israel, came by to Ierusalem to fyghte.

And Achaz toke the siluer and the golde that was founde in the house of the Lorde and in the treasure of the kynges house: & sente it for a reward to the kyng of Assiria. And the kyng of Assiria was applyng to his mynde: and wente too Damasco, and toke it, & caried the people awaye, to Assyria, and to the Rasin.

¶ And kyng Achaz wente agaynste Teglath phalassar kyng of Assiria, too Damasco. And when he sawe a certayne aulter that was at Damasco, he sente too Uria the priest the paterne of the aulter, and the facion of al the workeman shyp thereof. And Uria the puerle made an aulter in all poyntes lyke too the paterne whiche kyng Achaz had sent from Damasco, and had finished by the kynges comyng from Damasco. And when the kyng was come from Damasco, and sawe the aulter, he wente too it, and offered thereon. And he burnt his burnt offeringe, and spyncked the bloude of his peace offeringe, and poured his beuelles, and spyncked the bloude of his peace offerings vpon the sayde aulter. And the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, he remoued from betwene the aulter and the house of the Lorde, and putte it in the North syde of the sayde aulter.

And the kyng commaunded Uria the puerle, sayinge: vpon the greates aulter set on fyre in the mornynge burnt offerings, & in the euen, meat offerings, & the kynges burnt sacrifice, this meat offerings, and the burnt offerings of all the people of the Lande, and theyr meat offerings, and theyr dypncke offerings, and poure thereon all the bloude of all manner meate offerings. ¶ Hosea kyng of Israel is taken. And he & al hys realme broughte to the Assyrians.

In the twelfe yere of Achaz kyng of Iuda, Hosea the sonne of Eial beganne to rapgne in Samaria vpon Israel, and continued nyne yeres, and did that displeased the Lorde, but not so euill as dyd the kynges of Israel that were before hym. And Salmanassar kyng of Assiria came vpon hym, and Hosea became hys seruaunt, and gaue hym trybutes. And the kyng of Assiria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sente messengers to Suias kyng of Egypte, and sente no trybute vnto the kyng of Assiria, as he was perelpe wonte to do. Therefore the kyng of Assiria beseged hym, and bounde hym, and put hym in prison.

* And then the kyng of Assiria came thowenoute at the lande, and came to Samaria, & beseged it thre yere. And in the nynthe yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assiria toke Samaria, and carped Israel awaye to Assiria, and put them in Gala, in Habor on the ruer of Euphrat, and in the ctytes of the Medes. For the chyldren of Israel had synned agaynste the Lorde theyr God, whiche had broughte them oute of the lande of Egypte from the hand of pharaos kyng of Egypt, & worshipped other goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the heathen, whiche the Lorde call out before the chyldren of Israel, and in the thynges whiche the kynges of Israel had made. And the chyldren of Israel wapte themselves in thynges that were not well toward the Lorde theyr God. And they buyt them hyl alters in all theyr ctytes, bothe in the towres wher they kept watch, and also in strong townes. And they made them images, and superstitious woodes on euery hyl, and vnder euery grene tre. And there they sacrificed in the hyl alters as did the heathen whiche the Lorde carped awaye at theyr comynge, and wroughte wycked dedes to anger the Lorde wth. And they serued Idols, concernynge whiche thynge the Lorde had sayde to them: ye shall not do so. And the Lord testyfyed to Israel by the prophetes, and by all the seates, saying: Turne from your wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes, and myne ordynaunces, accordynge to all the lawes whiche I commaunded your fathers, and as I sente to you by my seruantes the prophetes. But they wold not heare, but hardened their neckes, like vnto the neckes of theyr fathers that did not beleue the Lorde theyr God.

And they refused hys ordynaunces, and hys couenaunt that he had made with theyr fathers, and the wytnes whiche he had witnessed to them, and folowed banitie, and became bayne, lyke to the heathen that were round about them, of whiche the Lord had charged them that they shoulde not do lyke them

Wherefore the Lord was exceeding wroth wpth Israel, and put them out of hys sight, that ther was left but the tribe of Juda only: and thereto Juda kepte not the commaundementes of the Lord their God, but walked in the ordynaunces of Israel whiche they had made. Therefore the Lord saide by all the seede of Israel. And beryed them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntill he had cast them out of hys sight. And Israel deuoyded themselves from the house of Dauid, and made Jeroboam the son of Nabat kynge. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel away from the Lord, and made them spynne a greatespynne. And so the chyldren of Israel walked in all the spynne of Jeroboam whiche he had set vppon, and departed not from the same, tyll the Lord had put Israel awaye out of hys sight, as he sayd by all his seruantes the prophetes. And so he translated Israel out of their land to Assyria. euen vnto this day.

Jer. xli. a.

And the kynge of Assyria broughte people from Babylon and from Cutha, and from Susa, and from Bemat, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cityes of Samaria in stede of the chyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelte in the ctyes thereof. But at the begynnyng of theyr dwelling, they feared not the Lord. Wherefore the Lord sent Lions vpon them which slew them. Then men told the kynge of Assyria, saying: The nations whiche thou hast brought & put in the cityes of Samaria know not the maner of the god of the land, and therefore he hath sent Lions vpon the, whiche slaye them because they know not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kynge of Assyria commaunded sayinge: carpe thither one of the priestes whiche ye broughte thence, and lette hym go and dwell there, and teache them the facon how to serue the God of the countrey. And then one of the priestes whiche they had carped thence, wente and dwelt in Bethel: and taughte them howe they shoulde feare the Lord. Howe be it euerie nacion made their owne goddes and put them in the houses of the hyl aultares whiche the Samaritans had made, euerie nacion in their ctyes where they dwelt.

The men of Babylon made Socoh, Benoth. The men of Cuth made Rergel. They of Bemat made Asima. The Euites made Nabahaz, & Barthak. And the Sepharuaites burnt theyr chyldrene in fire vnto Anamielech, and Anamielech, the goddes of the Sephar aites. And though they feared the Lord, yet they made them priestes of the lowel of the people, for the hyl aulters, whiche sacrificed for them in the houses of the hyl aulters. And so they feared the Lord, and yet serued theyr owne Goddes after the manner of the people from whence they were broughte.

Vnto this day they do after the old manner. they neyther feare the Lord, neither do after theyr owne ordynaunces and customes, and after the lawe and commaundemente whiche the Lord commaunded the chyldren of Jacob whose name he called Israel, and made an appoyntement with them and charged them, saying: feare not anye other goddes, nor bowe your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lord whiche brought you out of the land of Egypt wpth a great power and stretched oute ayme, hym feare and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifice. And the ordynaunces, customes law and commaundement which I wrote for you, se ye be diligent to do, for evermore, and fere not anye other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you se ye forget not and ye feare none other goddes: but the Lord your god ye shal feare, & he shal deliuer you out of the handes of al your enemyes. Howe be it they herd not, but dyd after the olde maner. And euen so did these nations feare the Lord and serue theyr Images thereto: and so do theyr chyldren and theyr chyldrens chyldren to: Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

Not to feare the lord, is to lyue careles, and to serue theyr lustes & appetites: and not to serue god and his lawe, as it is sayde. Psal. lvi.

And they sayd to him: thus sayth Ezechias: Thus day is a day of rebulacion, of rebukynge and carlynge: Euen as when the chyldren are ready to be borne and the mothers haue no power to be deliuered. Wherfore the Lord thy God wolde heare al the wordes of Nabfaketh whome the kynge of Assyria bys maister hath sente to rayle on the lypynge God, and to rebuke hym wth wordes, whiche the Lord thy god hath heard. Wherfore lyste by thy prayer for the remnant that are left. Whē the seruantes of kynge Ezechias were come to Iſat, Iſat sayd to them. So shall ye say to your maister. Thus saye the Lord: be not afraide of the wordes thou herddest wth whiche the younge men of the kynge of Assyria haue rayled on me. For I will send him a blast & he shall heare tidings and so returne to his owne land: And I will ouerthrow him wth the sword, euen in his owne land.

And Nabfaketh went backe agayne and found the king of Assyria ſtybring agaynst Lobnab: for he had herd that he was departed from Iſachis. And he herd sayngs of Eberaka, kynge of the blacke Agores, that he was come out to fight agaynst him. And therupon he departed and sente messengers vnto Ezechias sayng: Thus saye to Ezechias king of Iuda. Let not thy God eape the out of the waye in whome thou so trustest, sayng: Ierusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Behold, thou hast herd what the kynge of Assyria haue done to all lāds, how they haue utterly destroyed them. And how the fuldest thou escape: hath the goddes of the heathen deliuered them whiche myne auncestours haue destroyed: as Bofan, Baran, Isaceph and the chyldren of Eden whiche were in Belafat: wher is the king of Hamath, the king of Arphad, the king of Sepharuaim, and the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Gaub.

When Ezechias had receyued the letters of the hand of the messengers and had red theym, he wente into the house of the Lord, and sayd them abroad before the Lord. And Ezechias prayed before the Lord, and sayd: Lord God of Iſrael, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubyns, thou art God alone ouer al the kyngdomes of the earth, and thou hast made both heauen and earth. Open Lord thine eyes and see: and heare the wordes of Sennacherib whiche hath sent to rayle on the lypynge God. Certes O Lord, the kynge of Assyria haue destroyed nacions and their landes, and haue sette fire on their Goddes. For they were no gods but the worke of handes of mā, euen wood and stone. And therefore they destroyed them. Now therfore (O Lord our God) saue thou vs oute of his hande, that al the kyngdomes of the earth may know that thou Lord art God alone. And Iſat the sonne of Amoz sent to Ezechias sayng:

Thus sayeth the Lord God of Iſrael: the thyng that thou hast prayed to me concernynge Sennacherib kynge of Assyria, I haue heard. Thus is the thyng that the Lord sayth of him: He hath despised me, & virgin daughter of Sion: He hath shaken his head at the thou daughter of Ierusalem: whom hast thou rayled on, and whom hast thou reuled? Agayne whom hast thou rayled on by thy voyce, and hast eluate thine eyes so hygh? Euen agaynst the holy of Iſrael. By the hande of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lord and sayd: wth the multitude of my charrettes I am come vpon the bergeth of the mountaynes, euen as longe by the sydes of Libanon, and haue cut of the hygh Cedar trees, and the lustre of syre trees thereof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth thereto. I haue digged and dronke strange waters, and haue dryed vp wth the soules of my fete pooles enclosed. But hast thou not heard howe I haue ordered suche a thyng a greatche while ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnyng? And now I bring it forth, & it shall be to destroy: & to bringe stronge cities into rude heapes of stones. And because thou setteſt vp thy byſtelles agaynst me, and that thy raging is come vpon to myne eares therfore I will put a rynge in thy nose and a byt in thy lippes, and I will bring the backe agayne the same waye thou cameſt. The.rr. Chapter

Ezechias sicked and receyued the signe of hys healeth by the shewyng of Asas. He receyued counsaile of Berodach, & is raygned of Asas, because he shewed hym the trefure. He dyeth, and his sonnes hys sonne raygneth in his stede.

II. Para.

II. Para.
xxiii. l.

ABout that tyme Ezechias was sycke vnto the death. And the prophet Isaie sonne of Amoz came to hym and saide to hym, thus sayth the Lord: put thine hand vnto thine bow, for thou shalt dye and not lyue. And Ezechias turned hys face to the wal, and besought the Lord, saying: O remember yet howe I haue walked before thee truely, and wth a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy sight, & wept a great pace. And Asas was thence gone out into the myddle of the ctyte, but that the word of the Lord came to hym, say-yng: turne agayne and tell Ezechias the leader of my people. Thus sayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father: I haue hearde thy prayer and sene thy teares. Beholde I will heale thee, and thys daye thou shalt dye. And thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lord And I will lengthen thy dayes yet seuen peres, and I will deliuer both the & this ctyte out of the hand of the kyng of Assyria, and I will defend this ctyte for myne owne sake, & for Dauid my seruantes sake. And Asas saide: bring a lipp of figs. And they broughte and put it on the soze, and he recovered.

II. Para.
xxiii. l.

II. Para.
xxiii. l.

Then sayed Ezechias to Asas: What is the sygne, that the Lord will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lord the thirde day? And Asas sayed: thys sygne shalt thou haue of the Lord, that the Lord will do that he hath spokē: that the shadow go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees. And Ezechias sayed: It is a lyght thing for the shadow to go downe ten degrees. Therefore I will not that: but let the shadow go backward ten degrees. And Isaie the prophet called to the lord, and he broughte the shadow ten degrees backward which it had gon downe, in the dial of Asas.

At this same season Berodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kyng of Babylon sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he heard that Ezechias was sycke. And Ezechias bakned vnto them, and shewed them all that was in the spyccry house, and his syluer and gold, and oboures and precious ointments and his armory and all that was founde in his trefure, there was nothyng in hys house or in all hys telme, that he shewed them not.

Then came Isaie the prophet vnto kyng Ezechias, and sayde to hym: What saye these men, & whence come they to thee?

And Ezechias sayde: they be come fro a far country, euen from Babylon. And he sayde: what haue they seide thy house? And Ezechias sayde: all that is in my house haue they sene: there is nothinge amonge my trefure that I haue not shewed them. And Asas saied to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord.
Beholde the day shall come that all that is in thys house and that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto thys day, shall be carried to Babylon, and nothinge shall be left sayth the Lord. And of thy sonnes that proceeded out of the which thou begarest, shall they be carried away and shall be made chas-berlaynes in the place of the kyng of Babylon. And Ezechias sayde to Asas: well come be the word of the Lord which thou hast spoken: so that peace and truthe be kepte in my dayes.

The reste of the dedes of Ezechias, and all his power, & howe he made a poole and a conduit and brought the water into the citty, are writen in the booke of Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Ezechias laid him to rest wth his fathers, and Manasses his sonne raygned in hys stede.

The.rr. Chapter.

Manasses restoreth avarne the dolles, and after dyeth: in whose re-membraunce his sonne Sennacherib, whiche is kylled of hys owne seruantes: After hym raygneth Sargis full of pite.

Manasses was twelue yeares olde when he began to raygne, and engined fylty and true yeres in Jerusalem: his mothers name was Hephzibah.
And he had that displeased the Lord, euen after the abhomyacions of the heathen, whiche the Lord threwe out before the children of Israel. And he went and buylte the highalters agayne, whiche Ezechias his father had destroyed. And he reared vp alters to Baal, & made groues as had Achab king of Israel. And he bowed hym selfe vnto all the host of heuen & serued the. And he buylte alters in the very house of the lord, of whiche the Lord had said: *in Jerusalem I will put my name. And he buylte altars vnto althe host of heauen, euen in two courts of the house of the host of the Lord. And he offered his sone in fyre, and obserued dismal dates & used witchcraft, and maintayned wozkers wth syluer, & tellers of fortunes: and wrought much wickednes in the syght of the Lord to anger hym.

And he put an ymage of a groue that he had made, euen in the very temple of whiche the Lord hadde sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: *in thys house and in Jerusalem whiche I haue chosen out of all trybes of Israel, will I putte

And the Lord ſpake by hys ſeruantes the prophetes, ſayinge: becauſe Aanaſſes kynge of Iuda hath done ſuche a bo-mynacions, and hath wrought wyckedlye aboute all that the 2 moynes whiche were before hym dōd, and hath made Iuda ſinne alſo with hys ydolaters forerunners ſayeth the Lord God of Iſraell. * Behold, I will bringe ſuche cuppe vpon Ieruſalem and Iuda, that the eares of al that hear it, ſhall tingle at it. And I will ſtretch ouer Ieruſalem the ſquareme ſyne of Samaria, and the plometie of the houſe of Achab. And I will wype out Ieruſalem, as a man would wype a byſſe, and when he hath wyiped it turneth it vpon ſide down. And though I leaue a remnant of myne inheritance, yet I will deliuer them into the handes of them that hate them, and they ſhall be robbed and ſpoiled of al theyr enemies: euen becauſe they haue done wyckedlye and haue angered me ſynners the tyme when ſathers came out of Egipte vnto this daye. And moreover Aanaſſes shed innocent bloude exceedinge abominable, in ſo muche that he repleniſhed Ieruſalem in all corners, with hys ſinne wherewith he made Iuda ſinne, and to doe vppon the ſpyghte of the Lord. The reſte of the actes of Aanaſſes and all he dōd and hys ſinne that he ſinned, are written in the booke of Chronicles of knynges of Iuda. And Aanaſſes layd him to ſtepe in his fathers ſwas buried in the garden of his owne houſe, euen in the garden of Oza, and Amon hys ſonne reigned in hys ſteede.

And was .xxiiij. yeres olde when he beganne to raigne, and he raigned two yeres in Ieruſale. His mothers name was Helſa ſister the daughter of Hieu of Iarhab. And he dōd that dyſpleaſed the Lord as hys father Aanaſſes dōd. He walked in all the waye that hys father walked in, and ſerued the ydoles that hys father ſerued, and bowed hym ſelfe to them. And he forſake the Lord God of hys fathers, and walked not in the way of the Lord.

And the ſeruantes of Amon conſpired agaynſte hym, and ſlew hym in hys owne houſe. But the people of the lande ſlew all that conſpired agaynſte kynge Amon, and made Joſias hys ſonne king in his roume. The reſt of the actes of Amon, whiche he dōd, are written in the Chronicles of the knynges of Iuda. And they buried hym in his ſeuſchire in the garden of Oza, and Joſias hys ſonne reigned in hys ſtead.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

After Joſias hath heard of the booke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he ſendeth to Odaljah the prophetes for counſell.

Joſias was .xiiij. yeres olde when he beganne to raigne and he raigned .xx. yeres in Ieruſalem. His mothers name was Jedidah daughter of Bedai of Betſab. And he dōd that ſeemed right in the ſpyght of the Lord, and he altered in all the wayes of Dava by ſtarke, and drewed nether to the right hande nor to the left.

And the .xiiij. yeres of hys raigne kynge Joſias ſente Saphan the ſcribe of Ieruſalem the ſonne of Achub the ſonne of Belkiah the ſcribe to the Lord. Sayer: go to Helkiah the high prieſte, and let hym ſee the ſcript that is brought into the houſe of the Lord whiche the ſcribes of the doores haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the handes of the workmen that haue the ouerſight of the houſe of the Lord, whiche ſhall give it to theſe that worke vpon the houſe of the Lord, to repara the decayed places thereof, euen vnto carpenters and malons, and for to bre timber and ſee ſtone to repara the houſe. Howe be it ſeue no repara be made with them of the money that is deliuered into their handes, but let it em do it of theyr conference.

And Helkiah the high prieſte ſayd to Saphan the ſcribe: I haue founde the booke of the lawe in the temple of the Lord, and Helkiah gaue the booke to Saphan, and he readde it. And then Saphan the ſcribe went to the kynge and brought hym worde agayne and ſayd: thy ſeruantes purged out the ſoluer that was founde in the temple, and haue deliuered it vnto the workmen that haue the ouerſight of the houſe of the Lord. Further more Saphan the ſcribe ſhewed the kynge, ſayinge: Helkiah the high prieſte hath deliuered me here a booke. And Saphan redde it before the kynge.

And the kynge as ſoone as he had heard the wordes of the booke of the lawe, he rent hys clothes and commaunded Helkiah the high prieſte and Achub the ſonne of Saphan, and Achobor the ſonne of Apphaja, and Saphan the ſcribe, and .x. ſeruautes of the knynges, ſayinge: go ye and ſeke of the Lord for me and the people, and for al Iuda, concerninge the wordes of this booke that is founde. For it is a greate wrath of the Lord that is kindled vpon vs that our fathers haue not hearkened vnto the wordes of this booke to doo in al pointes as it is writen therein. And Helkiah the high prieſte and Achub Achobor, Sapha, & Alai, went vnto Oldah the prophetes, wiſe of Selum the ſonne of Tekuah ſon of Baraham keeper of the robes, which propheteſſe dwelt in Ieruſale in the ſecond ward, & communed with her. The. xliii. Chapter.

Josias readeth Deuteronomium before people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had killed the priests thereof.
His kerpeth passioner. He was killed in Ma gedo, and his sonne Jehoaz raygneth in his stede. After he was taken, his sonne Je hoahaz was made kyng.

Then the kyng sente and gathered un to hym all the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem, & the kyng went up into the house of the Lorde, & al the m^{en} of Juda and al the inhabitants of Jerusalem w^{ith} hym & the priests & prophets and al the people both small and greete. And he red in hea rnyng of them, all the wordes of the booke of the testamente. whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode by a pylle, and made a couenante before the Lorde, that they shoulde walke after the Lorde, and kepe his commandemen les, and make good, the wordes of the sayd appoyntemente that were wyrtten in the foresayd boke. And all the people consen ted to the appoyntemente. Then the kyng commanded Helkiah the hygh priest and the lower priests and the keepers of the dooze, to bringe oute of the Lordes temple all the vesselles made for Baal, and for the grove and for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnt them withoute Jerusalem in the fields of Cedron. & carped the ashes of the in to Bethel. And he put downe the religious personnes, whiche the kyng of Juda had sette to burne offerynges in the hylaulter in the Cytres of Juda, rounde aboute Je rusalem, and also them that burne sacryfy ces unto Baal, to the sun, and to the moone and to the planettes, and to all the hoste of heauen. And he broughte oute the grove from the temple of the Lorde withoute Jerusalem, unto the brooke Cedron, and burnte it at the broke Cedron, and stamp it to powder, and caste the duste therof upon the graues of the people of the coun trepe. And he brake downe the baggerie places that were in the house of the Lorde, in the whiche the women woue corrynes for the groue.

And he broughte all the priestes oute of the Cytres of Juda, and defaced the hyl aulteres where the priestes byd burne sacryfyce, from Babaa to Bersabe. And he brake downe the hylaulters of the Bas tes that were in the entry of the gate of Jo sua the gouernoure of the city, whiche were on the lefte hande of the gate of the cytre.

After the lorde the priestes of the hylaul ters myghte not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Jerusalem, save only they did ease of the swete breade among their brethren.

And he destroyed Eopheth also whiche is in the valleie of the Chyldren of Ben nom, because no man shoulde offer his son or his daughter in fyre too Agoloch: he put downe the hostes that the kynges of Israel had gynn to the sunne at the ent ermyng of the house of the Lorde in the cham ber of Nathanamelech the chamberlayne whiche was of Darutarm, and burnte the charrettes of the sunne w^{ith} fyre. And the aulteres that were on the top of the parter had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kyng brake downe, and carried thence and cast the dust of them into the broke Cedron.

And the hylle aulteres that were before Jerusalem on the right hand of the moyste & Harith, whiche Salomon kyng of Is rael built to Ashtaroth the abhominacyon of the Sidons, and Chamos the abhomin ation of the Moabites, and to Milcom the the kyng destroyed and brake the ymage

After that the aulter that was at Bethel the hyl aulter made by Jacoboam the sonne of Abar, whiche made Israel sinne: both the altare and also the hylle he brake downe, and burnte the hyl and stamp it to powder, and burnte the groue. And as Josi as turned hym selfe he espyed the graues that were in the mount and sent and let the bones out of the graues and burnte the by on the aulter and paluted it, accordyng to the word of the Lorde that the man of God had proclaimed, whiche openly had denoun ced the same thynges.

Then the kyng sayde: What meaneth ponder graue stone that I see? And the men of the City told him: it is the Sepulchre of the manue of God, whiche came from Jua thynges that thou haste done to the aul

And so hys bones escaped, as the bones of a prophete, that came out of Samaria.

And thereto all the houses of the vyllage alters of the Eptyes of Samaria, whiche the kynges of Israel hadde made, to anger the Lorde wyth, Josias putte oute of the waye, and dyd to them in all popnytes as he dyd in Beibell. And he sacrificed all the priestes of the vyllage aultares that were there, euen vpon the aultares, and burnt mennes bones vpon them, and returned to Ierusalem.

E And the kynge commaunded all the people sayinge: *kepe the feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde your God as it is mytten in the booke of thys Testamente. For there was no passeouer holden lyke that, from the dayes of the Judges that Judged Israel, and chozwe oure all the dayes of the kynges of Israel and of Iuda. And in .xliii. yere of King Josias was this passeouer holden to þe lord in Ierusalem.

Moreover workers with syctis, scolders, payers, images of wychecraft, ydoles and al other abhomyracions that were clyped in the lande of Iuda and in Ierusalem, Josias put oute of the waye, to make good the wordes of the law, whiche were mytten in the booke that Helias the priest, found in the house of the Lorde. Like vnto this was there no kynge as he hym, that turned to the Lorde wyth all hys herte, wyth all hys soule, and al his might, accordyng to al the lawe of Moyses, neyther after hym arose there auyr suche.

A And wythstandyng the Lorde touned not hym selfe from hys searce and greate wrath wherwith he was angry agaynst Iuda vpon all the prouocacions that Aganias prouoked hym. But the Lorde sayed: I wyll put Iuda in lyke maner oute of my syght, as I haue done Israel, and wyll ca. I of thys citty Ierusalem, whiche I haue chosen, and the house of which I haue sayed, my name shalbe there.

The rest of the dedes of Josias, and all he dyd, are mytten in the booke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Iuda.

In hys dayes Pharaos Neco, kynge of Egypte, went agaynst the kynge of Assyria to the ctyte Euphrates. And kynge Josias went agaynst hym, and was slayne of him at Megiddo when he had sene hym. And hys seruantes caried him dead from Megiddo, and broughte hym to Ierusalem and buried hym in his own Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachaz the sonne of Josias and anointed hym, & made hym kynge in hys fathers towne.

And Joachaz was thre & twenty yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name was Hamtall the daughter of Jeremia, of Lohab. And he did that displeased the Lorde, in al thynges as hys fathers had done. And Pharaos Neco put hym in bondes at Riblah, in the lande of Demach, in the tyme of hys raygne in Ierusalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talent of golde. And Pharaos Neco made Echaia, the sonne of Josias, kynge in the towne of Josias hys father, and touned hys name to Joachym, and tooke Joachaz awaye, whiche when he came to Egypte dyed there.

And Joachym gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharaos: whiche he it he tated the land, to geue the monney at the commaundemente of Pharaos, and as euer man was seire at, so he requyred the syluer and the golde of the lande, to geue Pharaos Neco. Joachym was thre & twenty yeres olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned .seuen yeres in Ierusalem. Hys mother was named Zedea the daughter of Phabala of Rama. And he dyd that was euyl in the syght of the Lorde, lyke in al thynges as dyd hys fathers.

In Joachym dyeth, after hym succedeth Joasren. Ierul. is belleged of the Babilonians. Joasren yeldeth hym selfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in his towne came Mathaniah, whiche was called zedchias.

In hys dayes came Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon, and Joachym became hys seruante thre yeres, and then touned and rebelled agaynst hym. And the lord sente vpon hym men of warre oute of Caldeye, oute of Siria, oute of the Assyrytes, and from the chyldren of Ammon: and sent them into Iuda, to destroye it, accordyng to the sayinge of the Lorde whiche he spake by hys seruantes the prophetes. Onlye at the vrbdryng of the Lorde, happened it so to Iuda, to put them oute of hys syghte, for the sonz of Manassas accordyng to al he dyd: and for the innocente bloude that he shedde and fylled Ierusalem wyth innocente bloude, whiche the Lorde wold not forgyue. The rest of the dedes of Joachym and all he dyd, are mytten in the Chronycles of the kynges of Iuda. And Joachym was laid to slepe wyth his fathers, and Joachim his son raygned in his steece. But the kynge of Egypte, came now no more oute of hys lande: for the kynge of Babilon had taken from the ctyte Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kynge of Egypte. Joasren was eyghtene yeres old, when he began to raygne and raygned in Ierusalem thre monethes. Hys mothers name was Neusha the daughter of Elnathan of Ierusalem. And he caried oute thence all the treasure of the house of the Lord, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake all the vessels of gold whiche Salomon kyng of Israel had made, in the temple of the Lord, as the Lord had sayed. And he caried awaye all Ierusalem, and all the Lordes and all the men of myghte, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuitie, and all craites menue and Ioyners, none remapnyng save the poore people of the lande. And he caried awaye Joacya to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chambelaynes, and the myghtye of the lande caried he awaye from Ierusalem to Babylon. And all the men of Aegypte to the number of seven thousande: and craftsmen and Ioyners a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, byd the kyng of Babylon bynge to Babylon to dwell. * And the kyng of Babylon made Mathanpah his fathers brother, kyng in his stede, and chaunged his name, and called hym Zedekya.

Zedekia was one and twenty yeres olde when he beganne to raigne, and he raigned eleven yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Hamical, the daughter of Jeremys, of Robnab. And he byd dwyll in the syghte of the Lord, in all poyntes like to Joakim. For through the wrath of the Lord it so chaunced to Ierusalem and Juda, untill he had caste them oute of his syght. And the said Zedekia rebelled agaynst the kyng of Babylon.

The. xlv. Chapter.

By the rebellyon of Zedekia is the towne of Ierusalem, besieged of Nabuchodonosor. The towne and the temple are both burnt. The sones of Zedekia are slain before his eyes after are his eyes put out. Juda is brought to Babylon, and after is Joacya exalted.

Wherefore in the nyght the peace of his raigne, the tenth daye of the tenth month, came Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon with his power to Ierusalem and pitched agaynst the towne, and made engynes agaynst it on every syde. And the cyyte continued besieged unto the eleventh yere of kyng Zedekyas. And the nyght daye of the fourth moneth of that yere, ther was so greate hunger in the cyyte, that ther was no sustenance for the people of the lande.

And the cyyte was broken by, wherefore all the men of armes fled by nyghte, by a waye thowme a gare betwene twoo walles hard on the kynges garden: the Caldies lyinge aboute the cyyte.

When the kyng went straight toward the wyldernesse, and the host of the Caldies followed after him, and rooke him in the wyldernesse of Jericho, all his army being scattered awaye from hym.

Wher they had taken hym, they brought hym to Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon to Reblab, wher he impeched him of treason. And they slew the sonnes of Zedekyas before his eyes, and put out the eyes of Zedekyas, and fettered hym, and caried hym to Babylon.

In the seventh daye of the fifth moneth which was in the ninth yere of kyng Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon, came Nabusaradan seruaunte of the kyng of Babylon, and chiefe Captayne unto Ierusalem: and burnt the house of the Lord, and the kynges house, and all the houses of Ierusalem, and all greare houses with fyre. And all the host of the Caldies that were with the chiefe Captayne, brake downe the walles of Ierusalem roundabout. And thereste of the people that were left in the cyyte, and them that were fled to the kyng of Babylon, and the residue of the common people Nabusaradan the chiefe Captayne caried awaye, and left of the poore of the lande to bresse the vyues, and to tyll the grounde.

For because ye were not there at the first tyme, the Lord our God hath devided vs, for that we soughte hym not as the fashyon oughte to be. And the priestes and the Levites sanctified themselves, to let the Arcke of the Lord God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Levites bare the Arcke of god upon their shoulders with staves, as Moses commaunded, according to the word of the Lord. And Dauid make so the chiefe heades of the Levites, that they shoulde appoynte of their brethren to singe with instrumentes of musycke psalteries, Harpes, and Symdalles that sounde Synners ded, and to synge on hygh with joyfulness. And the Levites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and of hys brethren, Asaph the sonne of Barachyah.

And of the sonnes of Merari, they brethren, Erben the sonne of Lufaiabu. And with them they brethren, the seconde degree: zachariab, Ben, Haaziell, Semiramoth, Japhel, Uni, Eliab, Baanab, Asaasiah, Merabariah, Eliphelehu, Asachanab, Obed Edom, and Jael, porters. Heman Asah, and Elhan sange withymbales of brass to make a sound. And zacharyah, Gziel, Semiramoth, Jechiel, Ani, Eliab, Asaasiah, and Baanab sange with psalteries in an Almoth. And Merabariah, Eliphelehu, Merabiah, Obed Edom, Jechiel, and Ozaiah sang with harpes, an eyght above, to courage wythall. And Conanyah the chyefe of the Levites was master of the song, and taught to synge, for he was a man of understandinge.

Of Almoth it is the name of an instrumente of musyke.

And Barachias & Eleana kepte the doore of the arke. And Sacariah, Josaphat, Nathanael, Amasai, zachariah, Baanab, & Eliezer priestes, were blowers of trumpets before the arke of God. And Obed Edom, and Jaiab were keepers of the doore of the arke. And Dauid, and the elders of Israel, and the captaynes over thousandes went to set the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord oute of the house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And when God had holpe the Levites that bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord, they offered seven oxen, and seven rammes. And Dauid hadde on hym an albe of bylle, so hadde the Levites that bare the arke, and so had the songers, and Conanab the ruler of the song and of the songers. And Dauid had more: over upon hym an Ephod of linnen. And all Israel brought the arke of the Lordes covenante with shoutynge and blowynge of hornes, and with trompettes andymbales that sounded, and with psalteries and harpes.

The xviij. Chapter.

David is forbidden to builde an house vnto the Lord. Chy he is promised vnder the figure of Salomon.

As David dwelt in his house, he sayd to Nathan the prophete: lo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree: and the arcke of the Lordes couenaunte dwelleth vnder skyppes. And Nathan sayde to David: do all that is in thynne hert, for God is with the. But the same night the word of God came to Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell David my seruante, thus sayeth the Lord: Thou shalt not builde me an house to dwell in, for I have dwelt in no house synce I brought out the chyldren of Israel vnto this day: but I have gone from tente to tente, and from one tabernacle to another. I reple in any place wher soeuer I have walked thorowout all Israel, spake I euer one worde to any of the Judges of Israel whiche I commaunded to fede my people, sayinge: whiche builde pe not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowtherfore thus saye vnto my seruant David: thus sayth the Lord of hostes: I tooke the out of the pasture wher thou keptest shepe, that thou as at the begynnyng, and styllence the tyme I commaunded Judges to be ouer my people Israel, and wyl bynge vnder all thynne enemies, (for I tolde the that the Lorde wyl buyde the an house.) But whē thy dayes be expired that thou muste go after thy fathers, I wyl set vp thy seede af-

After this, Dauid beate the philistynes, and subdued them, and toke Geth and the townes there

And Dauid toke from him a thousand cha-

And Dauid slew of the Syrians, two and Dauids seruantes, and brought hym tri-he wente aboute. And Dauid toke the wil-of Hadadezer and brought them to Je-pillers and the vessels of blasfe.

And when * thou kyng of Hemath hys peace, and to prayse hym because he had fought with Hadadezer and beate him

And kyng Dauid dedycaed them al-that he brought from all nacions, from the Edomites, from the Moabites, from the children of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from the Amalekites. And Abisai the sonne of jariiah slew of the Edomites in the salt valley. xiiii. thousande, and put a ga-uids seruantes, for the Lorde kepte Daragned ouer all Israel, and dyd right and equitie vnto all hys people. And Joab the sonne of jariiah was ouer the host, and Jo-doe the sonne of Achitob, & Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the priestes, and Susa was scribe, and Banaias the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cherethites and the shelithites, and the eldest sonnes of Da-uid waited at the kynges hand.

Dauid sent messengers to comforte hym ouer the deathe of hys father. And when the seruantes of Dauid were come into the land of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanan to comforte hym, the Lords of the chyldren of Ammon saide to Hanan: thyngkest thou that Dauid doth honour thy father in thy sight, that he hath sente comforters vnto the? Nay, but it is to seeke and ouerthrow and to clyp out the land, that his seruants be come vnto the.

BWherevpon Hanan toke Dauides seroute of Mesopotamia, and oute of Siri-men. And the chyldrene of Ammon came

And the rest of the people he deliuered vnchyldren of Ammon be too good for the, I wyll helpe the. Blucke by thyne heart, and let vs playe the men for oure peoples sake, and for the ctyte of our God, and the lord do what semeth hym beste. And Joab and the people that wer wth hym drew nye to the Syrians to fighte, and they fled before hym. And when the chyldrene of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fled, they ran awaye lykewyse from Abisai hys brother, and gat them into the ctyte. And Joab cam to Jerusalem. Also when the Syrians sawe fledde before Israell, and Dauid destroyed of the Syrians seven thousande charets and slewe fourty thousande fotemen, and killed Sophach captayne of the host. When the seruants of Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worse of Israell, they made peace with Dauid, and serued him. After would the Syrians helpe the chyldrene of Ammon any more.

The thre most victorious battayles of Dauid.

In the yere folowynge aboute the tyme that trages go oute a warre aye, Joab carried out the army of the host & destroyd the country of the chyldren of Ammon, and went and beseged Rabah and destroyd it.
But Dauid abode at Jerusalem while Joab smote Rabah and destroyd it: * And Da-uid toke theyr kings crown from his head, and found therein the waight of a talent of golde, and there were precious stones in it.
And it was set on Dauids heade. He brou-ghte oute also the spoyle of the cite, which was exceadynge muche. And he broughte furth the people that were in it, and tamed them with sawes and harows of yron, and wth brakes, and so dealt Dauid wth all the ctytes of the chyldrene of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people came again to Jerusalem * After that there arose war at Gath with the Philistines, at whiche tyme Sobocai the Gathite slew Saphai that was of the chyldren of Raphaim, and they were subdued. And there was battayle agayne wth the Philistines, and Elihu

The people are punished wth pestilence because Dauid caused them to be numbethousande men.

And Sathan stode by agaynst Is-number Israell. And Dauid sayed to Joab and the rulers of the people, goo ye and number Israell frome Betha-

Beſabe to Dauid, and bringe it to me, that I may know the number of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make the people an hundred tymes ſo manye moo as they bee. But my Lord ſayge, are they not all my Lords ſervantes? why then doth my Lord requyre this thyng? why ſhuld my Lord be a cauſe of treſpace to Iſrael? Neuertheleſſe the kynges wordes prevailed againſt Joab. And Joab toke hys way, and wente thorowout all Iſrael, and cam to Jeruſalem, and gaue the number of the counte of the people vnto Dauid. And all Iſrael were in number a thouſand thouſandes, and an hundred thouſand men that drewe ſwerd: and Juda was foure hundred and threſcore and ten thouſande men that drewe ſwerd. But the Levites & Benjamin he counted not amonge them. For the kynges dede ſemed abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was diſpleaſed with this thing, and ſmote Iſrael. Then ſayd Dauid to God: I haue ſinned exceedingly in dorynge this thyng. Neuertheleſſe yet do away the wickedneſſe of thy ſervante, for I haue done aboue measure folpſhe.

And the Lord ſpake vnto Gad, Dauides ſear of viſions, ſayinge: go and tell Dauid, ſayinge: thus ſayth the Lord: I geue thee the choiſe of thre thynges: choſe the one of them, that I maye do vnto thee. And Gad came to Dauid and ſayde vnto him. Thus ſaith the Lord: Choſe the ether thre peres ſamishment, or thine monethes to be coſumed of thine aduerſaries, the ſwerd of thine enemies ouertakinge thee: or els the ſwerd of the Lord. at dayes, and peſtilence in the lande, the aungell of the Lord deſtroying thorowout all the coaſtes of Iſrael. And nowe aupte thy ſelfe what worde I ſhal bypge agayne to hym that ſente me. And Dauid ſayde to Gad, I am in exceedinge ſtrengthes. But lette me fall into the handes of the Lord, for paſſynge greate is hys merce, and let me not fall into the handes of men.

And the Lord ſente peſtilence vpon all Iſrael, ſo that there were overthrowne of Iſrael threſcore and ten thouſande men. And God ſente the aungell to Jeruſalem to deſtroye it. And as he was aboute to deſtroye, the Lord behelde: and had compaſſion on the wretchedneſſe, and ſayde to the aungell that deſtroyed, it is prouge, now ceaſe thyne hande. And the aungell of the Lord ſtoode by the threſpynge floore of Ornan the Jebuſite. And Dauid lyfte vp hys eyes, and ſawe the angel of the Lord ſtand betwene the earth & heauen with a drawen ſwerd in hys hande. ſtretched out towarde Jeruſalem. Then fel Dauid and the elders of Iſrael in ſacke vpon theire faces. And Dauid ſayde vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded too number the people? And I am he that haue ſynned and done euyl in dede. But what haue theſe thepe done? let thyne hande there. O Lord God, be on me and on my fathers houſe, & not on thy people to deſtroye them.

And the aungell commaunded Gad to ſaye to Dauid, that Dauid ſhoulde go and ſetere vp an aulter vnto the Lord in the threſpynge floore of Ornan the Jebuſite. And Dauid went at the ſaying of Gad, whiche ſpake in the name of the Lord. And Ornan turned about, and ſawe the angel, and hys iiii. ſonnes wpth hym, and had them ſelues: for Ornan was threſhing whete. And Dauid came to Ornan. And when Ornan looked and ſawe Dauid, he wente oute of the threſpynge floore, and bowed hym ſelfe to Dauid, with his face to the grounde.

And Dauid ſaide to Ornan: geue me the place of the threſpynge floore, that I maye buyde an aulter therein vnto the Lord. Let me haue it for as muche monye as it is worthe, that the plage maye ceaſe frome the people. And Ornan ſayde to Dauid: take it to the and lette my Lord kyng do what ſemeth good in hys eyes. Se, I geue the oxen for a burnt ſacrifice, and the threſpynge ſeades for woode, and wheate for meate offerynge: I geue it all. But kyng Dauid ſayde to Ornan: not ſo, but I wyl bpe it for as muche monye as it is worthe, I wyl not take that whiche is thyne for the Lord, and offer burnt offeryngeſ wpthoute coſte.

And ſo Dauid gaue to Ornan for the place ſickles of golde. vi. C. by warghte.

And Dauid builde there an alter vnto the Lord, and offered burnt offeryngeſ, and peace offeryngeſ, and called vnto the Lord, and he heard him from heauen in ſpye vpon the alter of burnt offering. And the Lord comaunded the aungell to put vp hys ſwerd agayne into the ſcethe of it. At that tyme whē Dauid ſaw that the Lord had heard him in the threſpynge floore of Ornan the Jebuſite, he bleſed to offer there. For the tabernacle of the Lord which Moſes made in the wyldernes, and the alter of burnt offering were at that ſeaſon in the hylat Gabaon. And Dauid coulde not go before it to ſeke God, becauſe he was a ſerde of the ſwerd, of the aungell of the Lord. And Dauid ſaid, This is the houſe of the Lord God, & this is the burnt offering aulter for Iſrael.

The. xxii. Chapter

Dauid willeth hys ſonne Salomon to build the temple of the Lord, whiche thyng he hym ſelfe was forbydden to do.

And Dauid comaunded to gather the ſtraigers that were in the land of Iſrael, & ſet hewers to hewe ſtone to build the houſe of God. And Dauid prepared plyte of piron for nayles too the doores of the gates, and too ioyne wpth all, and aboundaunce of braſſe wpthoute waighte and of Cedar trees wpthoute number. For the zibons and they of Tyre brought much Cedar woode to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought: Salomon my ſon is pong and tender, and the houſe that is to be buyt for the Lord,
